The inspection, which occupied the entire afternoon, was most thorough, the party going through each building from cellar to garret, pausing from time to time to make suggestions for greater safety. Those who made the trip included Floyd T. Woodhull, of the Board of Education, and Clerk F. B. Clark, and Health Officer Leon Thurlow.

At the suggestion of the Mayor, endorsed by the Fire Chief, a fire escape will be put at the rear of the Bryant school, where the rooms on the second floor are some distance from the present stairs. At the Whittier school the front stairs will be reconstructed with landings and will be made of iron. Even at the Washington school, which has been purchased by St. Mary's parish and will only be occupied by public school pupils until school closes in June, all eight doors of the building are now being changed so that they will open outward. Chief Doane spoke especially of the safety of this building, for it is but one story in height and has eight exits for the six-class rooms. Aside from this, all the windows can be used for exits if necessary.

Shown a weakness in the school fire alarm bell system at the High School by a test there Tuesday morning, when it was found that the bell could not be heard by the pupils in the auditiroum, the Board of Education has already ordered alarm bells to be placed on each floor and in the basement of every building. There will be alarm push-buttons on every floor, too. The work of installing these extra bells has been begun. Particular attention has also been payed to the exits of the various buildings, and the outer doors are now being fitted with chains to the bolts fastening one door at many of the exits. In some of the buildings each door is equipped with an automatic brake to keep the door from swinging back, when once opened. This arrangement is already planned for the exit doors of all the schools and the improvement will be made as soon as the fittings can be obtained. In the meanwhile, every door is fitted with hooks to hold it open. This will make opposite the building exit.

Auxiliary Fire Boxes.

The distance of some of the schools from the fire alarm boxes was considered an especial disadvantage by Mayor Fisk and Fire Chief Doane. At the Irving school, where there are 600 pupils, the nearest fire alarm box is situated at Monroe avenue and West Sixth street, two blocks from the school building. The Mayor spoke of the auxilliary fire alarm system in use at Muhlenberg Hospital and suggested its adaption in the local schools. Chief Doane endorsed the suggestion, and such boxes are to be installed. These will summon the fire department directly to the building. Chief Doane also spoke of the value of stand pipes in the larger buildings and Mayor Fisk will bring the matter up before the Board. At the High School hand fire extinguishers will be placed in the laboratories on the third floor. Chief Doane recommended that fire escapes be installed in the gallery of the auditorium.

Cellars Inspected.

As the party entered each of the buildings, Chief Doane made a beeline for the cellar and spent much of the time in looking over the furnaces, heating and ventilating pipes. In almost every case, he recommended some extra sheathing for the ventilating systems, saying that fire would spread from floor to floor by this means with great rapidity, unless every precaution be taken. In the cellars of some of the schools, blinds and desks are stored in considerable quantity but Supreintendent Maxson had given orders for their immediate removal. The Chief commended the manner of storing ashes in the cellars and their frequent removal from all the schools. The ashes are wet down with the hose upon their removal

FLAT THIEVES COMMITTED

Sent to Jail in Default of $500 Bail After Hearing in the City Court.

ONE PRISONER AN EX-CONVICT.

Chief Kiely Learns That He Served An Eighteen Months' Term in the Eastern Penitentiary at Philadelphia.

At the hearing in the city court this morning of Walter Baker and "Cack" Carter, the negroes accused of flat robbing, Judge Runyon considered the evidence sufficient to hold the prisoners for the Grand Jury and they were remanded in $500 bail each. Both men protested their innocence but Chief Kiely had prepared for the stand by producing enough witnesses to leave no doubt as to their guilt.

Patrolman Orthieff, of the Elizabeth police, who arrested Baker and Carter as they alighted from a trolley car with clothing taken from William Nelson's apartments under their arms, was in court and positively identified them. Mrs. Jennie Gauthier, from whose flat at Watchung avenue and Fifth street two stick pins were stolen, also identified the men as two she had seen loitering in the hallway on the day of the robberies. The only explanation the prisoners could give as to how they had the Nelson clothing was that they had bought it from a man on the street.

Chief Kiely was put on the stand by Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and stated that Baker had made a partial confession to him to the effect that he had watched outside the flats while Carter went inside and ransacked the rooms. He also informed the court that he had looked up Baker's record and found that he had served eighteen months in the Eastern penitentiary at Philadelphia. Carter was a resident here for twenty years but has recently been living in Newark. He was mixed up in a lot of the usual run of disorderly cases taken care of by the police and was eventually ordered to "clear out."

Amos Stites, of Somerset street, has preferred a charge against the men of stealing a watch from his flat and it is said that by the time the Grand Jury gets to their case there will be no less than six counts against them.

DAUGHTERS OF THE CROSS SUCCESSFUL TEA AND SALE.

Under the auspices of The Daughters of the Cross, of North Plainfield, a successful tea and sale of useful and fancy articles, cake, candy and flowers were held at the home of the president, Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen, of Myrtle avenue, yesterday afternoon. The affair was liberally patronized and $150 was the net profit.

Mss Marsh was in charge of the dining-room and she was assisted in serving tea by Mrs. Walter McGee. Mrs. Andrew Selter, Miss Kingman and a number of young women. Mrs. Nelson A. Miller was in charge of the useful and fancy articles. Mrs. George T. Rogers the cakes, Mrs. F. W. Irdell the candy, and Miss Marsh the flowers, and they were assisted by other members of the circle. Mrs. McCutchen and Mrs. Charles A. Reed the vice president, were assisted in receiving by several honorary members. Mrs. DeWitt Brokaw was in charge of the silver offering.

To Talk on Indians.

Miss Isabel Crawford, for fourteen years a missionary to the Kiowa Indians of Oklahoma, will address the meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church on Wednesday afternoon, March 18, at 3 o'clock in the church. Miss Crawford's experiences among this tribe, the aristocrats of the Indian race, are unique, and her narative of these experiences at the Ministers' Conference in New York on Monday was pronounced "fascinating." She is called "the heroine of Saddle Mountain."

Glazier Hearing on Monday.

The hearing in the case of Miles Reusch and others against Theodore Glazier, Jr., of Alton, will be continued Monday before Vice-Chancellor Walker in the Common Council rooms. It is expected that the hearing will be concluded in two days at least. Before the summing up of counsel there will be an exhaustive examination of Mr. Glazier.

Col. Bain to Lecture.

Col. George W. Bain, a Kentucky orator, will give a lecture here on Tuesday night, March 24, in the Congregational church. Col. Bain comes under the auspices of the local Woman's Christian Temperance Union. His subject is a "Searchlight of the Twentieth Century." Admission is free.

MR. SAUNDERS RECOVERS $85,000 COSTS IN SUIT

Former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, president of the Ingersoll-Rand Company, who has returned from England where he went in the interest of a patent right suit brought against his company by the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company, won a big victory while abroad. The suit had been decided against the Ingersoll-Rand Company in the lower courts of England and it was finally taken to the House of Lords, the highest tribunal for a decision. This august body gave the Ingersoll-Rand Company a unanimous degree and as a result $85,000 of the $100,000 expended in defending the action, was recovered.

Mr. Saunders is particularly pleased over the final result of the suit against his concern for it has been pending for a long time and involved the use of important tools in the conduct of the business, which the Chicago company sought to restrain.

After the case was settled he visited several points of interest abroad, including Monte Carlo.

WARREN'S AID SOCIETY HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel was held yesterday afternoon in the chapel. Mrs. Joseph A. McKelvey at the request of the president, Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman, presided. Mrs. Joseph W. Gavett was in charge of the devotional exercises and prayers were offered by Mrs. Andrew J. Stiglitz, Mrs. Benjamin More, Mrs. Theodore Martin, with a closing prayer by Mrs. McKelvey.

Encouraging reports of the past year's work were presented and officers elected for the coming year. Mrs. John Green reporting for the new membership committee, stated that eighty-seven homes were visited and Mrs. Benjamin Moore reported a total membership of 129, which includes the honorary and eighty-six active members. The report of the refreshment committee was given by Mrs. J. H. Snyder.

Perhaps, the most interesting was the statement of the treasurer, Mrs. John Schenck, who retired after a service of six years. She said that during the year $1,100 was raised by all the societies of the chapel for the furnishing fund. In addition $155 was raised from free will offerings and over $300 was paid over to the treasurer of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church for the building fund of the chapel. The society also sent away two missionary boxes, one valued at $50 and the other at $21.

A general review of the past year's work was given by Mrs. Gibson Smith, secretary, while Mrs. J. J. Jenkins, as secretary of literature, told of the work of her department. Following the report of the nominating committee through the chairman, Mrs. William Demarest, these officers were elected for the year:

President, Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman; first vice president, Mrs. Theodore Martin; second vice president, Mrs. John Higgins; treasurer, Mrs. John Green; secretary, Mrs. Gibson Smith; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. W. Gavett; secretary of literature, Mrs. J. J. Jenkins.

After the business Mrs. Joseph Tracey, chairman of the mountain work of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, of New York, addressed the society telling of the work at the Concord School, the Asheville Farm School in South Carolina. She related many interesting incidents in connection with this department of home mission endeavor.

There were ninety members and friends of the organization present and following the address refreshments were served in the society's own room on the upper floor of the chapel. The meeting was concluded with a prayer and benediction by the pastor, Rev. J. O. McKelvey.

R. L. Bonham in Photo Business.

Raymond L. Bonham, assistant in the office of City Engineer A. J. Gavett, has purchased the photo supply business of Frank Van Winkle at 129 North avenue, and will continue the same under the management of Paul R. Collier. The store will be re-opened on Monday, March 16, with a full stock of photo supplies and as heretofore orders will be received for developing, printing and enlarging pictures. The place will be known as "The Photo Store." Mr. Bonham will continue his position with Mr. Gavett.

BUYS $30,000 PROPERTY

BELONGED TO JERE. TEN EYCK.

Five Dwellings, Grain Elevator and Storage House Included in Sale—Deal Made by Lederer.

The J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company has purchased the valuable property on Madison avenue occupied by the Consumers Coal Company and owned by Jeremiah Ten Eyck. It has a depth of 500 feet running along the railroad, a frontage of 100 feet on Madison avenue. It is 157 feet wide in the rear. Included in the deal are five dwelling houses on that tract, a grain elevator and storage warehouse.

The property for a great many years was owned by the Hetfield estate and was later sold to Mr. Ten Eyck. The new owners plan to make extensive improvements. While the consideration is not known, it is said that the property is estimated to be worth $30,000. The deal was made by Albert Lederer, real estate broker.

Mr. Lederer has also sold for J. D. Loizeaux a valuable property in Larramie Park, a residential property on Somerset street, near Mountain avenue and another one on East Second street near Highland Park, and he has sold a tract of land on Greenbrook road to Mr. Loizeaux.

Other deals just made by Mr. Lederer include the sale of Dr. R. W. Emerson's residence on East Fifth street to Max Moraller and John Dickson's residence on Fairview avenue to Maurice McGrath, of West Fifth street.

HOPE. FOUND INSANE, SENT TO STATE ASYLUM.

An examination of Charles Hope, who tried to commit suicide twice yesterday morning in a borough police cell, was held yesterday afternoon by Dr. A. H. Dundon and Dr. N. W. Currie. As a result, the man was found to be insane, and was taken to the State asylum at Trenton this morning by Marshals Pope and Keller, of the North Plainfield force.

The examination was requested by Mayor Samuel Townsend, of the borough. Hope was arrested on complaint of his wife on a serious charge, and was remanded for the Grand Jury by Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy. His commitment to the State asylum will prevent him from appearing before the jury. The Justice's sentence of remand may be carried out if Hope is ever discharged from the institution.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Lewis Campbell, of Metuchen, called on Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, Wednesday, to ask for letters for dismissal for himself and sister, from the church here, to a church in Metuchen, which will be organized with a membership of about thirty during the first week in April. The meeting place will at present be in the Arcanum Hall, which has been their headquarters during the past year. The building of a church in the near future is, however, under consideration.

A happy little party gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sagbaum, Thursday afternoon, where games and refreshments were enjoyed until a late hour. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Randolph, Arthur, Sadie, Charles and Louise Randolph, Walton Smith, Mrs. Clara Smith, Mrs. H. Willis, Gertrude Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Sagbaum and many other friends from Plainfield.

The subjects of the Rev. C. W. F. Attlee's sermons in the Baptist church, Sunday, will be as follows: A. M., "Blessed With All Spiritual Blessings;" P. M., "The Third Time that Jesus Was Manifested to the Disciples."

Mrs. Oscar Thorne will lead the Christian Endeavor meeting at the Baptist church tomorrow evening. Her topic will be "The Wise Use of Money."

Rufus Delafield and family, of Plainfield, will move into the Manning house, on Plainfield avenue, on Monday next.

NEW COUNTY ROAD PROPOSED.

It Is Planned to Make It Extend from Elizabeth to Roselle.

Elizabeth, March 14.—The Union County Board of Freeholders, acting as a committee of the whole, yesterday afternoon inspected the route for a new county road which it is proposed to construct through Union Township from Elizabeth to Roselle.

The road will begin at DeHart place in the northwestern part of Elizabeth, and will terminate at Locust street in Roselle. It will not be built, however, until next year, as the county has another job on its hands which will be done this summer. This is the construction of a new county road from King street, which is near the Newark-Elizabeth boundary line, to Elizabeth avenue, Newark.

THE CURE-ALL.

Are you fat? Walk.
Are you thin? Walk.
Are you nervous? Walk.
Have you no appetite? Walk.
Or do you gourmandize? Walk.
Have you lost interest in life? Walk.
Mayhap your poor stomach won't work. Walk.
Or perhaps your liver has gone on a strike. Walk.
Cupid may have put a kink in your suffering heart. Walk.
In short, walking seems to be the remedy for all ills, save, perhaps, broken legs.

—Mullen & Squires, of East Front street, will dissolve partnership April 1, and the store now occupied by them will be opened as a restaurant.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Delaware and Raritan Canal will reopen to navigation Wednesday next.

Mrs. James A. Cogan, who was terribly burned at a rubbish fire Wednesday, died at her home in Gloucester last night.

Mr. and Mrs. John Reap celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their home, on Elizabeth street, Bordentown, Wednesday.

On a bid of $18,000, Shanley & Co. have been awarded the contract for "stoning" the Church road, in Mt. Laurel and Medford townships, Burlington county.

Suffering from a fractured knee, caused by a fall, John Mealon, twenty-one years old, of Carbon and Spruce streets, Camden, was taken to Cooper Hospital last night.

Mrs. Charles Gleason, of Thorofare, has 100 hens, from which she has been getting an average of eighty eggs a day for two weeks, and Wednesday she gathered an even 100.

Falling from a scaffold, William Showers, forty-six years old, a painter, of 38 Stewart avenue, Camden, sustained a fracture of the right knee. He was taken to Cooper Hospital.

By the explosion of a pipe, Carmini Descideno, thirty-one years old, of 411 Winslow street, Camden, was burned about the face and hands last night. He was taken to Cooper Hospital.

The Racket Club, composed of twenty young men, whose headquarters have been in the Abbott block, on Cooper street, Woodbury, has been forced to move because it adhered too strictly to its name.

It is said that Dr. L. M. Halsey, of Williamstown, and George W. F. Gaunt, of Mullica Hill, master of the State Grange, will be Republican candidate for Senator in Gloucester county next fall, and that Senator Avis will not be a candidate.

A conference and exhibit were held last evening at the First Reformed church, Bayonne, by the Hudson County Sunday-School Association. Rev. Dr. Franklin D. Elmer, of Winsted, Conn., presided, and was assisted by Miss Mabel H. Hart and Miss Lillian B. Deming, of Hartford.

The petitions in the lighthouse board asking for a light on the jetty at Finn's Point, on the New Jersey shore below Pennsville, have been forwarded to Congressman Loudenslager, and the watermen have been informed that the matter has already been referred to the local officers for investigation. A report will then be made to the government.

As soon as the New Jersey and Seashore Railroad Company heard of the death of David Gilbert, the yong fireman whose head came in collision with a pole while he was leaning from his cab, at Millville, last Saturday, it ordered the pole removed. It stood less than three feet from the track, and the railroad men had often complained that it was dangerous.

Marshal Biggs, of Millville, yesterday arrested McKinley Reid and John Gandy, boys, for not attending school regularly. Gandy protested that he had no good clothes, and the marshal took him into a store and fitted him with clothes, shoes and cap at his own expense. Both boys were placed in school. At the first default in their attendance their parents will be sent to jail.

Despondent because of lack of work, Thomas L. Bowers, forty-one years old, of 939 Lawrence street, Camden, attempted to end his life last night by shooting himself under the left shoulder. He was hurried to Cooper Hospital, where a pistol bullet was removed. It was found within an inch of his lungs. He left the hospital against the advice of the physicians, but is expected to recover.

DIES FAR FROM HIS HOME.

Clarence B. Farrow, of Glen Gardner, Victim of Typhoid Fever In Porto Rico.

Glen Gardner, March 14.—Word was received in this place Thursday of the death of Clarence B. Farrow, twenty-nine years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Farrow, of this village, which occurred in Ponce, Porto Rico, Wednesday night. Mr. Farrow, who was a native of this town, returned last July from the Philippines, where he spent six years as teacher and principal, and finally superintendent of the public schools, under the United States Government. After staying at his old home for a short time he left last October for Porto Rico in the interest of a sewing machine company.

His mother received a letter Wednesday stating that he had typhoid fever in a light form, and not to be alarmed. A cablegram received shortly after the receipt of the letter announced his death. Besides his parents he leaves three sisters, Mrs. Lena Stires, wife of Rev. W. D. Stires, of Tracy, Minn.; Miss Beulah Farrow, a teacher in the public school in East Orange, and Miss Routh Farrow, who teaches the public school at Long Branch.

BOY TRAIN VICTIM WANTS SMOKE, NOT AID

With his leg almost severed, the result of being run over by a Pennsylvania freight train, from which he and a companion attempted to alight, Edward Scollan, fourteen years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Scollan, of No. 249 Franklin street, Elizabeth, amazed two score spectators about the Broad street trestle, where the accident occurred Thursday night, by his pluck.

Young Scollan lay upon the tracks suffering great pain. When several spectators went to his assistance he waved them aside and calmly asked for a cigarette. The desired smoke being furnished Scollan puffed resignedly while awaiting the arrival of an ambulance from the Elizabeth General Hospital. The boy continued to puff the cigarette while the ambulance surgeon cut away the remaining shreds of flesh.

Scollan's companion, James Sullivan, fifteen years old, who lives at No. 160 Fifth street, Elizabeth, sustained a fractured hip. Both boys attempted to alight from the train as it was crossing the trestle. It was dark, and neither of them saw the iron girder of the bridge. They jumped against the girder and the impact threw them underneath the wheels of the freight train.

The place where the accident occurred has been the scene of several fatalities. Four boys were killed there two years ago, and only two months ago a young man who attempted to cross was trapped and killed by a Pennsylvania flyer.

SCIENCE NOTES.

The council of the Senate of the University of Cambridge has reported favorably on a proposition to hold a great Darwin celebration next year in honor of the centennial celebration of the birth of the scientist. The date of the anniversary is February 12, but the week beginning June 20 has been suggested as the most convenient time for getting together such a gathering as is contemplated.

Robert Koch, the eminent German bacteriologist, it is announced, will visit this country during the coming spring, but, as the trip is part of a year's rest which he has arranged for himself, he has refused all invitations to deliver lectures while in this country.

There is a movement to provide for the erection of a memorial to John Wesley Powell, director of the Bureau of American Ethnology and the United States Geological Survey.

One of the many methods proposed to rid London of its fog nuisance was the erection of towers in different parts of the city through which, it was designed to pump the foggy atmosphere and clarify it.

As an evidence of China's progress it is stated that the number of newspapers published in that country has been increased greatly in the last decade. They now number 200.

The mail, telephone and telegraph are more generously used in the United States than in any other country.

The statement is made that there are $40,000,000 of American money invested in what is known as the Guanajuato mining district of Mexico. There are many mines in that section which have been idle for a century, and more because the surface richness of the mines had been exhausted by the Spaniards and the cost of fuel was too great to continue operations. It was well known to the mining men of the early days that rich deposits of ores existed in the Guanajuato mines at greater depths, but it was impracticable to go deeper. In those days no power existed which could keep the lower workings clear of water or hoist the ore to the surface at low expense. The mines had to be abandoned with great wealth almost within reach. Under the new conditions these mines are being developed with great success. Hydraulic plants have been established and the power transmitted to the mines in the shape of electricity. That supplying the district referred to is located at El Duro, and the current is transmitted a distance of 110 miles, supplying a number om mining plants. There are several ambitious power projects of this kind in operation and projected, making use of the great waterfalls which abound in that country, and in one instance it is contemplated to carry the power a distance of 175 miles.

Montclair Police Order Private Vehicles to Line Up at Lackawanna Station.

Fashionable residents of Glen Ridge are disturbed by an order of Chief of Police John A. Brown, to the effect that hereafter all carriages and automobiles owned by private persons will have to line up at the Lackawanna station in the same manner as the public cabs.

Many complaints have been received about the confusion that occurs at the station, and the rule was promulgated by the Chief of Police in the hope that it will relieve the situation. The big sixty-horse power machine owners and the drivers of fine carriages do not like the idea of lining up with hack drivers, and the Chief of Police will probably find trouble in enforcing the rule.

The following question was asked a class of small boys who were studying Scripture history:

"Where did John the Baptist live?"

One small boy answered, promptly, "In the desert."

"Quite right," was the reply. "Now, what are people called who live in the desert?"

"Deserters, sir," was the answer.

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Plainfield People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Plainfield.

Andrew Mattis, carpenter, of 127 West Fourth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I have been troubled for years by dull backache and pain in the back of my head, caused by kidney complaint. I was hurt severely some time ago by falling from a scaffold and the physicians thought my spine was injured. I think that fall injured my kidneys. As nothing else that I tried seemed to help my back or kidneys, I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills and got a supply at Randolph's pharmacy. I have now taken nearly three boxes, and find that the backache and headaches have disappeared."

Thomas W. Ross, in "The Travelling Salesman," at the New Plainfield Theatre This Afternoon and Tonight.

the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight.

The story of "The Two Orphans" is a very old one and familiar to many. Louise and Henriette, two girls, sisters by adoption, arrive in Paris, and instead of being met by friends, are separated by an unprincipled nobleman, who takes Henriette to his palace and leaves Louise, helpless and blind, in the streets. A notorious old woman, La Frochard, finds her, promises to help her find the sister, but instead forces the girl to sing in the streets. Several acts lead up to the strongest scene and climax in the last, where the girls are re-united. "The Two Orphans" will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night.

While the American government has removed the motto "In God We Trust" from its currency, the Holland government might appropriately place on theirs the motto "God Bless Our Flat?" For compared to other lands, Holland is but the size of a flat as well as flat on its surface. But what it lacks in size and elevation it more than makes up in oddity. This is very graphically demonstrated by Lyman H. Howe's moving pictures to be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night. However, it forms but one of many other features of a program abounding in novelty, charm, and much wholesome amusement. Another feature just as unique yet entirely different, gives the audience the real sensation of speeding 80 miles an hour in an automobile. It is a strange and exciting experience to travel over curves and gradients at such terrific speed. A magnified study of Wild Birds at Home, French horsemanship, Quarrying stones near Charburg, Hunting the polar bear, Life among the savage tribes of Zululand, Routine life on board a French battleship, and numerous other scenes compose a program of surpassing interest.

George Ade's comedy, "Just Out of College," will have its first presentation in this city at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday, afternoon and night. The story is that of a young, impecunious college graduate who aspires to the hand of the daughter of a wealthy pickle manufacturer. The latter at first demure, but afterward promises to give his consent providing the young man demonstrates his worth by making good use of $20,000 which he loans him. The money is used in promoting a rival pickle factory, which is ultimately bought up by the combination headed by the old man, at about ten times its actual value. This is where the young man, just out of college, shows his ability as a financier. He returns the $20,000 that he borrowed and marries the girl, but not until after he has had a most streneous time of it. Between business and love, he has been the most active man in the community. In addition to this love romance there are three similar affairs going on at the same time. Every part in the play is said to be a distinct characterization, and in Mr. Ade's happiest vein.

"A Soldier of the Cross," the new play about which so much has been said will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre on March 27 and 28 by that distinguished actor, Thos. E. Shea, in addition to that always popular classic "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." The action of the new play takes place at Pompeii at the time of the early christian oppression and destruction of the city by Vesuvius. Mr. Shea's work as the Roman gladiator is an entirely new departure for this actor and, it is said, he has achieved a greater success in this part than in anything he has ever attempted.

TENNIS.

The Plainfield Country Club will, as in past seasons, hold a tennis tournament on its courts on Decoration Day and the following Monday, under the auspices of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association. The season's schedule in tennis events will be announced with that of the golf.

—The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company is planning to continue its work of placing wires underground in the residential sections of the city.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASKETBALL.

The plan to have a representative baseball team in a league to comprise Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington and this city is winning friends every day. Action on the part of Plainfield fans is the only thing needed to form the league and it is hoped that this will be accomplished soon. There is no desire to put the Inter-City Amateur League out of business but there are a number of fans who believe the other combination to be a much better one and are heartily in favor of the scheme.

It is also said that there are a number of local players who are anxious to join a team and play against Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington. In view of this it is believed that no trouble will be experienced in organizing a strong club. Within a short time it is expected a meeting will be held when it will be definitely decided whether Plainfield is to join the new league or not.

The entire team that represented the Navy last year on the diamond is still in the academy. The veterans took the field as they did last year, and for two hours had fielding practice. After that some of the most promising of the new men and of last year's substitutes were brought in and had a tryout under the eyes of the coaches.

The Navy is thirsting for revenge on the Army for the ninth inning defeat it suffered from it at West Point last year. Although all of last year's team are eligible this year, prospects are not as bright as this would seem to indicate, for last year's team is generally conceded here to have been the worst that has represented the Navy for some time.

The chief weakness appears to be in the box. Van Auken, Lamphier and Meade are the most promising box candidates, but none of these has shown any exceptional ability or steadiness. Meade developed rapidly last year, and may make a good man this year. The men of last year's team who reported yesterday were: Hambsch, catcher; Lamphier, Meade and Van Auken, pitchers; Stiles, first base; Bacon, captain, second base; Gill, shortstop; Strickland, third base; Lange, quarterback on the football team, left field; Battle, centre field, and Dague, the Navy's All-American end, right field.

Among the most promising of last year's substitutes are: F. Harris, pitcher; Jones, catcher; J. Harris, Lombard and Purnell, infielders, and Pashley, outfielder. Among the most promising of the new men are: Julian, infielder, and Scott, pitcher. The first game is scheduled for March 21.

BASEBALL.

The greens committee of the Yountakah Country Club is first in the field with its golf announeement for the coming season. Team matches are to play an important part with the Nutley organization, as may be judged by the fact that home-and-home contests have already been arranged with three well known clubs.

A start will be made on May 2, when the Ridgewood Golf Club team will visit Yountakah. The following Saturday the home forces will receive a visit from a delegation from the Hackensack Golf Club. The Yountakah team's first match away from home is scheduled for May 23, when the "braves" will go to the North Jersey Country Club.

Unlike some of the clubs, which of late years have been showing a tendency to encourage foursomes and four-ball competitions at the expense of the regulation singles, and, incidentally, the inconvenience of many, the Yountakah committee has gone to the other extreme. On and after May 30 foursomes will not be allowed to start on Saturday afternoons until after 2:30 o'clock, nor on Sundays and holidays until after 10:30 a. m.

Several novelties in the way of members' contests have been arranged. William J. Berg has offered a prize for a two club competition, while S. L. Magie has presented a trophy for all who have never returned a score of 100 or better for eighteen holes. The first contest of the season will be held on Memorial Day, with an eighteen-hole medal play qualifying round, the best sixteen to finish at handicap match play. R. A. Greene, president of the club, presents the prize. The last contest is scheduled for Thanksgiving Day. Following is a list of the team matches:

May 2—Ridgewood Golf Club at Yountakah.

May 9—Hackensack Golf Club at Yountakah.

May 16—Yountakah at North Jersey Country Club.

June 13—North Jersey at Yountakah.

June 20—Yountakah at Ridgewood.

PLAN TROLLEY SERVICE IMPROVEMENTS SOON

Believing that the time is now ripe for decided improvements in the local trolley service, Mayor Charles J. Fisk had a conference with Col. Hine, of the Public Service Corporation, at Newark, this week, in which he presented demands for immediate action on the part of the company. He declared that the local service is quite unsatisfactory, the city line cars not making proper connection with those on the main line, causing tedious delays, and he called attention to the poor condition of cars operated here.

It is not a question as to whether the company desires to make these improvements, but Mr. Fisk informed Col. Hine that unless the company acceded to the demands at once steps would be taken by the city compelling it to do so.

Among the demands made by Mr. Fisk were that the main and local lines be operated on a separate basis, that is, to let the main line cars run every fifteen minutes as at present, but operate the Netherwood cars through West Front street and the shopping district and the Fourth and Somerset street cars as at present. Under this arrangement a seven minute schedule would be given patrons through the business part of the town and if a main line car is missed it would still be possible to get one of the local trolleys. No fault was found with the Arlington avenue line, the service there seeming to be satisfactory.

Mr. Fisk explained that now that the company has double tracks through Watchung avenue and West Front street as far as Grant avenue he could see no reason why the service should not be improved as suggested by him. He believed it possible for the company to run the Netherwood cars through West Front street, Grant avenue and back to town by the way of Fourth street, or continue them further west on Front street. He said that the plan of stopping these cars at the Watchung avenue stand compelled passengers to walk from that point to the shopping centre or go to the trouble of transferring to a main line car to ride a short distance.

Col Hine, it is said, was of the opinion that the scheme proposed was a feasible one and said that he take it up at once with the traffic manager. The question of operating better cars on the local lines was also discussed and the company was given to understand that there must be an improvement without any unnecessary delay. His attention was recalled to a previous statement that the company expected a shipment of new cars in the spring and that Plainfield would be taken care of at that time.

As a result of the conference, J. J. Gettings, who is connected with the traffic department of the P. S. C., was in the city this morning and he had a further discussion of the suggested improvements. He learned exactly what Mr. Fisk desires and promised to return a week later with a definite proposition concerning the local service.

Colored Republicans to Organize.

The colored Republican voters of the city, through a committee, has issued a call for a meeting to be held at Reform Hall on Thursday night, March 19, for the purpose of perfecting plans for a reorganization. Matters pertaining to the political interest of every colored Republican voter in the city will be discussed. The call is issued by the following: Chairman, A. J. Carey; secretary, Samuel M. Thornton; W. A. Cline, Charles Shelton, Daniel W. Brown, T. H. Royster, John H. Branch, Samuel R. Webley, G. Rasco, Thomas J. Banks and G. H. Ganaway.

FORT REPLIES TO CRITICS

Governor Tells Local Optionists they Engulf Questions of Good Government.

IN SPEECH AT EAST ORANGE.

He Says That When the Time Comes for Local Option He Will Work for It—Unequivocal Remarks.

"When you elect a man to do one thing let him do it before you ask him to do something else, for no one can successfully take more than one step at a time. When the time comes for the accomplishment of local option I will work for it, but I must first work for the principles of the platform on which I was elected." These were the views expressed by Governor Fort on the local option bill now pending in the Legislature at the annual dinner of the Men's Club of the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church, East Orange, last night.

Governor Fort, who was the first speaker, contrasted the conditions that surround a judge and a Governor. "Nothing is so delightful as to be a judge," he said, "for no one tries to prevail upon him to favor local option. No one tries to persuade him to do anything, and sometimes I wish I were a judge."

Speaking of the three departments of the body politic, he said: "There are three minds as distinct as possible in the three bodies. The Governor is charged to execute the law, and can do only two things. He can recommend to the Legislature (a poor influence) and he can oppose a bill by veto. From the speeches made recently by certain Jersey City clergymen, however, one would think the Governor was the whole Legislature.

Just Criticism Needed.

"One thought I would impress upon you if you expect to accomplish anything in the good government of the State. Each individual must work as an individual and not depend wholly on the masses of the people. The average citizen thinks that if he has helped elect a Governor or a member of the Legislature who is in accord with his views he has done his whole duty. But I tell you that the result of the election last fall will be nil if you stop there. Criticism is all right. I don't mind it, for I sleep as well when I am criticised as when I am praised.

"In criticism of a public official, however, do it along intelligent lines. If he does wrong, call him to account for it. But if you elect a man for one thing let him do it before you ask him to do something else, for a man cannot take successfully more than one step at a time. I am not opposed to local option, and when the time comes for its accomplishment I will work for it. But you have thrown into the Legislature a question that engulfs every question of good government. Not because you intend it so, but because the powers that be are throwing every effort into the struggle, and if they defeat local option, they will say: 'Now we can fight the Governor and his platform.'

Platform Pledges.

"We cannot do everything in a short time. If you believe in us you must stand behind us, and yet you are not willing to give us two months to accomplish what we started out to do without putting this handicap upon us.

"During the campaign the Bishops bill was the only issue. Only one man, a clergyman in Metuchen, spoke to me about local option. When I was elected I received 194,000 votes. My opponent received 8,000 less.

"This is the situation in New Jersey tonight. If we would win we must husband all our resources, for we have not enough majority to play with. Give the public servants a chance. Don't come to the task without the slightest idea of how to go about it.

"The Bishops bill doesn't close the saloons, and till some measure is passed that will compel this we must work to that end."

The Rev. Dr. Vance spoke on the same lines, saying that "the people can trust the Governor with the matter, as he knows more about the matter than we do."

Mrs. John B. Conover.

Mrs. Priscilla Conover, wife of John B. Conover, died early this morning at her home on Front street, Dunellen. She was seventy years old and had resided in that borough since 1870. Mrs. Conover was a member of the Dunellen Presbyterian church and as long as her health permitted was one of its most devoted workers. She is survived by one brother who resides in the West. The funeral will be held at her late home, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be in Middlesex Hillside cemetery.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The "Irish Supper" held by the members of the Epworth League last night in the Methodist church was well attended by the members and their friends. A pleasing program was rendered, which was enjoyed by all.

Services at the Baptist church tomorrow will be at the usual hours. There will be morning preaching at 10:45; B. Y. P. U., 7:15 p. m.; followed by the evening service at 8 o'clock.

Miss Elsie Soeller has returned to her home in New York, after a two months' visit with her sister, Mrs. E. B. Garwood.

Mrs. John Cottrell, who has been visiting relatives in town, has returned to her home at Bayonne.

Anthony Dobbins, of Newark, has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Robert Walpole, of Front street.

The annual school meeting will be held Tuesday night in the assembly room of the building.

Daniel T. Hendrickson, formerly principal of the public school, was in town yesterday.

The weekly prayer and praise meeting will be held at the Methodist church tonight.

The local baseball season will open Saturday, April 29.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Rev. George H. Gardner, pastor of the New Market Baptist church, has announced a series of special Lenten sermons to be given in connection with the evening services. The general topic of the series is "The Dead March to the Tree of the Cross," and the first sermon will be given tomorrow night. The topic of this sermon will be "The Arrest of Jesus Christ, and the Tragedy of Judas." The sermons will be five in number, dealing with the last few days of Christ's life on earth. Music will be a feature.

George A. Main, the son of Dr. and Mrs. D. C. Main, who was operated upon at Muhlenberg Hospital a few days ago, is reported to be improving rapidly, and will soon be able to come home.

The Saturday Night Club will meet this week at "Brookview," the home of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Coffey.

The Ladies' Orchestra has re-organized as the Euterpean Club. Mrs. Charles S. Day is leader.

Miss Ella Moore will entertain the Embroidery Club at her home in Plainfield tonight.

THE FORUM.

QUAKER DISSENTIONS.

Orthodox vs. Hicksites—1647-1827.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Will thee permit a word in thy journal from a descendant of one of the original stock who first constituted the "Society of Friends" in this section of New Jersey? Thy patience will not be taxed with a long dissertation. In thy newspaper contemporary published around the corner, a statement was made yesterday which should be corrected.

Let me inform thy readers that "the American leader of the Friends" was not Elias Hicks. He was the disturber of the peace of Friends in this region. From the early days of George Fox, the founder of the religious sect in England, 1647, until the schism of the Society in 1827, mainly through Elias Hicks preaching, there was always comparative unity and prosperity. Hicks' followers were called at the time and ever since "Hicksite Quakers," while the original element in the denomination was known as "Orthodox Friends." The latter squared their belief with the creeds of evangelical Christianity, while the former affirmed independence of the letter of Scripture and emphasized the right of every one to follow the guidance of the Spirit. They held a negative theology, denied the Trinity—disbelieved in the deity of Christ, rejected the doctrine of the total depravity of man and had no faith in eternal punishment.

The Orthodox branch protested against such ministrations of Elias Hicks which developed doubt in the full meaning of the atonement. At the time of the division and secession in the ranks, it became a disputed question as to which party was entitled to the property of the Society of Friends. The Court of Chancery, confirmed by the Court of Errors in 1833, decided that the "Orthodox Friends" were entitled to all the prosperity originally belonging to the Friends in the State of New Jersey. In many instances this legal night was waived by the Orthodox side and the Hicksites remained in possession as in Plainfield. The true successors and followers of George Fox separated from the parent society on Peace street in 1827-8 and built a little frame meeting house on East Front street, nearly opposite Washington street, on the site of which now stands their two story brick building, erected about a generation ago.

Read me my riddle!
Say—Who is this here?

AMUSEMENTS.

By every critic in New York, "The Witching Hour," at the Hackett theatre, is considered to be the best play that Augustus Thomas has ever written, and at the same time, the best play that has been produced in New York in many years. It is now in its seventeenth week at the Hackett theatre, and at every performance the theatre is packed to its utmost capacity to accommodate the enthusiastic audiences. Mr. Augustus Thomas, the author of this delightful four act drama, has succeeded in writing what is considered by many to be the great American play that has been awaited for many years. In order to enjoy the distinction of being such a composition it must embody, aside from its subject matter, the treatment that will create for it the commendaion of he public that lasts not for one day or a month, but for years. William Winter declares "The Witching Hour" to be "the play of the century." Without attempting to be academic, Mr. Thomas has taken for the motive of his play the all absorbing subject of telepathy and dynamic thought, and weaved it unto a story that holds the attention of the playgoer from the very first line until the final curtain.

"Paid In Full," the unquestioned dramatic success of the season at the Astor theatre, gives every promise of being among the living attractions for a long time to come. Wagenhals and Kemper have been in receipt of congratulatory letters and telegrams for the production they have given the play and the cast which interprets it. Eugene Walter, the author, is one of the big figures in the stage world of today. "Paid In Full" won its success owing to its unconventionality. The theme is new and its treatment is strong and vigorous. There is nothing hackneyed about the story nor the telling of it. Mr. Walter has won his spurs because he dared be frank and original. The play it is true was refused by almost every manager in New York before it was shown to Wagenhals and Kemper, but now that its success is assured every one can see where their mistake was made. In all the four acts of "Paid In Full" there is a refreshing atmosphere of originality and as Louis DeFoe in the World says: "None who see 'Paid In Full' can escape its grip."

So remarkable has been the success of Otis Skinner in "The Honor of the Family" at the Hudson theatre that it is being widely commented on by the best dramatic writers of the day, many of whom believe that the great popularity of the play will mean a return to the dashing romatic drama of five years ago. "Mr. Skinner has set the pace for this kind of play with its delightful comedy romance, but without the swashbuckling," so say the New York critics, "and 'The Honor of the Family' bids fair to start a great wave for plays of this kind over the country. Harper's Weekly in its latest issue devoted a page to Mr. Skinner's acting of Phillipe Bridau and the Potter play. "This is the most admirable example of character acting that New York has seen in many years," says the writer, "and for Mr. Skinner the play provides a great personal success, the role fitting him as perfectly as his skintight breeches." All further bookings for the present season of the Hudson have been cancelled.

One of the striking features of the new musical production at the Casino, Sam Bernard in "Nearly a Hero," is the song "Making Pictures" in which a dozen of the handsomest show girls on Broadway sing a song and at the same time drawing pictures of notables in charcoal on bristol boards, which are hung on the men of the chorus who play the parts of the human easels. As the girls sit down to their work, the song begins and with the last notes of the songs they rise from their chairs and stand aside, disclosing to the audience the finished products of the artistic strokes. To be able to sing and dance is usually considered the limit of qualifications of show girls, and to get twelve of them proficient enough in the art of drawing to sing this song, required theutmost patience during weeks of rehearsal. But there it is, and you can see it for yourself.

A fresh galaxy of stars take the boards at Proctor's Newark theatre week of March 16, fully sustaining, if not surpassing, the high standard of "Newark's Theatre Beautiful." First among the new comers will be Gertrude Hoffman, whose impersonations of comedians is well remembered. Miss Hoffman has an entire new act and her climax will be a imitation of "Genie," the famous London douse use in her famous creation, "The Hunt Dance." Miss Hoffman employs eight horses and an equal number of young women. Homer B. Mason and Marguerite Koeler will present a screaming one act playlet entitled "Hooked by Crook." Fred Ray and company will present their laughable Roman traversty. Of special interest to our surburan and local patrons will be the appearance of Arthur Collins and Byron Harlan. Wherever the phonograph is known these two sweet voiced singers are deservedly popular and it was only after a very liberal pecuniary inducement that they were urged to appear in vaudeville by Mr. Proctor. Ladell and Crouch offer a novel terpichorean turn. The Sandwinas, two clever acrobats in which the women are stronger of the two, appear in astonishing feats of strength and skill. Farnom, Wills and Ransley, sing topical songs and dance in a pleasing manner. Shewbrook and Berry, two pretty young misses, will sing and dance entertainingly. The ever changing and popular animated pictures will complete the bill.

SKY POINTERS.

Mercury is out of range during the early part of the month. Towards the end of the month the planet is a morning star in Aquarius, rising at 5.11 a. m. on the 27th, on which date he is at greatest Westerly elongation of 27 degres, 49 minutes.

Venus is a brilliant object in the evening sky looking southwest immediately after sunset. The apparent diameter of the planet is increasing, being now 16 seconds, which 0.7 of the disc is illuminated; thus the appearance in the telescope is gibbous, similar to the moon ten days old.

Mars may still be observed in the evening, but shining with diminished lustre as its distance from the eartt increases. The planet sets at 10.50 p. m. throughout the month.

Jupiter is a very brilliant object throughout the night. The planet is well placed for observation, being already above the horizon at sunset and on the meridian about 9 p. m. near the middle of the month, when he sets about 5 a. m.

Saturn is in conjunction with the sun on the 21st and hence is unobservable.

Uranus is a morning star in Sagittarius, rising about 3 a. m.

Neptune is situated in Gemini. The planet is difficult to identify among the numerous small stars appearing in the same field of view.

The Streaked Ceiling.

Air moving at the rate of five feet a second through a narrow passage is resisted by friction about one-fouth as much only as air moving at the rate of 10 feet a second. When the velocity is very little indeed, the resistance met from friction is very little indeed, and therefore air can move, although very slowly, through such invisible pores or passages as there are in the plaster with which the ceilings of ordinary rooms are covered. Looking at the ceiling of a room which has not been whitened for some years, one can usually see the darkish stripes corresponding to the spaces between the laths. These are caused by dust left behind by air which has gradually worked its way up through the mortar in the places not blocked by the laths above.—Professor Edwin H. Hall, of Harvard, in The Youth's Companion.

The Plague of the "White Nun."

From present indications it appears that the dreaded "white nun" butterfly, which in previous years caused such injury to pine forests in Bohemia, is likely this year to reappear in even greater numbers. The Ministry of Agriculture has, therefore, appointed a commission of experts to consider how best to stop the ravages of this destructive pest. Beginning in the forests of Saxony and Bohemia, the "white nun" has gradually spread over Moravia and Silesia, and even down to Lower Austria as well. As the forest lands in Austria cover some 24 million acres, more than two-thirds of which are pine woods, the necessity for stopping this work of destruction is very urgent.

A Good Timepiece.

Here is a fish story, for the truth of which we cannot vouch, but which all fishermen, young and old, will enjoy. It comes from an English journal. The Northampton Daily Reporter. Last spring, while a party of tourists were fishing, "up North," a well-known lawyer lost his gold watch from the boat in which he was sitting. Last week he made another visit to the lakes, and during the first day's sport caught an eight-pound trout. His astonishment can be imagined when he found his watch lodged in the throat of the trout. The watch was running and the time correct. It being a "stem-winder," the supposition is that in masticating his food the fish wound up the watch daily.

Windmills Furnish Light.

On the Danish island of Sjalland there is an electric lighting system which is driven by a windmill. The wheel is 46 feet in diameter, and is supported by a tower 43 feet high. The area of the blades exposed to the wind is 340 square feet, and with a wind blowing at the rate of 23 feet a second the mill will give 8.6-horse power. The speed is then 24 revolutions a minute. Current is supplied to 378 incandescent and six are lamps, besides several small motors.

ROMANCE OF THE DIAMOND.

Sir William Crookes Tells of the Queen of Gems.

Sir William Crookes contributes an instructive article to The North American Review entitled "The Romance of the Diamond." He refers to the theory advanced by some scientists that the diamond is a gift from heaven conveyed to earth in meteroric showers, and he confesses that the theory is not without support. He deals with the question of the manufacture of diamonds. His description of the Kimberley diamond mines is particularly interesting. The writer says:

"Many circumstances point to the conclusion that the diamond of the chemist and the diamond of the mine are strangely akin as to orgin. It is evident that diamond has not been formed in situ in the blue ground where it is found. The genesis must have taken place at vast depths under enormous pressure. The explosion of large diamonds on coming to the surface shows extreme tension. More diamonds are found in fragments and splinters than in perfect crystals; and it is noteworthy that, although these splinters and fragments must be derived from the breaking of a large crystal, yet in only one instance have pieces been found which could be fitted together; and these occurred at different levels. Does not this fact point to the conclusion that the blue ground is not their true matrix? Nature does not make fragments of crystals. As the edges of the crystals are still sharp and unabraided, the locus of formation cannot have been very distant from the present sites. There were probably many sites of crystalization differing in place and time, or we should not see such distinctive characters in the gems from different mines, nor indeed in diamonds from different parts of the same mine."

She Did Her Duty by Him.

One Monday morning the colored "wash lady" did not arrive at the usnal hour to do the weekly washing of a family residing in a Pennsylvania town.

When she appeared sometime later the mistress of the house descended to the kitchen and was greatly edified by the woman's explanation.

"No'm"—carefully removing a hat ornamented by a voluminous black veil, "I wa'nt sick. I had to stay home to receive my diseased brother's remainders that was sent from Pittsburg day before yisterday."—March Lippincott's.

Tobacco Pouches Bags.

One of the extreme novelties seen in a shop is a small collection of beaded bags, that are from 100 to 150 years old. They were originally tobacco pouches, but have been remounted and are now sold as handbags. The mountings are of German silver, set with uncut semi-precious stones, and the bags are, of course, hand made, beaded in floral designs, and sometimes an inscription is added, taking one back to the days of the sampler. Prices for these venerable bags vary from $75 to $150.

Tea Strainer Pin Cushion.

The tea strainer pincushion is a useful article that needs no particular skill in its development. You buy the strainer and paint a simple flower upon it, then fill with horsehair and secure this by a cardboard disk covered with a bit of any bright silk, etc. Conceal the edge of the strainer with a frill of ribbon from one to two inches wide, and tie a bow to the handle by which the cushion hangs.

Filling the Lamp.

Reservoirs of oil lamps should never be filled to the brim, as oil expands when heated, and the overflow is apt to exude, causing a smell ofparaffin, while to prevent the oil from flowing over the edge of the burner after the lamp has been filled the wick, after cleaning, should be turned down below the level of the burner until it is required to light it.

To Be Popular.

It is astonishing how much you can learn from people in social intercourse when you know how to look at them rightly. But it is a fact that you can only get a great deal out of them by giving them a great deal of yourself. The more you radiate yourself, the more magnanimous you are; the more generous of yourself, the more you will get back.

A Timely Warning.

Mr. H. was recently presented with a handsome revolver, whose qualities he was testing by firing blank cartridges into the air, when his daughter Natalie, aged six, appeared upon the scene. "Oh, papa," she exclaimed in great distress, "don't shoot at the sky, you might kill an angel!"—The Circle.

Merely an Idea.

"Pop," said Willie, "I don't see why if when you've got toothache you go and have your tooth pulled. It wouldn't be a good thing when your head aches to go and get your hair pulled." Up to this hour Pop has not been able to explain.

For the Traveler.

A useful case for the traveler contains eight nickel-topped bottles of various sizes, a package of bandages, cases of court and adhesive plasters, absorbent cotton, shears, knife, tweezers and a salve jar.

THE ESCAPADE

A POST MARITAL ROMANCE

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

ILLUSTRATIONS BY

"Our little game seems small beside that," said the duchess.

"You're right," assented the general.

"I vote we put away the cards and have a dance," interrupted Lady Cecily, who felt very much put out at having been so easily driven from the center of the stage by her hostess.

"Wait!" said Carrington, who stood stupefied during the transaction. "Strathgate and I will play a game."

"Indeed, I think you have done it all along," said Admiral Kephard sotto voce.

"Whatever game you like, Carrington," replied Strathgate.

"I'll match you for that I. O. U. of my wife's."

"Good," said Strathgate coolly, "what do you offer to set up against it?"

"Carrington hall. There is not a mortgage upon it, and it has been put in thorough repair. 'Tis worth double your stake."

"Whatever Game You Like."

"In thorough repair," mused Strathgate looking about, "ay, since your marriage."

"Since my marriage," returned Carrington, flushing under the insult.

"Good, I take you," said Strathgate, "what shall it be?"

"Well, cut the cards as before."

"Once or thrice?"

"One time. It shall be my last temptation of fortune," he added recklessly.

"Well said," returned Strathgate, sneeringly, "when it is lost you lose your all."

Ellen stepped forward impulsively as if to interrupt, and then stopped; my lord was speaking.

"Nay, my lord," said Carrington, bowing, "I shall have one thing left, which possibly does not enter into your calculations."

Ellen stepped expectant. Was he going to say "my wife?"

No, the words came from him coolly.

"My honor!"

And disappointed Ellen was glad she had waited.

"Much good may it do you, when all else is lost," quavered the duchess.

"Will you cut first?" asked Strathgate indifferently, extending the deck.

"Admiral, will you shuffle the cards?" answered Carrington, taking the pack from the other and handing it to the old sailor.

"My boy," interposed the admiral, "you were a midshipman with me, and I may therefore presume to advise you. Think what you do. Enough has been lost to-night. Don't stake."

"Would Lord Carrington take refuge in the commands of his superior officer?" again asked Strathgate, an evil smile on his handsome face.

"Enough," bluntly replied the old admiral, "you cannot retire now."

"Nor have I the slightest wish to do so," returned Carrington promptly, "although I thank you for your interest. Lord Strathgate—" he proffered him the cards—"it is at the decision of fortune whether you remain my guest or I am yours."

Strathgate drew a card, looked at it, smiled, and laid it face downward upon the table. An expression of intense satisfaction spread over his face.

Carrington followed the other's motions, grim and frowning. His face did not change as he drew his card and laid it face downward upon the table.

"Uncover your cards, gentlemen," said the duke.

"Wait!" cried Strathgate. "I have another wager to propose. Twenty thousand pounds with any man that I win."

He looked from one to the other.

"What, will no one take me?"

Ellen stepped forward.

Carrington faced her and struck his hand upon the table.

"This passes endurance. By God, you shall not—back!"

Ellen had never seen him in such a passion before.

Strathgate laughed consummately.

"Carrington, I have no wish to ruin you this way. I give you the option of withdrawing from the wager. Save your castle."

"Turn up your card," cried Carrington, throwing the four of clubs upward on the table.

Strathgate laughed a wicked laugh without any merriment in it, but a brave one, excellently well done.

"Gentlemen," he said, "Lord Carrington is lucky at cards. "I have but the three of diamonds." He turned it over. "You win, my friend. Your wife's I. O. U. is yours and I confess I'm glad of it."

"The dastard," growled Admiral Kephard, sotto voce.

"Why did you proffer such a wager that you would win?" questioned the duke.

"It was but my fancy," returned Strathgate. "Lord Carrington hath been so lucky in his loves, I thought myself sure to win from him at cards."

"Madam," said Carrington, standing up grim and grave and proffering the paper to his wife, "I return you your debt of honor."

"By no means, sir," returned Ellen proudly, "it shall be paid to you in the morning."

"Better to me than to Lord Strathgate," said Carrington bitterly.

"I doubt not," said Ellen scornfully, "that you will both of you make good usage of your winnings. Shall we dance?"

CHAPTER IV.

A Dance, a Kiss, a Meeting.

Taking the assent of the company for granted, Ellen, who had assumed the unexpected role of leadership in the evening's entertainment, summoned the servants and directed them to move the furniture from the center of the room in preparation for the dance.

"What, Lady Carrington, shall we dance?" began Lady Cecily. "I am sure," she continued with that mockery of kindness which deceived nobody, "the company would wish to dance something that you know."

"Your sudden conversion to the frivolities of society makes us desire to encourage you with all our powers," added Mrs. Monbrant viciously.

"I am too old," chuckled the duchess, "for your modern trippings, but I think I can foot it still in the contradance, er, duke?"

"My dear Arabella," said the duke blinking solemnly, "you are admirable in everything you do and I have no doubt you can show these people a step or two yet, and by Gad, I'm with you."

He rose, lifted his hand and made a feeble pirouette which was greeted with great applause.

"As for me," said Ellen, "I know no dances, but I am willing to learn provided I have a teacher."

"Madam," said Strathgate, promptly stepping forword.

"Your pardon," interposed the host rudely, "you have given Lady Carrington enough lessons for one evening, that shall be my pleasure."

Ellen looked him up and down coolly.

"On second thought," she said, "I do not care for a lesson to-night."

The cut was direct and unmistakable.

"As you please," returned Carrington haughtily. "Lady Cecily, if we dance, will you honor me by being my partner?"

"Always," said that vivacious person, ogling her handsome but gloomy admirer in the most open and shameface way.

"And I would that your always might be forever," said Ellen coolly.

"If you can't and won't dance, Lady Carrington," said Mrs. Monbrant, who knew very well Ellen's inability, "won't you play for us?"

"I can't play either," answered Ellen.

"What, neither play nor dance! Where were you brought up, my dear child?" continued the widow in a tone of commiseration, as if she had heard the dire news for the first time at that moment.

"Among men, Mrs. Monbrant, where you perhaps would like to fetch up," returned Ellen tartly.

"Ha! ha!" cackled old General Athelstrong behind his handkerchief, "'fore Gad she had her there."

The ancient soldier seemed to constitute himself a senile commentary on his hostess' repartee.

"And you are mistaken in one point," added Ellen. "I can dance if anyone will play."

"But I thought," began Carrington nervously.

"'Tis a dance I learned on shipboard, my lord," said his wife audaciously. She was fairly intoxicated with her recklessness that night. "And if someone will play—"

The door opened and in came Mistress Debbie followed by Sir Charles.

"Egad, Seton," snickered the duke, "did you find Baxter's 'Saints' Rest' so engrossing that you forgot all about us?"

"There were other books in the library, your grace," returned Debbie spiritedly, "and Sir Charles and I forgot the flight of time in conning o'er the printed page."

"The only printed page that ever made me forget the flight of time," returned the duke, "had spots on it."

"Yes, most of the pages that you turn are spotted," said Ellen boldly. She feared dukes not at all, especially those of the Dulward stamp, and it seemed as if in her desperation she was bent upon rudeness to all my lord's friends.

"He! he!" snickered Athelstrong again, "she had him there surely."

The duke turned on the general in sudden fury, but again Ellen intervened.

"Debbie, I'm going to show these people how to dance, will you play for me?"

"Play for a dance?" cried Deborah. "Ellen, what has come over you? You gambled?"

"Ay," returned my lady, "and lost twenty thousand pounds."

"Twenty thousand pounds!" gasped Deborah sinking into a chair.

"Compose yourself, my dear. My lord has won it back and holds it safe in his pocket."

"I told you," began Carrington, "that I—"

"Keep it, my lord. You may have need of it," said Ellen.

"I am glad that all has ended well," intervened Sir Charles, vaguely feeling quarrel in the air. He was looking very happy in spite of the raillery to which he was subjected for his sudden interest in the doctrine of Master Richard Baxter—"and I congratulate you, Lady Carrington, on having lost to your husband."

"Her ladyship lost first to me," said Strathgate emphatically.

"Oh!" exclaimed Sir Charles, glooming upon him.

He did not like Strathgate for his open pursuit of Lady Carrington, his friend's wife, but Carrington saw the look and naturally put the wrong construction upon it. Seton went further into his black books at that moment.

"I shall play for you gladly," continued Sir Charles, "I have some slight skill at the harpsichord."

"No, I will have Deborah play," said Ellen determinedly.

"What would Elder Brewster say if he heard me playing at a dance," remonstrated Deborah faintly.

"He would say," returned Ellen, "that you were backing up a compatriot for the honor of America. I wish to show these"—there was a perceptible pause—"ladies and"—another perceptible pause—"gentlemen, that I know something of the arts and graces upon which they pride themselves, and I am sure you won't fail me."

"What shall it be?" said the helpless Deborah as Seton led her to the harpsichord.

"Yankee Doodle!" cried Ellen.

"Damned rebel tune!" muttered the duke under his breath in an aside.

"But, madam," said Lady Cecily incautiously, "you can't dance to such a tune as that."

"Your British friends did it many a time, in America, at Saratoga, at Yorktown and various other places to that same tune," returned Ellen tartly.

"Ho! ho!" chuckled the irrepressible Athelstrong, "a hit, a very palpable hit, madam."

"You are surely not going to attempt to make a spectacle of yourself before these our friends," remonstrated Carrington in a low tone of voice.

But Ellen had the bit between her teeth.

"That's as may be, my lord. Debbie, strike up."

Feebly, disconnectedly, brokenly at first, Deborah began the familiar tune, but presently she caught the spirit of the thing and as she was really a brilliant performer, the gay, audacious, rollicking little air rang out in the room.

Ellen seized her skirts, lifted them high enough to disclose her prettily shod foot and ankles and broke into—shades of Lulli!—a sailor's hornpipe. She danced it with the spirit and abandon of the youngest and most reckless blue jacket. Her feet flew back and forth making a merry clicking on the hard wood floor. There were glimpses of flashing buckles and scarlet hose and dashes of white petticoat in a magnificent whirl of reckless gaiety.

Carrington stood with clinched hands and lowering brows for a moment while Strathgate, Dulward and Athelstrong crowded closer and stared hard. Even the duchess and Mrs. Monbrant joined the circle. There was a great clapping of hands and much shouting of "Brava" to encourage the danseuse while the performance lasted. Surely it was a spectacle which few of them had ever seen enacted in the drawingroom of a baron's castle with the hostess in the leading part and the dead and gone Carringtons who had overflowed from the picture gallery to the walls might well have turned over in their graves at the sight. Lady Cecily stood with brows upraised, a malignant sneer on her face. Even Setop who had been hovering over Deborah at the harpsichord turned to look.

Presently Carrington, unable to sustain the sight any longer, turned and beckoning to Lady Cecily ceremoniously offered her his arm and the two disappeared through the doorway leading into the hall.

The spirit seemed to go out of Ellen's dancing as Carrington left the room, for her steps faltered and then Deborah turned and found Seton's back fair and square to her shoulder and the music suddenly ceased. The men crowded around Lady Ellen offering congratulations.

"You've a fortune in your heels, Lady Carrington," said the duke. "Covent Garden would pay you a pretty penny every night for such a show as that, and egad I'd go a long way to see it myself."

"Dulward, you are forgetting me," said the duchess imperiously.

"Never, Arabella, I am never able to forget you," sighed the duke in unconscious double entendre.

"Now," said Lady Ellen, panting and triumphant, "the rest of you may dance as you please. Have I proved my knowledge, Mrs. Monbrant?"

"Of a kind, yes," said the widow, arching her brows and turning away.

"Where have my lord and Lady Cecily gone?" asked the hostess, her eyes roving through the door into the hall.

"Shall we seek them?" said Strathgate with a low bow, offering his arm.

"I could have no better escort," returned Ellen. "You will excuse me, I am sure." She bowed to the rest of the company. "The house is yours, cards, music, all that it has."

Out in the hall Strathgate seized a cloak and wrapped it around her with tender solicitude.

"The night air is chill," he said, gently.

Theer was comfort to Ellen in his anxiety about her. Of late Carrington had left her to her own devices and she missed the lover-like attentions of the first part of her married life. She accepted the earl's courtesy gracefully and the two stepped out upon the terrace. It was a bright moonlight night and the terrace was almost as light as day. There was no one on it.

"Whither have they gone, think you?" queried Ellen.

"To the arbor, probably. 'Tis a favorite haunt of theirs. Shall we follow?"

"My lord called me a spy last night."

"A woman is justified in everything," said Strathgate softly, "when her honor is involved, and Carrington—"

"Do you mean to say," burst out Ellen, hotly.

"He is in dangerous hands," said Strathgate lightly, "if he fall into those of Lady Cecily. Let us descend to the mall."

He led her gently down the flight of steps and piloted her into the shadow of the wall whence they could gain the arbor without being observed, for at the southeast corner of the terrace upon which the castle was built the arbor began.

"You must be very quiet," said Strathgate, taking her by the arm under the pretense of guiding her. "I have your interests at heart. I cannot bear to see you slighted for one so inferior to you in every way."

"To-wit!" said Ellen, "riding to hounds, dancing the minuet, playing at cards."

"My lady," said Strathgate earnestly, "those are mere accidents of circumstance. In beauty, in wit, in daring, in sweetness, Lady Cecily cannot be mentioned with you. I cannot understand Carrington. Were I—"

"Stop!" whispered Ellen.

They had come to the edge of the terrace. Through a rift in the foliage they had a fair view of the center of the arbor. Through the same rift the moonlight fell and displayed two figures. One with his back toward her was her husband. The other facing the couple was Lady Cecily. They were close together talking earnestly. Ellen clenched her hands and incautiously stepped into the moonlight. Lady Cecily caught a glimpse of her before Strathgate drew her back. Here was her opportunity. The distance was too great to enable the watchers to hear what was being said, but they could see.

Lady Cecily was commiserating Lord Carrington on the rudeness of his wife and my lord was so hot and mad with jealousy and indignation, and so filled with affront to dignity and amour propre, that he was in a fit mood to be played upon by such a consummate mistress of coquetry and such a finished actress as Lady Cecily. My lord had some of the simplicity of the sailor still left in him. Lady Cecily laid her hand upon his arm.

"My dear Bernard," she said, "I may call you that for old times' sake?"

"Yes, yes," said Carrington, "would that those old times might come again!"

"It would please me," said Lady Cecily. "I cannot bear to see you yoked with such a rude, uncultured hoyden."

Carrington winced at this.

"Nay," he began protestingly.

But Lady Cecily did not stop.

"And she played that game with Strathgate. It was all a matter of prearrangement. No money was to pass. She hath no need to give Strathgate money. His purse and all he has are at her disposal."

This was a half truth and therefore the more deadly. Ellen had made no prearrangement with Strathgate or anyone else, and the game on her part was honest and open, but it was true that she could have asked nothing of Strathgate that he would not instantly have acceded to. Lady Cecily knew that Carrington's conviction of the latter half of her statement would carry with it an acquiescence in the first part.

My lord gritted his teeth and clenched his hands.

BASEBALL.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Several articles have been published in the local newspapers relative to the Inter-City Amateur Baseball League and some seem to be disappointed or forming an opinion as to the outcome of the standing of the team at the outset. It is said that the Y. M. C. A., Clinton Avenue and Scotch Plains teams will be the only ones in the league. Although the Jr. O. U. A. M., will be new in the field their strength has been underestimated. It may be well to inform the fans that the Juniors will be in the game from the beginning to the finish and it is the belief that the other three teams want to get in trim or the Juniors will show their worth.

OLD TIMER.

The Hamilton Athletic Club, a 14-15 year old uniformed team, of Rahway, would like to arrange games with baseball aggregations of similar age, contests to be played on the grounds of the opponents. Address all communications to R. Sauer, Jr., manager, 230 West Grand street, Rahway, N. J.

BASEBALL SEASON BEGUN BY BOYS THIS MORNING.

The baseball season opened this morning when the F. A. C. defeated the Harrison A. C. by a score of 7-5, on the Westervelt avenue grounds. Smith, who was on the slab for the winning team, was particularly efficient, striking out eight men. With the bat, Giddes made good for his team. His two bagger in the fourth was responsible for two runs. The lineups:

LEAL'S SCHOOL FIVE TRIMS FRIEND SEMINARY TEAM, 36-12

The Leal's School basketball team won from the Friend Seminary basketball five, of New York, at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon by a score of 36-12. The local five was in the lead throughout the game, and had their opponents 25-5 at the end of the first half. Dallas and Martin excelled for Leal's, and Peterson did the best work for the visitors. The lineups:

Leal's—Martin and Day, forwards; C. Lawrence, centre; Dallas and Duke, guards. Friend Seminary—K. Lamb and H. Lamb, forwards; Peterson, centre; Carpenter and James, guards. Twenty minute halves.

from the furnaces. Waste paper is put in galvanized iron cans and soaked, as soon as it is collected from the waste paper baskets.

The question of the tiling of chimneys came up in connection with some of the older buildings, and on suggestion of the Chief, Superintendent Maxson stated that these will be lined with tile, where this has not already been done. Before leaving each cellar, Chief Doane took a look around for oil cans and oily rags, discarded paintpots and inflamable rubbish, but his search was in most cases without result, for the janitors are given special directions about these things.

It was 5 o'clock when the party, after visiting all the schools, finally disbanded at the Stillman school. The Mayor was especially pleased with the High School building, Plainfield's newest school, and urged that the Board of Education keep in mind the value of entirely fire-proof buildings, when new schools are to be erected. Chief Doane spoke of the need of fire alarm boxes near some of the schools, and the Mayor said he would recommend this in his report to the Council Monday night. The Chief said that fire hydrants were plentiful in the vicinity of all the schools.

The Mayor will recommend to the Council that fire alarm boxes be installed near the schools not perfectly protected. He will also urge the installation of auxiliary fire alarm boxes in the schools to be under the supervision of the fire department. His report to the Board of Education will include a recommendation for stand pipes in the High School and Irving School, to be equipped with 100 feet of hose.

FOUR PANHANDLERS CORALLED BY POLICE

Cleverly eluding arrest as panhandlers by operating on Somerset street near the county line, four local characters, well known in police court records, were finally captured by North Plainfield Marshals Lemuel Pope and Charles Keller, who worked with Plainfield Patrolman Charles Flynn to effect their arrest early yesterday afternoon. The quartet who were finally landed in borough cells is composed of "Larry" Wallace, Joe Traynor, George Shay and Michael Mottley. At their hearing this morning, Wallace, Shay and Mottley paid the fine of $3 apiece imposed by Borough Recorder Dolliver, and Traynor took the "five days" alternative.

"Larry" Wallace, one of the men, is an parole from the State Board of Pardons. He was sentenced to a three year term of imprisonment for breaking into the Scotch Plains hotel, but was released on parole after serving two years' time. The panhandlers were all more or less intoxicated and were trying to get the price of more drinks when their cauture was effected.

ITALIAN CARRIED REVOLVER.

Butliero Soaked and Others Also Punished.

Three Italians, all more or less drunk, were rounded up by Borough Marshal Lemuel Pope last night on Somerset street, near Greenbrook road, where they were found engaged in a noisy argument. At the court they gave their names as Frank Bestamer, Joe Butliero and Ciliano Ruskio. Bestamer was "down and out" with drink, and his companions were trying to take him to his home on Grove street. When searched at headquarters, Butliero was found to have a 32-calibre revolver, loaded, in his pocket.

At the session of court before Borough Recorder Dolliver this morning, Butliero was fined $10, which he paid. Bestamer paid a fine of $5 for disorderly conduct, and Ruskio left a two-spot with the judge for being drunk and disorderly.

Young Hoboes Full of Watches.

Railroad detectives rounded up a gang of young men and boys hovering about the Lehigh Valley yards at South Plainfield, Thursday afternoon and caught six of them. When searched a total of 100 Waterbury watches were found in their clothing. They were taken to New Brunswick and sentenced to ten days in jail while the names and addresses they gave are looked up. They claimed to be from Jersey City and said a couple of hoboes had given them the time-pieces.

McCauley Taken to Somerville.

James McCauley, who resisted arrest Tuesday night by engaging in a rough-and-tumble fist fight with Borough Marshal Pope, was taken to the Somerville jail yesterday afternoon by Chief Marshal Weiss. He was sentenced to a twenty day term at his hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver Wednesday.

ROSS TONIGHT IN THE "TRAVELING SALESMAN"

Thomas W. Ross, the young actor who made a big name for himself by his clever portrayal of the hero in "Checkers," the great racing drama, will be seen in a new play at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight. He comes as the head of a large company presenting "The Traveling Salesman," a comedy drama from the pen of James Forbes, who wrote "The Chorus Lady." Henry B. Harris is the producer and he has expended many thousands of dollars in giving Ross a proper vehicle for his talents.

The play had its premiere in New Brunswick, last night, and was enthusiastically received, despite the hoodoo of "Friday, the thirteenth." When Mr. Harris' attention was called to the supposedly hard luck combination, he declared he was very well satisfied with it as he liked the figures. He added that some of his most notable successes had their opening on the thirteenth day of the month. In "The Traveling Salesman," Ross has a splendid part and interprets the role with all the breeziness the title might suggest.

The supporting cast includes Marion Kerby, William Beach, May McCabe, Percival Moore, Arthur Shaw, Henry B. Blakemore, Maude Sinclair, Ernest Lamson and Edward N. Dresser.

WOULD-BE CITIZEN SAYS ROOSEVELT MAKES LAWS.

The manufacturer of new citizens is a much less prolific industry now that the new procedure is under way. To begin with, the court sits in naturalization cases only once in three months and the applicants have to go through a grilling examination.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Gregg turned the handle of the mill at New Brunswick and tripped up candidate after candidate.

"Who makes the laws for this country?" he asked Adam Canalsey, a Carteret Hungarian.

"Roosevelt," answered Canalsey with beautiful conviction.

"Is there no other governing power?" asked Judge Booraem, who believes in giving the applicants a little leeway.

"No," replied Canalsey.

The faith of John Remar, a Woodbridge Bohemian, in Mr. Roosevelt was also great. "What body makes the laws for the United States," asked the lawyer.

"Roosevelt," said John promptly.

"Who makes them for New Jersey?"

"The Chief Justice." Both of these cases were continued to the April session.

"Who is the Governor of New Jersey?" Andrew Kusac, of Woodbridge, was asked.

"The Judge," said the applicant, with a reverential look at his honor. Judge Booraem looked a little compassionate as he continued the case.

BIG GAME SEIZURE MADE; TO BE SOLD FOR STATE.

There will be a conference next Monday between the Fish and Game Commission and the Attorney-General as to what disposition will be made of the 17,000 plover and ruffled grouse seized Thursday by Wardens Herbert Dane, Fred Hall, James Bellingham and Edward Shorter, in the storage warehouse of the Merchants' Refrigerating Company, of New Jersey, at Second and Warren streets, Jersey City.

Under the former Commission, where seizures were made of this kind, it was the practise to return to the violators the game seized. Commissioner Simeon H. Rollinson contends that the birds become the lawful property of the State, and to give them back to the owners would be aiding a violation of the Fish and Game Laws.

The Commissioner's contention is that the birds should be sold at auction to the highest bidder by the Fish and Game Commission, and the proceeds be sent to the State Treasurer for the Fish and Game Fund.

SCHOOLBOYS ON A STRIKE.

Twenty Walk Out of Passaic High School Demanding Single Session—Leaders Expelled.

As the result of a strike for shorter hours three boys were yesterday expelled from the Passaic High School and several others are threatened with suspension.

Many pupils in the High School are in favor of one session, beginning at 8 o'clock and ending at 1, instead of the present plan of two sessions daily. The matter has been strong agitated and the school authorities have agreed to let the pupils debate the question at an early date, after which it will be referred to the faculty and the Board of Education.

Some of the High School boys to whom the arbitration plan did not appeal yesterday planned a strike, and at the opening of the afternoon session twenty boys walked out and spent the afternoon in a ramble. The three leaders were expelled and the matter will be carried to the Board of Education.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mills, of Morristown, are spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Staats, of West Second street.

LAKEWOOD HOTEL GUESTS SEE MUSICIAN DROWN.

While sailing on Lake Carasaljo at Lakewood yesterday afternoon in a strong wind, Harry Herst, of No. 158 Bayard street, Brooklyn, and Neil Hopper, musicians at the Manhattan Hotel of Lakewood, were capsized and Herst was drowned. Hopper was rescued through the efforts of John Aspgren, of the New York Produce Exchange, and Patrick Bray, a porter at the Laurel in the Pines Hotel. Herst's body was recovered after several hours spent in dragging the lake.

Hopper and Herst were sailing a few hundred feet off the shore when a strong gust overturned the boat in full view of several guests from the Laurel in the Pines, who were near the lake.

Mr. Aspgren swam out to the men, but was seized with a chill before he could reach Herst, who soon sank. Mr. Aspgren then turned to aid Hopper, who had paddled toward the land. By that time Bray reached the spot and Hopper was brought to the shore.

Mr. Aspgren was thoroughly exhausted by his efforts and Dr. Schauffler took charge of him and Hopper.

Shops Lay Off More Men.

Man Perishes In Oakum Fire.

Edward McGovern, thirty-five years old, perished in a fire yesterday afternoon in the Stratford Oakum Works, in Cornelison avenue, Jersey City. The plant, a three-story brick building, occupies four city lits. The blaze was discovered at 5 o'clock and was not extinguished until after two hours' hard fighting. McGovern, who was employed as a laborer, was evidently overcome by the smoke at his bench. His body was burned about the head and hands. The loss is estimated at $5,000.

HIGH SCHOOL DRAMATICS

"Petticoat Perfidy" and "Miss Civilization" Presented by the Junior Class.

PLAYED TO CAPACITY HOUSE.

Appreciative Audience Applauds Clever Amateurs at City High School Dramatics—

$125 Netted.

Playing to a capacity house of about 750 people, pupils of the Junior class of the Plainfield High School scored absolute success in the presentations of two plays, "Petticoat Perfidy" and "Miss Civilization," at the school auditorium Saturday night. The work of the casts in both plays showed careful coaching and the dramatic ability was above that of the average amateur presentation.

"Petticoat Perfidy," given as a curtain-raiser to "Miss Civilization," was presented by a cast of three girls of the class. The playlet, by Sir Charles G. Young, depicts modern London society life over the tea-cups in a fashionable residence. As Mrs. Norwood Jones, over-eager to mingle in the society of the nobility, Miss Ethel Skillman, scored instant success by her clever interpretation of the part. Miss Clara Savage, as Juliette the maid, and later, through "petticoat perfidy," as the pseudo Princess Borodinski, receives appreciative applause by her work in her double part, where the typical French maid, with dialect and gestures, is transformed by gown and hat into the stately Russian proncess, Clase and affected. As Mrs. Mountrevor, with all the sham of a typical London society woman, Miss Louise T. Nicholl took a rather difficult part most skillfully.

In the role of "Miss Civilization," Miss Lillian Cronkite showed genuine dramatic ability in the second play of the evening. Her spontaneity of action and the strong personality she infused into the lines were particularly commendable elements of her success and were appreciated by sustained applause. As Alice Gardner, daughter of the president of the L. I. & W. Railroad, she saves the family silverware and jewels by banqueting three robbers until the arrival of the police in answer to a telephone call made as they are effecting an entrance. The play, by Richard Harding Davis, is replete with action and holds the interest by a well maintained suspense.

Stanley Parsons, as "Gentleman Joe" Hatch, F. Clyde Doane, as "Reddy, the Kid," and Charles E. Prior, Jr., as "Grand-Stand" Harry Hayes, took the parts of the housebreakers. The two last named were especially clever in the adaption of some excellent stage business, and Stanley Parsons typed the stolid, professional "bad man," wary leader of the gang. Particularly effective was his dialogue scene with Miss Cronkite, where both scored success by their interpretation of the lines. Doane and Prior introduced some clever comedy stage business in the banquet scene during this dialogue.

The suspense is relieved just before the curtain by the arrival of "Captain Lucas, Chief of Police." Richard Harrigan played the part and A. L. Bingamin, F. E. Grey, Edward Abbott, D. T. Thicketun, John Lyness, E. P. Banks and Frank Burdick were the brakemen and engineers who formed the rescue party.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of A. D. Beeken, Jr., stage director; Allen Fulmer, stage manager, and Miss Ethel Skillman and Sherwood Parsons, property managers. Miss Frances Carr was chairman of the candy committee, and home-made confectionery was sold at tables in the auditorium by the Misses Mildred Stiles, Caroline Lambert and Ethel Rogers. During the intermission between the plays, there was music by the tel-electric piano player. It is estimated that about $125 was netted by the affair.

Johnson Arrested Twice.

Lewis Johnson got into trouble with the borough police twice in twenty-four hours Saturday as a result of a drunken spree. Arrested in a helpless drunken condition by Chief Marshal Weiss on Somerset street Saturday morning, sentence was suspended at his hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver Saturday night. Sunday night, a telephone call came to police headquarters and the Chief got the same man on Mrs. Johnson's complaint. At the hearing before the Recorder this morning, Mrs. Johnson said that he tried to break up the furniture and raise a general rumpus at their Somerset street home. Sentence was suspended on condition that he go to Summit, where he said he could get work.

Violated Borough Ordinance, Fine $2.

Joseph Nullami was arrested by Borough Marshal Reinmann for disorderly conduct on Somerset street Saturday night. He was fined $2 by Recorder Dolliver at his hearing this morning.

MISS MULFORD PASSES AWAY IN HER SLEEP

Stricken with heart trouble while she slept, Miss Carrie Lyons Mulford, youngest daughter of the late Edward C. and Margaret Mulford, died in bed yesterday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. William R. Townsend, of Kensington avenue, with whom she lived. The discovery was made shortly before 9 o'clock and according to Dr. Zeglio, who was quickly called, death had ensued two or three hours previous. The end had evidently been very quiet and without warning as there were no evidences of a struggle.

The announcement of Miss Mulford's demise came as a great surprise as there had been no previous intimation of any illness. She attended her customary duties Saturday and in the evening witnessed the dramatic performance at the High School auditorium. She retired at 11 o'clock in the best of spirits. Four years ago the young woman suffered a form of paralytic affection that left her health somewhat impaired and the fatal stroke may have had its origin in it.

Miss Mulford was in her twenty-fourth year and had lived in Plainfield all her life. She was a member of St. Stephen's church at Netherwood, devoting much of her time to work in its societies. Her personality was attractive and she enjoyed a wide friendship in the city and borough. Besides Mrs. Townsend, she is survived by two other sisters, Mrs. John M. Lewis, of East Second and Richmond streets, and Mrs. F. S. Cutter, of Sandford avenue; also one brother, Armstrong Mulford, of North avenue.

The funeral will be held at Mrs. Cutter's home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. Rev. A. S. Peck will officiate and Rev. A. C. McCrea will assist.

FLORENCE M'CARTHY RESIGNS FROM POLICE FORCE.

Florence S. McMcCarthy, who has been a member of the local police force in various capacities for the past ten years, tendered his resignation to Chief Kiely Saturday. He asked to be relieved of duty immediately and the request was granted in order that he might enter upon a new position, that of agent and demonstrator for the Mitchell Automobile Company. He will have the entire State for his field.

Mr. McCarthy was appointed to the force in 1897 and after serving as patrolman a short time, resigned to go to the front in the Spanish war. At its close he again donned the policeman's uniform and remained in the department until the present time. When the office of plain clothes man was first designated he was promoted to the position and held it until about a year ago. Since then he has been acting roundsman.

The former officer has always been greatly interested in automobiles and in his leisure hours has made them a study. He begins his new duties with considerable experience and will undoubtedly make a success of the position.

Fun Leads to Arrests.

William Banks, colored, and Chas. Curran, hackman at the North avenue station, were arraigned in the city court, this morning, on charges of disorderly conduct. The two become involved in a quarrel Saturday afternoon and Banks began beating Curran with a horse whip, the latter being but sixteen years old. Patrolman Kelly placed both under arrest and to Judge Runyon they insisted that the trouble started in fun. Sentence was suspended with the understanding that unless they behavel themselves at the station their licenses would be revoked.

Talks on Medicine and Dentistry.

Under the auspices of the Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church an informal program was enjoyed at the March meeting in the church parlors, last night. The feature of the program was two short talks, one by Dr. Marcus L. Clawson on "Medicine," and the other by Dr. O. B. Whitford on "Dentistry." An informal discussion followed. During the evening Theodore Davis sang two or three solos and refreshments were served during a social half-hour.

Al Baker at the Y. M. C. A.

Al Baker, magician and ventriloquist, provided entertainment to about 150 members of the boys' department at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium Saturday night. During the evening, there were several selections by the association boys' orchestra of ten pieces, with Philip Van Arsdale as leader. The affair was one of a series of social events planned for the department.

Episcopalian in Baptist Pulpit.

Rev. William R. Mulford, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church, Fanwood, occupied the pulpit and preached at the Baptist church, Scotch Plains, last night. So far as known it is the first time that a clergyman of the Episcopal church has preached in this church.

GLAZIER AS A WITNESS

Owner of Fat Rending Factory Testifies Before Vice Cnancellor.

REBUTTAL THIS AFTERNOON.

Counsel for Plaintiffs Calls Witnesses to Disprove Glazier's Testimony—Claimed to Be a Nuisance.

The hearing in the case of Miles Reusch and other residents of Alton against Theodore Glazier, Jr., seeking to restrain the defendant from continuing to operate his fat rending factory at Alton on the ground that it is a nuisance and to make permanent a temporary injunction which was afterward modified, was resumed before Vice Chancelor Walker in the Common Council rooms this morning. The whole morning was occupied with the examination of Mr. Glazier and his son. Later S. S. Swackhamer, of counsel for the complainants, called several witnesses in rebuttal. An adjournment was taken at noon to 2 o'clock, when other witnesses were called in rebuttal.

Mr. Glazier was examined chiefly for the purpose of ascertaining his method of conducting the fat rending business. He explained the system employed and told at considerable length of the improved machinery installed, which, he claimed prevented to odors from becoming a nuisance in the neighborhood. In many respects his testimony was wholly contradictory to that given by other witnesses, although when Mr. Swackhamer refreshed his memory he recalled certain conversations which tendered to strengthen the case of the complainants.

Mr. Glazier alleged that his factory is not a nuisance and is operated with stench only to persons with acute smelling sense. He denied that decayed animals were permitted to remain in the open premises; that all animals brought to his place were disposed of within twenty-four hours after their arrival. He also stated that during the past year between 300 and 400 animals had been taken to his factory and that only three or four were refused because of their poor condition.

The examination also brought out the fact that Mr. Glazier intended moving his factory to South Plainfield, where he would be nearer the railroad, but that there was objections to it by residents of that place and a man who was going in partnership with him had backed out. The defendant also spoke of a notification he received from the Middlesex Water Company to stop dumping liquid matter in the swamp land near his place as it was thought it might contaminate the water. After that, he said, he spread the liquid on his farm.

In rebuttal before the noon adjournment, Mr. Swackhamer called Julius Tietz, Jr., whose previous testimony in some respects had been contradicted by Mr. Glazier. It was so difficult for him to express his thoughts that his testimony proved of little value.

PROMINENT ARTIST TO APPEAR AT MUSICALES.

Joseph McIntyre, the pianist, has announced two musicales, one to be given on Thursday, April 2, at the home of Mrs. George A. Beaton, of West Seventh street, and the other on Thursday, April 9, at the home of Mrs. J. P. Stevens, of Hillside avenue. At the first musicale Francis Rogers, of New York, the well-known baritone, will sing. He recently sang at the White House for President Roosevelt, where he was enthusiastically received.

At the second musicale Dr. Carl Dufft, baritone, and Paul Dufault, tenor, will be the assisting artists. The program will be very choice and owing to the limited accommodations the audiences will naturally be select ones. Mr. McIntyre will be at the piano at both musicales.

Yale Club Dinner March 28.

The annual dinner of the Plainfield Yale Club will be held at the Casino on Saturday night, March 28. Professors Edward Reed and William B. Bailey, of Yale, will be the guests of honor.

Engagement Announced.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Jessie Maude Totten, of Somerset street, and Ferry Day Smith, of Elizabeth. No date has been set for the wedding.

CRUSHED UNDER WHEELS

Young Man Fatally Injured by Attempting to Board Fast Noving Train.

DIES IN MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL

Emanuel Felter the Victim—Three Children In His Family Perished By Fire Three Years Ago.

Slipping beneath a car as he attempted to board a mixed-freight train at Garwood, Saturday afternoon, Emanuel Felter, a young man whose home was at Mountainside, received injuries from which he died soon afterward in Muhlenberg Hospital. He was dragged fully a hundred feet and when picked up was a crushed and shapeless mass. One leg had been torn from its socket by getting caught in a switch frog and the other was cut off at the knee. His face and head were so badly battered and the arms were in shreds. He was brought to Plainfield on the 3:39 train and expired ten minutes after reaching the hospital.

Felter was twenty years old and was the son of Oscar Felter, well known about Westfield and Mountainside. The family has been in destitute circumstances for years through sickness and other troubles and young Felter was only recently discharged from a hospital at Elizabeth. Three years ago, three children in the family were burned to death at their home, the mother having locked them in while she went to work.

Felter had been at work at Garwood, Saturday, loading a car with kindling wood and attempted to board the freight train in order to ride to Westfield. The body was removed to Cole's undertaking rooms and the county physician granted a permit for burial.

GOVERNOR TO ATTEND NEW IDEA SI DINNER

Arrangements will be completed Friday afternoon at a meeting of the Republican League for Limited Franchise and Equal Taxation, to be held in the Scheurer Building, Newark, for the dollar dinner to be given in Newark on Saturday, April 11.

Assemblyman William P. Martin, of Essex county, who is president of the league, will be the toastmaster and several prominent speakers have signified their intention of being present among them being Governor J. Franklin Fort, State Senator Everett Colby, Sheriff Frank Sommer, of Newark; Former Mayor Mark Fagan and George L. Record, of Jersey City, and if possible City Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, will be secured as one of the speakers.

In addition to the speechmaking there will be plenty of good music, a band having been engaged for the occasion. There will also be vocal selections by a quartet. Further information about the dinner and tickets for the same can be obtained from G. W. V. Moy, of this city. It is expected that there will be a large representation from Plainfield.

A Silly Yarn.

Under the headlines "Bryant School Declared Unsafe," another paper made the statement Saturday that "hazardous conditions in the public schools were brought to light" in Friday's inspection of the schools by Mayor Fisk, Chief Doane and members of the Board of Education. The authorities flatly deny the silly statement that "the Bryant School is so unsafe that it will have to be remodelled." With the equipment of this school with fire escapes, which will be done at once, the officials who made the tour of inspection declare that the building will be perfectly safe.

Miss Hubbell Read Paper.

Miss Susan S. Hubbell read a paper on "Literary Associations of Venice" before a parlor full of invited guests at the home of Mrs. D. N. Groendyke, of Mercer avenue, on Saturday afternoon. The paper was one prepared for the Monday Afternoon Club in the season's study of Venice and was read at a meeting of the clug March 2. Refreshments and a social hour followed the paper.

Will Tell of Industrial Farm.

The character of the work being done at the Berkshire Industrial Farm will be illustrated by steroptiocon pictures at the meeting of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow night. Two officers from the institution will be present and describe the work. The men of other churches in the city and borough will be welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Eddy, of this city, are staying at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

FEAST OF PURIM BEGINS

With the Going Down of the Sun the Celebrations Will Be Commenced.

OBSERVANCE IN PLAINFIELD.

Commemorates the Deliverance of the Jews From Their Persian Taskmasters.

The Jewish feast of Purim, commemorative of the deliverance of the Jews out of the hands of their Persian taskmakers, will be observed here by those of that faith, beginning at sundown today. According to the ancient custom, the feast lasts twenty-four hours, but in some localities it will be continued another day, this feast having the name of Shushan-Purim.

Great preparations are being made for the observance of the feast which is always productive of much merry-making, and wherever there are Hebrew organizations the deliverance of the forefathers from slavery is celebrated by festivals of a varied form. In Plainfield the young Hebrews have planned to hold several parties.

The festival begins at sundown, when the book of Esther, known as the "Megillah," is read in every synagogue. It is one of the five scrolls, but inasmuch as it relates only to an historical happening and does not contain the word of God, the "Megillah" is read from a book called "Iggereth," a message. This service will take place in the Synagogue of the Children of Israel on New street.

Following athe services in the synagogues there will be feasting and merry-making, in which, according to the rites of the Jews, all may indulge, because even the "Talmud" says that a good Jew may drink wine on Purim. The ancient law also commands the merry-maker to "send gifts to the neighbor and presents to the poor."

In explanation of the supplemental festival, which is called Shushan-Purim, it is said that the Jews won a decided victory over the Persians at the city of Shushan on the day after Haman was banged on the gallows which had been prepared by Mordecai.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL FOUND SAFE BY OFFICIALS.

In company with Mayor Fisk, Fire Chief T. O. Doane made a visit of inspection to St. Mary's Parichial School Saturday afternoon with Father B. M. Bogan. The officials went through the entire building to investigate the safety of the pupils in case of fire, but, aside from minor changes, which will be made at once, the building was found unusually well fitted for an emergency.

There are about 150 pupils at the school, and fire drills are held regularly. Four flights of stairs provide speedy means of exit for the four classes, and there are three flights of stairs near the assembly hall. The building is equipped with fire escapes. The Mayor and Chief commended the arrangements and a few trifling changes will make it especially safe.

Plainfielder Arraigned.

William Lowden, of this city, who is reputed to have been a member of the "Dutch" Ides gang and who was captured in a raid at the Greenbrook tanks, was arraigned in court at New Brunswick, Friday, on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. He pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence. Lowden lived with his parents in the West End and although barely of age had been wayward from boyhood.

Farmer Fined $3.

John Smith, a farmer, from Somerville, took on too big a cargo of Bock beer Saturday, and was found late at night by Marshal Kiernan on Craig place, helplessly intoxicated. At his hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver in the borough court today, he was fined $3.

Talked on Foreign Missions.

Rev. Dr. C. L. Rhoades, of New York, spoke to a very large congregation at the First Baptist church, yesterday morning, on the subject of foreign missions, after which the annual contribution of the church for this object was received.

Held on Serious Charge.

On a serious charge preferred by Frances Probasco, colored, Wilbur Brown, 18 years old, colored, of West Third street, was arraigned in the city court this morning. He was held in $200 bail to provide support for the complainant.

Fire Drill With Exit Cut Off.

Pupils of the Somerset street school left the building in a minute and forty-five seconds at a fire drill held at the school this morning. The rear exit to Park place was cut off, but there was no disorder.

REV. DR. SCHENCK RESIGNS AS TRINITY'S PASTOR

Many Moist Eyes When Regretful Announcement is Made to Devoted and United Congregation.

ACTION IS DUE TO ILLNESS.

Beloved Minister, After Twenty Years Zealous Service, Asks To Have Pastoral Relations Dissolved.

After a successful pastorate of Trinity Reformed church, extending over a period of more than twenty years, during which time he ministered faithfully and zealously to the members of a devoted flock, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck has presented his resignation to take effect May 1. It was received at a meeting of the Consistory on Thursday night of last week and was read to the congregation at the morning service yesterday by Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, the acting pastor. While the fact was known to a few members, it came as a surprise to the majority present, although it was reluctantly believed that he must sooner or later relinquish the pastorate.

The resignation, full of tender words and showing his deep regard for the interest of his church and people where he labored so long, was received impressively. A great many who have been so closely associated with Dr. Schenck during his entire pastorate, as well as others who have been under his guidance and kindly care for a lesser time, were deeply affected as they realized that the day had come when pastoral relations must cease. Everyone present united in a petition to the Heavenly Father that although their pastor must give up his life's mission so far as active pastoral duties are concerned, he might be spared many years to enjoy the fruits of his labor.

The severing of pastoral ties made strong through years of service brought to the minds of all the days when Dr. Schenck enjoyed full strength and vigor and was permitted to go in and out among his people, offering comfort and consolation and joining in the merriment of those who rejoiced over some particular event in their life. His faithful preaching Sunday after Sunday was also recalled, and all knew that he would have a divine message to strengthen and comfort and make the hard places in life more smooth. They also realized that there were many times when through physical weakness he was not really able to preach, yet rather than disappoint his people he did so under severe strain.

After the reading of the resignation, which follows, it was announced that there would be a congregational meeting on Wednesday night at which time formal action would be taken.

The Resignation.

"Plainfield, N. J., March 3, 1908.

"To the Consistory of Trinity Reformed Church:

"My Dear Brethren—More than one year ago I was suddenly laid aside from my work by illness. While improved in health I am still unable to perform the duties of a pastor. It is not right that so important a charge should remain without pastoral care and oversight; it is not in reason to expect the present arrangement to continue indefinitely.

"Therefore, I do herewith submit my resignation as pastor of Trinity Reformed church, the same to take effect May 1, 1908, and I ask that you join with me in a request to the Classis of Newark at its next regular session, April 15, 1908, for a dissolution of the relationship existing be-

PREPARING FOR VISIT, SUDDENLY DROPS DEAD

Godfrey L. Herold, Jr., brother-in-law to Henry Windham, dropped dead in the bathroom of the latter's apartments in the Hotel Waldorf, yesterday morning. He had just completed dressing in preparation for a trip to Brooklyn to visit his parents when he was taken with a severe hemorrhage and fell to the floor. The noise was heard by members of Mr. Windham's family and they rushed to his assistance but life was extinct when they reached his side.

Herold was in his forty-third year and lived as a boy, but in recent years has been residing with his parents in Brooklyn. He returned to Plainfield six weeks ago to work for Mr. Windham. Mr. Herold, Sr., was also a local resident for a long time and about twenty years ago conducted a saloon on Somerset street. The deceased is survived by two brothers, both living in Brooklyn, and one sister, Mrs. Windham.

The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock when requiem mass will be offered for the repose of his soull. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

EDWARD VROOM TO PRESENT "THE LUCK OF MACGREGOR."

The welcome announcement is made that Edward Vroom, the American actor and playwright, who was for several seasons a member of the Booth-Barrett and Booth-Modjeska organizations, and later toured the country in his own versions of "Don Caesar de Bazan," Victor Hugo's "Ruy Blas," and other plays, will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre in "The Luck of MacGregor" on Tuesday night, March 24, with his entire New York cast, which will include beside Mr. Vroom who plays the MacGregor, Alfred Hindson, one of the finest actors upon the American stage, who will play the old Colonel; Robert McWade, Sr., who is widely known and loved for his Rip Van Winkle and in which character he was deemed by many to be the peer of Joseph Jefferson.

Mr. McWade will play the Dutch innkeeper in "The Luck of MacGregor;" the heroine will be played by Miss Katherine Mulkins, of "Checkers" fame and popularity; Miss Margaret Sayr, the fine character actress, will play the Scotch spinster; and the "heavy" role will be played by William Walcott. These players will be supported by a company of picked actors, numbering twenty people, and the fact that many of these fine artists have starred or have been featured for their especial ability, is a guarantee that "The Luck of MacGregor" will be superbly acted.

MISS BALL, 1909 PLAY COACH, PRESENTED WITH BROOCH.

Miss Katherine F. Ball, of the Plainfield High School faculty, who has been acting as coach for the junior class dramatics, was presented with a handsome topas brooch at the conclusion of the playlet "Petticoat Perfidy," which, with "Miss Civilization" was given at the High School auditorium Saturday night. The brooch, which is of excellent workmanship and set with a stone of unusual brilliancy, is a gift of the class and the casts of the two plays, in appreciation of Miss Ball's work in training the amateurs.

The predominating spirit of the "green room," Miss Ball has been untiring in her work of training the pupils for the two plays, and the members of both casts, as well as the class at large, appreciate that the success of Saturday night's presentation is in a large measure due to her efforts. The presentation speech was made by Walton Knowlton.

Mr. and Mrs. Besler Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Besler, of Rockview Heights, entertained a week-end party at their home, the guests being John Bassett, of Chicago; Dwight P. Green, of Princeton; Glen Berry and Elmer Berry, of Warwick, N. Y.; Irving McCauley, of the Hudson River Military Academy, Finderne, and Miss Margaret Dice, of Reading, Pa. The guests, together with a number of other young people, enjoyed a dance at the Park Club Friday night and a dinner party was given for them Saturday night.

In the City Court.

Gus Peterson, as Swede looking as his name implies, was arraigned in the city court this morning on a helpless drunk charge. He was so extremely penitent that Judge Runyon told him to run along but to be sure and not come back again.

Repair Men Caused Tap.

The North Plainfield fire gong did not sound the time at 6 o'clock last night, and in repairing it late in the evening, a tap was sounded by the workmen, at about 11 o'clock.

WESTFIELD.

A fight between the master builders and the Lathers' Union will begin today. The masons notified the lathers that the price of their work would be cut fifty cents per 1,000 on March 1. Since then, however, there has been no work except in one case, that of a building being erected by E. S. F. Randolph, where the lathing is being done by non-union men at the rate of $2.25 per 1,000. Several new buildings will be ready for the lathers today.

The New Era Metal Works at Garwood has been closed, throwing about a dozen men out of employment.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

J. E. Herder, of Somerville, a tenor, sang at the First Presbyterian church, yesterday morning, on trial.

Rutgers' New Building.

Ground was broken yesterday at New Brunswick for the new $50,000 engineering building to be erected by Rutgers College with the aid of $25,000 from Andrew Carnegie. The State ic to equip this building, if Assemblyman Voorhees' bill providing for an appropriation of $20,000, becomes a law. The new building is to be located near the State Experiment Station, on Bleeker place.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

A. H. Enander, the sanitary plumber of Watchung avenue, attends to all orders promptly and does not overcharge.

Brokaw's creamery on East Front street is the place to get absolutely fresh eggs, butter, milk and cream. Your patronage is solicited.

Boice, Runyon & Co., the Park avenue coal dealer, sells only the best anthracite. The firm also handles masons' and builders' supplies.

George Stagaard, the Church street shoemaker, is always ready to do first-class repair work promptly and the charges are reasonable.

If you contemplate moving let John Winzenreid, of Lee place, do the work. Prompt attention is given to all orders and the charges will be right.

"The White Store" is the place to do your shopping for spring and summer goods. A walk through this up-to-date store will show you many bargains. The goods are direct from the manufacturer and the prices are low. An attractive window display, appropriate to St. Patrick's Day, is one of the features at the store.

NAIL TEARS TROUSERS, ENDS TOAST TO LADIES.

An unseen nail projecting from his chair Thursday evening spoiled the speech that Freeholder Robert Conklin had planned to make at the banquet given to Emil Schabilon, at Hackensack, who was recently elected Great Sachem at the State convention of Red Men.

It all happened when the jovial Elk and official arose to respond to the toast "The Ladies." There was a suspicious rip, and Freeholder Conklin's smile disappeared. It was the briefest speech he ever made.

"Does it show?" some one heard him ask of the man nearest him.

The tear was four inches long. The Freeholder backed out of the room before the banquet ended.

GOV. FORT WILL ATTEND THE S. A. R. CONVENTION.

The nineteenth annual national convention of the Sons of the American Revolution will be held in Buffalo next month.

The alternate delegates are Charles C. Taintor, Frederick H. Clark, Albridge C. Smith, Colonel Franklin Murphy, Jr., Dr. G. Herbert Richards, Addison Ely, Jr., and J. Frank Parmly.

To Fight Hillery Tax Law.

Mayor Wittpenn and the members of the Jersey City Board of Finance will attend the hearing before Governor Fort next Thursday on the Hillery taxation law. Mayor Wittpenn is strongly opposed to the law and will do his utmost to secure its repeal. "This law," said the Mayor, "is bad for Jersey City, and we must use every effort to get it off the statute books."

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will hold a regular conclave tonight.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

In honor of his eightieth birthday, Daniel Horner, of Beverly, a former mail carrier, was tendered a reception.

For driving a leaky garbage cart, Joseph Hoe, of 1850 South Tenth street, was fined $5 in Camden police court.

Convicted of a charge of assaulting his mother, William O'Brien was sentenced to six months in jail by Judge Joline in Camden.

Found guilty of assault and battery on his eighteen-year-old daughter, Clement Clark was sentenced to four months in jail by Judge Joline in Camden Court.

Jacob House, vice-president of the Salem National Bank, has been elected secretary of Alloway Lodge of Odd Fellows for the thirty-fourth consecutive term.

A coroner's jury which Saturday inquired into the killing of J. Ansel at Vineland censured the Central Railroad for not having its signal bell on the Second street crossing in working order.

The first "stew bang" of the season was held at Moore's Lake Saturday. Purloined chickens were served in true gipsy style, and two of the men went in bathing, "just to show the difference in Saturday's weather and that of twenty years ago, when the great blizzard of 1888 occurred.

The most remarkable report of contagious disease that has ever come to the attention of the Bridgeton Board of Health was filed Saturday. It shows that in the Cochran household, at 127 Penn street, eight children, ranging in age from one to nineteen years, are down with measles. Only the father and mother are exempt.

To facilitate the New Jersey boom for a big delegation to the annual convention of the International Stewards' Association in New York next September, John Crouse, proprietor of the Hotel Jackson, at Atlantic City, Saturday resigned as State regent of the International Stewards' Association, and A. B. Grindod, proprietor of the Hotel Ponce de Leon, was appointed by Vice-President Fred F. Falisse to the post. Already thirty-six new applications for membership have been received. The hotel men hope to give New Jersey the largest delegation at the New York conclave.

On a visit to the Camden county jail Saturday afternoon, Chief of Police Rodenbaugh, of Norristown, Pa., identified John Burns, one of the trio of yeggmen arrested near Wenonah, N. J., as having been arrested on January 11, 1906, and served one year in prison on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. At Norristown, the chief said, Burns gave the name of William Jones. A small grip, containing two dark lanterns, a box of cartridges, opened registered letters, several books of stamps and a shirt has been found on the Thomas Wentz farm near Woodbury. It is believed to have belonged to Burns and his companions.

SAILORS' PERILOUS ACT.

While Intoxicated They Dance on Top of Smokestack 150 Feet High.

Elizabeth, March 16.—Two sailors while under the influence of liquor Friday night, climbed the brick smokestack, 150 feet high, which has been standing on the site formerly occupied by the Elizabethport Cordage Works since that big plant was destroyed by fire March 18, 1891. There is a way on the inside of the shaft to reach the top.

When the sailors emerged from the top and began yelling and doing a jig on the stack a crowd gathered. Then one of the performers shouted, "Now I do my stunt" and suddenly disappeared.

The next moment a sound was heard on the side of the stack that could not be seen from the street. A man notified Policeman McCracken that a suicide had just occurred. The officer found that the sailors had dropped a plank from the stack. Both reappeared on the top and dared the policeman to come up and pull them in. Finally he persuaded them to come down and steered them to their ship.

Coal Gas Kills Sleeping Man.

Michael Knicknick, thirty years old, an attendant at the Russian baths at No. 86 Charlton street, Newark, was found dead from the effects of coal gas in his room, adjoining the baths, where he slept, Saturday. Another Polish attendant was found in an unconscious condition, but he was revived. The gas is said to have come from the furnace.

Armless Wonder Leap Year Hero.

Frank McKeown, an armless youth of Passaic who has earned considerable fame on the stage, will be married after the Lenten season to Carrie De Mar, said to be the champion woman sword walker and fire eater of America. The couple met in Philadelphia three months ago. Miss De Mar took McKeown to a dance, and later proposed to him.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Waring, of West Seventh street, who have been spending the past two weeks in New York, have returned home.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

In beginning his crusade against noisy rooting at the American League games this year President Ban Johnson says: "Any attempt of the South Side Rooters' Club of Chicago to carry on as it did at White Sox Park last year will be suppressed. It was a disgrace to baseball and an injury to the reputation of the entire league. That we will find some way to deal summarily with these fanatics, if necessary, is certain. I will not stand for it and I know the feeling of the other American League magnates about it. Baseball does not need that kind of support. There is enough natural enthusiasm in the game of a healthy sort. I contributed $50 to the program of the ball recently given by the South Side Rooters' Club.

"While I was in New York that club wrote to President Pulliam, of the National League, asking a contribution of $100 from him and stating that I had paid a similar amount. Pulliam asked me about the matter, and when he learned the truth he sent $25. I don't like the rooting methods or the financial ways of that organization and I intend to begin my crusade right in Chicago. Players of nearly every club in the league have complained to me about this style of rooting, using horns, gongs, rattles and revolvers. Remarks have been directed at the players that are vulgar and ungentlemanly. The patrons of the game, as a rule, cannot hear these remarks as they are made through megaphones from the front row of boxes in the grandstands. But the retorts of the players can be heard and must be cut out by the elimination of the causes of the trouble."

Work on the new Union League grounds in Philadelphia at Sixty-second and Walnut streets has begun. The plot has been fenced in and seating accommodations for 5,000 persons will be constructed at once. The manager of the Philadelphia Union says that he will have a good team and that the first exhibition game at the new park will be played on either April 11 or April 18. The progress of the Union League, an outlaw, is being watched with much interest by representatives of organized baseball all over the country.

Fred Raymer, who Manager Stallings sold to the Lancaster club, has forwarded his signed contract to Manager Pop Foster.

Once again comes the report that Hans Wagner, the champion batsman of the National League, is to retire from baseball. With a fat salary at his disposal it is hardly thought possible that Wagner will quit, but that he will go with the Pirates to Hot Springs this week.

Arthur Mueller, the young Egg Harbor City twirler, who Chief Stallings will work out at Haddocks, is known by the nickname of "Snap." Mueller's tryout with the Indians will be his first experience in league company.

Jimmy Cockman has written to a friend in New York city that he is well satisfied with his sale to the Toronto club. "I always wanted to play on a champion team," said Jimmy, in his letter.

GOLF.

The delightful weather on Saturday attracted some golfers to the local links and although a little unused to the game they were able to return fairly low scores. If the weather conditions continue it will be but a short time when many outdoor sports will be resumed.

"Marty" O'Loughlin still continues his winning streak in the South, where he is playing at Southern Pines. He has had a remarkably successful winter and has made many friends in the South. He expects to return to Plainfield the first of April to prepare for the opening of the Plainfield Country Club course.

Among the noted golfers defeated by "Marty" O'Loughlin at Southern Pines was Eugene McCarthy, who taught the Plainfield boy the game of golf. The youngster was a little too much for the veteran and he had to take his medicine.

The Park Golf Club members are getting busy in their preparations for the season. The schedule will be announced in April and a successful years is anticipated.

Twelve Years Is Prison Sentence.

Samuel Ennis, a Princeton negro, convicted of attempting to assault a white woman, was sentenced to twelve years in State prison by Judge Rellstab at Trenton Saturday. It is the extreme penalty and in passing sentence Judge Rellstab said: "Just what influences you people to attempt to assault respectable white women. I cannot understand, but after you have been disposed of and a few more like you, there will not be so much of it."

The Past Councilors' Association, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet in the rooms of Benevolent Council on Friday night, March 27.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The Two Orphans" will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. The company is made up of notable players.

Life on board the modern battleships has a fascination all its own—and is especially interesting to those not familiar with it. Therefore the series of moving pictures to be shown by Lyman H. Howe at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night, depicting a sailor's life on board a typical French man-o'-war—the Joan of Arc—cannot fail to grip the interest of every beholder. The scenes reveal the sailor's life in detail from "morning wash" through "mess" time to the big gun drills—the entire process of loading being fully shown. Another portion shows a crew of vivacious "Jack-Tars" at close range rowing in a sixteen-oared boat, and later the inspection of the crew is witnessed. Another feature shows the entire process of quarrying stones near Cherbourg, the ancient Marine port of France. The quarries were opened by the Great Napoleon over a century ago. The dislodgment of a veritable cliff of solid rock, 150,000 tons, is fully shown. Eight weeks were required to tunnel and seal up with five tons of cement the 1,800 pounds of dynamite used for this gigantic blast. The scene is indescribable.

The recent comedy from the pen of George Ade, entitled "Just Out of College," will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday, afternoon and night. It is said that in this play Mr. Ade has introduced many new types and while he has embellished some old ones, he has given them all something new to do. In writing the comedy Mr. Ade has made use of his gift of humor to put in the "lime light" the college youth. Edward Worthington Swinger is a nervy young man just graduated. Swinger has fallen desperately in love with one, Caroline Pickering, daughter of the pickle king. Old man Pickering thinks Swinger a silly ass and insists on his making good before he will surrender the daughter. To give Swinger every chance in the world, Pickering lends him $20,000 and orders him to report in three months. Swinger doesn't have to report, for, at the end of the first month, Pickering is out with big money to buy up the new Bingo Pickle Company, which, by new methods, has put the pickle trust on the run. Swinger, as a silent partner in the Bingo company, has furnished the sinews of war with Pickering's money. Of course, the young man gets the girl and manages to show quite a profit on Pickering's loss. There are side plots which are nicely woven into the general story and all redolent of the Ade humor.

CHILDREN'S HOME UNSAFE.

Passaic County Institution Condemned by Fire Chief Stagg of Patterson.

That the lives of little children are endangered because of the inadequate fire facilities in the Passaic county Children's Home, in upper Market street, Paterson, is the opinion of Fire Chief Stagg, given in a report he has just made to the Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen. He says the building is not now a fit place to house the thirty-five or more children, and recommends that improvements be made at once.

Both the second and third floors of the building are used as sleeping quarters for the children. On the third floor the cots are only eight inches apart. There is but one way out on the third floor, and that is a narrow, wooden rickety stairway which leads practically from the cellar to the roof, and which Chief Stagg says would soon become filled with smoke in case of a fire. Then the children would be unable to get out of the building.

Chief Stagg recommends that fire escapes be immediately attached to the building and the narrow stairway rebuilt and made safe. He declares that if a fire should break out in the institution now there would undoubtedly be serious loss of life, as the children on the top floor would be penned in and would either have to jump to the street or remain within the building until rescued.

It is expected that immediate action will be taken by the Board of Aldermen.

WALKED IN SLEEP; MAY DIE.

Bloomfield Farm Hand Fell from Hay Loft While in Somnambulistic State.

Michael Butterton is dying in the Mountainside Hospital at Bloomfield from injuries received while walking in his sleep Thursday night. Butterton had long been a victim of somnambulism, but until Thursday night never was injured in these walks.

He went to sleep Thursday night in the hay loft of his employer's barn and Friday morning he was found nearly dead on the floor, with a gash in the head. It is believed he is suffering from concussion of the brain. He probably walked in his sleep and fell to the floor of the barn. There is small hope of his recovery.

Arrest Nurse for Kidnapping.

Mary Chambers, of Bank street, Trenton, was arrested in that city yesterday, charged with having kidnapped George Wilson, Jr., the three-year-old son of George Wilson, of No. 72 Bank street, New York. The child was with her. Miss Chambers was a nurse in the Wilson family.

Plainfield, N. J., March 16, 1908.

OH, FOR A LEADER!

That saying of Puck, "what fools we mortals be," was never more appropriate than in the "interview" battle being conducted by Governor Fort and his admirers on the one part and former Governor Murphy, United States Senator Briggs and their cohorts on the other. The war of words between the rival political leaders has already reached a stage that has set the whole State laughing and has amply demonstrated the fact that thus far no man has arisen who is worthy of filling the shoes of the late General Sewell; that is, none has yet shown himself of sufficient tact, diplomacy and acumen to be the recognized leader of New Jersey Republicanism.

The last shot in this funny battle of words over the make-up of the delegation-at-large to the Chicago convention was fired yesterday by Mr. Briggs. The latter takes cognizance of the uterances of the Governor who rushed into print with a protest against counting him out as a delegate-at-large when he read a story to the effect that United States Senators Kean and Briggs and State Assessor Baird with former Governor Murphy had determined to form the quartette.

But is there not fine sarcasm in the volley Senator Briggs returned last night? This is what he says: "Governor Fort stated the situation correctly the other day, when he declared 'the day has passed when a few men can sit down in an office and determine who shall be the delegates to represent the State of New Jersey.' In my opionion, the delegates will not be selected until the State Convention is held.

"As far as my candidacy is concerned, I am willing to submit it to the convention. It has been the custom in the State to send the Senators to the National Convention, and it will be for the State Convention to decide as to whether this arrangement shall be continued."

Isn't it about time that some of their friends, quietly tell these "big guns" how ridiculous they are making themselves appear?

DR. SCHENCK'S RESIGNATION.

Trinity Reformed church congregation will suffer a severe loss in Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck who has requested that persevering and loyal band of Christian workers to accept his resignation as pastor. During the two decades this zealous man has ministered unto that flock, rich fruit has been born of his labors. The congregation has doubled in size and at least equally in spiritual wealth and influence. This is attributed to the splendid efforts of the devoted man who was stricken with paralysis over a year ago. He has done well and has already earned the rich reward that will be given him when the day arrives for him to pass into life eternal, but for the sake of a loving band of Christian helpers it is hoped that he will be spared to them for many, many years to come.

REV. DR. SCHENCK RESIGNS

tween the church and myself.

"I congratulate the Consistory and church on the loyalty of our people during my absence. You also were especially fortunate in securing as pulpit supply Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, of New Brunswick, whose ministrations have been so helpful and who by his courtesy and consideration has won all our hearts. I assure you that the love and kindness manifested to me and mine in so many ways, not only during the past year, but the more than twenty years of my pastorate, will never be forgotten.

"Committing dear old Trinity with all its interests to the covenant-keeping God for His blessing, I remain, my dear brethren,

"Yours in the love and fellowship of the Gospel of Christ,

"CORNELIUS SCHENCK."

During the reading of the resignation there were few dry eyes in the congregation. One member of the Consistory was so visibly affected that he withdrew from the service.

His Illness.

Dr. Cornelius Schenck was stricken with the illness which has practically made him an invalid ever since, early Friday morning, December 14, 1906. His right side was affected by paralysis which rendered him helpless for many months. Through the faithful attentions of his physician and a trained nurse he was able to leave his home and attend the prayer-meetings at Trinity Reformed church during November and December of last year, often being able to conduct the services. On Friday evening, December 6, he delighted the hearts of his people by taking charge of the preparatory services, and on Thursday evening, December 12, he was present at the Consistory meeting, and acted as chairman for the last time. This was just a year from the time he was stricken.

Again Dr. Schenck was privileged to attend church on Sunday morning, Dec. 29, when he was in the pulpit, read the psalter and extended to his congregation a happy New Year. The same afternoon he was at the Sunday-school session and made a brief address. On January 31 last he suffered a serious attack of head trouble and grip, which confined him to his room for over a month. He is now able to be about the house and take short walks and his returning strength he hopes will permit him to do light pastoral work.

Dr. Schenck, who was pastor of the Fourth Reformed church, of Philadelphia, when he received and accepted the call to Trinity church, in May, 1887, was installed as pastor on Thursday night, June 30. There was a large congregation present at the interesting services. Rev. Dr. W. J. R. Taylor, of Newark, delivered the sermon on that occasion, and Rev. David Waters, also of Newark, delivered the charge to the pastor. The charge to the people was given by Rev. Dr. Vehslage, of Irvington. The welcome accorded the pastor upon the commencement of his work was an evidence of the hearty support to be given him throughout his pastorate.

When Trinity celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary on Sunday, March 26, 1905, Dr. Schenck delivered a historical sermon. In this discourse, he ably reviewed the story of the Reformed faith from its inception in the Netherlands to the planting of the belief in Plainfield, including a summary of its annals in America. The sermon was afterwards published in pamphlet form and is a prized document among members of the Reformed denomination.

Dr. Schenck's Career.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck was born at Weston, Somerset county, New Jersey, on September 5, 1858, and is therefore in the fiftieth year of his age. His father, Josiah, died when he was an infant and the family continued to reside at Weston for several years, subsequently moving to Millstone in the same county, where they resided for about five years, later taking up their residence at New Brunswick. The family includes several children, three of whom entered the ministry, and all of whom are now dead, excepting the mother, Catherine, and two sons, the former dividing her time equally with them, Cornelius and Isaac S., the latter residing in New Brunswick, and being a retired clergyman owing to ill health.

The first son entering the ministry was Jacob W. Schenck, who was graduated from Rutgers College in 1870, and from the Theological Seminary in New Brunswick in 1873. After a very successful pastorate of about six years at West Ghent, N. Y., he died in 1879. The next brother who studied for the ministry was Rev. Isaac S. Schenck, who was graduated from Rutgers College and later from the New Brunswick Theological Seminary in 1876, his first charge being at Rosendale, N. Y., where he remained about two years, and succeeded his brother at the latter's death in 1879 to the pastorate of the Reformed church at West Ghent, N. Y.

Cornelius Schenck first began his education in a public school and pursued a preparatory course in Rutgers College grammer school. He entered Rutgers College for a four years' course in 1875, being graduated therefrom in 1879; then entered the Theological Seminary for a three years' course, being graduated from that institution in 1882. During that year he received and accepted a call to the Fourth Reformed church of Philadelphia, continuing there for five years lacking a few weeks and until he came to Plainfield, succeeding to the charge of Rev. W. W. Cook, who was pastor of the church for six years before him.

Rev. Mr. Schenck first occupied the vacant pulpit in Trinity Reformed church, on Sunday, May 8, 1887, and soon after the church Consistory gave him a unanimous call at a salary of $3,000 per annum, which he accepted.

When Mr. Schenck began his pastorate the total membership of Trinity Reformed church was 370 with 231 teachers and pupils in the Sunday-school. Today the membership of the church is more than 600, while there is an enrollment in the Sunday-school of 748, including 198 members of the Home Department.

During the pastorate an indebtedness of $14,000 has been paid off and $10,000 expended in making improvements to the church. At present the church is entirely free of debt. This condition is highly gratifying to both the members and Dr. Schenck.

JUST PUT RIBBONS ON YOUR GOWNS.

To break the monotony of black lace evening gowns a frill of pompadour ribbon is being used, just under the lace at the front.

This is a charming idea and one that will make black gowns appropriate as costumes for young women.

One French gown of black chiffon is entirely lined with pompadour silk, with a black background, and the roses showing with elusive color through the outer folds of the chiffon, makes the dress beautiful in the extreme.

The same idea may be carried out for a young girl in white, using either thin crepe, China silk or chiffon cloth as in outer covering. A wide belt of ribbon to match the lining makes a most girlish dress.

No more useful garment would be included in a trousseau for debutante or bride than a princess slip of pompadour silk. It is charming when worn under lingerie gowns in summer or under crepe and chiffon in winter.

Pompadour is also beautiful when lining an opera coat or cape. One of the newest evening capes is of pink panne velvet lined with flowered silk and bound all round by a band of velvet embroidered in pink and gold.

Waiting for the Tide.

"I see that Moneybags has come forward with a half-million to help out in this financial trouble."

"Yes; but if he wished to relieve the trouble any way did he wait so long?"

"Well, you see, he wanted to be sure the tide was coming in before casting his bread on the waters."—Judge.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Rev. T. L. Gardner, of Iainfield, spoke on "Helps and Hinderances to Sabbath School Work" at the Saturday evening session, and Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the Plainfield public schools, took for his topic "Educational Principles and Their Application to Sunday-school Life." Following the addresses was a workers conference conducted for the primary department by Miss Ida Spicer, of Plainfield, and for the intermediate department by Dr. Greene. The conference concluded last night, when Orra S. Rogers, of Plainfield, spoke on the value of the opening and closing services of Sabbath school. After the address, there was an informal round table, in which many of the Sabbath school workers took part.

Delegates from Sabbath schools of churches in this vicinity gathered at the Sabbath School Institute held Saturday and yesterday at the New Market Seventh-Day Baptist church. Rev. Walter L. Green, of Brookfield, N. Y., who is field secretary of the Sabbath School Board, presided at the conference, and there were addresses by Prof. Else F. Randolph, of Great Kills, N. Y., J. G. Burdick, Mrs. Sarah Wardner spoke of the value of teachers' meetings, and Dr. Greene spoke on the training class for teachers.

William W. Giddes, who received orders as a local preacher a week ago, spoke at the evening service at the Methodist church last night.

The New Market school property has been enclosed with a neat wire fence, for the protection of the school lawn.

The G. E. Club will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. Abram G. Nelson, of New Market.

Building and loan dues are due tonight, after which fines will be collected.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The township committee has dispersed for a time with the services of Marshal James Mooh who has been doing night duty for several months. The mere fact that the unruly ones knew an officer was on duty had the effect of holding them down. If the circumstances warrant it the committee intend putting him on duty again at once.

The camp of gypsies located on Mountain avenue for several days has been removed to the camping site in Washington Valley, near the White bridge.

"Wise Use of Influence" was the topic of the B. Y. P. U. meeting held last night in the parlors of the church. Harold Todd led the meeting.

The women of All Soul's Episcopal church held a successful cake sale Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Uhler, in the borough.

The members of the Borough Gun Club held a practice shoot Saturday afternoon on the Brookside Club grounds.

Rev. W. R. Mulford, rector of All Saint's Episcopal church, occupied the pulpit at the Baptist church last night.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the Methodist church.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mrs. J. Armstrong is visiting friends in Trenton, N. J., after a prolonged stay with Mrs. C. Smith. She will return to her home in Avon-by-the-Sea at the end of the week.

STRANGER ASLEEP IN WRONG HOUSE.

Frightened Sisters Routed from Bed In Which Intruder Calmly Slumbers.

Miss Agnes and Miss May Morton, young daughters of Addison Morton, of No. 104 Main street, Orange, had a terrifying experience early yesterday morning, when a man entered their room, routed them out of bed, chawler in himself and went to sleep. He was still slumbering when Patrolman Brennan arrested him. The man said he was Jacob Sullivan, of Newton, Sussex county.

The front door had been left unlocked to admit a member of the household. Sullivan stumbled over a chair and the noise awakened the girls, who slid out of the other side of the bed. Mr. Morton, the girl's father, rushing into the room, held the fellow until the patrolman arrived. Sullivan declares he was drunk and did not know what he was doing. He will be arraigned before Justice Bray tomorrow.

MRS. LUCILLE POST, AN ACTRESS, TRIES SUICIDE.

Elizabeth, March 16.—Word was received Saturday in this city that Mrs. Lucille Post, an actress, who was born in this city, had attempted to commit suicide in New York Friday, and was in Bellevue Hospital.

Mrs. Post is the only daughter of former Alderman Dr. Victor Mravlag, and was married secretly about four years ago to Lionel Post, a son of the late Rev. Richard B. Post, once assistant rector of Christ Episcopal church, this city. The young woman left her husband because of alleged cruel treatment.

New York, March 14.—A fine-looking, well-gowned woman, said to be Mrs. Lucille Post, of Elizabeth, N. J., is in the alcholic and prison ward of Bellevue Hospital. According to the hospital records the young woman was suffering from morphinism.

An automobile containing two men and the woman stopped in front of the hospital. One of the men, who said he was Dr. Arthur L. Sherman, of 75 West Fifty-fifth street, had a conference with Dr. Holmes of the psychopathic ward, after which the woman went into the office and was registered as a patient. The hospital records show that she is a widow.

Recreation Pier For Elizabeth.

The committee on docks and piers of the Elizabeth Council reported Saturday that it had adopted the plans for the recreation pier, which has been demanded by the people of the lower section of the city for three years. It was further stated that the Council would approve the plans at its meeting in April. The pier should be finished before the summer is over.

DO NOT LEAP OUT OF BED.

Rather Treat the Summons With the Contempt It Deserves.

Dr. Savary will earn the gratitude of millions of men and women all the world over. He has made a scientific fact of a delightful habit hitherto described by the unco' energetic as a lazy one. He has found a splendid defense for the so-called "sluggard," for he has declared before the august body of the French Academy of Sciences that to arise the moment one is called is literally sheer madness.

When the fatal summons comes that the bath is ready, it is a huge mistake to leap out of bed. The proper thing is to blink lazily and treat the announcement with the contempt it deserves for fully 20 minutes.

To leap up, display briskness and with alacrity to set about the monotonous business of dressing is most dangerous, according to Dr. Savary. This way all manner of ills lie, including insanity itself. One feels sure that this new theory, coming from so eminent an authority, will find much favor. In fact, one may whisper that it already has some vogue among hitherto much criticized persons.

TRANSPLANTING TREES.

Done at Night It Works No Injury to Foliage.

In Revue Universelle, according to another foreign contemporary, there is a practical article of general interest on transplanting plants in full foliage at night. The results of some experiments by Rouault would make unnecessary to customary transplanting of deciduous trees in the fall or winter. He has found that trees may be transplanted in full foliage in May or June, with little or no injury, providing the process is carried on at night. This has been demonstrated to the entire satisfaction of some of the most prominent horticulturists of France.

Humorous Raven.

An account is given of the apparently intentional humor expressed by an intelligent raven. This bird belonged to a river keeper and invariably accompanied its master when he assisted his employers in catching a basket of trout. He soon learned that the object of the men was to get things to eat out of the stream, first, because he saw it and, secondly, because a small trout was often given to him. That learned, the ingenious bird went fishing on his own account and succeeded in raising a drowned kitten. In great glee he carried his prize to the basket and poked it in the hole at the top where the fishes were always put in.

Whey for Pigs.

Results of experiments at Danish experiment stations show that twelve pounds of whey from separator skim milk cheese are equal to one pound of grain for pig feeding or one pound of skim milk equals two pounds of whey in feeding value. Experiments at the Wisconsin station show a higher feeding value for whey, as it contains more fat and casein than that used abroad. A suitable feed may be equal by mixing together equal parts of shorts, ground oats, bran and cornmeal made into a moist state just thick enough to pour well. Whey is then fed in the same way as skim milk or may be freely mixed with other feed stuffs.

Wounded Trees.

The following mixture is recommended for wounds of any kind on trees: Melt resin and warm a little crude petroleum in separate vessels, pouring into a third vessel three parts resin to one of petroleum. This seals the wounds very effectively until grown over. It is said not to run in warm weather, nor crack in cold, and cuts covered with it will not fail to heal satisfactorily. It is much cheaper than paint. If a limb is broken it should be cut back smoothly to its parent trunk or branch and the cut covered with this preparation. It is also good to apply to wounds of the bark or trunk of trees by rodents.

Day's Ration for Sheep.

A day's ration for a sheep is estimated at two pounds of hay, half a pound of bran and half a pound of ground oats when there is no pasture, but as large sheep consume more than smaller ones the estimated ration may not be strictly correct. Sheep should also be supplied with succulent food, sliced carrots being highly relished. They should not be overfed, but should be kept in moderate condition. In summer good pasture is sufficient.

Impossibilities.

"Well," said the devil, "I will let you off if you can think up three tasks which I can't accomplish.

"All right," we observed, "bring us the Great American Novel, an interesting vaudeville show and a fountain pen that won't leak."

The old boy shrieked terribly, but there was nothing for him but to acknowledge gracefully that he was beaten.—Puck.

Good Idea.

Friend (entering the dining-room)—Great Scott, old man, you seem to be living on the fat of the land!"

"Easy enough, my dear fellow. I inserted an ad 'An educated gentleman wishes a wife. Fortune and personal attractions not important. Must be good cook. Send samples of skill express prepaid to Truffles are Trumps, Box 100.'"—Translated for Town Talk from Fliegende Blatter.

NO MORE SQUEALS.

And No More Wails Bertay the Feminine Sport.

To those who can recall the times in which women took part in games in a more or less frivolous and light-hearted spirit, nothing is more remarkable than the seriousness of the modern sports woman, and, what is more, her almost oppressive silence.

Women no longer bring laughter and merriment into the games they take up. On ladies' golf links there are fewer voices heard then when men are engaged in the game, and even the excitement of the hockey ground is not considered an excuse for those small sequeals of triumph and wails of despair which were common to the early days of the game.

Women have made great progress in sport, but their prudest accomplishment should surely be that they have learned the golden value of silence in the field.

A Lost Apology.

"What a beautiful woman Mrs. Raymond is!" he exclaimed as he entered the sitting room. "I have just had such a pleasant talk with her in the bookstore."

His wife looked up from her sewing.

"John," she exclaimed, "where is your collar?"

He put his hand to his throat. "I must have left it at the barber shop. I went to the barber shop then to the bookstore. Why," he ended lamely, "Mrs. Raymond would think it very careless of me to appear in public without my collar, wouldn't she?"

"Rather," said his wife. "Perhaps you'd better call her up and tell her just how it happened."

He went to the telephone.

"Hello, central; hello! Hello! Is this Mrs. Raymond? Yes? Well, really, it was very stupid of me, Mrs. Raymond; but, you know, I had been thinking of something very important, and I quite forgot to put on my collar. I—oh—ah—goodby!"

He suddenly hung up the receiver and gave utterance to a mild exclamation.

"John!" exclaimed his wife.

"She says she hasn't been out of the house today," he groaned.—Harper's Magazine.

Johnny Greene's Proverbs

Toothache is worst just before schooltime. It disappears about 9:30 a. m.

Never study at night. It is bad for the eyes. But reading all about the ball games doesn't hurt a fellow.

Whittling is recreation, but picking up the chips makes the back ache.

It is injurious for a boy's health to carry a scuttle of coal, but a football game is beneficial.

A tired boy should not run errands after school, but sledding and skating are restful exercises.

Practicing exercises on the violin or piano should be avoided, as they are bad for the nerves, but pillow fights strengthen the muscles and act as rest cures.

Blacking one's boots is dirty work, but playing marbles is fun and makes the skin of your hand tough.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Bishop and His Bun.

The Bishop of Worcester, according to the Baptist Union, once had occasion to travel through Banbury by rail. Being desirous to test and at the same time encourage the far-famed industry of that town, and the train having stopped for a short time at the station, he beckoned to a small boy standing at hand, and inquired the price of the celebrated buns. "Threepence each," said the boy. The Bishop thereupon handed him sixpence and desired him to bring one to the car, adding: "And with the other threepence you may buy one for yourself." The boy shortly returned, complacently munching his Banbruy, and, handing the threepence in coppers to the Bishop, exclaimed, "There was only one left, guv'nor."

Submarine Cable Versus Wireless.

The Electric Review considers that the transatlantic cables are in no immediate danger from the competition of wireless telegraphy. One of the pressing problems which wireless experts must solve is the development of commercially practicable selectivity. Until a number of stations can work side by side without affecting one another, the usefulness of the new system will be very limited. Until this problem is solved, and an equally good transmission by day and night assured, the wireless system will occupy a very minor position.

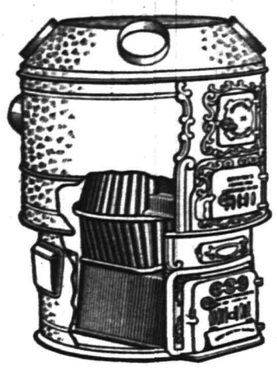
The South Polar Postoffice.

Before leaving Christchurch for the Antartic regions, says The Westminster Gazette, Captain Shackleton, the commander of the latest British South Polar Expedition, was duly sworn as postmaster of King Edward the Seventh Land. He has been authorized by the Postmaster General of New Zealand to open an office in that most southerly of the King's dominions, to issue stamps and transmit mails as opportunity offers. These South Polar stamps will doubtless be prized by philatelists and other lovers of curios.

Feeding the Hens.

Corn, wheat, oats, barley, vegetables, small potatoes, apple parings, meat scraps, when given in proper proportions and accompanied by grit or oyster shell, pure water, charcoal and dust baths, should result in a good supply of eggs if other conditions are favorable.

Did You Burn TooMuchCoal?



It's cheaper to have a good furnace, to say nothing of the comfort. The best furnace is the

BOYNTON

The Furnace with the Square Fire Pot

It has the only fire pot that furnishes perfect combustion, burns all the coal cleanly, without clinkers or clogging, and at the same time saves coal and labor. Look up a Boynton dealer and ask him to explain.

LANGUAGE OF FLOWERS.

The myosotis stands for "Remember me."

The recipient is likely to recall the sender.

To send hyacinths is to say: "I am very sorry."

Don't mind. Just fancy how glad she is to receive them.

By sending roses you as good as say "I love you."

If they are fine enough the charmer is certain to indicate "same here."

An offering of acacias (mimosa, if you prefer) says, "Let us be friends."

Why, of course, what girl could resist branchlets clothed in fairy fuzz of gold.

Should you dispatch an azalea to a fair one you are advising her to "Be temperate."

Naturally she will assure you, in her note of thanks, it is impossible to be temperate at sight of such splendor.

SLEEVES TO SUIT.

Don't worry.

All modes remain.

Are your arms pretty?

Elbow sleeves may be worn.

Do you look better in long sleeves?

Long sleeves are to be equally fashionable.

Short-sleeved coats may be eked out with long-sleeved blouses.

Elbow sleeves are in favor for afternoon and evening dresses.

In fact, more or less short sleeves will be good style for everything except tailored skirts and strictly tailored suits of the type suitable for morning and traveling.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Drink in Scotland.

Drunkenness in Scotland appears to be on the increase, according to the judicial statistics for 1906, just issued. In some instances the drunkenness reached absolutely appaling degrees. In the little town of Blairgowrie, in Perthshire, with a population of well under 5,000, the proportion of cases of drunkenness reached 1,042 per 10,000 of the population, or one case for every ten men, women and children of the inhabitants.

Lucky Thirteen.

Few people will have had the courage to sit down thirteen at table for the greeting of a new year. But fifty-five years ago Lord Roberts was one of thirteen who sat down to dinner on New ear's day at Peshawar. Eleven years later—though most of them had been through the Indian mutiny and half of them had been wounded—they were all alive. And Lord Roberts is still very much alive.—London Chronicle.

THE ESCAPADE

A POST MARITAL ROMANCE

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

ILLUSTRATIONS BY

"I would like to kill him," he said, "and by heaven I shall before long, or he me, and then she can take him with my blood on his hands."

"I would not have you die, Bernard," said Lady Cecily tenderly, at that moment catching sight of the other two. "Don't think that your life is wasted because a foolish, wicked woman has well nigh wrecked it. You are very dear to—me."

She laid her hand upon his arm. She drooped toward him. She was not bad looking, Lady Cecily, especially in the moonlight, which hid the paint and powder and some of the ravages of time.

"You are the only true heart I have ever known," protested Carrington.

And then Lady Cecily palpably fell against him. What else could a gentleman do under the circumstances but enfold her in his arms? The arms of Lady Cecily stole upward. She lifted her face to his.

"Kiss me," she murmured, faintly.

And although Carrington had not intetnded anything of that kind, yet being tempted, he hesitated and was lost. He kissed her full and fair in the moonlight.

"Have you seen enough, Lady Carrington?" whispered Strathgate from the other side.

"Enough!" said Ellen, choking with jealous rage. "My lord, I leave this castle to-night. May I depend upon you to help me?"

"I shall help you," said Strathgate, turning and leading her away, "with all that I have. My life, my fortune, my sacred honor are yours."

"I can depend upon you, then?"

"To the end, madam. I have a house in London, a castle in the next county. They are yours, absolutely yours."

"You mistake me, my lord. I go back to Philadelphia. There is a ship belonging to me, a merchant ship in the harbor of Portsmouth nearly ready to sail for America. If you will take me there and see me on board, I shall be everlastingly grateful to you."

My lord thought deeply. Lady Ellen evidently considered his proffered service purely a disinterested one. It would hardly be wise to undeceive her now. Once he got her away and in his power, it would go hard with him if he could not persuade her, or constrain her, to his own wishes. His role at present was to agree with whatever she proposed.

"I will do my best to carry out your wishes," he said, heartily.

And as Ellen stumbled and fell at the foot of the steps he took advantage of the occasion to support her with his arm.

"You are weak, ill, faint," he said, almost carrying her up the steps in the bright moonlight before she had a chance to protest.

It so happened that Lady Cecily and Carrington coming across the mall caught a full view of the incident.

"You see," said Lady Cecily maliciously.

Carrington would have broken away and ran after them, but she held him back.

"I shall kill him in the morning," he growled fiercely, utterly forgetful of that lapse of his in the arbor.

"But there must be nothing done to-night," cried Lady Cecily. "Promise me!"

"In the morning," said Carrington between his teeth.

"Certainly in the morning, but not now. You give me your promise?"

"Very well. I shall have a word or two to say to her before the morning."

"And remember," cautioned Lady Cecily, "that there is one who cares." She laid her hand upon his arm and looked up into his face again. "Think of her."

"I shall forget nothing," cried my lord, starting toward the porch.

"What would you have me do?" said Strathgate as he and Lady Ellen reached the top of the terrace.

"I would not have you lay hands on me again, my lord. I am in full vigor and able to serve myself in that."

"Forgive me!" said Strathgate. "I thought you were faint."

"No more of it," returned Ellen. "I would have you meet me at two of the clock here to-night on the terrace equipped for traveling."

"Do you ride away, madam?"

"I shall take my lord's traveling carriage. Can you drive, Lord Strathgate?"

His lordship laughed.

"I am the best whip in England," he said boastfully.

"Well then," said Ellen, "be here equipped for the journey and armed, my lord."

"At two of the clock?"

"At two," returned Ellen.

At this juncture Carrington and Lady Cecily joined the others on the terrace.

"Have you been taking the air, Lady Carrington, after your exertions in the dance?" queried Lady Cecily with mocking sweetness.

"We came to seek Carrington and yourself," interposed Strathgate swiftly.

"And not finding us?"

"Exactly. And not finding you, we were about to return to the house."

"'Tis late and perhaps Lady Carrington will permit us to take our bedroom candles?" asked Lady Cecily, who, her purpose effected, had naught to gain by prolonging the interview.

"With pleasure," said Ellen. "My lord"—she turned to Carrington—"we follow you into the hall."

Without a word Carrington and Lady Cecily strode up the further steps and, followed by Lady Ellen and Strathgate, reentered the hall. Bedroom candles were brought, goodnights were said and the party separated for what was conventionally characterized as rest.

CHAPTER V.

A Midnight Conversation.

Once more the little boudoir. Once more Ellen and Bernard alone together.

"Well, madam," began Carrington, coldly, under violent constraint, although passion was seething and bubbling in his veins, "do you think that you have disgraced me sufficiently tonight?"

He stood opposite her with folded arms, looking very tall and splendid Ellen acknowledged in her secret heart. She sat beneath him, her feet extended in an attitude of absolute indifference, maintained also by strong constraint.

"Disgraced you, my lord?"

"That is the word I used."

"I scarcely understand what you mean."

"You know very well what I mean, madam."

"But I was only obeying your instructions."

"My instructions!" exclaimed my lord; "and pray what were they?"

"To be like other women; to dance, to play, to—"

"You exceeded them, I think," interrupted Carrington, sneeringly.

"In what particular?"

"In playing at love-making with other men."

"I but followed the example of my mentor," Ellen retorted promptly.

"You will learn, madam," said Carrington, "when you are more familiar with the usage of polite society—"

"May God deliver me from it!" interposed Ellen.

My lord went on without noticing her remark.

"That many things are permitted to a man, to a husband, which are forbid to a woman, his wife."

"I recognize no distinction between us, sir."

"That may be your American hobbledehoy code, madam; but 'tis not that of England and England's gentlemen and gentlewomen."

"And who are England's gentlewomen," quoth Ellen, hotly, "whose conduct you would have me emulate—Lady Cecily, Mrs. Monbrant, the duchess?"

"This," said my lord, loftily, "is beside the question. What possessed you to play with Strathgate to-night?"

"The money," returned his wife, "was mine. I had a right to risk it. I might ask what possessed you to play?"

"And I might answer with your own words. Carrington hall was mine."

"Yes," said Ellen, "but made of value by my money."

"Perdition!" cried her husband, "must I have your money thrown in my face forever?"

"I hardly think I can throw it in your face again, my lord."

"And what will prevent you?"

"The fact that you have won it and 'tis yours."

"Nonsense!" said Carrington, fiercely. "I know well enough that your game with Strathgate was only play. It was simply a plan concocted between you to mock me and amuse yourselves."

"My lord, you insult me," cried Ellen, her face flaming.

"It is fact that carries the insult, madam. I make the charge on good authority. You were overheard arranging the details," persisted my lord, carried beyond the facts by his indignation.

"Upon whose authority?" inquired Ellen.

"Lady Cecily's."

"And you can take her word against mine?" responded his wife, bitterly. "Very well, my lord, I shall not condescend to justify myself further."

"'Twould be useless to attempt it."

"Indeed, and what made you risk your castle in a matter in which nothing was involved?"

"Pardon me," returned Carrington, loftily. "There was something involved, something of which you reck little."

"And that was?"

"My honor and the honor of my wife. At that time I supposed the debt an honest one, the play fair. Think you I could allow that to stand against you while I had a penny?"

"It was not love then that made you interpose?"

"Love!" sneered Carrington. "How could I love a woman whose chief joy is to mock me, to humiliate me, to heap ridicule upon me, to disgrace me?"

"You have said enough, my lord."

"And you have no defense to offer?"

"None," said Ellen proudly.

"No word of explanation to give?"

"Not one."

"No justification to plead?"

"Not a single plea."

"Madam, this passes beyond all bonds. The scene to-night was disgraceful. You insulted all my guests, you publicly braved me, you flaunted your money in my face, you exposed your person disgracefully in that abandoned hornpipe, which you danced with that Puritan bit of sanctimoniousness at the harpsichord—"

"I have said before," cried Ellen, "that you can stop right there. The English gentleman's code, I take it from my experience of it at home here, allows you to say anything you please to me or about me, but you will please leave my friends out of the discussion."

"There is one friend that I shall bring in the discussion."

"And who is that?"

"Strathgate."

"And what has he done?"

"What has he done? My God!" gasped my lord, choking with rage.

"He has always treated me like a gentleman," returned Ellen, "but perhaps that's because he's not married to me."

"You should know his reputation among women, or his lack of it," protested Carrington.

"Why, then, did you invite him here?" returned Ellen deftly. "And as for actions among women, there be some indifferent honest men who are not above suspicion. Know you any such, my lord?"

"What mean you?"

"I saw you in the arbor an hour since!"

"What! Spying again?"

"Spying again? You had Lady Cecily in your arms, you kissed her."

"And if I did?"

"I did not marry you for that," went on Ellen in jealous rage. "The way she has thrown herself at you is disgraceful, but, my lord, you have made it easy for her."

"There is naught between me and Lady Cecily."

"But I tell you," cried Ellen, "I don't believe a word you say, for I saw you in that arbor. I have seen you before with that hussy. I wish to God that I were dead and that you could marry her and see what a bargain you would get, not that marriage would make any difference to her, I fancy."

"You insult my friends," cried Carrington, trying to give the conversation a different turn.

"I only follow your lead, my lord."

"I know who brought you to the arbor."

"The earl of Strathgate," replied Ellen in bold acknowledgment, "the one friend, with Sir Charles Seton, that I have in the house, the one who always treats me with courtesy and consideration."

"Yes, I saw his consideration in carrying you up the terrace steps a few moments after you eavesdropped. What heard you in the arbor?"

"Not one word," answered Ellen. "But I saw you in the moonlight, and that was enough, my lord. I swear to you that unless you promise me on your word that you will dismiss Lady Cecily to-morrow I shall never be wife to you again."

"I cannot be discourteous to my guests," returned Carrington with sudden dignity.

"And does courtesy to your guests involve taking them in your arms and kissing them? Have you tried it with Mrs. Monbrant, or with the duchess of Dulward? Now, she, indeed, would be a fit object for your kind attentions."

"I Cannot Be Discourteous to My Guests."

Ellen laughed viciously.

"There is one guest that I shall dismiss in the morning, ay, two," returned my lord, white with anger.

"And who are those, pray?"

"Strathgate and Seton."

"My friend and your friend. That's well thought on, and you will have me defenseless, then, at your mercy, compelled to look upon your love-making with that abandoned woman. But I'll not stand it. I'll go back to America!"

"You would never dare."

"Would I not?" cried Ellen, manfully. "Watch me in the morning."

"I will see that you do not leave my sight after daybreak," said Carrington, fiercely.

"Very well. At least you will leave me alone for the night," returned his wife with equal spirit.

"With pleasure, madam. We will resume our discussion, and I will give you my final decision in the morning."

He bowed himself out grandly.

Once again Ellen shot to the door. Then she bolted it. This time she did not cry. She waited in fierce eagerness until she heard my lord retire, then she waited longer until she became convinced that he was asleep.

It was one by the great clock in the hall when she withdrew from her boudoir and entered her own bedroom. Opening a closet she drew therefrom underneath a pile of feminine apparel a certain sailor's dress which she had sometimes used in cruising and boating expeditions with her husband since her marriage, and which she had often used before in long cruises on her father's ships. There were stout, heavy buckskin shoes, soft, woolen stockings, trousers wide and flaring at the knee and belted at the waist, a soft shirt of blue, a rough pea-jacket. Slipping off her own clothes, she transformed herself with rapid fingers into a sailor lad. She undid her hair and tied it behind in a man's queue. From the same closet she took a slender sword and a pair of heavy pistols. These she attached to her belt. A knitted sailor's cap completed her equipment.

She went back softly into the boudoir and sat down at her desk. From a secret drawer she drew a purse filled with gold pieces, sovereigns of England. On the table lay a cheque book. Her balance at the bank she found was a trifle over £20,000, the amount she owed my lord. With a nervous hand she filled out a cheque for the full amount and signed it. She laid it open on the desk, hesitated a moment, half rose, sat down, drew a sheet of paper to her, dipped the quill in the ink and wrote rapidly. She folded the paper, addressed it to my lord, and left it with the cheque inclosed where he could not fail to see it if he came into her room in the morning to deliver his ultimatum.

Fortunately, there was another exit from her suite of apartments besides that which led through my lord's dressing room. She unlocked the door and stepped into the corridor. She had thrown a great boat cloak around her and carried her shoes in her hand. It was half-past one o'clock she estimated. She stepped along the corridor quickly until she came to Deborah's door. She opened this softly, closed it behind her and went over to the bed where the little Puritan slept. She laid her hand on the young woman and shook her gently.

Deborah was a light sleeper. She woke instantly, terrified beyond measure to see a tall, dark figure bending over her. She opened her mouth to scream, but Elen had the quickness to clap her hand over the mouth and stifle the noise. Her familiar voice reassured Mistress Deborah. The girl sat up in bed and stared in amazement.

"What do you want?"

"I am leaving the castle," returned Ellen, "and you must come with me."

"But I don't want to go," answered Deborah, who was progressing very sweetly in her love affair with Sir Charles, and had no mind to leave him.

"You must go," answered Ellen imperiously. "I am responsible for you and I cannot leave you here with Lord Carrington alone after I am gone."

"And he does not go with you?"

"It is from him I am fleeing."

"Oh!" said Deborah. "And where are you going?"

"Back to America."

"But Sir Charles?"

"If Sir Charles cares anything for you," said Ellen authoritatively, "he will follow you to the end of the world."

"But will not Lord Carrington follow you?"

"Not he," said Ellen bitterly, "the cases are not parallel."

"With whom do you go?"

"Lord Strathgate."

"Oh, Ellen!" exclaimed Deborah in horror-stricken accents.

"Peace, girl!" said Lady Ellen, "he acts, or he shall act, as my coachman alone, but I must have you with me. We can talk no longer. Dress yourself. Would that I had boy's clothes for you!"

"I should never wear them! never!"

"Well, dress yourself in the clothes in which you came from America, then. Do you know where they are?"

"I have them always at hand."

"And I will assist you," said Ellen.

The two worked rapidly and in a few moments Mistress Debbie, in stout homespun, with short skirt, simple bonnet and heavy cloak like to Ellen's, was equipped for the journey.

Fortune favored them. They stole down the stairs through the great hall and found the door unbarred, much to Ellen's satisfaction, for it indicated that Strathgate had been before them. They passed through the opening and stepped out on the terrace. The moonlight was almost gone, but awaiting them at the foot of the steps was a dark figure. Deborah would have shrunk back, but Ellen seizing her arm ran confidently toward it.

"Is that you, my lord?" she asked in a low voice.

"Yes," answered Strathgate. "Did you think I would fail you?"

And from the clock in the tower above them boomed out two strokes of the bell.

In his chamber, my lord of Carrington, thoroughly exhausted by the exciting events of the evening, lay in a profound slumber dreaming perhaps of what he should do to my lady in the morning.

LAWRENCE WINS ALL POINTS FOR Y.M.C.A. IN STATE MEET

Russell Lawrence, of Leal's School, who broke the schoolboy record in the shot put at the Brooklyn "Poly Prep" meet several weeks ago, won all seven points made by the local Y. M. C. A. track team in the Northern New Jersey association track meet held at Orange Saturday night. He put the shot 47 feet, 4½ inches, nearly four feet further than Creede, of Orange, who took second place, but was off his form in the jumps, only taking third place in the standing broad jump and three standing broad jumps.

The meet was won by Newark, with fifteen points; Orange was second with twelve points and Paterson third with eleven. Lawrence cleared 10 feet 1 inch in the standing broad jump and made 30 feet 5 inches in the three standing broad jumps. These figures only won him third place in each of the events. Will Schoonmaker, of the local association team, won the seventh heat of the fifteenth yard dash, but did not show in the semi-finals, won by Harris of Paterson. Orange won the mile relay, with Paterson second, and Newark third.

INDEPENDENT GUN CLUB ARRANGES FOR PRIZE SHOOTS

A rifle shooting match between Henry Haurand, captain of the Independent Gun Club, and Dr. C. W. Leonard, treasurer of the club, has been arranged and the date for the shooting will be decided upon at a meeting of the club to be held at Dr. Leonard's office tonight. Matches between other members are being arranged. The shoot will be at 200 yards, best out of fifty shots, and will be held at the club range. The winner is to receive a medal or a money prize.

Through the Walsrose Powder Company a handsome ten-inch cup has been offered to the club, to be competed for at the traps. A schedule for this shoot will be arranged at tonight's meeting.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church has postponed its regular meeting to Tuesday afternoon, March 24.

Rev. W. L. Green, of Brookfield, N. Y., who has been conducting a Sunday-school Institute at the New Market Seventh-Day Baptist church, has returned home.

The regular church business meeting will be held at the First Baptist church Wednesday night, March 25, when it is expected new members will be received and other business of importance considered.

Miss Helen Hall, of South Branch, who has many friends in this city, sang in the Presbyterian church at Westfield, last night, as a candidate for appointment as soprano soloist. She made a very favorable impression.

Dr. G. Campbell Morgan will begin a series of lectures Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, New York. These lectures are under the auspices of the Bible Teachers' Training School and will be given daily at 4 o'clock and at 8 o'clock.

William D. Murray's new class at the Young Women's Christian Association will hold its second meeting tomorrow night and will continue during Tuesdays in Lent. The class is already studying the book of Jonah with enthusiasm. Thirty women were present last week and others are to enroll tomorrow evening. The class meets at eight o'clock and is open to all.

GUARDSMEN WILL GET NEW RIFLES.

Quarter-master General C. Edward Murray will within ten days commence distributing the 4,000 new rifles now en route from the government arsenals to Trenton to replace the old model guns now in the hands of the National Guard members.

The gun is warranted to shoot faster and kill at a longer distance than any other arm in the world, as well as being the most effective weapon on the market in the like of a gun at close range. The bayonet is the result of the experience army officers gained watching the Russo-Japanese War, where the bayonet proved as effective an instrument as it was years ago.

The government had practically discarded the bayonet. It now takes its place again in the army. The ammunition comes in "clips" of five, the cartridges going at once time in the arm for repetition in shooting. Five balls can be discharged now in the same time two can with the old reloading after each shot.

$300,000 PER YEAR TO BEAUTIFY ATLANTIC CITY.

Experts engaged on the "City Beautiful" plans for Atlantic City have figured that the work of making over the resort can be carried through for $300,000 per year, to be spent in the next twenty years. The figures are based on careful computation, and include the cost of each year's work with the interest and sinking fund, to insure bonds that may be necessary.

It is likely that the first work undertaken after the improvement of the Boardwalk now under way will be the laying out of a city hall park in the center of the city, with the consequent destruction of the unsightly freight sheds owned by the railroad company.

Another important detail to be undertaken soon will be the laying out of a new street between Pacific avenue and the beach, which will add greatly to the safety from fire in the congested hotel district.

Rags Cause a Blaze.

Oily rags and waste caught fire in the kitchen of Thomas Dorgan's house on Spooner avenue early Saturday afternoon. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and the flames were extinguished by the chemical stream. The house is owned by Frank Burke. The loss is about $50, covered by insurance.

Fire in a Freight Car.

A party of men smoking in an empty car on a siding near Clinton avenue caused a lively blaze at bout noon yesterday, when straw in the car was ignited through their carelessness. A telephone alarm summoned the department, and the fire was put out by the use of hand extinguishers.

PEDAGOGUES PROTEST ANTI-SCHOOL MEASURES

Resolutions against the endorsement of the tenure of office bill and the attempts to reduce the State school tax, as provided in the Avis and Prince bills now before the Legislature, were unanimously passed at the meeting of the Somerset County Ttechers' Association held at Somerville Saturday. State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Assemblyman W. W. Smalley were present, and declared they would endorse the action of the teachers.

The discussion of these proposed measures occupied much of the time at the meeting. It was started by Judge L. H. Schenck, of Somerset county, and among those who took part in it was County Supervisor Henry C. Krebs, of North Plainfield.

Y. M. C. A. MAY WITHDRAW FROM BASEBALL LEAGUE.

The officials of the Inter-City Amateur Baseball League will be held at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night, when it is expected that the Y. M. C. A. team will withdraw from the league. If this action is followed it will undoubtedly result in the breaking up of the organization as no other club could be found at this time to fill the vacancy.

As predicted in this paper the formation of the four club league of local clubs was a disappointment to the fans and many of the officials have since then realized the fact. The Y. M. C. A. aggregation, it is said, is now considering plans to join a league to be composed of association teams in Newark, Passaic, Summit, Orange and Elizabeth. Nothing definite has been decided in the matter as yet.

The proposition to form a league comprising Plainfield, Somerville, High Bridge and Fleming, as suggested in this paper recently, is now a strong possibility. The Clinton Avenue Club is ready and anxious to represent the city in that organization and plans are now being discussed with that purpose in view. The intercity champions of last year feel confident that they will be able to hold their own with the other three clubs. The club is completely organized and is in every way equipped for the coming season. Improvements will be made at Crescent Oval and the prospects for a successful year are bright.

The plans will be considered by the officials of the Somerville Club and arrangements will be made to call a meeting of the representatives of the four teams to perfect details and decide upon a schedule.

FORTUNE SEEKS MOLDER.

Wife Whom He Deserted in 1882 Trying to Find Him.

A legacy of $100,000, left him by an uncle in Germany, awaits Joseph Kuhns, a Trenton iron molder, who mysteriously disappeared from his home and family in the spring of 18882. Mrs. Khns has received a letter to this effect, and she is now making frantic efforts to locate her husband so as to secure possession of the fortune.

Kuhns was located at one time in Ragland, Ala., but he disappeared again before any of his family could get to him in an effort to induct him to return home.

Boroughite's Auto in Flames.

Prompt action on the part of Wendell Mosher, of the F. L. C. Martin Auto Co., prevented the distruction of the White touring car belonging to James Hewitt, of the borough at the Park avenue railroad bridge yesterday afternoon. The gasoline flowed from the tank too freely and some of it caught fire. The sheet of flame attracted the attention of Fire Chief Doane, who was driving past at the time, but Mosher checked the flames with a hand extinguisher from the garage and prevented the fire from spreading to the gasoline tank. There was no damage and the department was not called out.

Think Dead Negro Was Burglar.

Investigation by Dr. Elliott, the county physician, and his assistant, Dr. S. A. Muta, of West Orange, seems to indicate that the negro whose body was found in the woods back of Millburn Thursday night was murdered. Detective Sergeant Drabell, of Orange, thinks that the man was a burglar who was murdered in a quarrel with his pal over the division of spoils. On the body were several New York addresses. The police are looking up his record.

ALLEGED LABOR LEADER MEETS WITH A REBUFF

John T. Cosgrove, of Elizabeth, has received a severe setback in his opposition to the Ackerman free employment agency bill. At a hearing held before the Committee on Labor and Industry, at Trenton, on March 11, Cosgrove is reported to have appeared as a representative of the State Federation of Labor and bitterly opposed the measure on the ground that it "might be made an instrument of evil," and urged that, if it be reported at all, its scope be lessened.

In answer to appeals made by the State Federation of Women's Clubs, which organization is active in support of the bill, A. W. McDougal, superintendent of the Bureau of Associated Charities, consulted with H. J. Gottlob, the legislative representative of the Essex Trades Council and an officer of the State Federation of Labor. As the result of this interview, Superintendent McDougall was authorized to make public the following statement:

Mr. Gottlob is in favor of the free employment bill, and as Mr. Cosgrove, who is mentioned in the newspaper accounts of the hearing at Trenton as representing the State Federation of Labor, did not represent that organization, he certainly had no authority to do so. Mr. Gottlob was in Trenton at the time of the hearing, and was approached by Mr. Bottril, the business agent of the Carpenters' Union of Orange and Montclair, and by John T. Cosgrove, the business agent of the carpenters' union of Elizabeth. He told these men that he saw nothing in the bill inimical to the labor unions, and thought they were mistaken in their opposition to the bill. Mr. Gottlob is willing to be quoted, and says he will bring the matter up at the regular meeting of the State Federation, if it is not too late to have any effect on the bill.

TRAGEDIAN SHAE MAY APPEAR IN "THE BELLS."

Although he had not planned for it in his series of plays when he comes to the New Plainfield theatre on Friday and Saturday, March 27 and 28, it is possible that Thomas E. Shea, the noted tragedian, may give "The Bells." He was announced to present "A Soldier of the Cross" at the Friday performance and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" both Saturday matinee and night, but there have been so many inquiries regarding "The Bells" that the production may be put on Saturday afternoon. Those who wish to have this done are asked to notify the box office in order to learn if possible if it is preferable to a majority of the playgoers.

Shea met with great success in "The Bells" and many critics maintain that his portrayal is much better than Mansfield's, although the latter considered it one of his best efforts.

MRS. HOMAN BECOMES MRS. CROSBY LEONARD.

Mrs. Maude Mosher Homan, formerly of this city, and Crosby Leonard, of New York, were married at the former's home on West One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street, Harlem, Saturday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. W. Davis, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer at Seventh avenue and One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street. Only the families of both parties were present.

Mrs. Leonard is the daughter of John P. Mosher. She has been making her home in New York for the past year. The groom is a civil engineer and has been in charge of part of the construction work on the McAdoo tunnel.

A. O. H. Attend Vesper Service.

Members of the Ancient Order Hibernians from Elizabeth, Rahway, Bound Brook, Dunellen and this city attended a vesper service at St. Mary's church, last night. The edifice was thronged to overflowing with the members and friends of the organization and all enjoyed an able address delivered by Father McLoughlin, State chaplain of the order. Under the direction of Miss Smith, organist, the chorus choir, rendered special music.

Ross Scores Again.

"The Travelling Salesman," with Thomas W. Ross in the title role, made a pronounced hit when presented at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night. The production is full of dramatic climaxes and is a worthy successor for the star's late vehicle, "Checkers." James Forbes, who wrote "The Chorus Lady," is the author, and Henry B. Harris the producer.

Y. M. C. A. Orchestra Concert.

The twenty-seventh concert by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra will be given in the association auditorium tomorrow night. Miss Leila Druse will sing several soprano solos, and an excellent instrumental program has been arranged by Martin A. Korff, leader of the orchestra.

—W. E. Bartle has sold his property on the southeast corner of Watchung and Summit avenues, to Mrs. Griffin, of East Seventh street, wife of the late Rev. Walter T. Griffin. Mrs. Griffin and her son-in-law, Charles H. Clark and family will take up their residence in the borough April 1.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Leifke, of West Front street, have been spending several days at Atlantic City.

Isaac L. Miller, of Watchung avenue, has returned from a sojourn at Atlantic City, leaving Mrs. Miller and his daughter there for a longer stay.

Mrs. J. Herbert Case, of Duer street, accompanied by her son, Everett, are sojourning at Atlantic City for the benefit of the latter, who has been ill.

Willard M. Miner, of East Seventh street, sailed last week for Havana, Mexico and Yucatan, where he goes in the interest of the Telegraphone. He will be away three months.

Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, of New Brunswick, who is supplying Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck's pulpit at Trinity Reformed church, was accompanied yesterday by his daughter, Miss Marguerite, and during their stay in Plainfield were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., of Jackson avenue, and of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Force, of Duer street.

OBITUARY.

Miss Louisa Sprich.

Following an illness of several weeks with heart trouble and complications, Miss Louisa E. Sprich, daughter of the late Michael and Catherine Sprich, died Saturday night in Muhlenberg Hospital. She was fifty-one years old and came to Plainfield with her parents from Germany when she was a child. Her mother was a sister to the late Christian Schepflin, who conducted the big clothing business on Front street for many years. The family lived on Plainfield avenue for a long time and afterward on West Front street near Compton avenue. There are surviving two brothers, Max, of New York, and Christian, of this city; also a sister, Mrs. Catherine Reehl, of Essex street. The funeral will be held at the home of her nephew, Edward Lutz, of Essex street, tomorrow night at 7 o'clock. Burial will be in the Lutheran cemetery on Long Island.

The Clothespin Game.

A merry and unique games which may be played to help pass away a winter's evening is called the "clothespin game." The company divide into two sides and each side chooses a leader or captain. As many chairs as there are guests are then placed in two rows, facing each other. The hostess then gives to each leader, who sits at the head of his line, a loose bundle of clothespins, about twenty in number. At a given signal each leader passes the bundle to the next, this person passes it to the next and then without a pause back to the leader. The side which accomplishes this feat in the shortest time wins the victory. This game is exciting, for if one person drops a clothespin he may not hand the bundle and then pick up the one he has dropped, but must pick it up and hand them all at once. This game is a striking illustration of the old proverb, "The more haste the less speed."

From a Man's Note Book.

First love is the most beautiful thing in life—just so long that it remains first.

A short life and a merry one means a short life and a sad one for your children.

Make a living first; make love afterward.

The man who believes a woman can't keep a secret should ask her age.

The only way to overcome any evil is to fight it; if you try to put it behind you it will stab you in the back.

The man who thinks the world is growing worse is generally the man who has just acquired a little fresh wickedness.—Smart Set.

Hungry, But Warm.

A girl thirteen years old was caught on the prairie in Nebraska in a blizzard, with the nearest house 3 miles away and a foot of snow already on the ground. When she found that she could not face the storm and had become turned around she burrowed her way into a drift and let the falling snow cover her up, and she remained there two days and nights. When the storm passed, she was warm and comfortable, but ready to eat a big breakfast. She had not suffered in the least with the cold.

Abe Hummel's Release.

New York, March 16.—Abe Hummel, the lawyer who was convicted of perjury during the Morse-Dodge divorce trial a year ago and who began a year's sentence at Blackwell's Island on May 20 last, will be released on Thursday, providing he pays the $500 fine imposed with the prison sentence.

Minstrel Rehearsal Tonight.

Harry Wetton, of Roselle, will meet the members of the Elks minstrel troupe for rehearsal at the lodge rooms tonight. No date has yet been decided upon for the show, which will be held after Easter.

District Visitor (unmarried)—How dreadfully you've been treated!

Cottager—Well, it might 'ave been worse.

D. V.—How could it have been worse?

C.—Well, ma'am, I might 'ave been in the same position as yourself—'aving no 'usband!—Punch.

CONSTRUCT WORLD'S LARGEST STEEL DOME HERE

WORLD'S LARGEST STRUCTURAL IRON DOME.

Formally accepted Saturday by the representative of Hildreth & Co., a New York firm of consulting engineers, the largest structural ironwork dome in the world, made and assembled at Levering & Garigues shops at West Dunellen, is now being taken down and shipped accross the country to San Francisco. It will crown the six story building of the Euporium department store, one of the city's new buildings erected after the disastrous earthquake and fire of two years ago.

Rearing its great skeleton shape in the open fields near the factory where it has been in process of construction for the past four months, the big dome has attracted many visitors to the shops, and has been protographed repeatedly for architects and engineering firms. It is a mammoth hemisphere of iron frame work, 100 feet in diameter, crowned by a sixteen foot cylindrical cupola fifteen feet in diameter and placed fifty feet above the ground at the apex of the dome.

Larger than the sheet iron dome of the capitol at Washington, which has a diameter of 94 feet, the now completed dome will rest on a six foot circular iron girder, crowning the rotunda of the department store. Eight arches, of thirty foot span, add grace and beauty to the base of the structure, which at present stands on temporary concrete piers. The contract for the dome was sub-let by James Stewart & Co., contracting engineers, of San Francisco, and the big girders of the skeleton structure have been forged and assembled by the local firm. The gross weight of the dome is 215 tons.

The work of shaping the girders for the job was begun at the shop in November and practically the entire shop force was at work on the contract until February 1, when the temporary structure, which now stands completely assembled and rivited together, was begun in the field near the shop. A gang of a score of men has been engaged in the temporary erection of the big dome, fully completed Saturday. The erection was effected by means of a core of wooden scaffolding which held the great girders in position until they could be rivited.

The demolition of the structure has already been begun and the parts are being loaded on flat cars for shipment to San Francisco. From this steel framework a beautifully decorated rotunda is to be constructed and the panels formed by the girders above the base arches will be fitted with heavy glass lights, so that the San Francisco store will have the appearance of being crowned with a dome of glass.

KNOWING DOG PREVENTS HORSE RUNNING AWAY

To the long list of dogs who have demonstrated their sagacity by doing the right thing at the right time, let now be added the name of "Rex," the big Newfoundland dog belonging to Bertram C. Firstbrook, of Liberty street. Hitherto he has been nothing more than a good-natured old fellow who liked to doze on the door-mat or play with the children in the neighborhood, but now he is a hero, for so he has proved himself.

"Rex's" master is the owner of a milk route and he invariably accompanies him on his daily rounds, running alongside the wagon and in his own doggish way supervising the delivery of bottles to customers. While making the usual trip yesterday afternoon, the rig struck a bad crossing at Berckman and East Seventh streets and the sudden jerk snapped the whiffletree. The horse leaped out of the harness and with the traces dangling at its heels ran at a mad gallop down Berckman street.

The animal had no sooner started off than Mr. Firstbrook yelled "whoa," the shout attracting the attention of "Rex." He saw the horse running by itself and must have instantly figured out that something was wrong. The conclusion had no sooner been arrived at than "Rex" took after the runaway and caught up with it at East Sixth street, just a block away. He seized one of the dangling traces with his teeth and then bracing all four feet, pulled back with all his strength. Compared with the horse's it didn't amount to much but it had the effect of making the animal realize it wasn't entirely free and before it had gone a hundred feet further came to a full stop. The dog continued to hold on until his master ran up and relieved him. Even then he remained nearby as much as to say he was going to be on hand to prevent any further trouble.

Mr. Firstbrook managed to patch up his rig and with the loan of another set of harness finished his route. When he reached home "Rex" was rewarded with an extra large supper steak, the best that could be bought, and today the sagacious canine is being kept busy telling his West End dog friends all about the runaway.

Mrs. Murray Burtis, of Fairview avenue, has been detained at home for several weeks as the result of a fall.

FIFTEEN PLAINFIELDERS DRAWN ON PETIT JURY

A petit jury panel was drawn by Sheriff Lawrence at the Union County Court House yesterday morning. Judge Theodore Booraem, of Middlesex county, presided in the absence of Judge Atwater, who is in Washington. Of the sixty names drawn fifteen were from Plainfield.

The panel drawn yesterday will commence its duties next Monday. From it will be drawn a jury to try the Cranford murder case which will come before Justice Bergen for trial on March 30, two weeks from yesterday.

The panel chosen yesterday is as follows:

TAYLOR SUCCEEDS TYLER

Councilman Mygatt Eulogizes Retiring Member when Resignation is Accepted.

TAYLOR UNANIMOUS CHOICE.

Tyler Will Now Take His Place On Board of Education As Successor to the Late Dr. Probasco.

The resignation of William S. Tyler, a member of the Common Council from the Third ward, was received at the adjourned meeting of that body last night, and Duncan W. Taylor from the same ward was chosen to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Tyler. In his resignation the retiring member stated that he had been elected a member of the Board of Education. The communication was received through Mayor C. J. Fisk, in the form of a resolution.

In accepting it, Mr. Mygatt said:

"It is with deep regret that I rise to move the acceptance of this resolution. During the long period in which Mr. Tyler has been a member of the Council he has rendered valuable and efficient service.

"To his duties as a member of the Council he has given studious consideration always showing an earnest endeavor to accomplish the best result for the city. Of the many important matters with which he has been connected many have received the approval of the Council and now stand embodied among the ordinances of the city, while others not yet complete are in such a state of preparedness that but little remains to be done before presenting them for consideration.

"Himself a man of sterling character, possessed of a fund of knowledge and experience so useful in a body of this sort, his withdrawal will be a distinct loss."

The resignation being accepted, Mr. Mygatt immediately moved that the Council proceed to fill the vacancy. He presented the name of Duncan W. Taylor and there being no other nominations he was the unanimous choice of the members. President Tolles appointed Mr. Mygatt and Mr. Hall a committee to notify Mr. Taylor and escort him to the room. Mr. Taylor was then in the office of Mayor Fisk and had just completed taking the oath of office when the committee appeared and escorted him to the Council chamber.

In making the changes in the committees, President Tolles appointed Mr. Taylor to the place on the finance committee held by Mr. Hall and also made him a member of the auditing, public affairs and alms committees. Mr. Mygatt was put on the street committee in place of Mr. Tyler and made chairman of the public affairs committee in place of Mr. Mygatt.

ORDINANCE AIMS TO END SMOKE NUISANCE

His attention having been called frequently to the nuisance of soft coal smoke, Mayor C. J. Fisk, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, presented an ordinance drafted by Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh tending to abate the nuisance. The ordinance was sent to the city fathers that it might be referred to a proper committee for further consideration. President Tolles turned the measure over to the committee on public affairs and it will be taken up at once.

The ordinances provides that for violations of the ordinance whereby the emission of dense smoke is permitted from factories or plants of any kind in the city, a penalty of $100 or sixty days imprisonment or both may be imposed.

The Board of Health, prompted by numerous complaints, is behind the proposed ordinance and is using every effort to have it adopted.

Brown Changed His Mind.

Miss Frances Probasco and Wilbur Brown, whom she had arraigned in the city court yesterday on a serious charge, were married at police headquarters last night. The ceremony was performed by Judge Runyon and was officially witnessed by Miss Tillie White and Horace Gorman Starkweather. Brown had previously refused to marry the girl and was held in $200 bail to provide for her support. Failure to secure a bondsman led him to change his mind. The parties are colored.

Hope Boys' Club Anniversary.

The Hope chapel Boys' Club will observe its fourth anniversary by giving a reception in the Sunday-school rooms Friday night. The entertainment committee of the club has prepared a suitable program of music and addresses.

SCHOOL MEETING TONIGHT

Several Candidates to Take Place of Rev. J. O. McKelvey on Borough Board.

THREE ARE TO BE RE-ELECTED.

E. A. Lowe, J. H. Case and A. B. Lane to Continue in Office—The Budget to Be Deferred.

With the expiration of his term as member of the North Plainfield Board of Education, Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election to the Board. He is vice president of the Board and during his term of office has been especially active for the welfare of the schools. Among the possible candidates named for his successor are T. E. Currin, Jr., Herman Schwed, Murray Butler.

At the annual meeting of the Board to be held at the Somerset Street School tonight, four members will be chosen for the Board. Aside from Rev. Mr. McKelvey, the members whose terms expire are E. A. Lowe, Allen B. Laing and J. Herbert Case. It is understood that these three will be candidates for re-election. Mr. Case was appointed by the Board to fill out the unexpired term of Samuel Townsend, who resigned because of his duties as Mayor.

No action will be taken tonight on the school budget for the coming year. The various committees and the Board as a whole have decided upon the amounts needed, but owing to the uncertainty of the amount of the State school tax, no definite action can yet be taken. Several bills now before the Legislature may change the amount of this tax, and the Board is holding off until the legislation has been decided, when a special meeting of the School Board will be held to vote on the budget. Because of the legislation now under way, the Board has as yet been unable to determine the amount of the local tax, which is usually submitted to the voters at this annual meeting. The Board of Education has protested against any change in the State school tax laws, by letter and also by personal representative sent to State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Assemblyman W. W. Smalley.

DESERTED BY HUSBAND, SHE WANTS A DIVORCE

Mrs. Rachel Johnson Bennett, who resides with her mother, Mrs. Amy Johnson, of Watchung avenue, has filed a bill in the Court of Chancery asking that her marriage to Howard E. Bennett be dissolved on the ground of desertion. The bill alleges that she was married on January 21, 1900, and that her husband deserted her in February, 1903 since which time she has heard nothing from him and knows nothing of his whereabouts. The bill also asks that she may have the custody of her child, a boy.

Counsellor J. Henry Crane, of Park avenue, is acting as Mrs. Bennett's solocitor. It is said that Bennett at the present time is a marine on board one of the cruisers attached to Admiral Evans' fleet.

Will Be a Musical Treat.

A musical treat will be given those who attend the concert to be given at the First Presbyterian church, Thursday night, March 26, at 8:30 o'clock. Joseph McIntyre will be the pianist, Sigmund Culp, violinist, while Miss Anna Lucretia Case, soprano soloist of the church, will sing. The program will be of exceptional merit and the artists are so well known that an enjoyable time is assured.

G. A. R. City Halls.

Assemblyman Rudolph A. Braun, of Essex, will introduce a bill in the House providing that it shall be lawful for the governing bodies of municipalities of the State to set aside a room in the City Hall or other suitable public building for the meeting place of posts of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Governor's Special Message.

The Governor stirred up both branches of the Legislature last night at Trenton with a message on the commission primary bill introduced simultaneously in both houses, and on which there will be a hearing in the House today. The message demands primary reform.

Grover Cleveland 71 Years Old.

Grover Cleveland, twice president of these United States and the grand old man of Democracy, will celebrate his seventy-first birthday tomorrow. It was he, and not William H. Taft, who said "I believe that the office should seek the man, and not the man the office."

TALK ON MODERN VENICE

F. Hopkinson Smith Gives Concluding Address Before Monday Afternoon Club.

THE CITY OF FASCINATION.

Lecturer Depicts the Wonderous, Charming and Beautiful Italian Mecca of the Artistic.

A fitting final to the season's study of Venice by the Monday Afternoon Club was the lecture on "Modern Venice" by F. Hopkinson Smith given yesterday afternoon at the Casino. A packed house greeted the popular lecturer, of whom it was said "he is the one above all others who knows Venice best." Mr. Smith prefaced his lecture with the statement that when he visited Venice last September, he called it a silver jubilee, for he had spent twenty-five consecutive Septembers in that wonderful city. The first impression of Venice on the traveler, Mr. Smith said, was not the Venice of his childhood's dreams, but a Venice, softer, more quiet and restful, more glorious too and absorbing.

The fall of the Campanile was referred to by the lecturer as a calamity that palayzed and dazed the citizens of the city, as he saw them on his arrival there eight days after its fall. The noble structure, Mr. Smith said, was in process of restoration and eight feet of it is now in the air. He predicted its completion in less than two years with the famous bell in its place, and hoped he would live to see its restoration.

The beautiful church of St. Mark's, said to be the despair of architects, the palace of the Doges, the three famous columns and the wonderful square of St. Mark's were among the landmarks described by Mr. Smith in a series of vivid word paintings, historical suggestions reminding the traveller that the Venice of today is the Venice of a glorious past.

Mr. Smith's description of Luigi, a beggar and a tramp, was very amusing. He dubbed him a royal pauper, a magnificent condensation of bone and sinew, a prince of good fellows, who never did a stroke of work and lived the life of Adam before the fall, but who, in his simplicity and freedom from care he considered the one supremely happy being on the earth. The Regatta, as described by Mr. Smith, was another vivid word picture of contesting gondoliers, where the cheers for the victor were mingled with pity for the defeated gondolier.

In conclusion Mr. Smith said that while no spoken word of his could give the beauty of Venice and no brush could paint it, he had wished to accentuate the charm of a city where it is a joy to live even for a day and which should be a mecca for his artistic countrymen.

EAST END FIRE HOUSE "NOT YET BUT SOON"

Progress was reported by Chairman Hibbard, of the Councilmanic fire committee, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, in reference to the question of establishing a fire house in the East End of the city. The committee made it known that a desirable site for the house is now the important thing and thus far it had been unable to decide on one. Several have been offered, but they do not appear to be just what the committee desires, especially as to location.

It is expected to locate the building in the vicinity of Leland avenue and Berckman street, from which point the entire Netherwood section of the city could be quickly reached in case of fire. The lot should be at least sixty feet in width and 125 feet deep. It is his intention to make a report on the matter at the next meeting on April 6.

Emphasis as to the importance of giving greater fire protection in the East End was given by Mr. Gloak and he said he hoped it would not be necessary to have another big fire to hasten the improvement along.

Frank Anderson Seriously Ill.

Mrs. Jacob Geier, of Madison avenue, left Sunday for Saranac Lake, N. Y., in response to a telegram informing her of the serious illness of her brother, Frank Anderson, of this city. Mr. Anderson has been in the Adirondacks undergoing treatment since last summer but his condition has steadily been growing worse during the past few weeks.

Plants a Bushel of Potatoes.

Randolph Marsh, of Plainfield avenue, the early gardener, planted a bushel of potatoes today, which has been his custom for many years to plant on St. Patrick's Day. Mr. Marsh says that the ground is full of potato bugs.

WANTS HER $9,000 BACK

Mrs. Cecile Sampter Invokes the Aid of Chancery to Recover Money Loaned.

PROMOTED TOBACCO CONCERN.

Thomas Allen, the Defendant, Transferred Her Security, She Alleges—Woman Claims It Was Fraud.

Having lost the sum of $9,000 in a business deal Mrs. Cecile Sampter, of this city, is now taking legal steps to recover that amount from Thomas Allen, of Metuchen, whom she claims was responsible for the loss. Mrs. Sampter is represented by Nugent and David, of Elizabeth.

It appears that Thomas Allen was engaged in the manufacture of snuffs and tobaccos at Rahway. He got into financial difficulties and desired to get additional capital for the conduct of his business. He requested Mrs. Sampter to advance the sum of $9,000 for the purpose of continuing the business and securing its incorporation. She agreed to advance the money provided she was properly secured.

An agreement was finally reached which was satisfactory to the different parties concerned. The lease of the factory, its equipment, formulas, labels and stock belonging to Allen were valued at $9,000. Mrs. Sampter agreed to advance $9,000 for the conduct of the business, Allen giving her security for the same. The sum of $2,500 was to be paid upon the signing of the agreement for the incorporation and the current expenses and the balance of the $9,000 was to be paid in two months.

According to the agreement the new corporation was to be known as the Thomas Allen Red Mill Tobacco Company, and the capital stock was to be $30,000. This was to be divided into 300 shares of the par value of $100 each. Both parties to the agreement were to be equal holders of the capital stock, which was to be fully paid for by the $9,000 worth of stock, machinery, etc., owned by Allen, and the $9,000 cash furnished by Mrs. Sampter. Both were to surrender one share of stock to a person selected by each of them.

Allen agreed to give as security a promissory note for the sum of $9,000 to Mrs. Sampter, payable eighteen months after date without interest, the note to be indorsed by Thomas Allen, Jr. He further agreed to give a mortgage upon certain real estate in Metuchen in which he has a life interest. Allen further agreed to deposit with a third party all the stock which he owned in the new corporation as soon at is was incorporated together with the note and mortgage. If at the expiration of the eighteen months Allen was unable to pay the $9,000 to Mrs. Sampter the mortgage was to be recorded so that Mrs. Sampter could foreclose and recover the money invested.

At the end of the eighteen months Allen was unable to pay. A conference was called of the parties concerned to see what could be done. Allen did not appear. Later it was found that he had transferred the property which he had guaranteed as security to Mrs. Sampter to George Fullerton, of Perth Amboy, and that Fullerton had transferred it back to Mrs. Allen. After the latter transfer Mrs. Allen pretended to mortgage the property in order to prevent Mrs. Sampter from foreclosing.

Mrs. Sampter claims that no money was passed at these transfers and that the property still really belongs to Allen, who has sought to defraud her by this ruse. Through her lawyers, Nugent and David, she now petitions the Court of Chancery to have the property declared in Allen's name so that she may recover the money loaned for which the property was security.

The original agreement was made March 11, 1907.

Miss Isabelle Crawford to Speak.

Miss Isabelle Crawford, who is to speak twice tomorrow at the First Baptist church, in the afternoon before the women, and in the evening at the regular prayer-meeting, has been a missionary for fourteen years among the Kiowa Indians of Saddle Mountain, Oklahoma, where she has had great success. She is said to have a wonderful charm as a speaker and has impressed thousands with her remarkable story since coming East. The women of the other churches of the city and borough have been invited to attend the meeting.

Mount Zion A. M. E. Fair.

Beginning tonight and continuing Wednesday and Thursday nights, the congregation of Mount Zion A. M. E. church will conduct a fair in the Sunday-school rooms. The opening will be marked by a concert by Richard Randolph's united singing club. The fair this evening will be in charge of Company A, of the church, which is captained by Edward B. Maynard.

WANTS NO CURB CROWDS

Councilman Suydam Introduces Resolution to Stop "Loitering" on Streets.

PASSED WITHOUT COMMENT.

Ordinance Regarded as Ill-timed in View of the Present Large Number of Men Out of Employment.

Councilman H. B. Suydam stands in the limelight today as having been the introducer at last night's adjourned Council meeting of a resolution calling upon the police department to exercise a more strict enforcement of the "loitering" clause in the city ordinances but just what prompted its framing up or what particular trouble Mr. Suydam had in mind when he did it is said to be a matter of speculation. The resolution went through without comment either one way or the other and since it has been passed the bluecoats will have their hands full obeying its provision.

A perusal of the councilman's clause necessarily includes groups of old and young men who, since the business depression began, have been in the habit of standing on the street curbs during the day. If they are to be construed as "loiterers" it will in all probability lead to a lot of misunderstandings as a man temporarily out of employment it was said today naturally resents the imputation that he is "loafing" when he remains on the street in preference to staying at home or making a saloon his hangout. It is considered by many citizens who were made aware of the Council's action that the passing of such a measure at this time is somewhat out of place. There are more men out of work in the city today than there has been in years before and to say they must keep off the streets would be inferred as interfering with their rights as citizens.

The police have always been bothered, just the same as departments in every city, by young rowdies out out-and-out loafers congregating in certain favored places, but these have always been taken care of in the regular way. When the all too-plentiful hangers-on and panhandlers are caught they are locked up and the youths who congest certain corners are moved when encountered. This is a part of the police department's daily routine and in view of the conditions as stated the introduction of the Suydam resolution has led to no small amount of adverse criticism.

SELECT CHAPERONES FOR HOSPITAL KIRMESS DANCES.

Those who have undertaken the details for the various dances to be given at the kirmess for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, have decided on all the dances and all but one chaperone. Miss E. S. Florance, of Elizabeth, who is to take charge of the affair, will meet a number of women at the Casino tomorrow morning to further the plans.

These will be the chaperones and dances:

Mrs. H. M. Stockton, paper dolls, sixteen girls; Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, steeplechase, ten boys and ten girls; Miss May Rodman, rainbow, twenty or forty girls; Mrs. Jabez Gilbert, Russian, eight boys and eight girls; Father Bogan, rustic, boys and girls, any number; Mrs. H. W. Marshall, Dutch, eight boys and eight girls; Mrs. George A. Beaton, French dolls, eight girls; Miss Florence G. Hawkins, harlequin, ten boys and ten girls; Mrs. H. G. Runkle, white hussars, eight girls and eight boys; Mrs. H. L. Hall, New Year's dance, twelve girls; Mrs. E. S. Hooley, sailor's dance, sixteen boys and girls; Mrs. J. M. Whiton, rose, nine small girls; Mrs. William Newcorn, Swiss, twelve or sixteen boys and girls; Mrs. Walter McGee, Tarantella, eight girls and eight boys; Mrs. L. W. Serrell, pantomime. The jumping jack dance will be given by twelve or sixteen boys and girls, but the chaperone has not yet been chosen.

After the conference tomorrow the work of selecting those who are to take part in the dances will begin. No difficulty in this respect is anticipated as a number of applications have already been received.

Bridge Work to Be Resumed.

The New Jersey Central on Monday will resume the work of rebuilding bridges in this city. After installing new and improved structures in the East End of the city, operations ceased last fall, and Monday morning work will be started at Madison avenue with a large gang of men and the remaining old bridges will be replaced with new ones as rapidly as possible.

Mrs. Ann Eliza Montross.

Mrs. Ann Eliza Montross, aged seventy-five years, died yesterday at the home of her son, Samuel Montross, of East Third street. The funeral will be held at the residence Thursday morning at 11 o'clock.

NOTICE!

Mrs. Harry Stradling, of Trenton, is being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Stradling, of Bound Brook.

Rev. Dr. Joseph B. Clark, of New York, occupied the pulpit of the Congregational church of Bound Brook, Sunday.

Rev. Dr. J. H. Orbison, of Lahore, India, preached in the Presbyterian church of Bound Brook Sunday night.

J. H. V. Bache is confined to his home in Beachwood avenue, Beachwood Heights, by rheumatism.

Walter Gledhill has moved his family from Oakland, Me., to East Second street, Bound Brook.

NORTH BRANCH.

Word has been received at Martinsville of the death of Rev. Daniel H. Drake, sixty-eight years old, which occurred a few days ago at his home at Delavan, Del. He was formerly pastor of the Methodist church at Mt. Horeb. He was a native of this county and in 1874 he became a missionary in India, remaining there until 1892.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Missionary Society connected with the Reformed church in North Branch was held Sunday night. Rev. Charles E. Corwin, the pastor, made a special address.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bartle, of Plainfield, have returned home, after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Bartle, at Martinsville.

Miss Ella Davis, of Martinsville, is home from a visit to relatives in Newark, New Vernon and Liberty Corner.

George Anderson, of Newark, was a guest yesterday of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Anderson, at Neshanic.

Miss Eleanor Van Ness, of North Branch, was a guest, Saturday, of friends in Somerville.

WESTFIELD.

A few non-union lathers came to Westfield yesterday morning for work, and several of them found employment on houses being constructed by non-union labor. Several houses, ready for the lathers, are being held up until the difficulty is adjusted. There is no change in the situation. The lathers will not accept $2.25 per 1,000, holding out for the old rate of $2.75, and the bosses will not offer more than $2.25.

Work has been stopped on the building of the Westfield Ice and Cold Storage Company, owing to a difference between the contractor and the company. It is expected that the matter will be adjusted this week and the work resumed.

The high wind of Sunday afternoon, following the thunder shower, blew down several trees on South avenue, Westfield, and also blew limbs off trees, breaking the electric light wires and crippling the light service.

SOMERVILLE.

Rev. William T. Chamberlain, of New Brunswick, occupied the pulpit of the First Reformed church Sunday. Rev. Dr. Crammer, the jastor, preached in Rutgers College chapel.

Dr. R. V. D. Totten and family, of Morristown, are guests of Mrs. Totten's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Klots, on West High street.

The annual school meeting will be held at the school building this evening. Three new members are to be elected.

Joseph Thompson, of Summit, spent yesterday with his brother, Lewis A. Thompson, on West Cliff street.

Another Sewing Machine Club

Two More Carloads of "Elbecos"

Encouraged by the wonderful success attending our first "Elbeco" sewing machine club we have just closed a deal with the maker for two more carloads of this famous machine, and in consequence thereof shall inaugurate Tuesday another great club offer based upon exactly the same conditions as our previous one, in which we offered at an absolute saving of from $22.50 to $47.50 one of the best and most popularly known sewing machines before the American public today.

Our Club Plan

The reason this club plan of ours met with such tremendous success last Spring is because it is in a measure unique—quite unlike anything of its character that you have ever heard of before. Ours is probably one of the most interesting club purchase plans before the public today.

When you purchase a machine you simply pay us $2.00 as a guarantee of good faith. We then send the machine to your home, and the balance $20.50 is payable in weekly amonnts of $1.00 :-: :-: :-: :-:

There are no hidden provisions in our club offer—no "strings" of any kind are attached. It is liberal, generous, over-and-above-board. No interest is charged—no "extras" are exacted from you. The moment we accept your original payment of $2.00 the machine is yours to sew with and enjoy—to be proud of and to tell your neighbors about. Nearly a thousand persons have already availed themselves of this offer—if you need a machine, investigate at once.....

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

Several persons were baptized in the Delaware river off the North Cramer Hill shore, East Camden, Sunday.

Mayor Pierre Garven, of Bayonne, and the council will review the St. Patrick's Day parade in that city today from the city hall.

There is an epidemic of measles in Gloucester county. Harly a family in Woodbury has escaped, and the Board of Health has ordered that the physician strictly enforce the health code.

By the explosion of an oil stove James E. Werts, thirty-three years old, of 1238 South Ninth street, Camden, was burned about the face and hands yesterday, but not seriously. He was attended at Cooper Hospital.

Falling from the tank of an engine in the Reading Railway yard in Camden, yesterday, John Hebler, fifty-one years old, of 926 South Fourth street, sustained cantusions of the chest and face. He was taken to Cooper Hospital.

Work on the extension of the Fast Shore Line, from the terminus in Ocean City to the Boardwalk, down Eighth street, has begun, and it is expected by Easter Saturday passengers will be carried from the Atlantic City Boardwalk to the one in Ocean City.

The Pavonia Yacht Club of Bayonne celebrated the completion of extensive alterations to the clubhouse Sunday by giving a house warming. Commodore William E. Thorne presided, and there were delegations present from numerous yacht and boat clubs.

The Hibernians of Passaic county will have no parade in Paterson today as they have had during many former years. At a recent meeting of the united divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians it was decided to omit the demonstration on St. Patrick's Day this year.

Mrs. Mary Touhy, wife of James Touhy, eighty-one years old, of Pitman, died Saturday night, after a brief illness. Mr. Touhy is lying at death's door in an adjoining room and as yet has not been told of his wife's death, as it is feared by members of the family that he could not survive the shock.

The congregation of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Bayonne has invited the pastor, Rev. F. S. Simmons, to remain another year. A committee composed of G. H. Gould, A. D. Woodruff and C. M. Bouton has been appointed to protest to the conference next month, if necessary, against his removal.

Claiming to have swallowed a small amount of carbolic acid by mistake last Saturday night Mary Brown, a servant, residing at 60 Broadway, Paterson, was attended by the surgeon on St. Joseph's Hospital ambulance. The girl was not in a serious condition and refused to go to the hospital. She was left in the care of attendants in the house.

On account of most of the shore property having been absorbed by ship builders, it was expected that the Pea Shore Fishery, in East Camden, probably the oldest in New Jersey, would be abandoned this season, but it was said yesterday that Captain Faunce, of Kensington, would again be in charge of the big seine this season, operating farther up the North Cramer Hill shore.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church will give a Dutch supper in Vincent chapel Friday night, and in addition there will be a fine program and other entertainment.

The annual meeting of the Boys' Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held in the church parlors Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Reports of the year's work will be made and officers elected. Miss Scribner will tell of Hausaland, Africa.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet in the church parlors Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock for sewing. All available funds are needed to meet the annual pledges of the society and the report must be completed by March 20.

Life at the Berkshire Industrial Farm will be pictured and talked about at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tonight, when two officers from the institution will display a number of stereopticon views and give short talks. The meeting will be under the auspices of the Men's Club and all men interested are invited.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

The report that the Y. M. C. A. team may withdraw from the Inter-City Amateur League at the meeting to be held tonight has strengthened the hope among the local fans that Plainfield may be represented in the new league comprising Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington. Clinton Avenue is ready to put its team in the organization and the players believe that it will furnish the real kind of sport for the summer.

Manager Ernest Dorflinger, of the Clinton avenues, when seen yesterday expressed himself as being well pleased with the proposition and said that he was ready to join the new league. He feels sure that the rivalry between such teams would attract large crowds and revive great interest in the national game.

There was also a report today that the Jr. O. U. A. M. team intends to withdraw from the league tonight. If this is true it would leave but Clinton Avenue and Scotch Plains in the organization and under such conditions it would be impossible to continue.

If the confidently expressed views of the managers of the various major league baseball teams are worth anything the followers of the sport can count on a close, pretty race in both the American and National leagues this year. The leading teams in the American League have been remarkably well matched for two seasons, and there are five claimants for the championship this year, or at least the managers of five of the eight teams—Harry Lajoie, of Cleveland; Hughey Jennings, of Detroit; Fielder Jones, of Chicago; Connie Mack, of Philadelphia, and Clark Griffith, of New York—do not hesitate to express confidence in their teams winning the pennant. Jimmie McAleer, of St. Louis; Joe Cantillon, of Washingtons, and Jim McGuire, of Boston, are less optimistic, but McAleer and McGuire have declared their teams as first division clubs.

In the National League Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburg are laying claim to the title, and with good cause, perhaps, as it is almost a "sure thing" that the Cubs will not make a runaway race of it this season, as was the case in 1907. There is every reason for the local fans to count on one championship team at least, and two are not beyond the bounds of possibilities, although that would be almost too much good luck.

The Yankees have been strengthened and Griffith is counting on Fred Glade to bolster up his pitching staff, while Stahl and Hemphill may improve the batting average. Little was needed to make a pennant winning team and it looks as if the time had come for the American League championship to come East. McGraw took a desperate chance to build up the Giants and bring the National League title back to New York, and it is hoped that his sweeping changes will prove effective.

The formal opening of the season is only four weeks off, but the critics will hardly be able to pass a fair opinion until they have seen the men in action for six weeks or so. In the mean time hope runs high and the prophet who predicts a winning team for New York is not taking a desperate chance.

GOLF.

The efforts of the American committee toward a revision of the golf rules have not resulted in wasted energy, as is made apparent by a letter recently received by the United States Golf Association from N. H. Burn, chairman of the St. Andrews rules of golf committee. It will be remembered that the United States Golf Association committee sent its revised code to the other side several weeks ago. Since then golfers throughout this country have been anxiously waiting for some sort of news from abroad and will be interested in the following communication from Mr. Burn to W. Fellowes Morgan, secretary of the United States Golf Association:

"I have delayed answering your letter until receiving a copy of the rules and the very clear letter of explanation which accompanied them. I shall not attempt to answer that letter until the sub-committee has met. Meantime, however, I may say the work done by your association is in nearly all cases in complete accord with our views, and your rule for 'advice' is almost word for word the same as the one we propose. The very clear expression of your rules will doubtless be of assistance to our committee."

With regard to the reference to "advice," Rule 33 of the present code reads: "A player shall not ask advice from any one except his own caddie, his partner or his partner's caddie, nor shall he willingly be otherwise advised in any way whatever, under penalty of the loss of the hole." The new code under Rule 32 differs in the wording, "as to his play," as may be seen by the following:

"A player shall neither ask for nor willingly receive advice as to his play from any one except his own caddie, his partner or his partner's caddie. The penalty for a breach of this rule shall be the loss of the hole."

The Arsdale Golf Club, of East Orange, has purchased a new clubhouse. This building, since its erection less than two years ago, has been used as a dwelling, but with slight alternations can be converted into an excellent home for the golfers. The structure is in Munn avenue, almost directly in front of the old clubhouse.

Shower baths are to be installed in the new building, and the accommodations for women are to surpass anything previously attempted by this organization. The plan is to have Dave Honeyman, the professional, keep his shop in the old house, part of which will be used for the caddies.

Despite the fact that part of the course was soft and in no condition for golf, a large number of the members turned out yesterday. Work that was started on the two new holes last fall will be completed shortly, and then the nine-hole circuit will be the most difficult for its length to be found anywhere in this vicinity.

Clubs in the Metropolitan Golf Association have been reminded by the secretary that, according to the constitution, no club shall hold any tournament without first having a date assigned by the association. Several well known organizations which usually hold open and invitation tournaments are expected to be heard from shortly.

If there is any club desirous of holding the open championship of the Metropolitan Golf Association this year it should communicate without delay with Leighton Calkins, the secretary. The association is willing to contribute $250 toward the expenses.

—Mrs. Ellen Mullen, of West Fifth street, will move April 1 to her new home on Park avenue.

—Druggist E. F. Champlin, of Somerset street, will change his residence April 1 from Watchung avenue to 228 East Fifth street.

—Mrs. Margaret Carney, of Central avenue, has purchased the property on West Fifth street, formerly occupied by Walter Pound, and after extensive improvements are made, will occupy the house with her daughters.

Miss M. C. Trembath, of the North Plainfield Grammar School faculty, is detained at her home in the Babcock building with an attack of the mumps.

John Auten, formerly clerk at the Hotel Kensington, has taken a similar position at the Hotel Barlboro, Asbury Park, and will enter upon his new duties tomorrow.

FIGHT FOR SCHOOL FUNDS

Henry M. Maxson and Henry C. Krebs Attend Hearing at Trenton.

APPROVE KREBS' RESOLUTION.

Boroughite Takes Prominent Part In Discussion—Some Views On the Proposed Legislation.

Speaking in opposition to the bills now before the State Legislature for diverting the railroad money from the school treasuries, as provided in the original law, and using it to reduce the State school tax, Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of Plainfield public schools, and County Supervisor Henry C. Krebs, of North Plainfield, were at Trenton yesterday, when school representatives from county and city schools all over the State met in a committee room of the Assembly chamber to fight the legislation now under way. There were about twenty-five principals and superintendents, with members of Boards of Education from some of the larger cities present at the meeting. Upon a resolution presented by County Supervisor Krebs, for the Somerset County School Board Association, the representatives were urged to oppose all bills for the reduction of the State school tax, and the resolutions were passed unanimously.

Interviewed by a Daily Press reporter at the High School today, Dr. Maxson said that many friends of the schools have been deceived by the statement that the Avis Bill, lowering the rate of the State school tax, has been withdrawn. "It is true," he said, "that the original bill has been withdrawn, but there are now two bills in the Legislature to take its place. These are the Prince Bill (Assembly No. 265) and a new Avis Bill (Senate No. 213). The present Avis Bill is the better of the two measures, but it would be unfortunate for the schools if either of these bills were passed. It seems, however, the purpose of the party managers at Trenton to push through this legislation.

"There are all sorts of rumors as to the influence back of the movement," continued Dr. Maxson, "but nothing can be learned except that it does not come from the people of the State at large. If the bills are defeated, it will only be by the united action of each friend of the schools, in writing to the Assemblymen from his district, protesting against the passage of any bill that lowers the rate of the State school tax or the diversion of the railroad tax from the purpose provided when the law was passed. The present laws are all right, and they ought to be left undisturbed.

"I am urging my friends and citizens who look to see our public schools even more efficient to write to Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, Assemblyman John R. Muxon, of Elizabeth; Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, and Assemblyman A. F. Kirstein, of Rahway, urging them to oppose all measures for the reduction of the State school tax."

Supt. Maxson's Speech.

Dr. Maxson spoke at length against any measure for reducing the State school tax or diverting the railroad money from the school treasuries, at the meeting at Trenton yesterday. He said in part:

"No law ought to be passed unless there is positive need for it. There is no need for this law. The present law provides for the distribution of the income from the State school tax and from the railroad tax. If the money from these sources should be more than the schools need, it will result in the reduction of the local tax without any new law.

"At the time the Perkins bill was passed, another one was passed providing that the results of railroad taxation should go into the school treasury. This fact tended to increase very largely public sentiment behind the bill, and during all the litigation it has been the general belief that the money would be so used. The boards of education and school authorities have been planning accordingly for the enlargement and strengthening of the school work in their various districts. Now that the case has been won, to propose diversion of this money either directly or indirectly, by changing the State school tax is exercising bad faith toward the school authorities and the public generally.

"If the railroad money follows the course already provided by law, without changing the school tax, whatever surplus there is after meeting the needs of the schools will go to reduce taxation.

"If the proposed law results in reducing the local tax rate more than it would be reduced under the present laws, then it reduces the rate at the expense of the schools, which is very bad policy. If it does nat reduce the local tax more than it would be reduced under present laws, then it is not needed and it should certainly not be passed.

"It is said that the school tax of 2¾ mills raises nearly double what it did when it was first created. As far as it is true, it is an excellent feature of the law; the richer the State gets, the more money the boards have to improve the schools. While true of the State as a whole, this is not true of all districts in the State. But in all parts of the State, this fact is true; if it has brought to the schools more money than they needed, then it has resulted either in lowering the local school tax or in preventing it from being increased as the school expenses have increased to meet the necessities of growth. As a matter of fact, the schools of New Jersey have advanced very greatly in the last few years. By increasing salaries, they have been able to get more efficient teachers than they would otherwise have done. They have increased manual training work; the schools have been better equipped, and in various ways the work has been advanced. This has been made possible largely through the increased income from the State tax, which has given a larger income to the schools without the taxpayer feeling it appreciably.

"The State of New Jersey does not need a lower tax rate so much as it needs better schools, and any action that secures a lowering of the tax rate and as a result checks the growth or sets back the schools would be a distinct injury to the State. A change in the school tax rate or diversion of the railroad money would be an injury to education in this way: it would require an increase in the local school tax to sustain the schools on their present basis, and further increase to meet any proposed improvement of the schools by giving better equipment, by enlargement, by introduction of industrial work, agricultural teaching and other new lines, or by increasing salaries to meet the necessities of the times. Many school districts, in anticipation of the money which the present law promises them from the railroad taxation, have prepared for improvement of the schools in all these directions, not by any means with the purpose of using up all the money that comes from the railroads, but with the purpose of so using a part of it. Under the present law, the whole question whether it shall be so used rests with the Board of Estimate or the borough administration and is in control of the people that are concerned and they can be trusted to handle it right."

Mr. Krebs Opposed.

Presenting the petition urging the representatives to oppose the bills to reduce the State school tax, County Supervisor Krebs was also a speaker at yesterday's meeting. He said in part:

"The schools of the country districts will be especially effected if this legislation is successful. The apportionment of State money received by these district schools would make it possible to raise the teachers' salaries, and thus secure more efficient instructors. This will give the pupils a better chance for education than they have now, for it is hard to get good teachers at low salaries.

"The people all over the State are opposed to this legislation. It will mean an increase in the local school tax all over the State, and the effort being made to divert the railroad money from its original purpose should be bitterly contested by every tax payer. The legislation is a political move, and will burden the tax payers. The laws about State school money and the railroad tax are all right as they stand, and should not be contested."

Want Taxes Distributed.

In the House last night, Majority Leader Martin introduced a bill to enable Comptroller Henry J. West to distribute the taxes collected under the Perkins act of 1906. Some of the railroads haven't paid up and the Comptroller feels that he cannot pay out the amount so far collected without legislative authorization.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of Hape chapel will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the chapel. At this time the reports of the various officers will be read and officers for the coming year will be elected.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

Concerning the Retirement of Wm. T. Rae & Co., and of the Continuance of the Business under the Proprietorship of

C. M. SANFORD

(Formerly with Messrs. J. Wiss & Sons.)

After Fifty years of active business life, the firm of Wm. T. Rae & Co. has retired.

With its passing into history goes a reputation for sterling integrity, reliability and honesty such as few concerns can boast of, and which it will be my earnest endeavor to maintain.

In announcing my advent into this business and continuing that of Messrs. Rae & Co., there are several facts which I wish to make public, namely:

(1) That it will ever be my purpose to live up to and not "on" the reputation which the house of Rae & Co. has established.

(2) That my stock of Diamonds and other Precious Stones, Gold Jewelry and Clocks will not only be as varied and comprehensive as that of any other Newark store of this character, but absolutely dependable and moderately priced as well.

(3) That I shall offer an Optical Service second to none in the city. This department, while under my personal supervision and direction, will be in charge of a skilled Eye Sight Specialist —W. E. Small, Ref. D.

(4) That Watch and Jewelry Repairing shall constitute an important part of my business, and that all such work entrusted to me will be executed satisfactorily and promptly by experts whose qualifications are the best.

To serve you faithfully and well and merit your good-will and patronage is my desire.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The annual school meetings of the Dunellen and New Market schools will be held in the school buildings tonight for the purpose of electing members of the Board of Education of borough and township. It is customary at this meeting to also vote upon the budget for the coming year at this time, and the figures have already been prepared and submitted by the various committees. But owing to the legislation now under way at Trenton for a reduction of the State school tax and the effort being made to divert the Perkins railroad tax money for its equalization, no action will be taken on the budgets tonight, but they will come up for consideration at a special meeting later on, after laws have been made.

Three members of borough and township boards are to be chosen at the meetings tonight. At Dunellen, the terms of Theodore W. Day, clerk of the board; Wilson S. Frederick; and Frank R. Wynkoop expire, and in the township the term of President Education, expires this year, with Abram G. Nelson, of the Board of that of William Beller, of New Market, and John Geary, of South Plainfield.

The local postoffice was over-run with St. Patrick's Day postal cards and souvenirs today, and many of the local residents observed the day by "the wearin' of the green." Social events appropriate to the day will be held tonight and several informal gatherings have been planned. Under the auspices of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, there will be a St. Patrick's Day "box social" held in the lecture room of the church tonight. A special program has been arranged by the entertainment committee of the society.

Under the auspices of the Presbyterian church, a vocal quartet from Hampton Institute, Virginia, will present an entertainment at the church. Hampton Institute is one of the largest school for colored people and Indians in the country, and is located at Hampton Roads, Virginia.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The effect of the hard times is beginning to be felt by the local factories. The Seeley Mill Company are talking of cutting down the working time of its men to five days a week. Work at the fur mill is also reported very slack and unless there is a change for the better soon the management will no doubt cut down the force or reduce the working hours.

The local ball team may be strengthened this season by the addition of "Willie" Deegan on its pitching staff. "Willie" has decided to quit professional baseball for a time at least and settle down to the life of a boniface.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cooper, of Westfield, were the guests over Sunday of Mrs. Cooper's father, Loftus Hollingsworth.

David R. Clark, of Newark, has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Clark, of Prospect avenue.

The annual school meeting will be held tonight in the assembly room of the school.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith has returned from a visit with friends in Philadelphia.

John Haskard, of Grant avenue, was the guest of friends in town last night.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Independent Order of Foresters held its monthly meeting in Washington Hall Monday night. Several applications for membership were received and every effort is being made to reach the hundredth member mark.

The Manning house on Plainfield avenue, which has been dark for the past few months, was brilliant with electric lights last night. Rufus Delafield and family, of Plainfield, have taken possession.

H. J. Manning will take charge of the prayer-meeting at the Baptist church this evening. The pastor will speak on the Forty-eighty Psalm.

The Brookside house is being put in order, pending the early return of Judge W. E. Smith and family.

Mrs. Melvin Teeple has been entertaining her nephews, Charles and John Foster, of Perth Amboy.

Mrs. John McGuire is confined to her house by a severe illness.

Mrs. Susan Manning is having her house renovated.

Y. W. C. A. Children's Party.

Under the auspices of the physical department of the Y. W. C. A., a children's party will be held at the association Thursday night. A program of games and music has been arranged and the members will attend in juvenile costumes.

Alexander Irvine to Speak.

Alexander Irvine, who spoke at the supper of the Men's Club of Warren chapel, Monday night, will address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. His topic will be "Christ, the Champion of the Working Man."

John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, will meet tonight, when business of importance will be discussed.

PRESBYTERIANS LOSE 1st GAME, NOW TIED WITH BAPTISTS.

The First Presbyterian church basketball team lost its first game in the Sunday-school Athletic League at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, last night, when the First Baptist five triumphed over them by a score of 40-21. The First Baptists have been playing fast basketball in the league, and are now tied with the Presbyterians for first honors. The Seventh-Day Baptist five trimmed the Hope chapel team, 44-28, and these two teams are now tied in the league.

A feature of last night's game between the leading teams was the work of Jerry Manning, of the First Baptist five. He scored twenty-four points, making eleven baskets from the floor. Caldwell did the best work for the Presbyterian five, scoring six baskets. The score at the end of the first half was 23-13 in favor of the Baptists.

The game between the Seventh-Day Baptists and the Hope chapel five was close in the first half. When the whistle blew, the score was 18-11 in favor of the Seventh-Days, and the fives seemed about evenly matched. The Hope five were swamped in the second period, when their opponents rolled up twenty-six points, and clinched the victory, 44-28. Clark and Spicer excelled in the shooting for the Seventh-Days, the former making ten baskets and the latter seven. Snyder, for Hope, scored fifteen points for his team, six from baskets.

Perodicals.

A well-known actor says that while his company was touring the south not long ago he went into one of the "clubs" in a South Carolina town, where the dispensary system is in vogue.

"What have you in the shape of periodicals?" the player asked of the dusky attendant.

"Corn liquor, sah," promptly answered the attendant, "beer, and wine, but mostly corn liquor, sah."—Harper's Weekly.

HERE'S ANOTHER VROOM WITH CLAIMS TO FAME

Actors come and actors go, new plays appear and disappear, with startling rapidity. The press agent is ever with us, booming his player star and his mighty play. We read with hope and go often to the theatre to find but mediocrity. But here is the announcement of the coming of an actor and a play new to our city that bears the stamp of genuine merit and the proof of excellence from both the London and New York papers, and we give space to it with pleasure.

The name of Vroom is no stranger in New Jersey. For several generations the family have been prominent in the law and in the politics of the State and National governments. Here is a member of the famous family who has won fame as an actor and as a playwright of the first rank, both in our own country and in London as well.

For several years a member of the great Booth-Barrett and Booth-Modjeska organizations, eighteen years ago young Edward Vroom received his early training in the art of the stage, that is denied to young actors of the present day. Those great masters have passed away, and their places have not been filled. After the disbanding of those famous companies with the death of Mr. Barrett and the retirement of Mr. Booth, young Vroom entered the lists as a producing actor-manager, and for three seasons toured the country with his own company. His last production here was Francois Coppee's "For The Crown" at Wallack's theatre in New York. That was ten years ago, and since that time Mr. Vroom has been in London. His first play, "Marsac of Gascony," was produced at Drury Lane theatre, London, with marked success, with the young author in the title role, and he has since produced several plays from his own pen in the English capital and in the provinces.

Two months ago Mr. Vroom returned to America with his successful plays and a yearning to present them in his mother country. A New York theatre was secured, where at Easter Mr. Vroom will first offer "The Luck of MacGregor."

Prior to the New York date of opening, Mr. Vroom, expressing a desire to make him home-coming appearance first in the home state of the Vroom family,—has been secured by the various managers at New Brunswick, Perth Amboy, Plainfield, Trenton, and Atlantic City for a single performance in each place. He has engaged a cast of excellent actors, and will bring with him his entire New York organization and production, appearing at the New Plainfield theatre, Tuesday night, March 24.

When those who have not seen Lyman H. Howe's moving pictures are told that it is simply impossible to realize its merits without seeing it—that he actually presents what persons of intelligence really and thoroughly enjoy—and that it is far superior to any attraction of its kind, or any kind—they cannot realize the force and truth of it until they see it. Comparisons are "odorous" as Mrs. Malaprop used to say, but when this is claimed for Mr. Howe's attraction, only half is said. This applies especially to his new program to be seen at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night. It abounds in amusement, instruction, humor, history and travel. Mere mention of the titles substantiates this. Among the features of life abroad may be mentioned, Life In Holland, Amongst the Savage Zulus, Hunting the Polar Bear, Life On Board a French Battleship, Quarrying Stones in France, etc. Another series reveals the habitats of life of wild birds. Still another portrays groups of wild animals at close range. A thrilling ride in an automobile speeding over curves and gradients at the rate of 80 miles an hour gives the spectators the real sensation of actually participating in the race. These features combined with those that are extremely amusing, comprise a program which sets a new standard in the art and finesse of animated photography.

The first production of "Just Out of College," the comedy from the pen of George Ade, the famous author of the "College Widow," will be given at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night. The play is filled with people who are met every day waiting for the elevator in any of the big office buildings, and Mr. Ade endows almost all of them with the biting wit which in real life only appertains to three or four in every such group. The result is a riot of brilliant lines which are funny and are something more; they are characteristic of the people who speak them and of the wild scramble and rush of American life. Every auditor who goes to business recognizes his or her office mates and street car acquaintances across the footlights. That being so it is inevitable that the string of episodes should be received with shouts of laughter. The piece centers about one of those smooth and easy young Americans who have the nerve to play poker or the ticker with his last dollar. In his latest work Mr. Ade brings out the humorous side of the adventures of a young college graduates, who must make his own living, handicapped with a lady love and a lack of funds. He persuades the father of the young lady to lend him $20,000 to invest. The father is a dealer in pickles. The college boy starts in to manufacture pickles on his own hook and with the aid of a business woman succeeds in forcing the old man to buy him out, thus showing his ability and winning the daughter's hand. The satire is complicated and filled with humorous situations that are appreciated by everyone.

The Only One.

Henry VIII. of England, being at one time at variance with Francis I. of France, decided to send an ambassador and to charge him with a very fierce and menacing message to this prince. He chose for this office an English bishop in whom he had great confidence and whom he believed would be the most proper person to carry out his design. His prelate, being informed of the nature of his mission and fearing for his life should he treat with Francis in the haughty manner his master desired, represented to the king the danger to which he was exposing him and begged not to be sent on this mission.

"Oh, never fear," said Henry. "If the king of France should kill you, I will have the head of every Frenchman I find in my kingdom."

"I believe you, sire," replied the bishop, "but permit me to assure you that of all the heads you will cut off there is not one of them that will fit on my body as well as my own!"

Needs of Covers When Asleep.

"The reason it is necessary to be well covered while sleeping," said a physician in giving some advice to a patient, "is that when the body lies down it is the intention of nature that it should rest, and the heart especially should be relieved of its regular work temporarily. That organ makes ten strokes a minute less than when the body is in an upright posture. This means 600 strokes in sixty minutes. Therefore in the eight hours that a man usually spends in tkaing his night's rest the heart is saved nearly 5,000 strokes. As it pumps six ounces of blood with each stroke, it lifts 30,000 ounces less of blood in the night's session than it would during the day when a man is usually in an upright position. Now, that body is dependent for its warmth on the vigor of the circulation, and as the blood flows so much more slowly through the veins when one is lying down the warmth lost in the reduced circulation must be supplied by extra covering."

When Spectacles Were New.

In the days when spectacles were introduced the world was not all wise. Glasses became so fashionable that people did not wait until necessity compelled them to adopt the new custom. Whether their eyesight was bad or good, those who would be stylish wore spectacles. In Spain they formed part of the costume of every well dressed person. The object of the wearer in putting on glasses was to increase the gravity of his appearance and render himself more directly imposing. The glasses of spectacles were proportioned in size not to the eyes, but to the rank of the wearer, those worn by the Spanish nobles being as large as one's hand. The Marquis of Astorga, viceroy of Naples, after having had his bust sculptured in marble particularly enjoined the artist not to forget his beautiful spectacles.

Buying Books.

A library is something more than a collection of books. An imposing array of sumptuous and untouched volumes does not make one. Your books should express your own individuality, says a writer in the Delineator. Do not let any one persuade you to buy a book you know is not your kind of book. Do not be lured into buying a handsome library edition of some author that you do want if the library edition is heavy and uncomfortable to hold and your own preference is a comfortable pocket edition with flexiable covers. Aand, above all, if you are building up a home library to which the whole family is to have free access do not choose bindings of such delicate colors of expensive texture as to destroy all the comforts of reading.

When Man Ceases to Be Useful.

The moment a man reaches the stage where he thinks more of his dinner than he does of his study, more of his coat than he does of his character, more of his standing in "society" than he does of doing his plain duty as a man and citizen—that moment he ceases to be a factor in the preservation of the State.—Rev. T. B. Gregory.

Two Views.

"I suppose," said the young statesman, "that the first thing I want to do is to learn to say exactly what I mean."

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "and after that you may find it necessary to say exactly what you don't mean."—Washington Star.

A Sharp Thrust.

"You're trying very hard to be a man, it seems," said the disgusted husband the other day to his wife.

"Well," she replied coldly, "don't you think we need one in the family?"—New York Tribune.

To Keep from Breaking.

"My hero has a strong face," remarked the author.

"He needs it," replied the critic. "I notice his face falls every time he meets the heroine!"

PROPOSALS FOR SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Board of Education of the City of Plainfield, N. J., at a meeting held March 2, 1908, notice is hereby given that the Board of Education will meet on Monday, evening, April 6, 1908, at 7:45, at the Board room in the High School building, corner Ninth street and Arlington avenue, in the City of Plainfield, at which time and place said Board of Education will receive sealed proposals for furnishing school supplies for the ensuing school year, commencing July 1, 1908, a list of which can be obtained at the office of the Board. All proposals to be endorsed, "Proposals for School Supplies" and addressed to the Secretary of the Board.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals, the Secretary will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding, or their agents, provided such parties or their agents choose to be then and there present, and also to make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Board. No bids will be received previous to the hour designated, and none will be received thereafter. The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

For the Board of Education.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

E. B. Maynard, the North avenue barber, invites a share of your patronage, believing that his work will prove entirely satisfactory.

You may contemplate moving and if so consult George F. Brown, of Somerset street. He may have just the kind of property you are looking for.

When you need coal place your order with V. W. Nash, Sr., of Watchung avenue. Full weight, well screened and prompt deliveries are strong arguments.

A Fine Opening for a Young Man.

"Yes," said Mrs. Malone to the old friend who was picking up the threads of family history, "my Bobby, he's travelling with a circus now."

"Pretty hard work, isn't it?" inquired the interested caller.

"Never a bit of it," returned the proud mother of Bobby. "He's living like a gentleman, he is—hand in his pockets, as ye might say—for it's a handsome salary he gets, and every blessed thing he has to do is to lay his head in the lion's mouth a matter of some two or three times a day or thereabout."—Youth's Companion.

His Waterloo.

Good Ink, but No Bread.

Sweynheym and Pannartz, the two Germans who were the first to print books in Rome, used paper and type of excellent quality. Their ink on pages printed more than 400 years ago can vie in blackness with the best of the present day. Yet with all their labors they often lacked bread. In a petition to the Pope they informed his holiness that their house was full of proof sheets, but that they had nothing to eat.—Argonaut.

"Of course, Mr. Sophmore, you are familiar with all the great plays," remarked Miss Kulcher. "Now, do you consider Goldsmith's as clever as Sheridan's?"

In Lengthy Terms.

In the suburbs of one of our great cities recently a new resident stopped in front of his neighbor's gate and inquired of the boy swinging thereon:

"Is your pa home, sonny?"

"No, sir," replied the lad. "He went up the road apiece."

"Gone afoot?"

"No: about a mile."—Judge's Library.

Queer Definitions.

Among the curious definitions given by pupils in a recent public examination were the following:

Reputation—Some one writes how good you are.

Condense—A kind of milk.

Millinery—Hats, caps and women.

Sympathy—To reason with any one.

He Couldn't Oblige.

Curate's Wife (given to nerves)—Hopplitt, would you mind seeing me as far as my house? The lane is so dark.

CHAPTER VI.

Lady Ellen Takes Flight.

"Now, will you tell me your plans?" began Strathgate as the three descended to the mall.

"Presently, presently," whispered Ellen. "We must get out of sight and sound of the house."

"Where shall we go?"

"The arbor is the nearest and safest place of concealment."

Strathgate led the way rapidly along the wall of the terrace and in a few moments the three fugitives gained the shelter of the arbor where they could talk without risk of being overheard.

"What next?" he said to Ellen, who had stopped overwhelmed at the thoughts brought back by the place where she had seen Lady Cecily in her husband's arms.

"We must have horses and a vehicle of some kind," she said.

"Would not a post chaise do?"

"There are three of us, my lord," answered Ellen.

"Does Mistress Deborah go with you then?" said Strathgate, much surprised.

"Certainly. Do you think I would leave her alone with the people yonder?"

"I see," returned the earl, who was very much annoyed and put out by the infliction of this third party in what he had fondly hoped would be a tete-a-tete flight.

There was no help for it, however. He trusted to fortune to assist him to dispose of Mistress Deborah later.

"Where shall we get this carriage?"

"In the stables, of course."

"But—the coachman and the grooms?"

"It happens," said Ellen, "that some of them are away for the night. I believe there are not more than three stable boys at home and the coachman. The boys are devoted to me. The coachman will have to be persuaded."

"And how will you persuade him?" queried Strathgate. "Bribe him?"

"That would hardly be possible," returned Ellen. "I shall hope that these"—she touched the pistols at her belt—"may influence him."

"Would you kill him?"

"That would scarcely be necessary. With your assistance we will bind and gag him. They are bound to discover our flight anyway, and all we can do is to prevent their giving any alarm until they are sought for in the morning which will give us a fair start."

"I see," returned Strathgate, "but would you not better let me undertake this part of the adventure? 'Tis scarcely woman's work."

"Yes, yes," urged Deborah. "Let him go alone."

"Not at all," returned Ellen, "forget if you please that I am a woman."

"That were impossible," murmured Strathgate gently.

"For I can use these weapons perhaps as well as a man," went on my lady calmly.

"How about the hounds?" queried Strathgate.

"Their kennels are far removed from the stables and I do not think they will give us trouble. Now, if we are to get away to-night, we must hasten. My lord, are you armed?"

"As yourself," returned Strathgate, drawing aside his cloak and showing sword and pistols.

"This way then," said Ellen, leading as if hers were the right unquestioned.

She was thoroughly familiar with the lay of the land and the location of the stables. The coachman, who was unmarried, slept in a house by himself. Entrance was easy since the door was not locked. Deborah stayed outside in the deep shadow of a little porch while Strathgate and Ellen entered the room. There was a low fire burning on the hearth which gave forth sufficient light to enable the two to discover the coachman sound asleep in his bed.

"Let me do the talking," said Strathgate. "He won't recognize you if you stay back here in the darkness."

"Very well," assented Ellen as the earl stepped over to the bed and roughly shook the coachman, who opened his eyes to find himself staring into the muzzle of a pistol.

"You know me, Higginbotham," began Strathgate.

"Yes, my lud," said the coachman, greatly surprised and endeavoring to rise.

Strathgate pressed him down in his bed.

"Lie still. I want to borrow a pair and a carriage from your master. I'm driving far to-night and I want a good pair. No, you are not to bother about hitching them up. I simply wished to tell you the facts so you won't make any trouble."

"But, my lud, why don't you ask Lord Carrington? I'm sure he'd give you anything you want."

"It's not necessary to go into my [illegible]

"This looks crooked to me, my lud," began the coachman, "and 'tis my duty to awaken his lordship."

He opened his mouth to cry out.

Strathgate shoved his pistol barrel closer to him, truculently remarking:

"If you make a sound, I'll blow out your brains. Now, do you understand? I don't intend to steal the horses. You'll find them well at some wayside inn 20 miles from here. Meanwhile, we will have to tie you up and gag you."

"Mercy, my lud," began the coachman.

"Now, we mean you no harm. All you have to do is to keep quiet. You'll be released in the morning."

"Very well, my lud," returned Higginbotham, to whom the shining weapon was a powerful persuader.

Straps and other bits of harness hung about the room. At a nod from Strathgate Ellen handed him several pieces of leat[illegible] and the coachman was soon buckled hard and fast, his hands behind his back, his feet tied together and a gag in his mouth. Ellen had kept in the background and she was certain she had not been recognized. She laid a guinea down on the man's table after he had been bound securely and followed Strathgate out of the room.

They found Deborah shivering with cold and terror in the shadow and greatly relieved at their safe arrival.

To enter the stable was easy. Three of the stable boys were there. They were devoted to Lady Ellen. She had to trust some one. She went boldly to their quarters, aroused them and told them she was going away. If anyone objected—she handled her weapon threateningly! If they behaved themselves, there was a guinea apiece for them on the table. They would have to submit to being tied and gagged, which indeed they were willing to do, for only thus could they escape their master's wrath when he found his wife, his friend and his horses gone.

The stable boys made no objection during the process and swore that if they were tightly bound so that there was no appearance of connivance on their part, no alarm should be given until the morning. Strathgate and Ellen trussed them up as they had done the coachman and then started for the horses.

"Which are the best pair for traveling, I wonder?" queried the earl as he, Ellen and Deborah surveyed the long row of stalls.

"I have heard my lord say that the bays were the most reliable horses he had."

"The bays it'll be, then," said Strathgate.

"And now I cannot help you," said Ellen.

"And now I need no help, madam," returned the earl.

He quickly selected the harness, led out the bays and in a few moments the two were attached to a light traveling carriage.

"Where now?" said Strathgate when all the preparations had been completed.

"We are going to Portsmouth, as I think I told you, my lord."

"Very good," said Strathgate. "I'll drive, I suppose?"

"If you will be so good."

"Get in, then, you and Mistress Deborah, and we will start away."

"God send we may win safely past the house. There's no other way to get to the high road except around by the drive."

"I shall put the horses on the turf and keep off the gravel so far as possible," said Strathgate, "and I think we'll probably get away without any alarm being given."

Strathgate was an expert whip and he found no difficulty in keeping the spirited horses going quietly over the grassy turf which bordered the driveway and as he had predicted, they got past the house without making a sound. But one obstacle remained between them and freedom—the lodgekeeper and the lodge gate. Ellen had forgotten it until they had gone something like a quarter of a mile through the park, when she suddenly thrust her head out of the window of the carriage and called it to Strathgate's attention.

"Let me attend to that," returned the earl, confidently. "I have a plan. Do you keep close and let the curtains be drawn."

He drove close to the wall of the lodgekeeper's cottage, hammered on the window with the butt of his whip, and when that functionary appeared, Strathgate boldly avowed his name and title and said that he was riding forth on a wager with my lord; that he would be back in the morning. He held up a handful of guineas and bade the keeper peremptorily to come out and open the gate. The startled man, having no reason to suppose that anything was wrong and recognizing my lord as a guest of the house, did as he was bid, pocketed his guineas and piled back into bed again, marveling much ere he dropped asleep at the ways of these gentlefolk. The blinds of the carriage were drawn and he had no idea that he was promoting the escape of his master's wife and her friend.

The road from the lodge gate ran for about half a mile through the park until it joined the main road. Portsmouth lay to the eastward, to the westward was Plymouth. Having passed the lodge successfully, Ellen raised the blinds of the carriage and looked out upon the familiar scenes flying swiftly by them, for Strathgate had put the bays into a fast trot and the light carriage was going forward at a rapid gait. In a short time they came to the main road. Now Ellen knew the way perfectly. She was greatly astonished, therefore, to see Strathgate turning to the right. She lowered the window and thrust her head out once more.

Strathgate scarcely checking the pace of the horses leaned back to listen.

"We wish to go to Portsmouth."

"So you said," returned my lord.

"Well, Portsmouth lies to the left and you are taking us to the right."

"You will be safer at my castle in Somerset than at Portsmouth, I think, my lady."

"But I don't wish to go to your castle," cried Lady Ellen angrily.

"And do you imagine, my dear Lady Carrington," chuckled Strathgate, who was greatly amused over the situation, "that I have run away with you from your husband's house to defend you if need be by sword and pistol from your husband, for the sake of handing you over to some American sailor at Portsmouth?"

"My lord!" exclaimed Ellen, thunderstruck by this open intimation of the earl's feelings.

"You must have seen that I love you," continued Strathgate coolly enough, "and in short I am taking you to my own house. I shall know how to hold you safe there."

"You villain!" cried Ellen, while Deborah, overwhelmed with the horror of this revelation, for the conversation was quite audible to her, nearly fainted within the carriage.

Strathgate laughed.

"My lady," he said, "you might as well make the best of it. You have fled with me and you are in my hands. The world will give you credit for nothing aside from me. My affection will protect you."

Ellen had been fumbling at her belt while this was spoken and in a fit of passion she suddenly reached up her arm and discharged her pistol full at the earl. He had just time, catching a glimpse of the shining steel of the barrel in the waning moonlight, to throw himself aside when the bullet whistled by his ear. The startled horses bounded into a run at once, and for a few moments Strathgate had all he could do to control them.

"The vixen!" he murmured. "But I'll tame her when I get her to Strathgate house."

He succeeded in quieting the horses somewhat, but did not dare to bring them to a slow pace lest Ellen should escape from the carriage. To attempt to jump from it, which, indeed, she had thought upon, was too great a risk to life and limb, and, beside, it involved leaving Deborah behind. There was one thing she could do, however. After some tugging, she got the little window in the front of the carriage open and thus got access to Strathgate's person. She thrust the barrel of her pistol up toward his back and swore she would discharge it unless he instantly turned the carriage about in the road.

But Strathgate was a man of resource. While she was talking and threatening he slipped down from the high seat and took position on the foot board with his feet resting on the pole of the carriage. He could drive just as well there and the high and heavy seat protected him from any further attack.

Ellen did at random shoot through the seat, but the bullet was deflected and Strathgate was unharmed. He was greatly relieved when she discharged her second weapon without effect, for he reasoned that it would be difficult, if not impossible, for her to recharge them in the darkness of the carriage at the pace they were going, and he therefore felt safe for the rest of the journey, although he did not resume his seat on the box, nor did he check the speed of the horses. Indeed, fearful lest the pistol shot might have been heard by one of the gamekeepers in Carrington park, who might perchance arouse the house, Strathgate put the horses to a gallop and sent them flying over the hard road. What if he did founder the horses? He would get so far away before morning as to make pursuit impossible.

So through the long hours he kept up the mad pace over hill and down dale, recklessly driving forward the noble beasts until they were almost ready to drop with fatigue. He was in high glee at the success of his adventure, and even the effort of Ellen to shoot him added a zest to the affair, a flavor of novelty, to which his jaded palate responded marvelously.

Within the carriage Deborah crouched in Ellen's arms. She had been terrified beyond measure by the situation, but Ellen had soothed her as best she might and the little Puritan had at last sunk to sleep resting on Ellen's shoulder.

This was a fine end, or a fine beginning of her adventure, thought Lady Carrington, bitterly. She had never dreamed of this and she blamed herself for a fool not to have thought of it. Of course Lord Strathgate's interest in her was a selfish one. Almost she wished that she had stayed at Carrington even though my lord had proved faithless to her with that painted Lady Cecily. But at the thought of that woman she almost forgot her own desperate situation for the time being. She loathed Strathgate, she hated Carrington, she abominated the whole sex whose garb she wore.

What could she do? Again and again she looked out of the carriage at the road flying alongside. Again and again she resolved to try a leap which she had sense enough to know would be terribly dangerous at the rate they were going. She was not much of a horsewoman, but she realized after a time that such a pace could not be kept up forever. Her opportunity would come when the horses gave out and their speed slackened.

She wished that she had not discharged both pistols uselessly. She would like to kill Strathgate when she got out of the carriage. She had never been so insulted in her life. The blood flamed to her face as she thought of it. And yet she had justice enough in her soul, in spite of the turmoil raging within her, to see that there was a certain amount of excuse for Strathgate. Educated as he had been, with the habits and customs of his time—which she was beginning dimly to comprehend—how could he suppose that she expected purely disinterested service from him? He counted upon being paid for all he did for her, in his castle.

Her escape would be discovered in a short time; his absence would be noted; the testimony of the coachman, of the stable boys, of the lodgekeeper would be had. It would be known that they had gone away together. She would be ruined forever. Her husband—Strathgate would kill him, or— She would have given all she possessed if she had not abandoned Carrington.

It was too late to go back now, however. What she must do would be in some way to get away from the earl and carry out her original plan of boarding her ship at Portsmouth. She vowed that she would force Strathgate to kill her rather than enter his house for a single moment. How she hated the man! How she longed for morning to come when she could stand face to face with him and tell him what she thought of him!

The pace seemed to be a little slower. Were the horses at last giving out? She leaned far out of the window to see. It was totally dark, however, and she could see nothing. The road was rougher now. They were passing through a heavy woodland. The carriage bumped and swayed frightfully, but Strathgate did not dare to slacken the pace, at least not at present. With whip and voice he urged the tired animals on.

They had borne themselves gallantly. He judged that they had gone at least 20 miles from Carrington. A few miles farther on was a tavern where the ladies could be bestowed. The tavern keeper was a friend of his who would ask no questions. From thence he could summon factotums of his own, who could by force, if necessary, compel Ellen to continue the journey. And there he could leave Deborah, whose presence was most unwelcome to him. Once let him get Ellen in his own castle, he would hold her there at all hazards; and by that time she would be so hopelessly compromised that she would have no place else to go. He trusted to his powers of fascination to render her captivity agreeable, and—

But fortune was on Lady Carrington's side that night in more ways than one. For with a sudden jolt the fore-right-wheel of the carriage sank into a deep rut. There was a crash as the wheel gave way at the hub. Strathgate was hurled violently from his seat and lay stunned in the road. The horses, utterly tired out, were glad to stop. Ellen and Deborah were thrown against the front of the carriage, but beyond a severe shaking and some bruises, sustained no injuries.

Surmising what had happened, Ellen tore open the door of the carriage, seized Deborah by the hand, dragged her out and ran desperately down the road. She did not see Strathgate; she did not know where he was; she did not care. She suspected that he must have been thrown from his seat by the shock, but she had something else to do than to think of him. Her first duty was to get away.

With all the strength of her stout young body she ran down the road. She did not turn back toward Portsmouth, for she divined that if Strathgate recovered consciousness he would immediately imagine that she had gone that way. She was unfamiliar with the part of the country in which she found herself, but she had a general idea that the roads in either direction led to the sea, and her hope was to reach the shore. There was nothing that floated that she could not sail. If she could get a boat, she could make Portsmouth harbor without danger of pursuit. Holding fast to Deborah, she fled along the road. Fortunately the way was deserted. They saw no one, and for a long time did not pass any houses.

The dawn was gray in the east. Ellen judged it was about half after four o'clock. They had been gone two hours from the castle and a half hour from the carriage when the road swerved to the southward and led from the forest to a little fishing hamlet on the shore of Lyme bay. Nobody was as yet stirring in the town, although lights twinkled here and there in the windows, indicating that some of the fisherfolk were making ready for their day's labor.

KEELY GIVEN CONTRACT

MERCHANTS WANT ARC LIGHTS.

Public Library Board Requests $7,500 Appropriation—Councilmanic Routine Work.

The Plainfield Board of Trade seconded by the recently organized Plainfield Merchants' Association, renewed its appeal to the Common Council at an adjourned session, last night, for arc lights in the business part of the city. The petitions were referred to the chairman of the lighting committee, and later in the evening Mr. Montgomery moved that they be filed carefully. He made no further comment.

Mayor Fisk informed the city fathers that a picture of the late Mayor O. L. Jenkins has been placed in the Mayor's office. At his suggestion Clerk MacMurray was instructed to write a suitable letter of thanks to F. C. Langhorne for the gift. It is the intention, if possible, to obtain pictures of all former mayors.

The annual street sprinkling contract with John E. Keely was presented by Chairman Gloak of the street committee and Clerk MacMurray was instructed to see that it is properly executed. The contract is exactly the same as that of last year, Mr. Keely agreeing to do the work for $850 a month from May 1 to October 1, with the understanding that City Engineer Gavett may call upon the contractor to sprinkle the streets at other times of the year, when required, the price to be $4 per day for each team. Penalties are provided for any failure on the part of Mr. Keely to live up to his contract. It is also stipulated that he must pay his drivers at least $12 a week.

The contract calls for sixteen horses to operate the eight carts and in addition Mr. Keely is to furnish an extra horse and wagon at his own expense for the personal supervision of the work, all to be under the entire direction of Mr. Gavett.

The question of obtaining other bids was raised by Mr. Hibbard, but Mr. Gloak explained that no one else could be found willing to submit figures. Charles Randolph expressed the same opinion.

The directors of the public library informed the Council that it would require $7,500 as its appropriation for the coming year, and the matter was referred to the finance committee.

In a communication Arthur T. Gallup protested against an assessment levied on First National Bank stock formerly owned by the Potter estate. The assessment was for a portion of the year 1905, including the time it was owned by the estate. He said that he did not object to paying $27, the tax for nine months of that year, but could see no justice in being asked to pay $36.01 for the entire year. The communication was referred to the finance committee, as was also one from John Slorah asking for the return of $4.56 in tax which had been paid twice.

Bertram Thatcher, in response to a request, was given permission to move a paint shop from the property at Sycamore and Fourth streets, recently purchased by the city for a police station, to his property on the opposite side of the street. The police board is anxious to have the building removed so that preparations may be made for building.

The resignation of Florence S. McCarthy, as a regular patrolman, was received from Mayor Fisk and at his suggestion it was accepted. He stated that Mr. McCarthy had been a member of the force since 1898, with the exception of the time he served in the Spanish-American War, and had been a satisfactory and efficient officer.

District Court Clerk Adams reported receipts for the past month of $111.90 and expenditures of $35.55. A former lease between the city and Woolston & Buckle at one time owners of the building now occupied by the city, was filed, it having been recorded in the registrar's office, Elizabeth.

An agreement between the city and Mr. and Mrs. David Hand, whereby permission is given the latter for a sewer right of way through their property in the Netherwood district, was referred to the corporation for approval.

In reply to the petition from Rev. E. E. Roberson and others for sidewalks on Monroe avenue, between Fourth and Seventh streets, Mr. Gloak stated that notices are now being sent out requesting property-owners to comply with the ordinance; not only on the above-named streets, but others throughout the city.

Mr. Montgomery reported that the Public Service Corporation had presented a corrected bill with all the deductions for January, and it was referred to the auditing committee and later ordered paid.

In view of the change in the membership through the retirement of Mr. Tyler and the election of Duncan W. Taylor to take his place, the clerk was authorized to have new roll calls and committee cards printed.

On motion of Chairman Montgomery of the lighting committee, two lights were ordered placed on East Second street, between Leland and Netherwood avenue, and another motion to place one on Hillside avenue, between Martine and Evergreen avenues, was lost, the petition being referred back to the committee for further consideration. This action was taken chiefly because the petition had not been considered by the committee. Mr. Montgomery acknowledge this in reply to a question from Mr. Mygatt, and it was the opinion of the members that the committee should know something about such petitions. On the motion to refer back Councilmen Hall, Hibbard, Mygatt, Suydam, Tolles and Taylor voted in the affirmative and Councilmen Montgomery, Buxton, Gloak, C. C. Randolph and Frank Randolph in the negative.

TESTIMONY IS ALL IN NOW IN GLAZIER CASE.

The taking of testimony in the hearing of Miles Reusch and others against Theodore Glazier, Jr., was concluded before Vice Chancelor Walker in the Common Council rooms yesterday afternoon, when an adjournment was taken until Tuesday, March 24, at which time counsel will sum up at a hearing to be held at Trenton. Yesterday afternoon the time was taken up chiefly in calling witnesses in rebuttal to strengthen the case of the complainants as well as the defendant. There was practically no new evidence of any value, the testimony being a recital of facts already presented.

The suit was brought against Mr. Glazier to make permanent a temporary injunction, afterward modified, restraining him from continuing to operate his fat rending factory, and it is understood that upon the conclusion of it another will be started against him by the Middlesex Water Company.

School Inspection Report.

Following his inspection of the public school buildings of the city with a view to ascertaining what is needed to make them more safe in case of fire and to render less difficult the exit of the teachers and children in case of emergency, Mayor C. J. Fisk sent a message to the Common Council, last night, in which he reviewed the result of his tour of inspection and made suggestions as to needed improvements.

The message was referred to the fire and building committee with power.

The Fair Incorporated.

Articles of incorporation were filed in the county clerk's office at Elizabeth, today, by The Fair, a concern doing business at 130 West Front street, dealing in women's dresses, cloaks, notions, etc. The agent is David Danziger. The authorized capital stock is $10,000 and the incorporators are Louis Steigman, of this city; Louis Levin, of Ansonia, Conn., and William Newcorn, of this city.

Work to Go Slow—L. E. Hart Wants a Favor—List of Proposed Street Extensions and Improvements.

Following the public hearing granted at the special meeting of the Common Council, last night, the ordinances providing for the opening, laying out and establishing the grade on certain streets were adopted on third and final reading. No one was present to speak for or against the proposed improvements. The work, as explained by Chairman Gloak, of the street committee, will cost about $35,000, including the macadamizing, and the city will pay of this about $5,000 and the property-owners the balance.

President Tolles thought the improvements would work a hardship on some of the property-owners, owing to slack times, but Mr. Gloak stated that it would probably be more than a year before the assessments were levied and collected, and Charles C. Randolph added that in many instances the work had been petitioned for by the owners of property.

The streets included in the list to be improved are Compton avenue, DeKalb avenue, Prescott place, Pond place, Darrow avenue, Essex street, and portions of Madison avenue, Union street, South Second street, West Third street, West Eighth street, Monroe avenue and Ravine road. The work has been under advisement for a long time and the street committee believes that the time is now opportune to undertake it, inasmuch as so little has been done in those parts of the city in the past.

The ordinance to vacate an unknown street, leading from Elmwood place to Plainfield avenue, in response to a request from L. E. Hart and Lucy Woolley, represented to be the only property-owners interested, was referred back to the committee for further consideration on motion of Mr. Suydam. He explained that he had been informed that there are other property-owners who would be affected and he desires an investigation. It is said that Mr. Hart built a dwelling directly on the line of the street which he asks to be vacated and that now wishing to sell it he is unable to give a clear title, because of the fact that the property was once staked out for a street. There, it is said, owners of property on Elmwood place, whose deed call for a corner lot and should the street be vacated they would not have what their deeds call for. It is for this reason that further consideration is desired.

INDEPENDENTS ARRANGE SHOOT FOR SILVER CUP.

At the regular meeting of the Independent Gun Club held in the office of Dr. C. W. Leonard last night, plans were discussed for the trap shooting competition for a ten inch silver cup offered by the Walsrode Powder Company. It was decided to make the shoot a handicap event, and each entering member will have twenty-five shots at the traps in a series of twelve shoots for the big tankard. The shooting for this trophy will begin Easter Monday, and some of the crack shots of the club are entered in the event.

The match shoot between Henry Haurand and Dr. C. W. Leonard will be held at the club rifle range Easter Monday, and this will be a handicap event. It is reported that several similar match shoots for money prizes are being arranged. Complete plans for the shoots will be made at the April meeting of the club.

JOLLY EVENING PLANNED FOR LOCAL NEWSBOYS.

Local "Wuxtry" shouters, venders of the "Press, Scurier Woilan Choinal" will hold general jollification at the Rescue Mission tonight, when Plainfield newsboys and the "route boys" of the local papers will be entertained in royal fashion. A feature of the affair will be the big "spread" which has been assured for all who attend. The good things will include everything from "hot dogs" to ice cream and candy.

The boys will be entertained by A. A. Lake, the "lightning sketch artist from Dunellen," and there will be an address by J. B. Oakley, of Elizabeth. The committee in charge of the affair is making arrangements to receive 100 news venders.

Big St. Patrick's Day Bill.

An exceptionally strong bill of vaudeville and moving pictures has been arranged for this afternoon and tonight at the New Plainfield theatre. Pictures appropriate to St. Patrick's Day will be shown and beside the customary illustrated songs the Reading Sisters will give their specialty act and Mullen and Sampholt will be seen in a musical number. The program will run for two and a half hours.

Danish Lutheran services will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the W. C. T. U. rooms. Rev. Mr. Nielson, of Philadelphia, will preach.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Nelson, of the borough, have returned from a visit with Rev. Dr. W. C. Nelson, of Nutley.

UNITY LODGE PASSES TWENTY FIFTH BIRTHDAY

In celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of its organization, Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, enjoyed an informal social time and smoker in its rooms in Knights of Columbus Hall last night. It followed the regular business session and the conferring of the second rank on one candidate, the work being done in an excellent manner by the degree team.

Unity Lodge was organized in 1883 with twenty members, five of whom were present last night. They are former Mayor James F. Buckle, Thadeus C. Smith, Charles E. Harris, Joseph F. Sheppard and Horace J. Martin. Mr. Martin was the first chancellor commander and is at present the lodge's master of finance. The membership is now very large and as an organization is one of the most prosperous in the State. Jeremiah VanWinkle is the presiding officer for this term.

At last night's session, addresses were made by all the charter members present and their reminiscences of Unity's early life was decidedly interesting to those who became allied with it in later years. Grand Inner Guard William Quick and Grand Representative Joseph Fitzga, of Somerville, were guests of honor, and spoke at some length, recalling their many visits to Unity when it was just a healthy youngster. Cigars were passed at the first call for addresses and with the double inducement it was nearly midnight before the session closed.

The lodge will confer the second degree on Thursday night, April 2, and will be followed by another social and smoker.

TRAP SHOOTING MATCHES AT BRANTINGHAM'S PLACE.

Trap shooting enthusiasts from Union and Middlesex counties were out in force at Brantingham's clubhouse on Park avenue, yesterday afternoon, when two fast matches took place. In the first Tom Brantingham defeated Firman Bissett, of South River, by six birds in a 100 point try, the stake being $25 a side. A twenty-five bird match between Al DeNise, of this city, and Fred Quadd, of South River, went the former by three birds. A stake of $25 was posted.

Following these matches, sweepstakes shooting took place, two contests filling out the afternoon. The money was taken as follows: First sweepstakes, first money, S. F. Sabbacher; second money, Tom Brantingham; third money, Firman Bissett; second sweepstakes, first money, Firman Bissett; second money, S. F. Sabbacher; third money, Al DeNise.

A quoit match for fifty points between Quadd and Brantingham was also held an was won by the latter by two points after the score stood 48 to 48.

Three more matches will take place at the clubhouse tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. One of them will be between Joe Rochietti, of Rahway, and Tom Brantingham, 100 birds for $25 a side. Ed Kelley, of Westfield, and Dan Terry, of Alton, also have a good match on.

Colored Republicans Organize.

The colored Republican voters of Plainfield met at Reform Hall last night and organized by electing officers as follows: President, William Douglass; secretary, G. H. P. Ganaway; treasurer, A. J. Carey. Dr. J. C. Anderson was elected chairman of the reception committee. The club has been organized to protect the interests of colored voters and to obtain recognition which they claim they deserve. Another meeting will be held at Reform Hall, Thursday night, March 26, at 8 o'clock.

Jim Wants Party Organization.

"Farmer Orator" James E. Martine spoke at the smoker of the Democratic County Committee smoker held at Elizabeth last night, urging party organization for the coming Presidential campaign. Brigadier General Dennis F. Collins acted as toastmaster, and other speakers were Surrogate P. F. Daly, of Middlesex county, and Abraham David, of Elizabeth. The affair was attended by about 300 prominent Democrats from all parts of the State.

A Surprise Party.

A surprise party was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Huff, of Codington avenue, last night by sixteen of their friends. The affair was arranged by Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Townley, and it was a complete success. Four tables of progressive pinochle proved a feature of the evening. Refreshments were servel at midnight. Those present included friends from Somerville and this city.

—Vegetable lovers should see the big assortment Neuman Brothers are showing every day. Tomorrow they will have strictly fresh Jersey rhubarb, radishes, cauliflower, green beans, spinach and fancy tomatoes; also new potatoes and white squashes.

IDEAL WIDOW'S LONGINGS

"Mrs. Mary Chandler," Alone and Lonely, Asks Western P. M. to Find Her a Mate.

TELS OF HER MANY CHARMS.

If She's All She Is Cracked Up to Be, There's No Reason For Her Leaving Plainfield.

Taking advantage of leap year a Plainfield widow, who describes herself as "Mrs. Alice Chandler," claiming to possess all the qualities which combine to make an ideal wife, has invited a proposal of marriage and seeks a desirable helpmate in the Great West. On Thursday, March 12, there appeared in the Daily Record of Coffeyville, Kansas, a letter signed by "Mrs. Chandler" in which she announced her purpose and adding a description of herself. The one thing that appealed to eligible candidates was her statement that she is entirely alone in the world and very lonely.

Since the publication of the proposal, several letters have been received from men in search of such a wife as "Mrs. Chandler" declares she would make, but the postoffice authorities have been unable to find the alleged "lone widow." Among those who have pressed the suit is John G. Darts, of Liberty, Kansas, who says that he would like to communicate with "Mrs. Chandler" with a view to matrimony, but all of his missives have been returned to the local postoffice by the carriers with the explanation that the woman in the case is not to be found.

Just why "Mrs. Chandler" should go so far from home to advertise herself and seek a husband is not understood by several eligible candidates in this vicinity, one of whom said today that if she is all that she claims to be it would not be necessary for her to leave Plainfield. Three different men in this city said today that they were open to such a proposal and would like to investigate it further. One Plainfield family has been considerably annoyed by the receipt of applications from prospective husbands in the west, and today notified Postmaster Bird that there are no widows in their household in search of a husband.

"Mrs. Chandler" states that she has traveled some and is partial to western life. She requests The Daily Record to put her in correspondence with some of the unmarried cowboys living on the ranches in the vicinity of Kansas, adding that if among the ranchers there is one who would like a good woman and would make a comfortable home, she would be pleased to correspond.

While the widow's intentions may be the very best and sincere, it is the opinion here that the announcement is the work of a practical joker. That was the opinion expressed today by Postmaster Bird and others who heard the story.

This is the heart-burning epistle as published in The Daily Record of Coffeyville, and which has caused a panic among the great army of bachelors in the west:

"Dear Sir—My object in writing you these few lines is to ask a favor of you, which I will greatly esteem (also a few of my lady friends) if you will kindly put me in correspondence with some of the unmarried cowboys living on the ranches in your vicinity.

"I am a widow, 38 years old, no incumbrances, good disposition, very affectionate, good looking; gray eyes, brown hair (slightly gray), fair complexion. I am entirely alone in the world, and very lonely. I know something of Western life and traveled a good deal some years ago. My object in corresponding is with a view to matrimony. I would like the Western climate much better than here, and I also like the people of the West. If among any of the ranchers you know of any one who would like a good woman and would make a comfortable home, I would be pleased to correspond.

"In the meantime, I remain, yours respectfully,

"MRS. ALICE CHANDLER."

STREET COMMITTEE WORK

Plans to Resume Laying Brick Pave About April 1 Provided Weather Permits.

SIXTY MEN BEING EMPLOYED.

Because of the Hard Times, City Gives Needy Men Work at Cost of $450 a Week.

There will be a meeting of the Councilmanic street committee on next Thursday night, when plans for the summer work will be discussed. The plan is now to resume the brick pavement work about April 1, when it is believed that weather conditions will be favorable.

The city has been doing considerable street work this winter, employing a gang of nearly sixty men, who were thrown out of employment, to open up streets in the East End, including the removal of the old railroad embankment. This has cost on an average of about $450 a week, but the street department takes the position that as the work is an improvement it has been good policy to employ those who through force of circumstances are in need of the money.

The committee has adopted a policy for the care of the brick pavement which will be put in effect this summer. The idea is to flush it at least once a day, early in the morning, which together with the street gang should result in keeping the pavement clean at all times.

Another improvement undertaken by the committee is that of sending out notices to property-owners to relay and straighten their sidewalks and curbing. Special attention will be given to this matter in the business part of the city. Efforts will also be made to get the co-operation of the merchants in keeping the pavement clean by stopping the practice of sweeping dirt from their stores into the street.

The details for the opening up, laying out and macadamizing certain streets in the east and west end of the city will be taken up early in the year. This is a big contract, calling for a total expenditure of about $35,000.

SILAS DEWEY DRAKE HAS RETIRED FROM BUSINESS

Silas Dewey Drake, the founder of Lincoln and Dewey Park, told a reporter yesterday that he has retired from business on account of his health.

Mr. Drake is one of the first and foremost of New Jersey real estate hustlers. He has long held the position of Chief Boomer of the Legion of Boomers.

He dislikes to give up the active life, but his physician has ordered him to do so.

"I have been in the real estate business for the past twenty-five years," said Mr. Drake yesterday morning, "operating between Elizabeth and Bound Brook and I want to say that in all of that time I have never seen so many New York realty companies and real estate men trying to buy up tracts of land in this part of the State as at present."

Gave Advice On Matrimony.

In honor of Miss Ernestine Curtis Smith, whose marriage to Dr. Charles Milton Burdick, of Ogdensburg, N. Y., will take place April 2, a novel "shower" was given last night by Mr. and Mrs. David E. Titsworth, of Madison avenue. Each one of the twenty-five guests was requested to write a few words of advice or admonition on matrimony and these were collected and presented to Miss Smith with the inscription "Pathetically dedicated by friends." It was also required that each person read his or her advice or admonition and this caused lots of fun. The cards will be bound and will comprise one of Miss Smith's most cherished gifts. During the evening an informal program of music was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Bond Offered at Last Minute.

As Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough force, was preparing to transfer eighteen-year-old William Bird to the Somerset county jail yesterday afternoon to await the action of the grand jury on a larceny charge, the young man secured his bond of $100 from Henry Baldwin. Bird was remanded for the grand jury at his hearing before Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy Tuesday night.

MRS. UPDIKE AIRS WOES

In Telling Her Story, Petitioner for Divorce, Calls Hubby "Whited Sepulchre."

SHE WILL GET A DECREE.

Manley H. Updike Never Supported Her, Woman Alleges—He Skipped Away In Short Order.

"We weren't married a month when trouble began," Mrs. Rowena Updike, formerly of this city and now of Atlantic Highlands, confided to Vice Chancellor Stevens at Newark on Wednesday afternoon, when he quizzed her respecting the circumstances of Manley B. Updike's playing a headline part in a "Gone, but not forgotten" travesty a few months after their marriage.

Updike has not sent his wife any picture postals and she hasn't any idea of his forwarding address, nor has his voice come back in answer to her suit for divorce. A special master had recommended that the law sever for her the "tie that binds," but Vice Chancellor Stevens was not wholly satisfied about the proofs of her side of the story, wherefore he cited Mrs. Updike before him yesterday.

Mrs. Updike presented the court with so graphic a word painting of her husband—styled by her the "whited sepulchre"—that she was awarded the prize she coveted when the vice chancellor announced he would advise a decree nisi in her favor.

Mrs. Updike pictured her first meeting with Updike at Hot Springs, Ark., where he was undergoing treatment. This was in May, 1901. They were married in New York in the course of the following winter. She repented with much greater celerity, she said.

Admiration for her capacity as a money-earner and a mercenary desire to profit thereby, Mrs. Updike says, prompted her husband's wrong, rather than a more tender affection. She explained that she had been making a living for herself and a son by a former marriage, now a cadet in the Naval Academy at Annapolis, as an "ad writer."

Updike was in the same business, and together they went to Tampa, Fla., where her husband undertook an historical write-up of that city. She says she lent him several hundred dollars to bide a wee with, but that when he had cleared $1,000 or so from the undertaking he took a little sea trip on a steamer to Mobile without buying any return ticket, and never did come back. Mrs. Updike has chalked up the money, but, she says, to the profit and loss column.

"He never supported me," declared Mrs. Updike, "and was all the time finding fault because I was keeping my boy in a school, Sacred Heart College, in Westchester county, with my own money."

Barry Case Discontinued.

At the request of V. W. Nash, Esq., counsel for Edward Vanderhoef in a suit to recover $180 on a bond furnished for John Barry several weeks ago, Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy ruled that the case be discontinued, when it came up at the borough court last night. William G. DeMeza, counsel for Barry, asked for the postponement of the case for a week, whereupon Nash immediately requested the discontinuance of the action.

In the City Court.

In the city court this morning, sentence was suspended on Thues W. Hansen, a young Swede who imbibed so much good cheer at a wedding Wednesday night that it was late yesterday before he could tell his name. He was arrested by Patrolman Kelley, who found him wandering about the streets.

Divorce Case Postponed.

At the postponed hearing in the divorce case of Mrs. May Harkins McDonough against her husband, Peter McDonough, action for postponement for another week was taken through Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy. Another hearing will be given next Thursday night.

Will Give a Musical Service.

The choir of the First Baptist church, under the direction of Howard Case, organist, will give a musical service Sunday night at 7:45 o'clock. The program will include a selection from Gaul's "Holy City" and anthems by Arcadelt, Parker and Rubenstein.

Overhauling N. P. Fire Boxes.

Acting as borough electrician, Alonzo F. Brokaw, of Grandview avenue, is making an examination and test of the various North Plainfield fire alarm boxes. He will finish up the work this week.

Mrs. Minnie Hance, of Liberty Corner, formerly of Plainfield, is stopping for a time with friends in this city.

ON ERIN'S DAY STOLE PISTACHIO ICE CREAM

The theft of five quarts of ice cream at the home of Miss Jessie Garthwaite on West Front street, last night, considerably marred the pleasures of a St. Patrick's Day celebration given by her and Miss Maizie Gray, although the company of thirty young people did not fail to have a good time playing games, dancing and listening to vocal and instrumental music.

The ice cream, intended to play an important part in the refreshments, was placed on the back porch and there was considerable consternation when Miss Garthwaite and Miss Gray discovered that during the festivities some one had stolen it. There were seven quarts in all and the thieves were considerate enough to leave two, which was hardly enough to serve the guests as planned. The young women did the best they could, however, and the company accepted the situation gracefully.

In honor of the patron saint of Ireland the young people wore green neckties. The early part of the evening was devoted to games and music, after which dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

COSTUMED AS JUVENILES. PLAYED WITH TEDDY BEARS.

Costumed as infants, little boys and girls, about a hundred members of the Y. W. C. A. and their friends played at children's games at the "Baby Party" given at the association last night. Everybody brought dolls or Teddy bears, and the evening was spent in juvenile jollification.

There was no formal program of entertainment, but the "baby" guests, who were in charge of the committee, costumed as nurses, blew soap bubbles, had a peanut race, played with their toys, and finally had a grand march. Recitations, songs and instrumental music helped keep everybody "amused" until a late hour, when animal crackers and ice cream were served, and sticks of candy distributed by the "nurses."

The arrangements for the novel affair were in charge of the Misses Ruth Wean, Mable Cook, Lena Becker and Sadie Johnston, and the refreshment committee consisted of the Misses Helen Lawrence, Mary Clayton, Ethel Newman and May Randolph.

DIED AT SARANAC LAKE.

Pulmonary Trouble Proves Fatal to Frank Anderson.

Frank Anderson, a well known resident of this city who lived on Madison avenue, died yesterday afternoon at Saranac Lake, N. Y., where he had been since last June, undergoing treatment for a pulmonary complaint. The change to the Adirondacks afforded him considerable relief at first but the past few months he had been sinking steadily and last week his sister, Mrs. Jacob Geier, of Madison avenue, was summoned to his bedside. She was with him when the end came.

Mr. Anderson was thirty-nine years old and had lived in Plainfield for the past twenty years. He was employed for a long time by the late Dan S. Roberts at his North avenue livery and continued with succeeding firms until his illness prevented. He was unmarried. The body will be brought to Plainfield tomorrow when arrangements for the funeral will be made.

Elaborate Plans for Dutch Supper.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the Dutch supper to be given by the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, tonight, in Vincent chapel. The rooms have been decorated in quaint Dutch style and the young women taking part will also wear the old Dutch costume, while the supper, which is to be an extra fine one, will comprise well-known Dutch dishes. Besides there will be an excellent program of music. The proceeds from the affair will go toward the conference entertainment fund.

Complainant Failed to Appear.

J. Frank Rapp, who is employed at his father's hotel in Lincoln, was arrested by the local police, yesterday afternoon, on a charge preferred by Miss Elizabeth Apgar, of West Front street. He was locked up over night but when arraigned in court this morning the complainant failed to appear. Rapp was released in his own recognizance while the case is continued indefinitely.

Will Dispense with Choir.

The music committee of the Congregational church has decided to dispense with its quartet choir after May 1, and Charles L. Lewis, music instructor in the Plainfield public schools, has been engaged as percentor.

COURT PUTS "KIBOSH" ON SUYDAM RESOLUTION

City Judge Discharges "Offender" and Warns Police Against Councilmanic Ruling.

STREETS DEDICATED TO PUBLIC.

Magistrate Rightfully Declares That Suydam Resolution Is Peculiarly Ill-Timed—Mayor Townsend's Opinion Given.

Expressing decided disapproval of Councilman H. B. Suydam's "loitering" resolution, as passed by the City Fathers Monday, Judge William N. Runyon in the city court today refused to impose sentence upon Bernard Tracey, arrested yesterday for the "offense" named in the measure. At the same time he took occasion to tell the police not to take any more men in custody for the same reason, declaring that it is not within their jurisdiction to keep men from standing in the streets unless they obstruct traffic or become public nuisances.

The resolution as introduced by Mr. Suydam and passed by the Councilmanic body gave instructions to Chief Kiely to see that "men and youths were not allowed to congregate on street corners or other public places" and to enforce the ordinance against "loafing." The head of the department imparted the information to his men and as a result Tracey was arrested by Patrolman Charles Flynn. He had been in no wise disorderly but had stood on a street corner so long that the officer obeyed the Suydam resolution and locked him up.

When the prisoner was brought in court today and the cause of his appearance was made known to the magistrate, he at once showed that he was displeasel with the arrest. Sending for Detective-Sergeant John Flynn, who was in another part of the building, he gave his opinion of the resolution and left no doubt in the mind of the officer that any further action in this way would not be upheld. In the course of his remarks Judge Runyon said:

"I regard the resolution pursuant to which this arrest was made as peculiarly ill-timed, even if it had merit. With so many good citizens and workingmen out of employment there is naturally a large number of men to be seen about our streets and this resolution pretends to deny to them in a certain sense the right of liberty. The streets are dedicated to the public, are public property and any man has the right to use the same in any manner he may see fit so long as his use of them does not in anywise interfere with the rights of others. In case, of course, that loitering is a menace to or interference with the rights of the public, you will be warranted in making arrests. Inasmuch as the police will be held personally responsible for such arrests as they may make without actual merit, I would caution them to be very certain of their ground and to class no unemployed citizen with the professional loafer."

When Judge Runyon concluded, he dismissed the charge against Tracey but warned him that his ruling did not mean that he was granted any unusual right relative to remaining on the street. There is a distinct difference, he said, between ordinary standing and loafing and if in an officer's judgment a corner has been "held down" to the obstruction of passersby an order to move on must be obeyed.

The magistrate's ruling in the case is almost identical with that handed down on Tuesday by the Supreme Court of Missouri. An appeal had been made by Jacob Gloner, of St. Louis, who was arrested and fined for standing at a corner doing picket duty during a strike in 1905. He carried the matter up and the higher tribunal decided that city ordinances prohibiting persons from lounging or loafing at street corners are unconstitutional.

Borough Not Afflicted.

The North Plainfield police officials have not fallen preyt to "Suydamitis." In speaking of the effort to enforce the city ordinance, Mayor Samuel Townsend, of the borough, said today that he left its enforcement to the police officers.

"There is a similar ordinance in North Plainfield, but I do not think that there is enough "loafing" on the borough streets to warrant the action

AWFUL CREATURE WAS NINETY FEET LONG

Recent Grewsome Experience of a Chicago Man Is Sample of a Series of Such Cases

During L. T. Cooper's recent visit to Chicago, where his new preparation and theory created the usual sensation, many hundreds of people brought enormous internal parasites to the young man, which had left the system after taking his medicine.

Among these people was Mr. Emil Winkler, who brought to Cooper a tapeworm that proved to be over ninety feet in length. Mr. Winkler, who resides at 182 East Ohio Street, Chicago, had this to say of his experience: "For five years I have been more or less complaining. I have had severe headaches, and any food that I would eat would nauseate me. I would have bad dreams almost every night; dizzy spells would compel me to quit work. Black spots would appear before my eyes when stooping over and rising quickly. I would feel tired most of the time; in fact, I had no life in me to speak of for the last five years. I tried various treatments, and one physician in St. Louis was recommended to me, and I was under his treatment some time, but as usual I obtained no relief.

"So many people asked me to try Cooper's preparation that I decided to do so, and after using it for a few days, this awful thing passed from my system. I feel much better already, and I want to say right here that I thank Mr. Cooper a hundred times for what his medicine has done for me. I would not take $5,000 and have that thing back in my system again."

Mr. Winkler is a fair sample of the experience of many during Cooper's stay in Chicago, and this no doubt helped to account for the enormous sale of the Cooper preparation in this city and others, recently visited by the young man.

We sell and will be pleased to explain the Cooper preparation.—F. S. Armstrong.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

Concerning the Retirement of Wm. T. Rae & Co., and of the Continuance of the Business under the Proprietorship of

C. M. SANFORD

(Formerly with Messrs. J. Wiss & Sons.)

After Fifty years of active business life, the firm of Wm. T. Rae & Co. has retired.

With its passing into history goes a reputation for sterling integrity, reliability and honesty such as few concerns can boast of, and which it will be my earnest endeavor to maintain.

In announcing my advent into this business and continuing that of Messrs. Rae & Co., there are several facts which I wish to make public, namely:

(1) That it will ever be my purpose to live up to and not "on" the reputation which the house of Rae & Co. has established.

(2) That my stock of Diamonds and other Precious Stones, Gold Jewelry and Clocks will not only be as varied and comprehensive as that of any other Newark store of this character, but absolutely dependable and moderately priced as well.

(3) That I shall offer an Optical Service second to none in the city. This department, while under my personal supervision and direction, will be in charge of a skilled Eye Sight Specialist—W. E. Small, Ref. D.

(4) That Watch and Jewelry Repairing shall constitute an important part of my business, and that all such work entrusted to me will be executed satisfactorily and promptly by experts whose qualifications are the best.

To serve you faithfully and well and merit your good-will and patronage is my desire.

Chas. M. Sanford.

BASEBALL.

The prospects are good for a representative team in the Y. M. C. A. State League, and Physical Director Listman, of the local association, is enthusiastic about the aggregation that will probably play in the league. He never was pleased over the Inter-City Amateur League plan as constituted with four clubs, but the State organization strongly appeals to him.

The Clinton Avenues will soon begin outdoor practice for the season. The club has a strong advantage in that it is practically the same as during the past four or five years. Clifford Randolph will do the pitching this year, while the other positions will be filled by those who have made good there in the past.

Manager Joe Bean, of the Skeeters, has ordered the Jersey City twirlers to report March 24, a week earlier than the rest of the players.

The Montreal team is going to do its spring training on the grounds of the Easton Atlantic League club. The players will report there about April 1.

The Jersey City club is dickering for the services of Pitcher Bill Pounds, who is now held by the Harrisburg Tri-State League team. Pounds, who was obtained from Toronto last year, refused to sign with the Harrisburgs this year at the salary offered him. Manager Heckert offered to release him if Pounds could get a satisfactory price for him from any other club. Pounds immediately got in communication with Manager Joe Bean.

The Detroit club has taken out accident policies of $10,000 each on twenty of the players who will wear Tiger uniforms next season.

The Paterson Union League club has abandoned plans to erect a ball park between Paterson and Passaic, and announcement was made yesterday that Ryle Park will be used again next season. Seating accommodations will be provided for 7,500 people.

Jack Dunn, manager of the Baltimore baseball team, yesterday secured two new twirlers. They are Frank Dessau, pitcher of the Steubenville club, P. O. and M. League, and Pitcher McPherson, of the Uniontown (Pa.) club, P., O. and M. League. Dessau had been sold to Boston, but getting no contract he will become a free agent May 1. He led the pitchers in the P., O. and M. League and his club won the pennant in 1907. As soon as the national committee sanctions it, Dessau will sign a Baltimore contract.

The only phase of life in Holland that seems inconsistent with the character of Hollanders is their merciless treatment of dogs. As shown by Lyman H. Howe's moving pictures to be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, the use to which they put their dogs amounts to positive abuse. Not only are the dogs compelled to draw loads to market heavy enough for a small pony, but they are also required to pull their master home. Regardless of size or breed they are often made to stagger under loads until they lay down from sheer exhaustion. Here man's most devoted friend and trusty companion is compelled to lead a worse existence than is generally understood by our expression "A Dog's Life." The other characteristics of the Hollander's life as shown in this series are aptly described as sedate and complacent, yet so quaint as to be almost antique. Theirs is a life of solidity, stolidity and simplicity.

"Just Out of College," which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night, is said to be one long laugh from beginning to end. George Ade selected for his "types" in his latest comedy a college youth, without a penny, who aspires to the hand of a trust magnate; his sweetheart, one of those dear, unreasonable creatures, who thinks her love the most important thing in the world; her best friend, who never loses a chance to tell something that will "just break her heart," a modern up-to-date business woman, a life insurance agent, a collector of souvenirs and a college friend who "fixes" everything.

"The Luck of MacGregor," Edward Vroom's new play, is to be seen in New York city at Easter, and Mr. Vroom will present the play here at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night with his entire New York cast which will include beside Mr. Vroom, who plays MacGregor, Verner Clarges, one of the finest actors upon the American stage, who will play the old Colonel. Robert McWade, Sr., who is widely known and loved for his Rip Van Winkle and in which character he was deemed by many the peer of Joseph Jefferson. Mr. McWade will play the Dutch innkeeper in "The Luck of MacGregor;" the heroine will be played by Miss Katherine Mulkins of "Checkers" fame and popularity; Miss Margaret Sayr, the fine character actress, will play the Scotch spinster, and the "heavy" role will be played by William Walcott. These players will be supported by a company of picked actors, numbering twenty people, and the fact that many of these fine artists have starred or have been featured for their especial ability, is a guarantee that "Luck of MacGregor" will be superbly acted. There will be no advance in prices for this engagement, and lovers of the theatre here will doubtless reward Mr. Vroom's generosity in bringing us so fine a company by welcoming him with a crowded house.

In conjunction with "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" Cohan and Harris will present that popular actor, Thomas E. Shea, in a new play by Eugene Thomas, entitled "A Soldier of the Cross," at the New Plainfield theatre on March 27 and 28. There is little left to be said of the excellent work of Mr. Shea in the classic drama. Being identified in the past in such characters as Othello, Richelieu, Napoleon, Mathias and Mr. Hyde, a genuine novelty is promised in Ajax, the gladiator, in "A Soldier of the Cross," and judging from the press comments received from other cities, Mr. Shea has made an unqualified success in this new piece. The story of "A Soldier of the Cross" is of classic setting, at the time of the persecution of the early Christians in Pompeii. The eruption of Vesuvius and a battle with lions are said to receive an exceptional reproduction. The entire Shea program, it is said, will be presented with the same regard to detail and general effect that marks all the Cohan and Harris productions. A well selected supporting company has been provided.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

There are no better drugs or medicines in the market than those sold by C. M. Neagle, of West Front street. His prescription work is also the best. Prices are reasonable.

All shoppers will be interested in the many bargains being offered at Putnam & DeGraw's dry goods store for men and women. New goods are constantly being received.

The times may be hard, but it does not cost a small fortune to dine at Timbo's restaurant on North avenue and besides you are always sure of getting the best and most satisfactory meal.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 293, Jr. O. U. A. M., will have class initiation Monday night.

The Past Councilors' Association will meet Friday night, March 27, following the meeting of Benevolent Council, Jr. O. U. A. M.

—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Owens, of Watchung avenue, will remove April 1 to Arlington avenue.

—The chaperones who are to have charge of the dances for the kirmess for the benefit of the hospital will meet at the Casino Thursday, March 26, when it is expected the list of those who are to take part will be completed.

Plainfield, N. J., March 20, 1908.

"Leaders in political circles here have heard nothing of this alleged boom. Both Senator Ackerman and Hamilton F. Kean, last year's delegate, have been mentioned in connection with the office this year. The possibility of a contest is generally discredited here. Relations between the two men are so cordial that it is certain there will be no fight for the job."

Such is the "inspired" comment of the Elizabeth Journal. In one sentence it says that the politicians in that town have heard nothing of the Ackerman candidacy and in the very next sentence it states that both the Plainfielder and the Elizabethan have been mentioned for the honor. It is no answer to say simply because the two men are on cordial terms, the local man would not covet an honor that the former county chairman has evidently arranged to take for himself. Let the Journal tell us why Hamilton F. Kean should have preference, and let it not lose sight of the fact that his brother is slated for a delegateship-at-large.

So the representatives of the New Jersey Automobile Club are going to invade Somerset next fall to bring about the defeat of that sterling Senator, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, eh? Such tidings will make the respectable, law-abiding and discerning voters, for which that county is noted, get into shape for a good fight. Evidently the over-zealous autoists have misjudged the farmer population of that fine rural territory, which cannot be bought and it cannot be fooled. Senator Joe, the idol of an appreciating populace, next fall is going back to Trenton for another term. You may depend upon it.

Certainly City Judge William N. Runyon's ruling regarding the untimely and dangerous "loitering" resolution will meet with the approval of the thinking and sober-minded public. Seldom, if ever, has such an uncalled for instruction been made by the city fathers, but happily it has been tempered by the prompt advice of a city judge who is thoroughly in touch with local conditions.

Former Governor Stokes at a banquet at Easton, Pa., last night "mourned" for W. J. Bryan and "laced it into" Theodore Roosevelt. This is all very good as coming from a "has-been." Would that he never was.

A Jersey City girl said she must marry a hero. Most married men are.—Trenton True American.

Married a Trenton girl, eh?

"KIBOSH" ON RESOLUTION

of the Council for its enforcement. I leave such matters to the judgment of the police officers. If a man is known to be a confirmed loafer, who stands about the street corners and refuses work when it is offered, the police keep an eye on him and keep him moving. Loafers in front of a store or on a corner are menaces to business, for no woman will patronize a store, the door of which is shut off by idling men. If the North Plainfield police find groups of consistent loafers thus interfering with business, arrests will be made but I see no need of a vigorous, literal enforcement of the ordinance under the present conditions in the borough."

Bryan 48 Years Old.

William J. Bryan was 48 years old yesterday. His birthday was celebrated at a luncheon given to him by members of the Chicago Advertising Association. He was the guest last night of the Bryan League, and made a speech at the Seventh Regiment Armory. In it he warned the people against government by representatives of wealth.

INVITE MANY BIG MEN TO TAFT-TAKAHIRA DINNER

Arrangements for the annual dinner of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce Monday night have been practically completed. In addition to Secretary of War Taft and Governor Fort, Baron Takahira and Congressman J. Hampton Moore will be present as guests. The list of toasts follows:

Robert A. Messler, president of the Chamber of Commerce, "A Word of Welcome;" Mayor Walter Madden, "The City of Opportunity;" Congressman Moore, "Atlantic Coast Waterways;" Baron Takahira, "Japan and America;" Secretary Taft, "The National Viewpoint;" Governor Fort, "New Jersey." Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., will be toastmaster.

Among the men of prominence who will be present are John W. Griggs, Thomas J. Hillery, Frank B. Jess, Clerk in Chancery Vivian Lewis, Adjutant-General R. Heber Breintnall, Senator Austen Colgate, Dr. Daniel Evans, Attorney-General Robert H. McCarter, former Senator John F. Dryden, Nathaniel King, former Governor Stokes and many members of the House and Senate.

SHOT FOR ANNOYING JUSTICE.

Paterson Magistrate Disfigures Lad at Play for Life—Accident, He Says.

James Maybury, of Clifton, a justice of the peace, member of the grand jury and a wealthy contractor, was arrested yesterday on a charge of atrocious assault and battery. The complaint was made by Frederick R. Heisler, father of Herbert Heisler, eleven years old.

The boy, with several others, was playing about the ruins of a building when Mr. Maybury came out of his home with a gun and fired. The greater part of the shot entered young Heisler's face. Justice Maybury says his family had been greatly annoyed by the boys and he fired merely to frighten them. He said it was an accident. He gave bail pending a hearing.

HOUSE ASKS BRYAN TO ADDRESS IT WEDNESDAY.

Before the House at Trenton adjourned Wednesday night Majority Leader Martin, with a broad smile showing, offered a resolution, which passed, extending an invitation to "that distinguished American citizen, William Jennings Bryan," to speak in the Assembly chamber next Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Bryan will be in New Jersey that day and will be urged to attend the House session.

The joker in the resolution was an invitation also to "His Excellency the Governor" to meet with Mr. Bryan as the guest of the House that day. The Senate is also invited to be present to hear the Nebraskan, if he appears.

Mr. Skiff's Song Recital.

Under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., a program of song and music will be given by the pupils of J. Edmund Skiff, choirmaster of the First Methodist church, in the association hall Tuesday night. The following will take part in the program: Mrs. John C. Ketcham, Miss Hope Irene Miller, Mrs. Harry R. Moyer, Mrs. Arthur C. Price, Mrs. Bertha S. Skiff, Miss Laura E. Gesswain, Miss Helen J. Hall, Miss Helen Smalley, Miss Bertha Van N. Willis, Carlos C. Gallup, Frederick Kreidler, Vincent Bernard Miner, Harry R. Moyer and Willard Wadsworth.

Irvine to Lead Discussion.

At the conclusion of Alexander Irvine's address at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting Sunday afternoon, opportunity will be given for an open parliament discussion on Christ's relation to social and economic problems of the present day. The speaker will conduct the discussion.

Ten Cents Recovers $29.

Through an advertisement in The Daily Press a maid living at 1009 Hillside avenue, who lost a pocketbook containing $29, had the money returned to her by the finder, Mrs. Taggart, of 104 East Ninth street. The advertisement cost ten cents and quick results followed.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Miss Edna Mickle Vail, daughter of ex-Councilman Fowler W. Vail, became the wife of Blanchard John Gardner, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Calvin Gardner, at the home of her father at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The wedding was a quiet affair, Rev. W. W. Casselberry officiating. The bride was gowned in blue and after a collation at the house, the couple left for a three weeks honeymoon in the South. Upon their return they will reside in Dunellen.

Through the influence of C. D. Chichester, brother of Rev. Edward L. Chichester, of Hampton Institute, Virginia, a quartet of colored students from the Institute, gave a concert at the Presbyterian church last night. The program consisted of plantation songs and Southern melodies, and was appreciated by a large audience. Hampton Institute, in Virginia, a normal and agricultural school, founded in 1868, for negroes and Indians.

"The fair of the four seasons," a novel bazaar under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the New Market Baptist church, begins at Friendship Hall tonight and will be continued tomorrow night. The program for tonight includes music and special drills by young women of the church, and tomorrow night there will be an oyster supper.

Miss Frances E. Gardner, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. George H. Gardner, has accepted a position as teacher in the public schools at Englewood, and will begin her duties next fall. She is at present teaching at the Normal School at New Britain, Conn.

Councilman Lewis T. Churchill is now at Manahawkin, Ocean county, where he is in charge of a civil engineering job which will keep him there for about a month.

Robert F. Bogardus, Jr., has accepted a position in the Chatham National Bank, New York, and commenced his duties there several days ago.

Mrs. Sandford Ramsey, who has been detained at home by a slight illness, has recovered.

WOMAN'S PROMPT ACTION PREVENTS SERIOUS FIRE

Prompt action on the part of Mrs. T. A. Runyon in all probability prevented a serious fire at the home of Emanuel Schloss at 322 East Front street, shortly after 10 o'clock this morning. She resides directly next door and noticing a blazing curtain in a bedroom on the first floor of the Schloss home gave an alarm, at the same time rushing over with a pan of water. She applied it to the flames so effectually that by the time help arrived they were quickly extinguished. The fire department reached the scene in response to a telephone call but there was nothing for the men to do but go over the room and make sure no sparks remained.

The curtain became ignited through blowing against a lighted gas jet and the damage will reach $50, covered by insurance. Chief Doane was warm in his praise of Mrs. Runyon's action and declared that the department would have had a stiff blaze to fight but for her promptness in attacking the flames.

ANTI-CIGARETTE BILL SIGNED BY GOVERNOR

Governor Fort has signed the Anti-Cigarette bill fathered in the present Legislature by Assemblyman Cattell, of Gloucester county, and cigarette smoking by schoolboys and other youngsters will doubtless be greatly lessened in New Jersey in the future.

The new law prohibits the sale of cigarettes, cigarette paper or tobacco in cigarette form to any minor under the age of eighteen years, under penalty of $50 fine or three months in the county jail.

There is a possibility that the law will be evaded by the practice of pipe smoking among boys who are addicted to the tobacco habit, but a strict watch will be kept on dealers and the sale of cigarettes will be greatly curtailed.

William W. St. John is visiting friends in town.

HAPGOODS (INC.), [illegible]

305-309 Broadway, New York City

GOLF.

Leighton Calkins, secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association, has notified the clubs in the association that it is against the rules to hold any tournament without first having a date assigned by the association. The executive committee has decided to hold an open championship on September 24, 25 and 26, provided there is a club in the association willing to offer its links for the event. The expenses for prizes, programs, score bulletins, etc., will approximate $800. An entrance fee of $5 is to be charged, which, with sixty entries, would raise $300. The association can contribute $250, which leaves only $250 to be paid by the club holding the event. Any club desirous of having the tournament can communicate with the secretary, 25 Broad street, New York.

No dates have as yet been selected for the Massachusetts amateur and open championships. The open will probably be held at the Country Club of Brookline in the latter part of May, and the amateur at Wollaston about a month later. Tournament dates that have been asked for thus far by Massachusetts clubs are as follows:

May 6 and 7—Wollaston Golf Club, Atlantic, Mass.
May 14 to 16—The Country Club, Brookline.
May 30—Myopia Hunt Club, Hamilton.
June 5 and 6—Allston Golf Club.
June 6—Fall River Golf Club, Somerset Junction.
June 11 to 13—Brae Burn Cricket Club, West Newton.
June 19 and 20—Chestnut Hill Golf Club.
June 20—Cricket Club of New Bedford.
June 27—Oakley Cricket Club, Watertown.
July 7 to 10—Cricket Club of Springfield.
July 11—Wollaston Golf Club.
July 16 to 18—Essex County Club, Manchester.
July 25—Crow Point Golf Club, Hingham.
August 15—Wollaston Golf Club.
August 20 to 22—Essex County Club, Manchester.
September 1 to 4—Stockbridge Golf Club, Stockbridge.
September 12—Bellevue Golf Club, Melrose.
September 12—Commonwealth Cricket Club, Newton Centre.
September 17 to 19—Woodland Golf Club, Auburndale.
September 19—Vesper Cricket Club, Watertown.
October 7 and 8—Wollaston Golf Club.
October 9 and 10—Chestnut Hill Golf Club.
October 15 to 17—The Country Club.

—Henry Piker and daughters, of West Front street, will move to Westfield April 1.

Does Your Furnace Leak Gas?

The faintest odor of gas in the house is disagreeable. It's due to the faulty construction of the old style of furnace, and any Boynton dealer will tell you why the can never leak gas under any circumstances, and will give you a cleaner, hotter fire than any round fire pot and do it with less coal and trouble, and no dust in the house. Now is the best time to see him.

BOYNTON

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

THE ESCAPADE

A POST MARITAL ROMANCE

CHAPTER IX.

The Hard Riding of Lord Carrington.

Lord Carrington's best horse was named Sailor. He was a magnificent black, built for speed, but not without great powers of endurance. Like all Englishmen, my lord was a famous horseman, although he followed the sea for a livelihood. He was a case in contradiction to the ancient adage that a sailor is never so much out of his element as when he is astride of a horse. Generations of fox-hunting fathers had given him a heritage of horsemanship which the years he had spent upon the sea could not eradicate. Not only was he an expert rider, but he was thoroughly familiar with what could be got out of a horse. He knew how to ride him to the best advantage, when to spare him and when to press him.

It seemed to the groom who followed him on this occasion, hardly less well mounted on one of my lord's best hunters, that Carrington had forgotten all he knew, for he had scarcely entered upon the main road when he put Sailor to his best paces on the jump. In fact, he rode him like one possessed. He spared neither whip nor spur, but drove the horse forward as if the devil were after him and heaven before him. Once the groom ventured to remonstrate. Carrington shut him up with a single word.

The furies of jealousy, of hate, of revenge, were raging in his heart. He had but one desire, to ride down Strathgate and wrest Ellen from his hands. He had no doubt that the three were headed for Portsmouth. He, too, remembered that there was a ship belonging to Ellen about ready to sail from that harbor, and he divined more quickly than Seton did that it was thither she was bound. He expected, since the party had gone in a carriage and could by no means make the speed he was making, that he would overhaul them before nightfall, and in his black mood he was willing to kill his faithful horse, or any number of horses, to bring about the capture and stoppage of the fugitives one moment earlier than could otherwise have been attained.

As if to punish him for his misuse of a noble steed who responded gallantly to every incentive of whip, spur, voice and appeal his master brought to bear, Sailor had the bad luck to cast a shoe. A few leaps and he went instantly lame. With a bitter curse Carrington dismounted and examined the horse. The poor beast stood panting and exhausted, his flanks heaving, his heart beating, his head drooping. The groom had been distanced and left behind. Carrington was alone with a lame horse miles, apparently, from a posting station or a blacksmith's shop. There was nothing to do but wait. He sat down by the roadside, his eyes strained backward in the direction whence he had come, looking for the groom. After half an hour or so of delay, which fretted him beyond measure, he discovered the fellow leisurely trotting over a hill. Aroused by the halloos of his master, the boy suddenly quickened his pace and soon drew rein beside him.

"What do you mean," cried Carrington, furiously, "by loafing along in that way? I told you to keep up with me."

"My lud," said the boy, touching his hat and dismounting, "no man on earth could keep up with you without killing his horse, and there are few horses, even if killed, that'd be equal to Sailor, sir. 'Tisn't in this mare, I know. She was in distress several miles back, and I pulled her up. If I hadn't, she wouldn't be here."

There was sense in what the boy said, and Carrington could not but acknowledge it.

"Give me your horse," he said, "and do you take Sailor. He's cast a shoe. Lead him on the road to the nearest shop and come after me as fast as is safe, but don't kill the horse. I'm bound for Portsmouth. You'll find me at the Blue Boar inn. Here's money for the journey. If anything happens, you can leave your horse and come forward by post horses, you understand?"

"Yes, my lud."

Carrington gathered up the reins, sprang upon the mare's back and without looking over his shoulder, galloped on ahead. The delay had given him time to come to his senses. He had no such horse as Sailor between his thighs now. He realized that he must spare the mare or he would arrive nowhere. By the winding of the road, it was quite as far from Carrington to Portsmouth as it was from the hamlet whence Ellen had taken her departure for the same haven, and Ellen had had, according to Carrington's calculations, who knew nothing about the sweep to the westward, something like six hours the start of him.

He was in the last week of our special offerings for January of a splendid assortment of used and new upright Pianos, square Pianos and Organs at prices ranging from one-third to one-half actual value.

A large number of buyers have taken advantage of this unusual opportunity to secure an instrument at a very large saving.

We have yet a very fine variety to select from and have added a number of instruments taken in during the month in exchange for our Mathushek & Son and Euterpe Player Pianos.

We are offering Upright Pianos in all sizes at prices ranging from $75 to $600.

Square Pianos from $5 to $25.

Organs from $5 to $25.

You can arrange terms of payments. A stool, scarf or cover, one year's tuning and free delivery to your parlor with each Piano.

SPRING APPAREL

Of Unusual Attractiveness

Tomorrow is Spring, according to the calendar, and the Marshall & Ball exhibit of Spring Garments is, if possible, more attractive than any previous showing.

Aside from the refined and exclusive patterns shown is the unusual tailoring skill that is apparent in the treatment of the collars, shoulders, lapels and cuffs, which appeal to men who admireindividuality in their garments.

The brighter colorings predominate, and the models are so widely different from those of recent seasons that no good dresser will attempt to get along without a new Suit and Overcoat for Easter.

Spring Suits, Overcoats and Raincoats, $12 to $35.

Boys' Spring Suits and Overcoats, $3 to $16

Every element that stands for style, goodness and economy in our men's apparel is embodied in our Clothes for Boys.

Whether the youngster be a rough-and-tumble chap or a quiet little fellow, the garment is here that will suit his temperament and please his mother's fancy, at a price that will respect his father's purse.

Little Gents' $2 Shoes at $1.69 for Saturday

This saving on youngsters' regular $2 shoes ought to interest a host of mothers just now. They're patent colt and Russia calf lace, with spring heels and broad toes; sizes, 9 to 13½.

ply that Carrington spared his horse. He felt it imperative for him to get to Portsmouth before night fell, and he therefore punished the mare severely, but he did not ride with quite the recklessness of his first mad dash. Still he swept over the ground rapidly, and after two hours of terrific going he pulled up at a wayside inn. He sprang from his horse the instant he stepped before the entrance. Lord Carrington was well known in the vicinity, and in a moment a dozen obsequious hostlers and horse boys scrambled about him while mine host came bowing before the door.

"A horse, the best you have in the stables!"

"My lord," began the host, "I'm very sorry—"

"No words," interrupted Carrington, "bring me a horse and a draught of wine."

"My best horse has been taken, your lordship, some three hours ago, and I have naught but indifferent ones left."

"Bring me the best you have. I don't care what it is," said Carrington. "Don't you see my mare can go no farther and I must have some sort of a horse. How far is it to the next posting station?"

"A matter of ten miles."

"Well, give me something that can make the distance in an hour, and if I founder him or kill him I'll pay you well for him."

"Here, Dick," said the landlord, "you hear my lord. Bring old Joe. 'Tis

"What Is the Meaning of This?"

the best we have. There's a bay horse in the stable, if he were only fresh. He came in two hours ago, and Lord Strathgate—"

Your Doctor Will Tell You That You Need A Natural Tonic

The majority of so-called "Spring" tonics supply a false stimulation to the body—but this is not the natural and most beneficial way of helping the system to overcome lassitude.

DR. D. JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE

tones and builds up the body in the natural way—through the stomach. A run-down condition of health is almost invariably due to a disordered stomach and digestive organs. Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge tones the stomach and restores it to its normal healthy condition. Then the restored stomach does the building up and brings the body back to a state of perfect health. This is the natural way.

Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge is sold by all druggists.

Jayne's Expectorant is the oldest and most reliable Cough Cure known.

LAWRENCE'S GOOD WORK

Leal's School Athlete Wins All Points for Leal's, Track Champions.

HE BREAKS THREE RECORDS.

P. H. S. Second and Westfield High Third In Annual Interscholastic Track Meet—Relay Race Close.

Though he was able to be about yesterday for the first after an attack of the grip, Russell J. Lawrence, the Leal's School record breaker, won five firsts in the interscholastic track meet, establishing three new Plainfield interscholastic records and winning all the twenty-six points, which gave Leal's School the school championship cup as winners of the fourth annual interscholastic track meet. P. H. S. finished second, with 19 points, and the Westfield High School got third honors with 18 points.

Lawrence's record-breaking work was in the three standing broad jumps, the standing high jump and the 12-pound shot put. His three jumps in the first event were a gross distance of 31 feet 4½ inches. The former record was held by himself, and was made in the interscholastic meet last year, when he did 29 feet 10 inches. Clark, of Westfield, who finished second in this event, cleared 28 feet 6½ inches. In the standing high jump, the Leal's School athlete again made the record figures look easy by his jump of 4 feet 8¾ inches. He cleared the bar by a good margin, but would take no more more trials. Clark, of Westfield, who again took second place, did 4 feet 5 inches. Stuart Freeman, P. H. S., and H. Welsh, W. H. S., held the former record of 4 feet 5½ inches, made in 1906. When it came to the shot put, Lawrence made the gallery dodge by tossing the 12-pound ball 46 feet ½ inch. This passed up his record of 38 feet 10 inches made in the 1907 scholastic meet, and Winkler, of Westfield, who won second place, did 35 feet 2¼ inches.

The relay race, which was the final event, brought second place in the track meet to the P. H. S. athletes, who won by about fifteen yards. The race was between the High School and the Westfield four. Miller, the first of the four runners for P. H. S., had a lead of about five yards on Breese, his closest competitor, at the end of his 440-yard run between the potato boxes, and this lead was held by Pryor, who ran second for P. H. S. Woodhull, who ran the third 440 for P. H. S., lost distance to S. Clark, but Murphey moved steadily away from Smith and was a good fifteen yards ahead at the end. The Leal's team was weak in this mile relay, but got the point for third place as the only other contesting team. The time was 7 minutes 17 seconds.

T. S. Class, of the Westfield team, made a record figure of 5 feet 1 in the running high jump, but the record does not stand because it was in the competition for second place, after Dey, P. H. S., had won the event at 5 feet, the record figure, held by Lawrence, who did not show in the event. The 15-yard dash, the first event, was closely contested, Lawrence finally landing first place. The heats were won by Murphey, P. H. S.; Delatour, W. H. S., and Lawrence, Leal's, and in the finals, Murphey was a close second to Lawrence, while Delatour was the last to cross the line. The time was 2 2-5 seconds. The summaries of the meet follow:

Fifteen yard dash—First heat won by Murphey, P. H. S.; second heat won by Delatour, W. H. S.; third heat won by Lawrence, Leal's. Final heat won by Lawrence, Leal's; second, Murphey, P. H. S.; ;third, Delatour, W. H. S. Time 2 2-5 seconds.

Standing broad jump—Won by Lawrence, Leal's; second, Murphey, P. H. S.; third, Morris, P. H. S. Height 9 feet 9½ inches.

Running high jump—Won by Dey, P. H. S.; second, Class, W. H. S.; third, Ham, W. H. S. Height 5 feet.

Three standing broad jumps—Won by Lawrence, Leal's; second, Clark, W. H. S.; third, Murphey, P. H. S. Distance 31 feet 4½ inches. (Plainfield interscholastic record).

Standing high jump—Won by Lawrence, Leal's; second, Clark, W. H. S.; ;third, Dey, P. H. S. Height, 4 feet 8¾ inches. (Plainfield interscholastic record).

Twelve pound shot put—Won by Lawrence, Leal's; second, Winkler, W. H. S.; third, Otto, W. H. S. Distance, 46 feet ½ inch. (Plainfield interscholastic record).

One mile potato race. Four man relay, teams)—Won by P. H. S., (Miller, Pryer, Woodhull, Murphey); second, W. H. S., (Breese, Marsh, Clark, Smith); third, Leal's (Rushmore, Duke, Dallas, Lawrence). Time, 7 minutes 17 seconds.

EAGLES FLOCK TO SHORE

K. G. E. Annual Castle of Instructions to Be Held at Asbury Park.

PLAINFIELDERS TO TAKE PART.

Notable Ritualistic Function On Monday Night, March 30—Dr. Buchanan Prominent In It.

Grand Sir Herald Horace J. Martin, Sr., and Past Grand Chief Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, both of this city, will be members of the State lodge team of the Knights of the Golden Eagle to deliver the charge in the third or Crusaders' degree at the annual Castle of Instruction to be held at Asbury Park, Monday night, March 30, and members of the local lodge, Freedom Castle, No. 42, K. G E., will be present at the ceremonies. Degree Master William Day has been chosen by the local lodgemen as their representative delegate, but several Golden Eagles from this city will attend the lodge rites at the big affair, when lodge notables from all parts of the State will be the guests of Burbage Castle, Asbury Park.

The event is the most notable gathering of Golden Eagles of the year. The object of this Castle of Instruction is to have the elaborate ritual embodied in the three degrees interpreted by the best lodge talent in the State for the purpose of improving the degree work of the subordinate castles, which will send delegates to observe the proceedings. The first, or Pilgrim's degree, will be exemplified by the degree team of Burbage Castle, Asbury Park; the second, or Knight's degree, by the celebrated staff of Mercer Castle, Trenton, and the third, or Crusaders' degree, by the grand officers and past grand officers of the State lodge, of which the two Plainfielders are members. The opening and closing exercises will be exemplified by the officers of Corinthian Castle, Asbury Park.

The three degrees will be elaborated by every artistic embellishment that can properly be introduced, and will require more than three hours in the delivery, accompanied by scenic effects and tableaux of the most beautiful and impressive character. The costuming during the work will range from the silken robes and historically correct chain armor of the early centuries, to the military uniform of the present day, and the intricate floor movements will be to the music of a special orchestra.

Several hundred delegates will be present from castles throughout the State and among the distinguished visitors will be Supreme Chief Manchester, of New Haven, and Grand Chiefs of Connecticut, New York and Pennsylvania. The expense of the Castle of Instruction, which is an annual affair, will be borne by the State lodge.

MEMBER OF LONG LIVED FAMILY PASSES AWAY AT 87.

W. J. Poulson, proprietor of the Hotel Kensington, was summoned to Flemington today by the death of his mother, Mrs. Harriet Poulson, which occurred at her home there early this morning. She was in her eighty-seventh year and was one of a family of seven children, all of whom had passed the four score mark in ages. Her parents also lived to be over eighty.

Mrs. Poulson was well known in Hunterdon county where she had lived the greater part of her life. She retained her mental faculties to the last and was quite active for one of her years. She was about the house until a few days ago and death came as a result of old age.

Miss Case Will Be the Soloist.

Miss Anna Lucretia Case, soprano soloist of the First Presbyterian church, will sing at the musicale to be given at the church Thursday night, March 26, under the auspices of the Men's Club. The other artists will be Joseph McIntyre, pianist, whose concerts have been greatly enjoyed, and Sigmund Culp, of New York, violinist.

Newton B. Smalley Invests.

Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough, has purchased the residental property owned by W. F. Williams at Somerset street and Jackson avenue. The property has a frontage of 137 feet and is 167 feet deep. The consideration is said to be about $6,000. Mr. Smalley is planning to improve the house.

Students Obtain Positions.

DEMAND THAT TERRILL ROAD BE MACADAMIZED

The residents of Fanwood and Scotch Plains desiring of obtaining road improvements in their part of the county have undertaken to bring about the macadamizing of the road which is the dividing line between the township and city of Plainfield, which leads from the township to Mount St. Mary's College, the splendid structure occupying a site on the picture lands in North Plainfield.

The matter was brought to the attention of the Fanwood Township Committee and the following resolutions adopted by that body will be sent to the Boards of Freeholders of Union and Somerset counties:

Whereas the road known as Terrill road, which road is the dividing line between the Township and Borough of Fanwood and the City of Plainfield has never been macadamized and is in a bad state and condition;

And whereas in the opinion of this Board the interests of the Township of Fanwood and of the adjacent municipalieies would be greatly promoted by the macadamizing of said road; therefore be it

Resolved that the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union be and they hereby are requested to take such action looking to the macadamizing of the said Terrill road, from Green Brook to Raritan Road, and the adoption of said road as a county road, as said Board may deem proper under the State Aid Act.

Further resolved that the Clerk of this Board be and he hereby is requested to certify a copy of these resolutions and to present the same to the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

OPEN PRIMARIES, APRIL 28

State Republicans Set Date for Primaries to Select Delegates to State Convention.

CUTTING DOWN THE DELEGATES

Fort, Murphy, Griggs and Baird Said to Be the Slate for Delegates-at-Large.

The Republican State Committee of New Jersey, in session in Newark, yesterday afternoon, adopted a resolution providing for an open primary 28, without enrollment, for the selection of delegates to the State convention at Trenton May 5, when the four delegates-at-large to the Chicago convention are to be chosen.

Besides this, the resolution provided for a reduction in the voting power of the delegates which, to a majority of the Republican leaders, appears as a means of paving the way for the selection of Governor John Franklin Fort, State Chairman Franklin Murphy, former Attorney General John W. Griggs and State Assessor David Baird, of Camden, as delegates-at-large in face of the opposition by United States Senators Briggs and Kean and their interests.

By the new order of things, one delegate will be allowed for every 30 votes cast at the last election, instead of 200 votes, as at present.

There are 1,257 voting districts, and under the proposed change there will be but 645 votes, with 323 votes necessary to a choice. Essex, Hudson, Passaic and Camden counties, with an aggregate of 325 votes, united will have the convention at their mercy.

"DUTCH SUPPER" FOR THE DOMINIES' BENEFIT

Under the auspices of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, a Dutch supper was given in Vincent chapel, last night, the purpose of which was to raise funds for the entertainment of delegates to the conference to be held here the first week in April. Liberal patronage was accorded and the affair was considered one of the best given by the Epworthians. The chapel was appropriately decorated in true Dutch style, while the members of the league were picturesque in their Dutch costumes.

It was a "Dutch treat" for every one attending the affair. Various booths were arranged in the class rooms, where different dishes were served. Patrons were invited to visit them and make such selections for their supper as they desired, after which they would go to one of the numerous tables and eat. There was almost everything on the menu one would care for, from clam chowder to ice cream, cake and coffee, with all the trimmings. The chicken salad was particularly good and the demand far exceeded the supply, in fact everything was sold out at an early hour.

After the supper there was a musical program and "Mrs. Ruggles and her children" were shown in shadow pictures and pantomime by some of the young people. Miss Hope Irene Miller was "Mrs. Ruggles," and her children were Robert Becker, Frank Rowley, Jr., Arthur Slade, Charles Smith, Clarence Skiff, Kathryn Bingaman, Pauline Gates, Caroline Slauson and Charlotte Skiff. As the pictures were shown Miss Bertha Whitney read the story. Other features were selections by an orchestra and piano numbers by Miss Jubilee Rowley and Miss Mildred Burnett.

While the affair was given by the Epworth League, Miss Edna French, as chairman of the social committee, had general supervision of it. Those in charge of the booths and the waitresses were as follows:

Chowder, Miss Mattie Humble, Miss Caroline Shaver; tea, coffee and milk, the Misses Gesswein, Mrs. Chas. Gesswein, Mrs. Joseph Dunham; bread and butter, Miss Helen Whitney, Miss Antoinette Aalholm, Miss Nan Wilson; baked beans and potato chips, the Misses Pryor and Long; salad, Miss Frances Weed, the Misses Stowell, Harmon, Lake, Curtis, Beard and Martin; pie and cake, Miss Hope Irene Miller, Miss Kathryne Slade, Miss Disbrow; ice cream, Mrs. Maurice McGrath; meat, Mrs. Harold Whitney, Miss Margaretta Runyon; waitresses, the Misses Dorothy and Marion Lynn, Kathryn Sminck, Helen Edgar, Hannah Bingaman, Hazel Moore, Edna Mosher, Mildred Burnett, Gertrude Pryor and the Misses Beekman. The flowers for the affair were donated by Mrs. L. J. Denton.

Salvation Army Service.

Major and Mrs. J. R. Wiseman will conduct the services in the Salvation Army Hall tonight at 8 o'clock and also tomorrow at 11, 3:30 and 8 o'clock. All are invited.

COMMUTERS' CLOSE CALL

Jumped Over Dividing Fence at Netherwood Station in Front of Fast Express.

BARELY ESCAPED BEING HIT.

Were Making "Short Cut" From Standing Ttrain, a Practice Railroad Officials Have Sought to Discourage.

The practice of jumping over the dividing fence of the Central's tracks at the Netherwood station in order to avoid going through the subway after leaving westbound trains, came within a hair's-breadth of costing the lives of two commuters last night. Unaware of the approach of a "Philly" flyer" they sprang off the 5:53 express directly in the middle of the eastbound passenger track. The flyer was almost upon them and both men gave wild leaps for safety as the engineer jerked the whistle cord. One of them, wearing a light overcoat, fell as he reached the eastbound freight track and was so badly frightened he did not regain his feet until after the train had passed.

The "Philly" is the one that passes the Plainfield station at a mile-a-minute clip at 5:45 but was running about five minutes late. It is generally on time and accordingly is beyond Netherwood before the 5:53 pulls in. The commuters have grown accustomed to a clear track for the fence jump and this fact led to the near-victims making the jump without first looking to see if there was any danger. Their identity could not be learned as they hurried away as soon as they recovered their composure.

Leaping over the fence has also been prevalent at the North Avenue station and the railroad officials have sought in vain to stop the practice. As a rule about a dozen men take the "short cut" at the arrival of all the incoming evening trains and the fact that none of them have been caught is due to good luck more than management. Fatalities have been brought about in this way at Westfield, Cranford, Bayonne and other places along the line.

"THE BRISTOL" COMPLETED; ORNATE APARTMENT HOUSE.

"The Bristol," L. L. Manning's handsome new building at West Front street and Madison avenue, was completed yesterday and the ten commodious and attractive apartments will be occupied within the next few days, while a New York firm has taken a five year lease on the store on the ground floor and will be ready for business April 1.

Those who have leased apartments in the building are Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Geeswein, Mr. and Mrs. Francis K. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Todd, Mrs. Sarah House, Mrs. L. E. Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley S. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Haynes, all of this city; Mr. Van Camp, of Somerville; Mr. Van Boskerck, of Morristown, and Mr. Willis, of Cranford.

The building, three stories in height, is of brick, and all of the apartments are hardwood trim and equipped with all modern conveniences. One decided advantage is that every room is well lighted, which is compulsory under the new State law.

The contractors who were employed in the construction of the building were James Manning, carpenter; Townley Brothers, mason; C. W. Krausse, plumber; Charles Dutcher, heating; R. B. Van Arsdale, tiling; P. Egany, painting, and S. H. Whitney, window shades, etc.

Two Held at Horse Thieves.

New Brunswick, March 21.—Samuel and Michael Cohn, brothers, living on a farm near Fresh Ponds, were arrested Thursday afternoon by Police Detective Dunn and Special Officer Finnegan, of this city, on a charge of horse stealing, preferred by Charles Bretman, a neighbor. Three weeks ago a horse and wagon were stolen from Bretman. The robbery was reported to the local police, who located the horse in a sales stable on Monroe street, New York. The proprietor declared, it is said, the Cohns had brought the animal there. The men have been committed to jail pending a hearing.

Bible Class Elects Officers.

"The Wilhelmina F. Runyon Bible Class," of the Park Avenue Baptist church, Thursday night at the home of the teacher, Mrs. George F. Opdyke, and organized by electing these officers: Teacher, Mrs. George F. Opdyke; president, Miss Elinore Stutsman; vice-president, Miss Grace Weeks; secretary, Miss Marjorie Brown; treasurer, Miss Dorothea Opdyke.

FARMER KILLS HIMSELF

Christopher N. Wilson Deranged When He Ended His Life by Hanging.

HAD PARTED WITH FARM.

Father of Mrs. Thomas E. Currin, Jr., and Mrs. Peter Saums Commits Suicide—In Prosperous Circumstances.

Christopher N. Wilson, a wealthy retired farmer of Millstone, and father of Mrs. Thomas E. Currin, Jr., of North Plainfield, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself in his bed, while the family was at breakfast. He tore his pillow-case into strips which he knotted about his neck. After making one end of the improvised rope fast to a bedpost he leaned out of his bed until strangled to death. He was found dead soon afterward by members of the family.

For a great many years Mr. Wilson was a prosperous farmer and owned considerable valuable land in Somerset county. Owing to advanced age he decided to dispose of some of the property at Millstone, and it is said, that the day he parted with the farm he suddenly became demented. Constant worry over the sale of land preyed on his mind to such an extent that he was led to take his life.

Mr. Wilson was a highly esteemed citizen and for several years was tax assessor of Franklin Township. He was a veteran of the Civil War, serving in Co. K, 30th N. J. Vols. After the war he settled at Millstone, where he acquired considerable property and prospered. Besides Mrs. Currin, another daughter, Mrs. Peter Saums, of Somerville, who has many friends here, survives him.

VETERAN MISSIONARY SUCCUMBS TO DISEASE

Mrs. Fanny Bond, who with her husband, Rev. Lewis Bond, was a missionary in Macedonia, chiefly Monastir, Bulgaria, for thirty-eight years, died last night at her home on Kensington avenue, aged seventy years, from a complication of diseases. Mr. and Mrs. Bond gave up their work abroad about two years ago, owing to advanced age and the ill health of Mrs. Bond, and returned to this city, where they made their home with their daughter, Mrs. G. P. Hinman, of Kensington avenue.

Mrs. Bond, whose maiden name was Miss Fanny Russell, was born in New York. She was married to Mr. Bond about thirty-eight years ago in the Fifth Avenue Dutch Reformed church, New York, and soon afterward they went abroad as missionaries under the direction of American Board of Foreign Missions of the Congregational church.

During their long service as missionaries, they returned home four times. They had been in Bulgaria about ten years when they were burned out during the Turkish-Russian War. They remained here but a short time, when they again returned to their field of labor. Despite the great difficulty under which they lived as missionaries they were successful and were instrumental in bringing many souls to Christ. Mr. and Mrs. Bond were warm personal friends of Miss Stone, whose experience with the Turkish brigands aroused such world-wide interest, and in many respects the two were co-laborers. Mrs. Bond was a woman of exceptional qualities, and an exemplary Christian, which was shown in her faithful service as a missionary. Her daughter, Mrs. Kennedy, who with her husband, Rev. P. B. Kennedy, known to many Plainfielders, is now at Salonica, waiting to engage in mission work in Turkey. Mrs. Bond is survived by a husband, two daughters, Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. G. P. Hinman and one son, A. Russell Bond, the last two named of Plainfield.

The funeral will be held at the late residence Monday afternoon at 2:30. Burial will be in the family plot in the North Plainfield cemetery.

Commercial Travelers Elect.

Plainfield Council, No. 402, United Commercial Travelers' Association, has elected these officers for the coming year: Senior Councilor, Charles A. Sturtevant; junior councilor, Alfred I. Laing; past councilor, James C. Field; secretary and treasurer, Frank W. Weed; conductor, John M. Lewin; page, Arthur Organ; sentinel, A. D. Thompson, Jr.; executive committee, John E. O'Mara, H. F. Warner, John E. Dunn and Charles C. Randolph.

AUTOMOBILE FIRE ENGINE FOR NETHERWOOD SECTION

With the idea of being strictly up-to-date with its fire department equipment, the Councilmanic fire committee of which Henry D. Hibbard is the chairman, is considering the advisability of installing an automobile combination chemical engine in the east end of the city, when a site has been selected and an engine house is built. In the opinion of the committee such an apparatus would mean a great saving as it would do away with horses, feed and other expenses. Instead it would only be necessary to employ a sufficient force to operate the engine and one man to drive to fires.

The first cost for an apparatus of this kind would be the heaviest, and the committee believes that it would be possible to purchase such an engine for $7,000 or $8,000. These figures are based on estimates obtained from different manufacturers.

The automomobile engines are being used with great success in many large cities, including New York, Boston, Hartford, Bridgeport, and they are highly approved by fire officials. The committee believes that it would be possible to answer fire alarms much quicker than with horses and in this way thousands of dollars might be saved in the course of a year. The extent of the territory to be covered in the east end of the city, including the Netherwood district, is large and with an automobile any point could be reached quickly. The proposition will come before the Common Council within a short time when a decision will be reached.

HOPE CHAPEL BOYS' CLUB OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY

In connection with its semi-annual meeting and installation of officers, the Hope chapel Boys' Club observed its fourth anniversary, last night, by entertaining 300 friends at a social in the Sunday-school rooms. The affair marked another step in the history of one of the most important organizations in the congregation and showed in a general way what has been accomplished by the members.

Rev. L. R. Howard formally opened the meeting with prayer and was followed by Walter Firstbrook, the retiring president, who made a short address. He thanked the members for the assistance given him during his term and especially commended the incoming president, Harry Kenney, and the other officers. Other addresses were made by Ira W. Travell, principal of the city's High School, and Mr. Howard, in which they spoke of the influence wielded in a community by young men equipped with spiritual, social and athletic training, the purposes which led to the club's organization.

The retiring president read a letter from the club's founder and leader, G. Herbert Condict, who is in Vermont on a business trip. Mr. Condict congratulated the boys on what had been accomplished in the four years they had been banded together and urged them to do greater and better things in the years to come. At this juncture the entertainment committee took charge and provided everyone with a liberal supply of ice cream and cake.

The officers installed are as follows: Leader, G. Herbert Condict; president, Harry Kenney; first vice-president, Joseph Muir; second vice-president, George Gage; secretary, Clarence L. Hoffman; treasurer, Bertram Smith; chairman of committees, entertainment, Clinton F. Firstbrook; game, George Leighs; light, Earle Lynn; lookout, Arthur Hoffman; membership, Alfred Mundy; athletic, Joseph Muir; invitation, Bertram Smith. The club at the present time has thirty-two members.

John Raymond.

John Raymond, aged ninety-three years, who lived in Plainfield several years ago, occupying a house on the Mulford Cole hill, East Front street, which he built himself, died Thursday night at his home in Jersey City from the infirmities of old age. The burial will be Monday morning at 10:30 in the North Plainfield cemetery.

Herald Advertisement Agency.

By special arrangement advertisements for the New York Herald will be received at The Daily Press office at the regular rates. On Sunday, March 29, The Herald will devote special attention to New Jersey real estate and advertisements intended for that issue should be left at this office as early in the week as possible.

To Lecture on China.

Principal Ira W. Travell, of the Plainfield High School, will give an illustrated lecture on "China" at Hope chapel tomorrow afternoon. The talk will be illustrated by about seventy stereiopticon slides.

THEY WANT TO BE SHERIFF

Kirkland and Wright Scrambling for $5,000 Plum to Drop Next Fall.

RAHWAY MAKES A CLAIM.

Its Candidate Alleges Unfair Distribution of "Pap"—Says It Is Getting Small End of the Stick.

Although the real fight will not be on until next fall when the county convention meets, Union county seems already alive with candidates for the $5,000 shrievalty plum, which is now in the possession of Dr. William B. Lawrence, of Summit, who succeeded B. Frank Coriell, of Plainfield. Neither Plainfield nor Summit is likely to make any claims for the fat job, but there will be no dearth of candidates in other parts of the county.

Elizabeth is backing Captain Robert Kirkland, who is a member of the county board of elections and who has had some experience in running for the shrievalty nomination before. Kirkland has been endorsed by the Downtown Republican Club of Elizabeth and is understood to have the backing of the powers that be. But Kirkland is not going to have such an easy running, it is predicted by the knowing ones, at least not if William H. Wright, of Rahway, can help it.

Mr. Wright has had his eyes on the plum for a long time and he has come out for a formal announcement of his candidacy. The Republican Club of Rahway has endorsed him for the position and its 400 members it is understood intend to put up a stiff game in the game over the plum. In an appeal issued today, Mr. Wright bases his candidacy on three conditions of political expediency. First, he asks, is the party proposed for the office competent to fill the same; second, does he represent a section of the county where epublicans votes are needed, and can he expect to attract them, and third, should not each section of the county be fairly represented in the distribution of the offices. He modestly leaves the answer to the first two questions to his friends, but he makes some odious detailed comparisons of party "pap" distribution. Elizabeth with its 4,348 Republican voters now holds $35,000.00 worth of county plums, including the county clerk, county collector, county judge, prosecutor, surrogate, member of county tax board, court house custodian and county engineer. Plainfield, with little less than half as many Republican voters, the actual number being 2,098, gets $10,000 in choice jobs including register of deeds, county attorney, State Senator, member of county tax and county election boards and jail warden. Summit, with 608 Republican votes, has the $5,000 shrievalty, while Rahway with 911 Republican voters only has a salary aggregate of $2,500, which includes a member of Assembly, deputy sheriff and freeholders' clerk.

BOLD CHICKEN THEFT.

Colored Man Steals a Dressed Fowl from a Front Street Market.

Three colored men entered Fred Endress' meat market on West Front street at 8:45 last night and while one of them engaged the attention of a clerk in selecting a dressed chicken the other two began looking about the place. Another clerk happened to glance up just in time to see one of the two slip a chicken under his coat and run out. Employes in the store gave chase but the thief had a good start and disappeared back of the small stores on Madison avenue just off Front street.

The chicken purloiner was described to the police as being a young man, about five feet six inches tall, light complected and wearing a mustache. The other members of the trio disappeared while the excitement was on.

Callman Frank Hull Resigns.

Frank Hull, acting regular fireman at the North Plainfield fire headquarters, resigned his position at the borough fire house this morning, informing Lieutenant Gaub that he had a position as painter and would start on his new job Monday. Hull, who is a callman in the borough department, has been acting as regular at headquarters since December, when Lieutenant Elden G. Smalley was taken sick. He will still remain a callman. Callman Edmund H. Terry is taking Hull's place at headquarters.

"The Man's Man" to Speak.

"Christ, the Champion of the Workingman" will be the topic of Alexander Irvine's address at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. An open discussion of the economic and social problems in relation to Christianity will follow the address.

BASKING RIDGE.

The annual meeting of the Village Improvement Society will be held in the library rooms, Friday, April 24. There will be an election of officers at that meeting. The committee of nine to draw up boundaries for a borough and to confer with the Bernardsville committee on borough, has voted to drop the borough agitation for the present.

William Harter has rented the house at Madisonville, recently vacated by Albert Alpin, and will move his family from the Childs cottage, in April.

Nicholas Howlett has moved from his home on Church street to his farm near Morristown, where he will reside for several months.

Charles Allen spent yesterday in New York City.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Ten Eyck & Harris, coal dealers, would like a share of your patronage. Orders promptly attended to and every ton is full weight and well screened.

Dudley Miller, the Park avenue druggist, besides selling the best drugs and medicines, always has in stock a full line of toilet articles, confection and cigars.

For anything in the jewelry line patronize Charles E. Vail, of Park avenue. His goods are the best and the prices are low. A well-equipped optical department is maintained.

Place your earnings in the Plainfield Savings Institution where they will draw liberal interest. The institution is conducted on conservative, yet progressive lines and your money will always be safe.

Patrons of S. Scheurer & Co., of West Front street, always get the best groceries, fruits, vegetables and meat. The firm handles but one quality and the prices are very low. You can save money on every purchase at this store. All orders promptly attended to.

$150,869,000 FOR PENSIONS.

Bill as Passed by House Abolishes Agencies.

Retrenchment, if not reform, was the slogan of the House of Representatives at Washington yesterday in dealing with the pension appropriation bill, which, by the way, was passed, carrying a total of $150,869,000 for the payment of pensions in the year ending June 30, 1909.

The bill as passed abolishes the pension agents throughout the country, providing for the payment of only one agent in Washington.

RAILROAD BRANCH SOLD FOR UNPAID STATE TAXES.

For the sum of $607.43 Andrew H. McNeal, iron magnate and capitalist, of Burlington, N. J., at a sale of property for unpaid taxes, has purchased the entire equipment of the Pennsylvania Railroad, including passenger and freight stations, signal towers, trackage and switches, within the limits of the city of Burlington. Mr. McNeal's purchase is on the main line of the Amboy division, between Camden and Jersey City.

Russell Brunswick's Postmaster.

A fight over the postmastership of New Brunswick ended yesterday by the announcement that Representative Benjamin F. Howell had decided to recommend Charles W. Russell for a third term. Mr. Russell was the choice of Senator John Kean, of Elizabeth. The New Brunswick organization backed former Assemblyman Jacob H. Whitfield for the place.

Martin Act Commissioners Named.

Justice Lloyd, of New Brunswick, has appointed as Martin act commissioner John E. Elmendorf, a local lawyer, and Senator George S. Silzer, to take the places on the old commission caused by the death of Theodore G. Neilson and Charles S. Scott. The other member of the board is Alan H. Strong.

A Physical Culturist.

"Brudder Amos, whuffo Ah seen yo' chasin' Marse Jim's chickens last' night?"

"Ah wasn't doin' nuffin', deacon; hones' ter Gawd. Jes' gittin' up a apstitite for suppah, dat's all."

Swimming.

Swimming on the back in sea water, says a doctor, is the most beneficial form of bathing. Swimming on the side is very injurious to the muscles of the stomach.

AMUSEMENTS.

The splendid acting of Charlotte Walker and Frank Keenan in "The Warrens of Virginia," at the Belasco theatre, has been compared by such eminent critics as William Winter to the highest standards of the American stage, and many of the idle actors now in New York attend the performances of the superb production which Mr. Belasco has given the stirring drama of Old Dominion in order to witness not only a striking and effective play, but such acting as is rarely seen at a New York theatre nowadays. The theatre is crowded at every performance, and curtain calls are the order after the strong climaxes and forceful situations in which the play abounds. The curtain on the first act never rises but the audience breaks into applause at the realistic beauty of the scene.

Charles Frohman and Henry Miller present "The Servant in the House" at the Savoy theatre. The piece is a drama in three acts, modern in manners, classic in structure, and loveless in story, by C. Ranu Kennedy. The author is the husband of Edith Wynne Matthison; the nephew of C. Rann Kennedy, the famous translater of the classics, and is remembered by some for his acting on "The Doctour" in the morality play made celebrated by his wife's performance of "Everyman." Mr. Miller does not act in the play. The company, known as "The Henry Miller Associate Players," includes Edith Wynne Matthison, Tyrone Power, Walter Hampton, Arthur Lewis, Charles Dalton and Mabel Moore. This is understood to be the first of a set of plays that will be offered. It is playing to "S. R. O." houses.

Proctor's theatre, Newark, for week of March 23. The stellar feature will be the initial vaudeville appearance here of Aubrey Buncicault and Dorothy Door, in a condenced version of Grace George's success "Divorcons." Ella Snyder and her dancing boys present a well dressed singing and dancing turn. Stuart Barnes will tell in his inimitable way original stories, tells how they do things "In Vod-vil." The Josetti Troupe, six in number, will astonish and please with marvelous skill and daring in acrobatic feats. Zaretzsky Troupe are an aggregation of Russian dancers who go through all the whirlwind gyrations peculiar to this style of dancing in an entertaining manner. Jack Reidy and Elsie Currier present one of the best singing acts in vaudeville. Gilbert and Katen, newcomers here, will enliven the bill with parodies on the latest songs in Hebrew dialect. The Musical Craigs appear in a refined and up-to-date musical act. A new film of animated pictures will complete the bill.

The season's latest novelty in the world of entertainment is offered for the amusement of New York theatregoers, the Shuberts producing Clyde Fitch's new comedy entitled "Girls" at Daly's theatre. The subject of girls is one that has been of interest ever since the world began—and their many attempts to go their way through life independent of man and his moral and financial support has probably caused more to be written and spoken pro and con than any other subject that has engaged public attention. In "Girls" Mr. Fitch has taken hold of the subject in a most entertaining and instructive way, and the comedy tells us the story of four girls of education and refinement who come to New York to live bachelor lives, depending only upon their own efforts to win success. They live the studio life and we are shown the girls in all the glory of "independence," asserting their rights and equality with mere man. Mr. Fitch has been kind to the girls, for, instead of permitting the curtain to fall with them unhappy, he lets us see the right man in the right place, taking charge of the girls, who, after all, are just like the rest of their sex, ready to succumb when the man comes along. It is expected that Broadway will have something to talk about for months to come when "Girls" stars its campaign at Daly's.

Speaking of "The Merry Widow," today in different parts of the world, particularly at the New Amsterdam theatre, New York, one hundred Sonias are merrily dancing the Merry Widow, and as many Prince Danillos are waltzing in the widely scattered theatres of the world. From the Ural mountains to Chicago, from Archangel to Cape Town, "The Merry Widow" is being played. It is said that the role receives treatment in this country quite different to that received abroad. The acting of the American Sonias is more circumspect and less Carmenesque. The original Sonia was Frauline Guenther, who has played the role continuously in Vienna for two years. She would not fulfill our idea of the widow, because she is stout and rather slow of movement, but she has a wonderful voice, and affects a dreamy sort of languor that has given her great success. In Hamburg, Marie Ottermana, a woman who looks much like Frauline Guenther, and who is, perhaps, even a little larger, is credited with unusual success. The London Sonia is Lillie Elsie, a strinkingly beautiful English girl, fair, tall, lithe and graceful. She is celebrated as the ideal, sensuous Sonia. Ethel Jackson, who is playing the widow in New York, has been described as nakedly simple in her acting, and one enthusiastic young writer said that she was Venus Victrix come to life.

NEARLY A HERO.

The new Shubert production, "Nearly a Hero," in which this enterprising firm is starring Sam Bernard at the Casino, New York, has proved to be one of the biggest finds of the season, and with three such exceptional productions as this one, Lew Fields at the Herald Square theatre and Williams and Walker at the Majestic, backed by the glories of the seven hundred voice chorus at the Hippodrome, the Shuberts are setting a pace that will not be approached for many seasons. The new vehicle in which Mr. Bernard is being starred is a typical Casino affair, with all the atmosphere of that famous theatre's best days. The girls are plentiful and lovely to the eye, the gowns are the most richly designed and executed seen on that stage in y ars, and the whole atmosphere of the production is one of gorgeousness in staging and equipment which would do credit to the record of any theatrical producing firm.

Rawson Twin Takes a Wife.

Albert W. Rawson, one of the Rawson twins, of Hillsdale, a grandson of Laura Keene, the actress, who was on the stage at the time President Lincoln was assassinated, has married. His bride was Miss Jessie Tompkins, daughter of the late Mrs. George W. Tompkins, proprietor of the Hillsdale Manor House. The bridegroom will conduct the hotel.

Plainfield People Give Credit Where Credit Is Due.

People of Plainfield who suffer with sick kidneys and bad backs want a kidney remedy that can be depended upon. The best is Doan's Kidney Pills, a medicine for the kidneys only, made from pure roots and herbs, and the only one that is backed by cures in Plainfield. Here's Plainfield testimony:

Adolph Thomas, machinist, living at 206 Spooner avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I have had for several years considerable trouble from a most severe form of rheumatism. Having heard that Doan's Kidney Pills were good for rheumatic troubles arising from the kidneys I got a supply at Randolph's drug store and began using them. I have taken in all three boxes of this remedy and must say that they have acted like a charm in my case. Not only have I been relieved of the pains that troubled me, but my kidneys have been strengthened."

Proposals for Furnishing Crushed Stone to the Borough of North Plainfield.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield at a meeting held March 6th, 1908, notice is hereby given that the said Mayor and Council will meet at the Council Chambers in said Borough on Friday, April 3d, 1908, at 8 o'clock p. m. at which time and place said Council will receive sealed proposals for furnishing crushed stone as follows:

For crushed stone for the remainder of the year 1908, the bids to state the price per ton of 2,000 pounds for furnishing each or any of the following sizes, the bid on each size to be independent of bids on any other size, viz.:

Fine screenings; ½ inch, 1½ inch and 2½ inch stone, each or any in such quantity and delivered at such time or times and at such place or places in the Borough as the Chairman of the Committee on Streets may from time to time direct.

The above must be of the very best quality of trap rock free from weathered stone, dirt, clay and any foreign matter and in every way acceptable to the said Chairman.

All stone furnished must be weighed on such scales as said Chairman may from time to time direct and a voucher or weigh-bill must be delivered with every load to the said Chairman or to his authorized representative.

Every bidder to whom any contract for crushed stone is awarded must enter into written contract to furnish and deliver the same in strict compliance with the aforesaid terms and must furnish bond, satisfactory to said Council, in the sum of $1,000 for strict performance thereof.

Upon receipt of such bids or proposals the Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents provided said parties or their agents choose to be then and there present and also to make proper record of the prices and terms.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved.

By order of the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Slipping on a banana peel, Oscar Van Buren, of Swedesboro, fell and broke his arm while on his way from school Thursday.

For carrying a knife and threatening Frank Hess, of 440 Jackson street, Camden, Dominick Brezal was held in $300 bail by Recorder Stackhouse yesterday.

Accused of trying to beat his landlady, Mrs. Elizabeth Tiedeken, of 251 Kaighn avenue, Camden, out of a five weeks' board bill, John Rafferty was held in $300 bail yesterday.

Accused of breaking into a warehouse at Ferry and Atlantic avenues, Camden, and stealing copper kettles valued at $18, Charles Ray, colored, was held in $500 bail yesterday.

Edward Austin, one of the leading horsemen in Salem county, and a breeder of horses, died at his home near Woodstown, Thursday morning, of Bright's disease. He was forty-seven years old.

The Delaware and Raritan Canal opened to navigation yesterday. The first vessels to enter the locks were the steamer F. W. Brune, and the barge Iamthe of the Trenton Transportation Company.

Dorothy Williams, fifteen years old, daughter of John Williams, vice-president of the Electric Storage Battery Company of Merchantville, died suddenly Tuesday evening. She had been ill for a year. She was chatting yesterday with members of the family a few minutes before death came.

Cecil Iffe, of Atlantic City, negro murderer of his wife, may be incarcerated in an asylum for the insane instead of being tried for the crime. The man is still in jail, but has been isolated from the other inmates, and specialists will examine him to discover whether or not he is insane before his trial is allowed to go on.

Claiming that the company was negligent and that proper warning of existing danger was not given, Casino Certafonti is suing the Public Service Corporation in the Camden Circuit Court for $10,000 for the death of his brother, Gaviento Certafonti. The latter was killed at the Camden Coke Works on May 27, 1906, by electricity.

These officers were chosen at a meeting last night of Bayonne Lodge of Elks: Samuel Goldenhorn, exalted ruler; John F. Gribbon, esteemed leading knight; C. O. Meyer, esteemed loyal knight; E. C. SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

Baseball men who have been poking fun at the recently organized Union League, an outlaw circuit which takes in Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Reading, Elizabeth, Paterson and Wilmington, are just beginning to realize that the scheme originating with Al Lawson will probably cause a peck of trouble for some of the major league clubs. Although unsuccessful offers have been made by the Union League to Hans Wagner, Tyrus Cobb, Jack Thoney and other well known players who are holding off for big money, it is said that Catcher Larry McLean of the Cincinnati club may jump his contract and sign with the Washington Unions for three years at $5,500 a year. An agent of the Union League has been at St. Augustine, Fla., where the Cincinnatis are training, for several days and the other night he got big McLean under his wing. They had a merry time and forgot to return to the hotel until almost daybreak. Manager Ganzel heard of the escapade and suspended McLean, but the latter promptly exploded a bomb with the statement that he intended to jump to the Union League.

Max Fleischmann, secretary of the Cincinnati club, hunted up the Union League man and after much persuasion the latter consented to keep hands off until Ganzel had seen McLean, but the latter, anxious to get the $5,500 a year, declared that he was through with Cincinnati. The manager of the Washington Unions is Arthur A. Irwin, one of the best known baseball promoters in America. Irwin has been in several baseball wars and believes in going after star players with big money. The Union League men, from their willingness to put up ready cash to bind their offers to crack players, have confirmed the belief that they have plenty of financial backing. All salaries have been guaranteed in advance and no expense is being spared in the construction of new ball parks in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

If the Union League manages to live through the coming season it is said that the promoters will invade New York with a club in The Bronx and will also put a club in either Providence or some other New England city. An attempt will also be made to induce many of the major league players to jump the reserve rule next fall, which means that a red hot baseball war will result. The Brooklyn Unions will play at Ridgewood Park, but it is not believed they will interfere with the business of the Brooklyn Nationals to any great extent. At the meeting of the Union League in Philadelphia on Wednesday President Lawson, Arthur Irwin and H. Walter Schlichter were appointed to draw up a playing schedule, the season to open on April 25 and close on September 19.

TENNIS.

Lawn tennis championship and tournament dates for the coming season were announced Thursday by the executive committee of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association. The list includes eighty-nine fixtures, with more to be added. Beginning with the Cuban tournament in March, to be played for the first time this year, the season runs to October 5, when the intercollegiate championship will be held.

Outside of play at the colleges the season begins in New York on May 20, when the Kings County Lawn Tennis Club, of Brooklyn, holds the Long Island championship. The Bachelors' Lawn Tennis Club, of Washington, follows with the Middle States championship on May 24, three days later than last year, after which the meetings come thick and fast. A number of tournaments figure in the list for the first time, but all except three were played last year, without official sanction. The tournament of the Staten Island Ladies' Club, on June 1, is among the new ones.

The Newport meeting for the national championship begins on August 18, two days earlier than last year. The annual Longwood meeting will be held on July 27—a week earlier than last year, but a week later than was customary until 1907.

The ties of the East, West and South in the national doubles championship will be played on August 13 to 15, the same week as the Southampton tournament, as they were last year. Aside from this there are few serious conflicts, with the exception that the metropolitan, New England and Massachusetts championships, played at the West Side Lawn Tennis Club, the Hartford Golf Club and the Longwood Cricket Club, respectively, all come in the same week. The women's national championship tournament in singles and doubles will be played in Philadelphia, as usual, on June 15 and following days.

He was telling her about the members of his cricket team. "Now, there's Brown," said he; "in a few weeks' time he'll be our best man."

Plainfield, N. J., March 21, 1908.

Bryan was forty-eight years old on Thursday—in years not in political wisdom.

Scudder!—that's a name that should make local optionists shudder. This dominie is the Burchard of his cause.

Griggs, Fort, Murphy and Baird; such is today's slate for delegates-at-large, but, "gentle reader," bear in mind that this list is subject to change daily from now on until April 28.

"I am convinced that if William J. Bryan cannot lead the Democratic party to a glorious victory in the coming campaign there is no Democrat who can," declared James E. Martine, the firm friend of Mr. Bryan, today.—Elizabeth, N. J., dispatch in New York Tribune today.

As Mr. Jerome once observed of Mr. Osborne, "Poor Jim!"

The Union County Board of Freeholders should certainly heed the request of the Fanwood township committee that Terrill road be macadamized. That thoroughfare leads direct to one of the most ornate and substantial structures in this section of the State. The highway is now in a most deplorable condition, and both Freeholders Wilbur and Doane can do a good work by using their influence with their colleagues to the end that the improvement be brought about at an early date.

ASSEMBLYMEN UNDER BAN.

Representatives Denounced by Anti-Saloon Adherents.

Riverside, March 21.—At a rally of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union Thursday night, the action of Assemblymen Griffith W. Lewis and John B. Irick in voting against the Crosby bill was condemned. A resolution was adopted as introduced by Rev. C. H. Barnes, pastor of the local Methodist church. After voicing indignation at the action of the Assemblymen the resolution adds:

"Furthermore, believing in home rule, especially in regard to the granting of licenses, we pledge ourselves to vote and work for only such candidates for the Assembly as will give their pledge to work and vote for the passage of a local option bill at the next session of the Legislature."

"Now is the time for action," said Rev. C. Rollin Smith, pastor of the Dobbins Memorial M. E. church, Delanco. "Prayers and meetings were all right and always will be, but the time has arrived for decisive work; something that will show the members of the Legislature that we want local option and are going to have it. Prepare yourself for a political fight during the coming six months. The two men sent to the Legislature from this county did not vote as the people desired, and the only course left open for the united church people and everybody else who wants to see home rule is to work for the election of men who will do as we wish and pass a local option law. Use your influence to secure the nomination of men who will go to Trenton and do as the people wish, and then after you get them nominated see that they are elected."

Before the meeting was over the members of the union decided to join hands with the other unions in Burlington county in conducting the campaign, with special sermons, meetings and rallies.

Young Woman Attempts Suicide.

Paterson, March 21.—Florence Berkman, twenty years old, who has been arrested many times, was again taken into custody last night after acting disorderly on the streets. When placed in a cell she attempted to hang herself by tearing a strip from her petticoat. When frustrated in her attempt she later tried to choke herself with her shoe laces. She was then placed in a padded cell.

A TRIBUTE.

Yesterday, March 20th, after a prolonged and distressing illness, Mrs. Fanny Grier, wife of Rev. Lewis Bond, of 720 Kensington avenue, this city, entered into rest.

Mrs. Bond was born in 1839, of Scotch Irish parentage and though in infancy the weakest of the family, she developed a strong frame which enabled her to outlive all her brothers and sisters and finally defy for many months a combination of diseases. Early in life she gave her heart to Christ and his service. Gifted with a sweet soprano voice and a winsome manner she was always a welcome visitor to the hospitals and prisons and homes of want and suffering in the city of New York, where she resided. In 1868 she married and with her husband joined the European Turkey Mission of the American Board and for 16 years her powerful Christian influence found fullest play on the foreign field. A short course of study in medicine, coupled with a natural gift in diagnosing disease made her a remarkably successful practitioner in a land sadly lacking skillful Christian medical treatment. On the frequent missionary tours with her husband the medicine case was always brought into use. Mrs. Bond's fascinating personality opened the doors and hearts of all classes, alike,—and it is a question whether her enforced absence from the mission, because of ill health, is more lamented by the poor or the rich. On leaving, a crowd of people, including four foreign consuls and their families, several government officials and three R. Catholic sisters were at the R. R. station to bid her farewell. An older daughter recently went to carry on work in the same mission, with her husband, Rev. P. B. Kennedy. A younger daughter, Mrs. Grove P. Hinman, and an only son, Alexander Russell Bond reside in Plainfield.

AUNT ACCUSES NEPHEW.

Woman Alleges He and Nearly $1,000 Have Disappeared.

Mrs. Amanda Whitman, an elderly widow living near Pine Grove, is mourning the loss of nearly $1,000, which was on deposit in one of the banks of Philadelphia.

Recently James McEwan, her nephew, was home on a visit, and his aunt asked him to go to Philadelphia, she says, and pay some bills. Not knowing the exact sum of their total, she says she instructed him to find out the amount and draw a check for that sum, she giving him a blank check signed ready to fill out. Whitman departed and promised to see that the bills were settled. Bills have been coming in since, and Mrs. Whitman visited Philadelphia yesterday to ascertain the trouble. She learned that the bills had not been paid, and visited the bank, to find, she alleges, that the check had been drawn out for nearly $1,000, and the money paid over. McEwen has not been located since.

LANDED IN AUTOIST'S LAP.

Atlantic City Woman Takes Embarrassing Aerial Flight.

Atlantic City, March 21.—Miss Agnes Grant, as she stepped across Atlantic avenue yesterday morning saw an automobile bearing swiftly down. She hesitated, lost her presence of mind and the next instant there was a swish of skirts and a femine shriek that startled pedestrians.

Dr. L. H. Bewly, who was driving the machine, jammed the brakes on hard, expecting that somebody about the size of Miss Grant was being killed, but with the swish of skirts there landed in his lap an indignant, but unhurt, young woman. The doctor took her to her hotel in his machine.

May Have Been Foul Play.

Atlantic City, March 21.—Doubt exists whether Carlo Camponero, whose mangled remains were found on the Shore Fast Line's tracks Wednesday night, was a victim of the third rail or four play. The head has not been recovered, although a thorough search was made for it. Inspection of the tracks yesterday by the county physician and coroner showed traces of blood several hundred feet away from the point where the body was found, and the clothing was wet, as if it had been in the water.

To Report on the Club Problem.

At the last meeting of the board of trustees of Princeton University a committee of its members was appointed to confer with a committee of the almuni on the club problem at Princeton. The committees have been at work for the past six weeks and have had several joint meetings. A report will be made at the meeting of the board of trustees, April 9. At present there is much curiosity as to the reform which may be proposed or the system which may be substituted for the present one.

Bayonne Teachers Protest.

Bayonne, March 21—Public school teachers of this city are exercised over an amendment to the school manual, which Henry Hinse, trustee, will endeavor to have passed at the next meeting of the Board of Education, and which provides that the schools be opened during Easter week and closed on Holy Thursday and Good Friday. For many years the teachers have had a vacation during Easter week.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The opening night of the "Fair of the Four Seasons" was attended by a large percentage of local church people at Friendship Hall last night, when a program of vocal and instrumental music, with several fancy dances, was presented. Among the dances was a Japanese drill and sunflower chorus, and later in the evening refreshments were served. The various booths for the bazaar are tastefully decorated, representing the different seasons of the year. The affair will be concluded tonight, when an oyster supper will be served and a musical program rendered. The bazaar is under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the New Market Baptist church.

William W. Giddes, who recently received orders of preaching from Rev. E. C. Dutcher, of the Methodist church, will speak at the close of the evening service at the church tomorrow on the topic "Paul Before Felix." He is a powerful speaker, and his work is receiving the commendation of all who have heard him.

In honor of the return of Miss Loretta Thornton, who recently returned to her home in the borough after several weeks spent in Jersey City nursing Miss Mary Shanaphy, a box social was held last night at the Hotel Nelson. There was a good turnout and the reception proved a great success.

The Holy Name Cadets attended a communion service at St. John's church in a body this morning, and will have their regular monthly meeting in the church tomorrow afternoon.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The regular services will be held at the Baptist church tomorrow. Morning preaching at 10:45, B. Y. P. U. 7:15 in the evening, preaching service 8 o'clock. Rev. T. Moore-Smith severs his connection with the church the following Sunday, March 29.

Miss Barbara Miller, who has been at Muhlenberg Hospital for several weeks, suffering from a complication of diseases, is reported as improving some during the week.

The Township Committee has started the spring road work. The gutters are being cleaned out and the holes in the roadbed filled in with stone.

The Township Committee met last night in the town rooms. Only the regular township routine business was transacted.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis have started housekeeping in the Clark house on Prospect avenue.

Henry C. Meyer and family have removed from Park avenue into their new house on Front street.

Rev. Mr. Dietrich will lead the prayer meeting at the Methodist church tonight.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Rev. C. W. F. Attlee spent yesterday in Orange, where he visited several members of the South Plainfield Baptist church who live there. The many friends here will be glad to learn that he is able to report favorably as to the condition of Mrs. Ephraim Boice.

The services will be held as usual in the Baptist church tomorrow. The subject in the morning will be "Without Faith It Is Impossible to Please God," and in the evening, "By Faith Moses Gave Up Egypt."

The Young People's Social Club met at the home of Mrs. Howard Elliot, on Clinton avenue, last evening. After routine business had been completed a new member, Arthur Grey, was duly initiated.

"Our Influence" will be the topic for the Christian Endeavor meeting tomorrow night. Miss Emma Faulks will be the leader.

Miss Edith Allen, of West Fifth street, left yesterday to spend a week with relatives at Smyrna, Del.

Funeral services at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Jacob Geier, 122 Madison avenue, Plainfield, N. J., on Sunday, March 22, at 2:30 p. m.

Sardines Deserting France.

An unexplained phenomenon of sea life has caused great loss to the sardine fishers and packers on the west cost of France. The French sardines have long been known everywhere for the superior quality, but duing the past season they seem to have deserted their favorite haunts, and most of the few caught have been too large for packing. No satisfactory explanation of the disapparance of the fish, upon which an extensive industry was based, has been offered. Some of the packers say that the fishermen themselves are to blame, because the price of bait, imported from Norway and Sweden, having increased, they neglected to strew it in the usual quantities over water, and thus the shoals of fish were not attracted to the coast.

Killing Bacteria With Electric Light.

It has been found that the bactericidal effect of the arc light is much superior to that of sunlight, because the very rapid ultra-violet radiation from the sun is absorbed by the atmosphere. A rapid oscillation high-tension arc, particularly when formed between iron points, gives off an abundance of ultra-violet rays of extremely short-wave length. Quartz is transparent to this light, of which it transmits 60 per cent., but gelatine and an oxide of iron, even a thin film of it, are entirely opaque. Ice is as transparent as air to these rays, but blood is opaque, and accordingly, in applying them to the human body, they are passed through ice pressed upon the region affected so as to make it bloodless.

Quartz Thermometers.

In France Mons. Dufour has succeeded in making thermometer tubes of pure quartz. Not only are these tubes exceedingly transparent, but their resistence to heat and other advantages make them superior to glass for thermometers intended to measure high temperatures. In such thermometers melted tin takes the place of mercury, and the scale reads from about 465 degrees Fahrenheit up over 1000 degrees. It could be run up to 1800 degrees, for quartz does not soften below that temperature.

Dead Detective Was Mathematician.

Trenton, March 21.—County Detective Frank Munro, who is dead at his home in this city from consumption, following an attack of typhoid fever, was also noted for his ability as a mathematician. He could mentally multiply three figures with three figures and add up long col- [illegible] without making a single error.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.

(OFFICIAL.)

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, March 5, 1908, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. Roll call showed all members present except Freeholder Donohue—1.

The minutes of the previous meeting were on motion of Freeholder Cady, adopted as per printed copies on members' desks.

Reports of Committees.

By Committee to settle with the surrogate:

To the Board of Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee appointed to settle with the surrogate, would respectfully report that they have audited the surrogate's accounts covering the period from November 15, 1907, to February 29, 1908, and find them correct and the total amount received during that time t obe $2,820.72, and the total disbursements $117.25, total balance paid to the County Collector $2,703.47.

CHARLES A. SMITH,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
BRADFORD JONES,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Robison, received and placed on file.

By the Committee on Jail Inspection:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J.

Your committee on jail inspection would respectfully report that they have visited and made thorough inspection of the jail, also the books of the warden.

During the month of February, 71 prisoners have been committed; 77 are now confined in the jail, 50 men, 7 women and 14 boys; average confined during the month, 75 24-100; number treated by jail physician, 26.

Your committee would also report, that during one of our tours of inspection, upon examination of the physician's report, we discovered that an advanced case of tuberculosis was being treated, and the patient was allowed to exercise, eat, drink and hold conversation in the jail corridor with the other prisoners. This particular case was one of tuberculosis of the glands of the neck, an open, running sore on the left side, making the case more serious. We are informed from reliable sources that cases of this kind, and many of a more infectious nature are given the same opportunity of imperling the health of other prisoners, who from the fact of their being confined in the atmosphere common to a jail, are more susceptible to infection. This atmosphere is not affected. The lack of light and oxygen therefore is all the more against the diseased or sickly ones. The prisoner mentioned above was in such a serious condition above that the physician ordered him sent to the hospital. After a short time, the hospital authorities sent him back to jail, refusing to keep cases of this character. Incidentally we are informed that the expense to the county of a prisoner while in the hospital is $9 a day.

Your Committee therefore would recommend that the Board take suitable action to ascertain the advisability and probable cost of providing suitable quarters in connection with the jail for the isolation of prisoners affected with contagious or infectious diseases, the same to be known as isiation wards, one for male and one for female prisoners. The danger of infection, and the cost of keeping these prisoners in a hospital, we think, warrant us in making these recommendations.

Respectfully submitted,
E. K. ADAMS,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
J. LOGAN FAYS,
Committee.

After some discussion, it was ordered that the report be received and referred to Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings, said committee to report back to this Board.

By Committee on Proposed State Aid Road on North Broad street and Elizabeth avenue, Union Township, etc:

To the Board of Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee to whom was referred the above matter, would report that they have examined the conditions, and have made an examination of the situation with regard to the Street Railway Company, and the work which would devolve upon them.

We find that the Street Railway Company is willing to remove its tracks to the centre of the railway, and is also willing to pave with stone blocks, the space between the tracks, also between the rails, and for eighteen inches outside of the rails the work to be done at the same time that the road is rebuilt.

Your Committee would therefore recommend the adoption of the resolution presented herewith concerning this matter.

JOHN W. CADY,
NOAH WOODRUFF,
HENRY KROUSE,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Pierson, the report was received and placed on file.

Freeholder Adams, chairman of County Road Committee, reported progress on matter of Borough Roselle and the B. & O. Railway crossing on St. George's avenue.

New Business.

By Freeholder Cladek:

Resolved, That the Rahway Drawbridge Committee is hereby authorized to make a contract with George Ball as bridge tender for the drawbridge at Milton avenue, at a yearly salary of $200.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By the Elizabeth Drawbridge Committee.

Resolved, That Fred Lauch is hereby appointed bridge tender for Summer street bridge, Elizabeth, in place of Dennis Whalen, deceased, at the former compensation, $250 per annum.

THOS. J. PIERSON,
E. K. ADAMS,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
Committee.

Freeholder Cladek moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

Resolution by Freeholder Cady:

Resolved, That North Broad street, in the city of Elizabeth and the town of Union, from the intersection of King street northerly, to the intersection of Elizabeth avenue and Hillside avenue, and Elizabeth avenue from the intersection of Hillside avenue and North Broad street northeasterly to the Essex county line, all laying within the limits of the county of Union, being at least 33 feet in width and about 1 mile in lenth, and connecting at both the southerly and the northeasterly ends with permanently improved roads, be improved by the construction of a macadam road.

And be it further Resolved, That the clerk of this Board be directed to send a copy of this resolution to the State Commissioner of Public Roads, for his approval, and that upon the approval of the same by the State Commissioner of Public Roads, the County Road Committee of this Board be authorized to proceed to have the said roads surveyed in accordance with the provisions of chapter 58 of the laws of 1905.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the foregoing resolutions, and on roll call they were unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Smith:

Whereas, the town of Westfield finds it necessary to change the grade of South Broad street, Westfield, and lower the brook crossing some,

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine and report on the alterations or rebuilding of the bridge on said street made necessary by such change of grade, and the probable cost of same.

On motion of Freeholder Pierson, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Smith, Doane and Cladek.

By Elizabeth Drawbridge Committee:

Resolved, That the County Collector is hereby authorized to pay the widow of Dennis Whelan, former bridge tender at the Summer street, Elizabeth, two months salary, amounting to $41.70.

THOMAS J. PIERSON,
E. K. ADAMS,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
Committee.

Freeholder Jones moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll it was adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That the Committee of the Whole examine West Grand street and First avenue from DeHart Place in the city of Elizabeth, to Locust street in the borough of Roselle, with a view to the adoption of the road as a county and State Aid Road, and the improvement of the same, the Committee to meet at the Court House on Thursday, March 12, 1908, at 2:30 p. m., to go over the ground, and to report at the next meeting of this Board.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Fay:

Resolved, That this Board extends its wishes for a speedy recovery of Freeholder Donahue from his present illness.

On motion of Freeholder Pierson, the resolutions was unanimously adopted.

The following bills, properly audited and approved, were read and on roll call, unanimously ordered paid, viz:

IMITATING NATURE.

Natural Conditions Simulated at the Royal Botanical Gardens.

The most perfect imitation possible of the natural forces at their best has been sought in the artificial plant-growing at the Royal Botanic Gardens, in London, and B. H. Thwaite points out that the triple combination of water-screened arc light, electrostatic stimulus and highly-fertilizing atmosphere can be controlled in a wide range of experiments to show the maximum acceleration of growth and the highest quality of product.

The necessary heat and actinic light, as weill as carbon dioxide, moisture and nitrogen fertilizer in the form of ammonia sulphate, are all derived from coal. Perfect combustion is insured by bringing the fuel into gaseous condition by a suction gas-producer, and a gas engine gives power for electrical energy, while the water from the cylinder packet supplies heat for the glass house, and the exhaust gases are led through earthenware pipes to the plants, furnishing carbon dioxide, water vapor, oxygen and nitrogen in a heated condition. The power, heat, moisture and gases are easily controlled. The arc lights, with hood and water-screen, are slowly moved to and fro along the entire length of the glass house, and an electrostatic machine electrifies plants and roots, as well as the air.

A Party Where Nobody Gossiped.

I went to a party last night
Where every one looked his best—
The beetle in armor burnished bright,
The snake in a jacket laced with white;
The pink-eyed canker-worm and the snail.
And the toad in an orange vest.

The orchestra soon was heard
With a toot and a tum-ti-tum;
And the bough of the blackthorn dipped and stirred
With a ripple of notes from a roguish bird,
Who pipped a song to his bashful wife.
While a bowlegged grasshopper played the fife
And a bullfrog beat the drum.

What mallows and pinks were there,
And clover as good as June,
And rose-leaf cakes enough and to spare,
With honey-dew nectar everywhere!
And nobody gossiped or danced all night,
For nature at 7 put out the light,
And we all went home by the moon.

"The Lowest Order of Mind."

At a recent meeting of New England college presidents one of the most important of them all remarked that mental arithmetic did not train a child's mind and that a mathematician per se was incapable of moral reasoning. Mathematicians might take notice, remarks Harper's Weekly. "It reminds one," says the writer, "of Stiles—Stiles, the greatest of the Yale mathematicians of his time. He, indeed, had virtues as well as mathematics and was the graceful and learned editor of Garden and Forest, horticulturist editor of The New York Tribune and president of the New York Park Commission. Once he was ill for a long time—a very long time—and he used to say that when he became convalescent he discovered that the mathematical was the lowest order of mind. He wanted to read; he tried poetry, and that would not do; nor would fiction or philosopry or history—but when he at last tried mathematics he found that his enfeebled mind could master that."

Balloons Need Pure Gas.

A writer in a contemporary states that he examined the envelope of a balloon which burst at the International Exhibition at Milan in 1906. A number of spots were visible on the envelope, and at these places the material could be easily torn, whereas at other parts it showed great resistance to tearing. These spots were found to have been caused by phosphoric and arsenic acids, produced by oxidation from arseniureted and phosphureted hydrogen contained in the hydrogen gas. The presence of these impurities is due to impure materials in the preparation of the hydrogen, and the author recommends that the preparation of the gas for filling balloons should be under strict chemical control.

The Hindoos.

For 3,000 years the Hindoo standard of living has been almost the same for rich and poor. The rajah's floors are bare, and the rich man washes in the open air and dries himself in the sun like his poorer brother.

THE ESCAPADE

A POST MARITAL ROMANCE

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

ILLUSTRATIONS BY [illegible]

"Who came, did you say?" cried Carrington, turning quickly.

"The earl of Strathgate, your honor."

"Was he here?"

"Two hours agone, sir. He took a bite of breakfast and a draught of wine and our best horse and rode on."

"Was he alone?"

"Alone, your lordship. There's summat strange about it, too, for his head was all bloody, his coat was streaked with mud, he was riding a bay horse, looked like a carriage horse, bareback with bits of harness dangling to it. He had no hat on—"

"Where is that bay horse?" cried Carrington, tingling with excitement.

"Yonder, in the stable yard being rubbed down."

Carrington, throwing the bridle of his mare to the nearest hostler, ran to the stable yard.

"My horse Betty! By heaven!" he exclaimed. "What is the meaning of this?" He turned and faced the astonished landlord once more. "Did you say that Strathgate was alone?"

"Absolutely alone."

"There was no carriage with him, nobody with him, no man, no women?"

"Not a soul, my lord."

"Could he have left them somewhere, some by-road, some—?"

"I seen him myself," said the landlord, "coming down hill a mile back. You can see for yourself that the inn commands a view of the road. He was riding like one possessed. I fear your coach horse will never be worth anything again, Lord Carrington."

"Damn the horse! What said he?"

"He said he was riding to Portsmouth."

"Did he ask any questions?"

"He asked me if there was a woman and a young man had got horses and ridden on ahead, if anybody had seen anything of any kind of coach, or wagon, or carriage, or people on horseback."

"And what answer made you?"

"'Cept the coach for Portsmouth, which went up empty, and some farm wagons driven by men, we knew that nobody had passed this morning."

"And you say Strathgate was in a hurry?"

"I never seed a man more in a hurry, your lordship, unless it was yourself," added mine host.

"You're right," cried Carrington.

He was utterly bewildered by the situation. His calculations were all at sea. What could be the meaning of Strathgate alone upon the road, with a broken head and a muddy coat, riding on a coach horse and driving the beast even as he had forced Sailor and the mare? Where were Ellen and Deborah? It was more than he could understand. Could Strathgate be flying from Carrington's anger? Had he dealt foully with Ellen? My lord groaned aloud. And yet it could not be. He had every confidence in his wife's ability to protect herself if it came to a battle, even against a man like Strathgate. And he knew too well Strathgate's proven courage, roue, libertine and gambler though he was, to think for a moment that he was fleeing from him, Carrington.

It must be that he was pursuing some one, but if so, who? Who, but Ellen and Deborah, and how could they keep ahead of such furious chasing? They had not gone off together, then. In some way they had given Strathgate the slip. Lord Carrington jumped at this conclusion and his heart bounded. The worst was not true of his wife. What was he to do? He could see nothing for it but to try to overtake Strathgate. He could perhaps furnish a clew to the mystery, and Carrington swore to make him tell, or to kill him on the way.

It took much less time to think all this than it does to tell it. Throwing the landlord a guinea, refreshing himself with the draught of wine and bidding mine host look after Sailor and the groom when they came on, Carrington mounted the horse which was brought to him. It was a sorry steed, and the landlord's heart misgave him as he saw that Carrington intended to be as good as his word and get to the next posting station in an hour.

My lord rode with as heavy a hand as before, but with a considerably lighter heart. Of one thing he was certain, that Ellen was not with Strathgate. He wondered if the earl had come by that broken head and soiled coat from his wife's endeavor. He even laughed aloud in savage glee and pride at that very prowess and strength and masculine ability which had seemed to him so poor a quality when contrasted with the fawning, mincing mawkishness of Lady Cecily, now disconsolate at the hall. And so my lord rode on, his heart growing lighter with every bound of his horse.

CHAPTER X.

The Bewilderment of Strathgate.

As my Lord Carrington rode with increasing satisfaction and Sir Charles Seton sailed in a genuine sense of self-congratulation in that he alone was on the right track, my lord of Strathgate was full of bewilderment. Like Carrington, he, too, made inquiries at every posting station, at every wayside inn, from every passer-by, as to the whereabouts of the two who had escaped him, and everywhere he had been met by an absolute lack of information.

A dozen times he had hesitated—mentally, that is—as to his course, yet in every case he had persuaded himself that the fugitives must be headed for Portsmouth. Ellen had made it quite clear to him that there was her destination. There had not been the least secrecy as to her plans. There was nothing whatever to be gained by pursuing the way Strathgate had taken them when the, to him, unfortunate accident to the carriage had occurred. They must have retraced their steps, but if they had done so, where had they gone? They seemed to have disappeared as completely as if the earth had swallowed them.

It was possible, of course, that Ellen might have thought better of her escapade and returned to Carrington, although knowing what sort of a reception would probably greet her, Strathgate thought this was hardly likely. At any rate, since he could not return to Carrington, and since he had no trace of his quarry, he reasoned clearly enough that the best thing for him to do was to get to Portsmouth as soon as possible. He had missed them somehow on the road, but if, as he believed, Portsmouth was their ultimate destination, he would be in a position to mature his plans and make ready to intercept them when they did arrive.

Strathgate was a man who did not believe in doing things by halves, and he rode to Portsmouth as if on a wager. His interest in Ellen was that which might have been expected from a man of his time and condition, but the fact that she was not to fall into his hands, that she had already baffled him; that she had shown such tremendous spirit in endeavoring to kill him, added a joy to the adventure which immensely tickled his jaded soul. He had started out on the undertaking and he was determined to see it through at all hazards. Of course, he realized that Lord Carrington would enter the game as soon as he could get within reach of the table, but Strathgate was as brave as he was vicious, and he rather welcomed the added player.

If he had known, and, indeed, it did dawn upon him after a time, he would have the more enjoyed the fact that his own rapid progress greatly hindered Carrington's advance. Indeed, toward the latter part of the afternoon he threw many obstacles in the way of a possible pursuer, on the chance that it might be Carrington—or even Seton—by securing all the post horses that were worth anything at every station and mounting hostlers and post boys on them, with instructions to ride to the next station at his expense. Consequently, while Strathgate's progress was faster and faster, Carrington's advance became slower and slower.

Strathgate, by hard riding, reached Portsmouth about nightfall. Carrington was not to arrive, although he pressed on all night, until the following morning. Strathgate was morally certain that the people he was chasing could not have reached Portsmouth before him. Indeed, he had made a record-breaking trip from Carrington, so he was not hurried in his preparations for the night. A bath, a royal supper, clean clothes, all of which his money and his rank made easy to procure, greatly refreshed him.

Therefore, although he had been up all the night before and wanted sleep badly, he determined to make some inquiries before he went to bed. He found, to his great surprise, that the New Eagle, which was the name of the ship owned by the countess of Carrington, had sailed that morning. So far fortune favored him, for Lady Ellen would arrive at Portsmouth, he thought, and find her ship gone.

He enlisted the service of the landlord and secured a number of men whom he posted at the various inns, with instructions to notify him immediately in case Ellen and Deborah arrived. He could give an accurate description of the two, and he felt that he had thus spread a net which they could not escape. Then he went comfortably to bed and slept the sleep of the very weary, if not of the conscience free.

Carrington, plunging along on exhausted, half-foundered horses, the leavings of Strathgate, lost the comparative cheerfulness of the morning and worked himself up into such a fury that if he had come across the earl he would probably have killed him out of hand without giving him a chance for defense.

The only one thoroughly satisfied with the situation was Seton, and even his dash eastward was stopped, for the wind, which had held briskly for the greater part of the day, died out about nightfall and left the gallant captain helplessly tossing in the short waves of the channel. He could only guess that Ellen in her boat had not yet been able to reach Portsmouth and entirely escape him. Capt. Seton was a man of energy and resource, and by the use of a judicious system of bribery, he induced Whibley and the two boys to break out the oars. He himself completed the quartette, and through the long hours of the night, the four, with short intervals for rest, urged the little boat after the fugitives.

So far as the objects of all this riding and sailing and mad chasing were concerned, although success had attended their efforts up to this time, it could not be said that they [illegible] of them particularly happy. In the first place, the sun beating down upon the unsheltered boat—although the winter season was approaching—was very hot. In the second place, hard bread and water were not exactly luxuries. Time was when Ellen could have eaten them without dissatisfaction and have even been thankful that she had them, but that time had passed. Although her spirit was as great as ever, the luxurious living of Carrington had naturally affected her taste. And Debbie had had no experience of that kind at all. The younger manifested a disposition to reproach the elder, only checked by Ellen's stern and mandatory method of dismissing the subject.

To hearten up her young friend, Ellen put a brave face upon the whole matter. She pointed out to her how comfortable and free from pursuit, or interference, they would be when they boarded the New Eagle at Portsmouth; what a pleasant voyage they would have back; and made various other suggestions to cheer her young comrade and to fight down the growing dismay in her own heart. It was only by constantly holding up before herself the picture of my lord and Lady Cecily in each other's arms in the arbor that she kept herself to the pitch of her adventure.

She found herself thinking wistfully of the happy days of the past; of the many pleasant cruises which they had made in these very waters. What a gallant, devoted, royal lover he had been! How she hated Cecily Carrington! She looked at herself and took a mental inventory of that she could not see and wondered how he could for a moment prefer that weak and vapid creature to his wife.

But it was not personal beauty or charm that she lacked after all. He had been ashamed of her ways, of her inability to enter into the customs and practices of a vicious society on terms of equality with those who had been born and lived in it all their vitiated lives. He was ashamed of her! A proud woman was Ellen, Lady Carrington, and sometimes she almost forgot her jealousy in her outraged dignity. And between the two passions she vowed that she would never see my lord again until he came begging forgiveness. If he wanted her, he would have to chase her across the ocean, and when he got there, if he came, she would make him feel all that he had lost and the price that he must pay before he could be re-established in her good graces.

And yet it is probable that Ellen had never loved Carrington as she did while tossing about in that little open boat, a lonely speck upon the sea, munching dry hard bread and drinking tepid water and trying to console the whimpering little maiden by her side.

And it is possible, too, that Lord Carrington never realized how much he was in imminent danger of losing and how much the loss meant to him as he plunged along through the darkness on the way to Portsmouth.

Ellen had advanced much farther on her journey when she ran into the calm which later overtook Seton. It was just as well, she thought, for she would scarcely have dared to undertake the navigation of Portsmouth harbor in the night, and if the breeze sprang up after midnight, as it was apt to do, she calculated from the hours she had been sailing and the probable speed of the boat, that she would be able to reach the harbor at daybreak. Ellen intended to board the New Eagle, which she knew from the advice she had received from the supercargo, was about ready to sail. She had nothing to do in Portsmouth save to purchase a few necessaries and then she would order her ship to be got under way for Philadelphia at once.

All Ellen's ready money, except what she carried on her person, had been left to Carrington in the cheque on her desk, but she still retained control of several stout merchantmen which had come to her from her father and the New Eagle was the best of them. Once she set foot on the docks of that ship, she would be perfectly safe. Meanwhile, as she had been up practically all the night before, she felt that she must have some slumber.

She furled the sail of the little boat, turned the tiller over to Debbie with instructions for her to let the shallop drift and to waken Ellen in two hours by the watch. Then she stretched out her tired body beneath the thwarts, pillowed her head on her arm and went instantly to sleep with the readiness of a sailor who learns to take his rest and refreshment whenever it can be had.

It was very lonely and miserable for poor Debbie. She was flying like Ellen from that she loved best, but unlike Ellen there was no reason on earth for her to break away. It was only the constraint put upon her by the stronger will that had brought her to this wretched pass. She sat idly in the stern sheets, holding the tiller, while the tears trickled down her pretty red cheeks. She wished that she were anywhere else under heaven than in this boat. She looked at Ellen almost malevolently, surveying her slight and boyish figure with a venomous glance and the thought that since clothes of the other sex so well became her, Ellen should have been born a man.

Poor Debbie felt very wretched and very lonely tossing idly about in the quiet seas under the calm stars. She wondered if Sir Charles did really love her as she had more than once indicated, or whether he were like the faithless Carrington and the insidious Strathgate. Was there no honor and virtue among men in England, she queried. And alas, out of her experience, she found little comforting assurance. Yet a man who could sit for an hour with a woman looking at Baxter's "Saints' Rest"—surely that was the test of love if ever there could be one!

Deborah knew nothing about the proverbial willingness of the devil to steal the livery of heaven to delude mankind, and especially womankind, and if she had, she would have spurned the thought as doing an injustice to her ideal of Sir Charles. And indeed, whatever else Sir Charles might be capable of, he was really in earnest—not over Baxter, that was a mere incident—but over Debbie. If he had not been, nothing on earth could have induced him to toil and sweat over an oar through half the night three or four leagues behind.

After a long while Debbie felt sorry for Ellen. The latter had turned in her sleep and Debbie could see her face clearly in the rising moonlight. There were traces of tears upon it. Debbie forgot her own grief, which was largely experimental, in commiseration for Ellen's real misfortunes. And so she resolutely kept herself awake and let Ellen sleep until long past midnight. Indeed, unused to the hard bed in which she lay, Ellen at last woke of her own motion, and reproaching Deborah for her disobedience of orders made the tired girl lie down, while she herself took the helm to watch.

There was nothing to do except to look out for passing vessels and she had plenty of time for silent thought about her past, her present and her future.

FLAMING TOWEL ON HER HEAD.

Heating It to Cure Headache, Spark in Folds Ignites Young Wife's Hair.

Mrs. Michael Reo, eighteen years old, of No. 375 Morris avenue, Newark, was perhaps fatally burned Thursday as a result of a most unusual accident. Seized with a headache, she heated a towel, which she tied tightly about her head. She then reclined on a couch, where, after a moment, her hair became ignited and she became enveloped with flames.

It is believed that the towel caught fire and was smouldering when Mrs. Reo adjusted it about her head. Neighbors had the victim removed to the City Hospital. The doctors say she will not recover.

To Dedicate New Church.

The people of Neshanic Station are making preparations for the dedication of the new Methodist Episcopal church in that place Thursday, March 26. The morning service will begin at 10:30 o'clock, with Rev. John May, the patser, in charge. The sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. William H. Morgan, pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal church in Newark. After this dinner will be served in the lecture-room by the ladies of the church. The afternoon service will begin at 2:30 o'clock, and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Daniel Halleron, of Newark, the presiding elder of the Elizabeth District, who will preach. Supper will also be served, and the evening service will be especially interesting to young people, with music and good speakers.

BOROUGH HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS DEFEAT WESTFIELD FIVE.

Outplayed by the North Plainfield High School girls' team, which excelled in team work and shooting, the Westfield High School girls' five were defeated by a score of 11-4 in a game at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon. The score at the end of the first half was 8-0 in favor of the boroughites, but the visitors braced up in the second half, and scored four points while the local girls were adding three points to their score. The outcome of the game was never in doubt. The line-ups:

N. P. H. S. Miss Margery Cooley and Miss Anna Daly, forwards; Miss Marjorie Hart, centre; the Misses Helen George, Ida Englehart and Margery Cooley, guards. W. H. S.—The Misses Adele Codding, Ray Harrison and Mildred Burn, forwards; Miss Kate Penchern, centre; Miss Lucile Sack and Miss Madelyn Worth. Referee, Miss Margaret Mosher, Y. W. C. A. Fifteen minute halves.

"HARVARD" AND "YALE" TIE IN BOYS' BASKETBALL LEAGUE

The "Harvard" and "Princeton" teams in the boys' department basketball league at the Y. M. C. A. were victorious in one-sided games played at the association gymnasium this morning. "Harvard" won from "Yale," leaders of the league, by a score of 15-0, and are now tied for first place with the Blue. "Princeton" trimmed "Columbia" 15-1. The league record follows:

	Won.	Lost.
Yale	5	3
Harvard	5	3
Cornell	4	4
Princeton	4	4
Columbia	2	6

A Fortune In Scrap.

The scrap heap of a large industrial company is a decidedly interesting affair and a rather valuable asset. That of the New York Edison Company for last year was sold approximately for $200,000. The material included 632,000 pounds of scrap copper, 359,000 pounds of pig iron, 71,000 pounds of mixed metals and approximately 500 tons of iron. This does not include the materials which were redeemed for further use.

The annual business meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church will be held Wednesday night, at which time officers will be elected and reports presented.

A meeting for the election of three trustees to succeed James R. Joy, W. R. Coddington and Samuel Bingaman will be held at the First M. E. church Monday night.

The choir of the First Baptist church will give a special musical service tomorrow night, which will include a selection from Gaul's "The Holy City," and numbers from other famous composers.

Mrs. T. C. Bodine will deliver an address on temperance at the Sunday-school session in the West End Tabernacle tomorrow afternoon. George Van Emburg will conduct the evening service at 8 o'clock.

The Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Association will meet at the Y. M. C. A. Monday night at 8o'clock. Harry Crawford will lead the devotional service, and Robert Love will speak on the topic, "Shall We Present the Pledge?" Rev. J. W. Musson will teach the temperance lesson for next Sunday.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Solomon Mann, the Plainfield grocer, has opened a store at Roselle.

—Miss A. E. Lincoln, the florist, will occupy her store on Park avenue, April 1, and resume business again after two years' rest and vacation.

—Fresh vegetables are always a feature at Neuman Brothers' store. The consignments are received every morning and the assortment is the largest in town.

—Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Martin, Sr., of Duer street, will move next week to Clinton avenue, where they expect to remain until their new house in Orchard Park is completed.

Mrs. Garret Pfaff, of North Branch, has been visiting relatives in Plainfield.

"OTHER WOMAN" FACES HUSBAND IN COURT.

Egidius Hentenstein, who gave his address as 9 Rankin street, Newark, was confronted by his wife and a young woman in the First Precinct Court at Newark yesterday morning, where he had been summoned to answer a charge of non-support. With Mrs. Hentenstein was Miss Freda Kirit, a domestic servant, living at 736 Clinton avenue, who in answer to Judge Howell declared Hentenstein had been courting her for several months. She alleged that Hentenstein posed as a single man.

For nine weeks, Mrs. Hentenstein charged, her husband had failed to provide her with means of support. The couple formerly lived at 63 South Orange avenue. Mrs. Hentenstein now lives at 41 Peshine avenue.

The husband declared that he was not guilty, because he had lost track of his wife since she packed up her belongings in the South Orange address and went away. Mrs. Hentenstein produced several glaring red postal cards which she claimed Hentenstein sent to her since he left her.

"He has been keeping company with another woman," Mrs. Hentenstein declared, "and I have her here to prove it." Judge Howell set back in his chair when Miss Kerit slipped forward and corroborated all that the wife had said concerning Hentenstein as a love-maker. With all his alleged faults, however, Mrs. Hentenstein displayed a disposition to forgive and forget and Hentenstein was paroled for two weeks with the understanding that he pay his wife $3 a week. He said he earns $8.64 a week.

More Pay for Probation Workers.

Jersey City, March 21.—The request of Richard Stevens, of Hoboken, probation officer of Hudson county, was complied with by the Board of Freeholders yesterday and the salaries of the assistant probation officers, Mrs. C. B. Alexander, sister of the probation officer, and James Butler were increased from $300 a year to $1,000 and $1,200, respectively. The money will not benefit the assistants, as it is to be used to pay for additional clerical help in the office, as there are 1,355 wards on the probation list, and under the law the number of paid appointees is restricted to the three.

Eels and the Searchlight.

Danish investigators have found a means of checking the downward migration of breeding eels to the sea, whereby it is hoped that a valuable food supply may be saved for the country, for these migrating eels when they have once reached the sea never to return to their native rivers. The method is simplicity itself. A large acetylene searchlight is placed by the river bank in such a position that its rays can be made to illuminate the comparative shallow water, and it is found that by this means the downward movement of the fish can be effectually checked.

"Coming Through."

Marjorie was gazing intently at her father's bald head as she remarked: "Papa, are you still growing?"

Papa—"No, dear, I think not. Why do you ask?"

Marjorie—"Because you're coming through the top of your head."

Mrs. Terrill is a daughter of the late Theodore Sofield, who was a well known Plainfielder and at one time secretary of Gazelle Engine Company.

WORLD'S QUININE PRODUCTION.

India Becoming a Factor in Its Manufacture.

According to a recent report, India is becoming quite a factor in quinine production, there being manufactured in the province of Madras last year 15,771 pounds, and in Bengal, 11,927, making a total of 27,638 pounds from all India. The island of Java manufactured and exported 43,750 pounds.

The raw material, quinine, is produ cedas follows: Java, 14,726,000 pounds; India, 2,020,000 pounds; Ceylon, 407,000 pounds; South America, 775,000 pounds; Africa, 179,872 pounds; total, 18,107,872 pounds.

This, when manufactured, would produce 861,000 pounds of quinine, which, added to the manufactured product of India and Java would give a total of 933,000 pounds of quinine produced last year. The two principal markets for this product are Amsterdam and London.

PRISONERS AS BAROMETERS.

Noisy Demonstrations at Reformatory Always Precede Storm.

Rahway, March 21.—The noisy demonstrations in which many of the inmates of the reformatory here indulge, periodically, are looked upon by some of the keepers as an unfailing indication of approaching storm weather. "A storm like that last one we had," said one of the attendants yesterday, "always seems to have an effect upon the inmates in the cells, and still more so upon those who sleep in the corridors. The uneasiness of the prisoners is always noticeable from two to four hours in advance of the arrival of a storm. When the prisoners start shouting, singing and making other noises, we know a storm is nigh."

Object to Their New Quarters.

Elizabeth, March 21.—After remodelling the city hall building and providing new offices for departments of the municipal government, the School and Fire boards have refused to accept their new quarters. The Board of Education is located in the Lyceum theatre building and J. P. Reilly, president of the board, said yesterday that there was not enough room in the offices provided in the newly remodeled building. Chief Gerstrung objects to moving his office from the second floor of the present department headquarters to the city hall, thereby removing several blocks from his horse, which is now stabled near him on the floor below.

Incorporate Catholic Dioceses.

Assembly Bill No. 247, introduced on March 9, provides for the incorporation of the Catholic Diocese of Newark and Trenton. It was introduced at the joint request of Bishops O'Connor and McFaul. At present all church property is held by the Bishops in trust for the diocese—suits are brought by or against him, etc. This bill would transfer al that to the corporation.

Coal In Austria-Hungary.

The official figures of coal production in Austria-Hungary, during 1907, show that the output was 13,828,000 tons, which is an increase of about 2,200,000 tons on the output of 1906. The output of coke was 1,845,000 tons, and of briquettes 137,000 tons. The production of lignite last year was 26,048,000 tons; of lignite briquettes 159,000 tons, and of coke from lignite 32,000 tons.

His Bright Idea.

Not many years ago a well known dealer was visited by a would be seller who had in his hand an envelope containing seventeen signatures of Samuel Pepys, which, he said, he had just cut off the original letters to save trouble! By so doing he had diminished the value of his property by nearly £200.—London Opinion.

ACKERMAN ON C. S. BILL

Union's Senator Explains the Real Purpose of Measure He is Fathering.

WHEREIN IT WILL BENEFIT.

Favors a Non-Partisan Civil Service Commission—People's Business Is Most Important.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, father of the Civil Service measure bearing his name, in talking of the provisions of his bill says:

"A Governor of New York said once, in speaking of the Civil Service regulations in New York, where they had been in force fourteen years: 'Now that we have it embodied in the constitution of the State, it is deemed by the people that appointments in the various civil divisions of the State shall be according to merit and fitness, so far as practical, to be determined by examinations, and those examinations, so far as practical, to be competitive. In my opinion, there is no clause in the constitution since those great clauses embodying our fundamental rights were written which is of greater importance to the maintenance of high standards of adminstration than the clause relating to the Civil Service.'

"I understand that, wherever Civil Service laws have been enacted, no serious efforts have been made to secure their repeal, and they have proved to be both economical and efficient. The object of Senate bill No. 6 is to benefit all the people, not to hurt them, for it means a fair show for everybody. It means a square deal to those holding and seeking employment in the public service.

"The suggested law for New Jersey is based on the principle of merit and fitness. It expressly states that no question in any examination shall relate to political or religious opinions or affiliations. It also provides that such examinations shall be practical in their character, and shall relate to those matters which will fairly test the relative capacity of the persons examined to discharge the duties of the position to which they seek to be appointed. The examinations are to be in such locality or localities as will most readily provide an opportunity for all citizens of the State or to all citizens of any municipality that may adopt the provisions of the act. Do these things look like theories, or are they common sense and practical propositions?

"Take the case of the unskilled laborers. Vacancies in the labor class shall be filled by appointment from lists of applicants and preference in employment shall be given according to the date of application—and the only examination in this class refers to age, residence, physical condition, ability to labor, sobriety, industry, capacity and experience in the trade or employment for which he applies. The laborer is protected in his subsequent employment in the public service the same as the other branches of the service. Is there anything fanciful about this plan? Is it unbusinesslike?

"The object of Senate bill No. 6 is to have the business of the State—and it is a detailed business proposition of serious and lasting value to the people—conducted as well as it can be conducted, and with a degree of efficiency equal to the highest commercial standards. While primarily the object of the act is not to protect a class of people who happen to be engaged in the State's service, yet it is only fair, equitable and proper that those who are now doing excellent work shall continue to hold their offices or employments, and shall not be removed except for cause, as provided in the act. Is this an unreasonable proposition?

"Criticism is something made that the Civil Service laws create and officeholding class, but the statistics of changes where the laws are in force indicate that just the reverse is the case.

"That is to say, the separations from the service are numerous, owing chiefly to the attractions and better opportunities in commercial fields, or this reason it is important that faithfulness and efficiency should be recognized and rewarded in the public service, and that those who distinguish themselves in public work should be promoted and have a reasonable security in their tenure of office.

"There is no business more important than the people's business, for it relates to records and documents of great value to the people, both individually and collectively, and to transactions involving millions, and it should be conducted on the most systematic, economical and efficient basis. Who can successfully impeach this proposition?

"I don't think the commission should be an elective body, for it will have nothing to do with the political policy of the State, and it ought not

JAILED AFTER RESCUE FROM POSSIBLE DEATH

A father and son, both residents of this city, were co-defendants in the Elizabeth police court, Saturday, charged with drunkenness by a policeman who had saved them from getting struck by a train at the Port station of the New Jersey Central. Both were in the last stages of intoxication and had fallen on the tracks in front of an approaching local when the bluecoat got them to safety.

The prisoners gave their names as Edward McCann, the father, and Charles McCann, the son, the latter having frequently appeared in the local police court. Neither denied that they had had too much, but Charlie thought father had led him astray while father was positive that Charlie was responsible for their predicament. After consideration of the case, which was perplexing in many ways, Judge Mahon decided to fine both $2 and costs, afterward suspending sentence on the elder McCann. This did not work out as the judge expected, however, as the father paid Charlie's fine.

MR. ENGLISH'S CONDITION NOW CONSIDERED GRAVE

Former Prosecutor Nicholas C. J. English, who was stricken with paralysis Friday night, is still in a grave condition and but little hope is entertained for his recovery. He suffered the stroke some time during the night and was found in a helpless condition Saturday morning. Since then he has improved but little. Dr. James S. Green, of Elizabeth, and Dr. David E. English, of Millburn, a brother, are in attendance.

Mr. English retired from the office of prosecutor on March 11 last, after a service of ten years. The work was a great strain upon him and he was anxious to resign. He is president of the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A., and an elder in the Second Presbyterian church of that city. For a great many years he has been a prominent figure in county affairs and was always held in high esteem.

THROUGH CITY STREETS
RUNAWAY GALLOPS 2 MILES.

Establishing the local record for a long-distance runaway, a grey horse, attached to a buggy, started from Stonewall Jackson's stables on Somerset street yesterday afternoon and ran at top speed up Somerset street to Park avenue and through the city until it was finally caught by a Plainfield policeman just outside the city limits. The horse was without a bridle and made record time, galloping most of the distance, which is more than two miles. Several pedestrians attempted to stop the frightened animal as it galloped through town, but their efforts only frightened it the more and caused it to increase its speed.

The animal belongs to a couple from Woodbridge, who brought it to Jackson's stable for dinner. The bridle had been taken off and one of the Woodbridge men was going up to the horse with a box of feed when it took fright and bolted. Although the buggy was overturned as the horse went up Park avenue, the horse was uninjured when caught and the damage to the rig was slight, so that the owners, after borrowing a bridle and reins from Brantingham's stables, near which the runaway was stopped, could drive back to Woodbridge. The men returned the harness to Brantingham this morning and reported that the horse was none the worse for his long run.

CONFERENCE'S CAMPAIGN

Visiting M. E. Ministers Plan to Conduct Meetings in all the Shops.

ALSO AT RESCUE MISSION.

Preachers Assigned For Special Evangelistic Services During First Week In April.

In connection with the sessions of the Newark Conference to be held here April 1-7, a number of special meetings have been arranged in which members of the conference will take part. There will be services every night at the Plainfield Rescue Mission at 8 o'clock, the topics and speakers being as follows:

April 1, "Why I Believe in God," Rev. J. B. J. Rhoades; 2, "Why I Believe in Prayer," Rev. William Redheffer; 3, "Why I Believe in Salvation?" Rev. Wilbert Westcott; 4, "Why I Believe in Christ?" Rev. R. J. Watkins; 5, Why I Believe in the Bible?" Rev. C. H. Powers; 6, "Why I Believe in Heaven?" Rev. John Bovenizer.

The same subjects as above on the same dates will be used at services to be held at the Salvation Army by these speakers: Rev. D. B. Tompkins, Rev. W. H. Hampton, Rev. C. S. Kemble, Rev. J. H. Howard, Rev. Thomas Hall, Rev. M. E. Grant.

Under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. shop meetings will be held at noon as follows:

Thursday and Friday, April 2 and 3, Scott Press Works, speakers, Rev. W. H. Morgan and Rev. R. B. Urmy; Saturday, April 4, Quincey-Manchester-Sergeant Co. shop, Rev. C. L. Mead; Monday, April 6, Scott Press Works, Rev. F. C. Baldwin; Tuesday, April 7, Manganese Steel Safe Works, Rev. A. H. Lucas. A conference quartet, comprising Revs. F. I. Hubach, C. S. Kemble, S. Davis and M. E. Andariese will sing at these services.

On Sunday afternoon, April 5, at 4 o'clock, meetings will be held for boys and men at the Y. M. C. A. Rev. J. H. E. Shultz will address the boys and Rev. C. L. Mead the men. At the Y. W. C. A., Rev. Dr. Henry Buttz, president of Drew Theological Seminary, at Madison, will be the speaker.

CATHOLICS ARE URGED TO OBSERVE SABBATH

In all of the Catholic churches of the Diocese of Trenton, including St. Joseph's, North Plainfield, there was read yesterday a pastoral letter from Bishop James A. McFaul, of Trenton, on the subject of "Sunday Observance." The bishops' letter in part follows:

"We would remind all Catholics, especially the members of Catholic societies, to protest against the tendency of our times to change the Lord's Day into a day of sinful amusement. We further deprecate and strongly condemn the unChristian action of those employers, both public and private, who, actuated by greed, and in absolute and scandalous disregard of the sanctity of the Lord's Day, force their employes to perform unnecessary and servile labor thereon. Where necessity really requires such labor, we demand that the employers make some provision so that their employes may be enabled to assist at divine service.

"It is evident that the desecration of Sunday is on the increase, for we are told that nearly 500,000,000 of the American people never enter a church on that day. It, therefore, behooves the Catholics of the republic, by word and example, to insist on Sunday observance.

"Some people claim that we should have here what is known in Europe as the Continental Sabbath. There, in the afternoon, places of refreshment and amusement are opened. It is but fair to add that these places are so conducted that people in general do not consider them objectionable, although there are occasional abuses.

"Whatever may be said of this European custom, it would not be suitable for America. Conditions are quite different here. The American bar and our habit of treating would render the opening of the saloons on the Lord's Day destructive of that quietness, solemnity and sanctity which Americans expect on the day of rest."

Lectured on China.

Principal Ira W. Travell, of the Plainfield High School, gave a lecture on "China" in connection with the opening exercises of the school today. The talk was illustrated with about seventy-five steriopticon slides, showing scenes of the country and the life of the people.

IRVINE PLEADS WITH MEN

Speaker at Y.M.C.A. Declares That Christ Should Be Rescued from Society.

WANTS GOSPEL SIMPLIFIED.

New York Minister Tells of Problem of the Church in the Twentieth Century—Discussion Follows.

Declaring that Christ's love for workingmen, as shown by His constant association with them and his choice of twelve laboring men as His band of apostles with which to transform society, was the greatest contribution ever made to the cause of labor, Alexander Irvine, of New York city, gave a powerful address on "Christ, the Workingman's Champion," at the afternoon men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday. The talk was attended by nearly two hundred men, many of whom took part in the open discussion on the present-day socialistic and economic crisis and its relation to Christianity, which followed Mr. Irvine's address. At the outset of his remarks, the speaker deployerd the fact that, in view of Christ's love for the workingman, there should be so great a gulf between the laboringman and the church.

"The problem of the church in the twentieth century," Mr. Irvine said, "is to rescue Jesus from society. It is for the church to take hold of the gospel in its pristine simplicity and with the burning heart-love for working classes that animated Jesus Christ.

"There are three aspects of the life of Jesus Christ that I wish especially to emphasize. First, He preached to the multitudes, to 'all sorts and conditions of men;' second, He taught individuals, and third, we constantly read of Him as keeping in touch with his Father, and frequently going to the mountain-top for prayer and meditation. Every man alive today, no matter what his class of society, should have three similar aspects in his character. We need a more abundant life, and can best gain it by following Christ's example in our every-day living. The three aspects I have named in Christ's life have analagous interpretations with us today. We need to keep in contact with the crowd, we need that close man-to-man association, which marks the best in family life, and above all, we need to keep in constant touch with our Heavenly Father, as Guide for our souls."

At the conclusion of the address, there was an open discussion of the movement which is now on foot to bring the masses back into the churches. Ministers, socialists and business men took part in the general discussion and each speaker was limited to two minutes. In speaking of the Social-Christian movement on foot, Mr. Irvine said: "I expect that this economic and industrial revolution, now being agitated, will surely come, but I believe that it will be preceded by an ethical revolution. Many New York churches, among them the Brick Presbyterian church, where Dr. William R. Richards is now in charge, are planning to open their pulpits Sunday evenings for the discussion of subjects of vital interest to the masses."

J. W. Gavett, president of the Y. M. C. A., was the leader of the meeting, and Charles L. Lewis, of the Lotos Glee Club, lead the singing.

Y. W. C. A. Party Sight-Seeing.

In company with Miss Amy P. Tapping and Miss Margaret E. Mosher, secretaries of the Y. W. C. A., a party of twenty-one members of the association spent Saturday sightseeing in New York city. The party left town on a morning train and visited the immigrant station at Ellis Island, subsequently going to the Fifteenth Street Y. W. C. A. for luncheon. In the afternoon they visited the Christadora Settlement house on the lower East Side and later heard an address by Rev. G. Campbell Morgan at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church.

HELD ON FRAUD CHARGE

Rev. Geo. A. Francis Accused of Obtaining $2,500 in Property Through Trickery.

CLAIMS IT IS BLACKMAIL.

As President of Westfield Real Estate Aegncy, It Is Alleged He Got False Power of Attorney For a Sale.

Charged with defrauding Mr. and Mrs. Jack Capitelli, of Westfield, out of $2,500 on a real estate deal, Rev. eorge A. Francis, formerly pastor of the Westfield Baptist church, and at one time a resident of this city, was held in $2,000 bond at his hearing before Judge Toucey at Westfield to await the action of the grand jury. Francis is president of the Central Real Estate Agency, and a series of statements issued by the real estate company attempt to show that he is the victim of "misguided ignorance or malicious intent."

The complaint made by Capitelli, who caused his arrest Friday, states that the Italian was the owner of real estate in Westfield and that he had authorized the Central Real Estate Agency to collect the rents accruing from his property. The charge of fraud is based on the claim that the prisoner induced Capitelli to execute to the Agency a power of attorney, which, upon its face gave authority to sell the property. Soon after the power of attorney was granted, fraudulently, it is alleged, Capitelli claims that the Agency sold the property and collected $2,500 as proceeds of the sale, of which the Italian received no part.

Statements issued to the press by Rev. Rufus S. Green, treasurer of the Agency, Postmaster L. M. Whittaker, of Westfield, who took the acknowledgement on the first power of attorney, and L. E. Hart, Esq., master in chancery, claim that the entire proceedings was legal, with the knowledge and consent of the Capitellis, and that the charges brought are "absolutely baseless."

MUSICAL SERVICE AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The choir of the First Baptist church, under the direction of Howard Case, organist, gave a musical service at the church last night, at which time several special selections were rendered. The program opened with a prelude, violin and organ, followed by two anthems, one by Arcadelt and the other by Lansing.

A feature was the rendition of a selection from Gaul's "Holy City," in which George Smith, tenor, took the solo part. The offertory number was a selection from Rubenstein, and following the sermon the choir sang "Nunc Dimitis," by Parker, the service concluding with a postlude, "March from Athalie," Mendelssohn.

The solo parts throughout the service were taken by Miss Louella C. Harris, soprano; Miss Gertrude Hinz, contralto; George Smith, tenor, and William Holmes, baritone. They were all in fine voice and the parts as well as the choruses were given in a finished and delightful manner.

The sermon by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss dwelt especially on the mission and duty of the church in the world. He presented a strong arraignment against those who seek to evade Christian effort and live in an easy and self-satisfied way, declaring that if Christ should come to Plainfield he would first minister to the poor, the sick and the needy and that he believed to be the mission of the church, to see that the unfortunate ones are cared for and to help those who are less favored with the good things of this life.

LOCAL TRUST COMPANY ON A ROLL OF HONOR

The current supplement to "The Financier," a financial publication of New York, contains a roll of honor of trust companies of the United States for 1908, carefully prepared from the latest data available, and publishes a list of 239 companies with surplus and profits in excess of capital. The Plainfield Trust Company ranks 123 in the honor list with a capital of $100,000, surplus and profits, $151,507 and a percentage of $151.51 of surplus and profits to capital.

The fact that The Plainfield Trust Company has a place on the honor roll with all the leading institutions of this character in the United States, speaks well for the management, because it puts the stamp of solidity and prosperity on the institution and again because position on the honor roll cannot be bought. It is an absolute requirement that surplus and profits be larger than the authorized capital to be enrolled. As a rule but few in our State are entitled to such honor and those fortunate to be listed the in a class by themselves and knowledge of such standing is a guarantee and assurance to local patrons or to bank correspondents that they are doing business with the best bank in the locality and people like to deal with strong concerns.

TRAPPED IN FALSEHOOD; RUNS OUT OF CITY COURT

Finding that she had been trapped in swearing to a falsehood when a witness was called to disprove her statements, Miss Kate McCarthy, who resides in the West End, attempted to run out of the city court this morning, in the midst of a hearing in which she had made a serious charge against Rudolph Buck, an actor, of Orange place. She stopped in the midst of a sentence and fled to the front part of the building, almost bowling over a couple of spectators who blocked her path. Judge Runyon's call for her to come back were unheeded and it required the combined efforts of three cops to stop her and return her to the courtroom.

Buck was represented at the hearing by Robert Newton Crane and the lawyer informed the court that Miss McCarthy had been guilty of misconduct with four other young men. When she entered an emphatic denial, Crane replied simply:

"Very well, then, I'll call Wrennie Coon."

A young man answering this name started to come forward and as he did, the complainant made the dash out of the room. When she had finally been brought back Coon gave his testimony and two others also offered evidence to show that Miss McCarthy had been perjuring herself. The charge against Buck was dismissed but he was re-arraigned with Coon and William Morrision, the latter eighteen years old, to await further developments.

Fire at Berkeley Heights.

The large barns and wagon-house owned by H. B. Zimmerman and located on the county road, Berkeley Heights, were destroyed by fire Saturday night about 9 o'clock, and the contents, comprising three valuable horses, one valued at $800, as well as eight Jersey cows and a large St. Bernard dog. The fire started in the end of the barn where the cattle was kept and spread so rapidly that it was imposcsible to save anything. A company of neighbors led by William Jeffery, of Berkeley Heights, rendered valuable assistance in saving the wagons and preventing a spread of the blaze. The total loss was about $10,000.

COPS MAKE GOOD HAUL

Gang of Bicycle Thieves Rounded Up and Two Members Landed in Jail.

THIRD ESCAPES BY FLIGHT.

Eight Wheels Stolen Here Recovered and Many More Found to Have Been Sold.

As the result of an arrest made Saturday night, Detective-Sergeant John Flynn, of the local police force, yesterday located a gang of bicycle thieves who have been stealing wheels in Plainfield by the wholesale. Two prisoners are now at headquarters and another member of the band is a fugitive, while eight machines have so far been recovered and are now awaiting claimants. Found evidence the officer obtained it is believed the men have stolen and sold twenty other wheels within the past six months.

The thieves now in custody are Ignoc Mruskoevic, twenty-three years old, and Peter Harsen, twenty-two years, both living at Dunellen. The former was captured by Patrolman Messler just after he had stolen a wheel on Park avenue Saturday night and the latter was caught while the detective-sergeant was looking up Mruskoevic's record. Both were arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning and were held in $200 bail to appear before the Grand Jury. Mruskoevic admitted his part in the thefts but Harsen protested innocence.

Mruskoevic's arrest was brought about by his making off with a wheel belonging to Nicholas Thul, of Rahway road, as he was buying a pair of shoes in Willett's place on Park avenue. When the owner came out and discovered the machine had been taken he informed Patrolmal Nolan. While he was giving a description of it, two of his friends came up and heard what was said, both stating that they would keep a watch out to help get it back. One of these friends was Clinton Noe, of Kensington avenue, and a little while later as he passed Gloekler's saloon on Front street he saw a wheel that resembled Thul's description standing at the curb. He hastened back to the owner and Thul returned with him, the latter identifying the machine as his property.

The two men kept a watch and in a few minutes Mruskoevic came out of the saloon and jumped on the wheel. He had gone but a few feet when Thul and Noe pulled him out of the saddle and clung to him. They yelled for the police and Patrolman Messler ran up. When the case was explained to him he took Mruskoevic to headquarters.

The prisoner refused to say anything at first but finally admitted that he lived in Dunellen and Detective-Sergeant Flynn went there yesterday to see what could be learned about him. He found that Mruskoevic boarded at a Polak place near the Levering & Garrigues works, the proprietor stating that the accused man had been in the habit of bringing bicycles home every time he went to Plainfield. He added that a friend of Mruskoevic's who formerly boarded with him did the same thing and he had put him out because he believed they were being stolen and sold. This fellow, he said, was Harsen.

Flynn set out on a new tack and located Harsen at Joseph Siriski's boarding house on Front street, Dunellen, opposite Taylor's hotel. He had just completed a deal to sell a boy a wheel for $5 when the officer arrived and put him under arrest. Siriski pointed out several machines that had been brought to the place by Harsen and more were located at Mruskoevic's boarding house, all of which were brought here.

Just previous to this morning's session of court, George W. Geary, of the borough, appeared at headquarters to tell about an attempt to steal a bicycle belonging to him, Saturday night. It was taken as he was buying meat in Roth's shop on East Front street and as he came out he thought he saw a man riding away with it. When he discovered that his machine was missing he set out on a run after the fellow he noticed pedalling away and caught up with him just beyond Somerset street. He jerked the thief from the seat but he tore loose and a chase up Front street followed, a large crowd joining in the pursuit. Geary became winded at Madison avenue but others continued to run and followed the fleeing man to Central avenue and Second street where he disappeared. When Geary was taken to a cell to look at Harsen he declared without any hesitation that he was the one who had tried to steal his machine.

The wheels now at headquarters and which the police wish to restore to the owners are described as follows: A Cleveland, black frame; a

The choir of the church will sing.

All the sessions of the institute are open to the public, and a cordial invitation is extended.

Engine Has Death Record.

Hammonton, March 23.—Following the killing of Mrs. Minnie Mangold in the presence of her thirteen-year-old son at a street crossing here Thursday by an Atlantic City flier with Engineer Philip Stohlberger in charge, occurred a similar tragedy at Weymouth road crossing at Da Costa, two miles east of here yesterday. The same locomotive, with Stohlberger in charge, struck and ground to pieces Hugo Gries, seventy-five years old, a farmer of Hamilton Township. Mr. Gries was a veteran of the Civil War, and a few days ago obtained an increase in his pension. Recently he had been losing his hearing and eyesight, and it is probable that he did not see or hear the whistle of the express train. He was well acquainted with this crossing, having passed over it almost daily for many years. He was the fourth victim of the same "flier," the other three having been women. Stohlberger was engineer in each mishap.

Bound Brook Postoffice Moved.

The postoffice at Bound Brook was moved Saturday night after the close of business from the old quarters to the new ones in the Field building. Mrs. William Sickles, of Newark, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Demler, of Watchung.

Miss Downes, of the Philadelphia Training School, has been visiting her parents on Watchung avenue.

Miss Helen Adams, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Adams, of Grove street, has been spending a part of the winter South.

Mrs. Holman, of Pittsfield, Mass., has been visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. W. Yates, of East Seventh street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tester and daughter, of Bound Brook, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Cooley, of North Plainfield.

Mrs. Robert Scott and son, of North avenue, who have been spending a week with relatives at Bound Brook, have returned home.

Bishop Spellmeyer, who will preside at the sessions of the Newark Conference to be held here the first week in April, will be entertained while in Plainfield by Rev. and Mrs. A. C. McCrea, of Central avenue.

NEWARK PHYSICIAN ARRESTED.

Woman Says She Paid Dr. Bondy for Operation—Had Her in Hospital as Charity Case.

Dr. S. E. Bondy, physician, forty-nine years old, of No. 80 Rose street, Newark, was arrested by Detective Sergeants Tuite and Horter, in Newark last night, on charge of obtaining money under false pretences.

Dr. Bondy has been attending Mrs. Katharine Durish, of No. 56 James street, for three weeks and finally told her she would have to undergo a surgical operation, which would cost $60. She had only $30, but borrowed $30, and gave him $60. Then, it is charged, Dr. Bondy consulted Dr. Edward J., Ill, chief of the visiting surgical staff of St. Michael's Hospital, and pursuaded him to take Mrs. Durish to the hospital, and perform the operation without cost on the ground that she was poor and a worthy object for charity. The woman went to the hospital Saturday and in conversation with Dr. Ill told of the payment to Dr. Bondy. Mrs. Durish was so angered that she ran from the hospital, but later was taken back. Dr. Ill notified the police and Dr. Bondy was arrested on the street while answering a decoy call sent to him by the detectives.

announce their SPRING OPENING in the Millinery Department for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, and invite all that are interested in the display of Stylish Millinery to visit their store.

Miss Strohuber has excelled her efforts of last season and it will be a treat to the Ladies of Plainfield that can't visit the Millinery shops in 5th Avenue to see the styles on display here, and interesting to those who are not accustomed to buying their Hats in Plainfield to know that 5th Avenue styles can be produced here at a considerable saving.

Special attractions were arranged in other departments to make this a busy week.

These go into effect Tuesday morning and will hold good during the entire week if the goods last.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The Country Club of Lakewood has been assigned April 23, 24 and 25 as the dates for its annual spring open golf tournament. This will undoubtedly mark the competitive curtain raiser in the metropolitan district, a distinction the club in the pines usually holds each year. Next on the schedule after Lakewood will be the Garden City invitation tournament on May 7, 8 and 9.

Although the Lakewood program has not been officially announced, it is understood that the preliminary round will consist of thirty-six holes, contestants qualifying in three divisions. An eighteen hole medal play handicap will be decided on the last day.

Plans are making for special matches in which both amateurs and professionals will figure at the Fox Hills Golf Club on April 11, the opening day. Isaac Mackie, the club's "pro," will take part in a four-ball contest with three other professionals, while two former amateur champions, now honorary members of the club, may be induced to meet. The course is improving rapidly, and most of the casual water has disappeared.

The decisions relative to the international lawn tennis challenge for the Dwight F. Davis Cup and the foot fault rule findings were made public by the executive committee of the national governing body Saturday. A. L. Hoskins, secretary, said that leading experts will represent this country for the Davis Cup. The international committee, R. D. Wrenn, Dr. James Dwight and R. D. Little, have notified the English association that in the event of the preliminary ties not being decided in this country the American team will journey to Australia. The matches are planned for October.

There will be no change in the service or foot fault rule this year. This was the decision of R. D. Wrenn, W. A. Larned and F. B. Alexander. All tournament committees, however, will be notified that the present rule must be enforced and that officials must be provided for all matches.

A request was received from women players that they be ranked this coming year, and it is probable that action in accordance with the request will be taken when the ranking committee is appointed.

It was stated that at Newport this year unusual accommodations and facilities will be offered players who compete in the national championships. Meals will be served at the Casino at prices that will be extremely reasonable, and rooms may be engaged at nominal cost.

BASEBALL.

Jack McLean, the big catcher of the Cincinnati club, and who is holding out for more salary, may jump to the Washington Union League club, if the Red management fails to meet his requests on the salary question.

Bob Wicker, the former Chicago and Cincinnati National League pitcher, has signed a contract to play with Montreal next season.

Manager Billy Murray has decided to put Third Baseman Grant at the top of the Phillies' batting order next season. The former Skeeter has been hitting the ball hard and often in the practise games at Savannah and Murray is counting on him to do some great stunts with the stick next season.

A. Philetus Konkle, of Newark, who was interested in the Newark Atlantic League club last season, declared this morning that he was in no way connected with the proposed New Jersey and Pennsylvania League club for Newark, as had been reported. Konkle said that the men behind the new club had made him an offer to take his lease for the Morris Park grounds, and that in all probability he would turn it over to them.

A fire in Washington, D. C., Saturday morning for a time threatened to destroy the American League baseball park. A large lumber yard adjoining the grounds was destroyed by the flames, which the firemen prevented from spreading to the grandstands.

The Eastern League will hold its scheduled meeting at Hotel Victoria in New York this week. President Powers will probably select Tuesday as the date.

Jimmy Morgan, captain and manager of last season's Montreal team, will play third base for Jersey City next season. By the acquisition of Morgan, Manager Joe Bean has succeeded in bolstering up a weak spot in his line-up. Morgan is not only a heady player, but he is full of ginger, which will help the Skeeters maintain their reputation of being the most aggressive aggregation of ball players in the Eastern League.

Walter Woods, the former third baseman of the Skeeters, has been sold to the Hartford club. With Morgan on third base, Gastmeyer at shortstop, Bean on second and Merritt on the initial bag, Jersey City will have a strong infield. Rockenfeld, a young Western player, will fight it out for the shortstop position with Gastmeyer. Bean also had his lines out to secure Catcher Blair, of the New York Americans, but as the latter has shown up to be exceptionally fast, Clark Griffith has decided to keep him.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Former Governor Stokes will be the Memorial Day orator at Woodbury.

Dr. L. M. Halsey, of Williamstown, is mentioned as a Republican Senatorial candidate possibility in Gloucester county.

John L. Pease, of Cross Keys, is in a critical condition with blood poisoning in his arm, the result of picking a small pimple on his hand.

As a result of cutting his corns with a razor, John H. Warner, of Beverly, is confined to his bed from blood poisoning, his left side being completely paralyzed.

After an illness covering over a year, L. Bolton Lott, a former Bridgeton manufacturer, died at his home in Atlantic street, Bridgeton, yesterday. His widow and three children survive.

Benjamin Lodge, of Paulsboro, has constructed a boat with the steering appliance, cooking arrangements and engine placed so that all can be operated from one stool. He will take his boat to Hope Creek for the shad season.

William Trimble was released from the Camden jail Saturday after having been locked up two days charged with stealing a gold watch from Edward F. Sherman. His innocence is unquestioned. Sherman, who pressed the charge, says he was mistaken.

The Fourth Ward Republican Club of Atlantic City has indorsed former Sheriff Kirby for sheriff at the coming election. Councilman E. A. Parker is rated as a candidate, as is also Enoch Johnson, son of the present sheriff, who has been acting as deputy for his father.

The will of John S. Rogers, the well-known Moorestown contractor, who died on March 5, has been admitted to probate by Surrogate Lippincott, and letters testamentary have been granted to Emily F. Rogers and Collins B. Rogers. To the widow is given the residence and shares equally with the seven children the residue of the estate, which is not to be divided until the youngest child becomes of age.

Fire, believed to have been started by men who have been using the warm box stalls for sleeping quarters, damaged the $20,000 stabling and other buildings of the Atlantic City Horse Show Association, at Inlet Park, Saturday. An attendant discovered the blaze just in time to summon a fire brigade, who halted the conflagration before it reached the grandstand or adjoining buildings. The loss will be less than $1,000.

Several valuable dogs, including a bull dog, the property of Cecil Filter, will have to be killed as the result of a mad dog scare at Riverton. Several days ago a strange dog wandered about town, biting all the other dogs it met. It was finally shot and its head sent to the Pasteur Institute to determine whether the animal had been suffering with rabies. Mayor Brown Saturday received word that the dog had been rabid, and he at once issued orders for the killing of all dogs that had run any chance of infection from the diseased animal.

On the charge of non-support, preferred by his wife, Henry Perry was sent to the county jail by Mayor Joseph F. Smith, of Millville, several weeks ago. Perry stated that he did not object to supporting his wife, but he did not admire the "star boarder" who lived with them. He said he would stay in jail for life. Saturday Mrs. Perry sent her husband a note, stating that she had dismissed the objectionable boarder. Perry returned home yesterday, and the charge will be quashed until he makes default in his promise to support his wife.

During the past three weeks typhoid fever and death have been busy in the Funk family, which lives in Cherry street, Camden. The last death was that of August Funk, aged fourteen years, which took place in Cooper Hospital on Thursday night. Another boy, Joseph, aged eighteen years, died a couple of weeks ago, and was followed by the mother a few days afterward. Two children still remain in the hospital with the disease. Every member of the unfortunate household was stricken with the disease except the father and husband, Emmanuel Funk, a cigarmaker.

Eel in Pipe Organ.

Belvidere, March 23.—There has been trouble with the big pipe organ at the First Presbyterian church for a short time, and recently a plumber was employed to locate it. He looked over everything carefully and even crawled into and through the organ to find out where the trouble was. He was about to give up when he concluded to overhaul some small pipes. Then he found a dead eel wedged in one of the pipes.

There will be class initiation at the meeting of Plainfield Council, No. 293, Jr. O. U. A. M., tonight.

ANNEXATION'S FATE.

That politics will defeat the passage of the proposed referendum annexation and consolidation bills, should the Bi-municipal Consolidation Commission, cause their introduction at the present session of the Legislature, is freely predicted. Practical politics and personal animosities were instrumental six years ago in the victory won at the polls by those then opposed to the scheme and the same fate is in store, it is generally believed, if the proposition is brought before the Legislature this year.

Dwelling on this phase of the scheme, the Newark Evening News, which like any other common-sense newspaper, favors the idea, says:

"There ought to be a Greater Plainfield created by the consolidation of that city and the borough of North Plainfield, for these two municipalities are now practically one in every respect except the fact that they have two governments and are located in different counties. The attempt has been made in the past to unite them, but it has resulted in failure because of political conditions, and it is likely to fail again for the same reason when the bill now being drawn by former Supreme Court Justice Gilbert Collins is introduced in the Legislature, probably next week. This measure provides for consolidation, and also for the annexation of North Plainfield, now a portion of Somerset county, to Union county, and it has the indorsement, it is believed, of a majority of the residents of both places.

But the carrying through of this project this year would be apt to endanger the success of the Republicans of Somerset county, and there's the rub. There are Senators to be elected from both Somerset and Union next fall, and the party in control of the Legislature is not likely to do anything that will endanger the success of their candidate, who will probably be Senator Frelinghuysen. Last fall the Republicans, on the vote for Governor, carried Somerset by only 163 plurality, as Fort received 3,542 and Katzenbach 3,379. At the same election North Plainfield gave Fort a plurality of 214, and had the returns of that municipality been eliminated from the county returns, Somerset would have gone for Katzenbach by fifty-one plurality. It is questionable, even in a Presidential year, if Somerset will surely do better for a Republican Senatorial candidate than it did for Fort, and so with North Plainfield taken from the county the latter would be in the gravest danger of being surely Democratic next November.

"It is for this reason that Senator Frelinghuysen can be counted upon to oppose the annexation of North Plainfield to Union county, and he will undoubtedly be given support by the State leaders and a majority of his fellow-members of the Senate. It is reported that Senator Ackerman, who is also a candidate for renomination this year, will, on the other hand, do his best to bring about the passage of the measure. From a political point of view, it would be a great advantage to him to have the measure enacted into a law. Last fall the Republicans carried Union county on the Governorship by 813 plurality, and if the county had contained North Plainfield, these figures would have been swelled to 1,030. That is none too wide a margin to figure on this year when matters political are so unsettled, and Senator Ackerman would undoubtedly feel safer if North Plainfield were in his county. He can, therefore, with good grace work for the passage of the bill and he can use the argument that the best interests of the people of the two places demand consolidation. When it is merely a question between the interests of the people and the interests of the politicians, however, in a case like that of the Plainfields, the public usually takes a back seat, and that is probably what will happen in this instance."

ON THE APOSTLES CREED

Rev. Dr. Herring Takes "I Believe" as First Topic for Series of Talks.

IT HAS DEFINITE MEANING.

First Two Words Tell of Kind of Belief One Is to Have In God's Revelation.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, began last night a series of twelve Sunday evening discourses on "The Apostles Creed." The treatment of the various themes will be practical and personal application will be made. Last night the topic was "I Believe."

In part Dr. Herring spoke as follows:

"This much of the Apostles Creed shall be our topic for tonight, 'I believe.' I think that that part of it alone should be sufficient to hold our attention for one sermon. These are the first words of the oldest and simplest of the great creeds of the church.

"For two thousand years men have been uttering this creed as their response to God's revelation of Himself. We know that the outlines of this creed were in existence in the second century but who wrote the creed is a problem. It certainly is a most excellent summary of Apostolic teaching.

"The first thought of the creed is not an 'affirmation of God' but an 'affirmation of man.' It is not 'God spoke,' but 'I believe.' The Bible is God's word to man. The Creed is man's answer to God. A man's creed presupposes his faith. His creed is the embodiment of his faith.

"Every man believes something, and a very definite something; and he shapes his life accordingly. He believes in getting rich or he has political ambitions. He doesn't put this faith on paper but it is very evident what his ideals are.

"It is sometimes said that it makes no difference what a man believes if he is only sincere. Now sincerity is a great virtue, but a man's beliefs make the man. His whole life is shaped by his practical faith.

"It helps a man to have a definite creed to which he gives his hearty assent. Don't let it be too short, for in that way he may shut out a part of God's necessary truth. Don't overestimate one part of God's truth to the obliteration of another. The Apostles Creed presents the great truths of the Christian faith in harmonious relation. You believe in Christian Science? Well I believe some parts of that, but you deny the forgiveness of sins, which runs like a scarlet thread through the whole Bible. Your Christian Science is not 'Christian' for it omits the essential truth of Christianity. But the first two words of the Creed tell me of the kind of belief I am to have in God's revelation.

"It is 'I believe in.' Believe in what? Believe in God and all his revelation. That is something more than intellectual belief. It means that there are realities above your temporal experience, that the eternal God who never changes is your refuge, and that underneath you through time and eternity are the everlasting arms."

THE FORUM.

Mr. Wherry Defends Mr. Suydam.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I have followed with interest the references in your valued paper to the Suydam resolution so-called. As the resolution has not been published I have taken the trouble to look it up. Thinking that others of your readers may also be interested in its precise wording, I write this to ask you to publish it. It is as follows:

"Whereas, Groups of men and youth habitually congregate upon our streets and street corners, principally about the postoffice, Somerset and Front streets, Park avenue and Front street, Park avenue and Second street, and the trolley depot, in violation of an ordinance relating to the morals, peace and good order of the city of Plainfield, page 36, section 32; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Police Committee direct the Chief of Police to enforce the above ordinance and keep our streets free and unobstructed.

"Adopted by the Common Council March 16, 1908.

"Approved by the Mayor March 16, 1908.

"CHAS. J. FISK, Mayor."

The ordinance to which the Suydam resolution called attention has been in force and enforced since April 23, 1874. This ordinance of 1874 is the one under which arrests for loitering are made, and it is refreshing to learn at last, that it is "ill-timed, even if it had merit."

I commend to your attention the five locations mentioned in the Suydam resolution, also the fact that as appears from the quotation above it was approved by our honorable Mayor, than whom the working man has no better friend, as has been proved on many occasions.

Really I wonder who could have been hit by the resolution, calling attention so aptly to the failure to enforce an old ordinance. The coat seems to fit some one.

Personally I am a great believer in the square deal, and as an interested reader of your valuable paper, I cannot help suggesting that if you must knock the man in public life who cannot by reason of his position enter into a newspaper discussion with you, it is only fair that you should print part of the other side.

Yours truly,

ACKERMAN ON S. C. BILL

to have anything whatever to do with politics on a political campaign. The same argument would apply to electing by popular vote the State Board of Assessors or any other similar body, which should be absolutely separated from politics.

"It would also be necessary to hold a State convention in order simply to nominate one Civil Service commissioner. I don't think such an expense would be warranted. If possible, I would like to see the commission a non-partisan body."

W. B. Grannatt, Jr., Returns Home.

W. B. Grannatt, Jr., of this city, returned yesterday from a six weeks trip in the West. He went to Seattle, Washington, for Plainfield parties for the purpose of settling a large estate including a ranch. En route he visited many points of interest. Going west he took the route of the Grand Trunk Railway to Chicago, the Wisconsin Central and Northern Pacific to Seattle. On the return trip he took the Southern Pacific and Southern to Los Angeles, New Orleans, Atlanta, part of the wal following the well-known Sunset route. He also visited Old Mexico and El Paso, Texas, and the day he passed through Texas the thermomter was ninety-five degrees in the shade.

Jeffrey Amherst Wisner.

Jeffrey Amherst Wisner, father of Mrs. William Barlow, of Prospect place, died last night at his home in Brooklyn, following an illness of several months. He was a native of Warwick, N. Y., but lived the greater part of his life in Brooklyn. He was an active member of the Classen Avenue Presbyterian church, Brooklyn. He is survived by three daughters, one being Mrs. Barlow, while one lives in Scranton, Pa., and the other one in Brooklyn. There is also one son, who lives in Brooklyn. The funeral services will be held tomorrow from the late home.

Spring Fair a Success.

The spring fair, under the auspices of the army of workers of Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, held from March 17-20, was a success. The total proceeds to date amount to $310.36, divided as follows: Co. A, Captain Rev. E. B. Maynard, $58.71; Co. B, Captain John Jones, $132; Co. C, Captain Alfred White, $50; Co. D, Captain Oliver Floyd, $69.65. In connection with the fair an entertainment was held each night and there was a large attendance throughout the week.

Littlefield Resigns.

Charles E. Littlefield, who has represented the Second Maine District in Congress since 1899, when he succeeded Nelson Dingley, Saturday tendered his resignation to Governor Cobb, to take effect on September 30 next. Mr. Littlefield wrote from Washington, the Governor receiving the letter Saturday. In another letter, sent to the district congressional committee, Mr. Littlefield says he resigns in order to resume his law practise.

—The Plainfield Italians' Mutual Sick and Benefit Association Society elected new officials, as follows: President, Leonard D. Amelio; vice president, Sabino Venezia; treasurer, Mike Colucci; trustee, Yanotti Alpidio; trustee, Raffaele Venezia; secretary, [illegible] 3 23 2

VROOM TO APPEAR IN "LUCK OF MACGREGOR"

Edward Vroom's new play, "The Luck of MacGregor," which is to be presented at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, is laid in New York during the eventful days when the British held the city. The first scene takes place in the British garrison at Fort George, where Captain MacGregor, a young Scotch-Irish officer of the English Army, becomes involved in a military intrigue of which he is an innocent victim. Falling desperately in love with a pretty lass, MacGregor brings her with in the British lines to visit the housekeeper at the Officers' Quarters. The plans of the Fort disappear from the quarters mysteriously and with them the girl. The loss is detected and traced to the culprit and the captain is placed under arrest on suspicion of complicity.

Discovering a clue to the route the girl has taken for her escape into the American lines, the young captain pleads with his colonel for the chance to redeem his honor. The colonel releases him and he dashes away in pursuit of the girl. He catches her at daybreak the following morning at Spuytin Duyvil, where a boat is waiting to carry her across the river. Here a spirited and amusing scene takes place between them. The captain finds himself in a dilemma with the delicate job on his hands of searching the girl's person for the stolen document. But the girl is wholly mistaken in the captain's purpose and anxiety concerning her. Believing him to be a confederate of her father's duplicity, and the fact that she has the stolen plans in her bosom. The captain explains his true position, and the girl crazed by the fact that she has revealed her father's secret and placed his life in peril, turns upon the captain and charges him with cheating her into the confession.

The colonel arrives upon the scene, whereupon the captain tangles himself up in a web of lies to shield the girl and he is again arrested. Bound like a felon, he is led before a jury of his fellow officers. He is charged with treason and with all his Irish wit he fights desperately to save the girl and his own neck as well. The girl cannot confess the truth to clear him, her father's life is at stake. Thus the dramatic lockup is complete, and for two hours and a half the lovers are tangled in a series of swiftly moving complications, endangering the lives of both of them. The tension of the drama is constantly relieved, however, by the Irish wit of the captain, whose sallies and banter keep the court room in a roar of laughter, and by the winsome beauty and piquancy of tre girl and the delicate and tender love scenes between them. The warmhearted, blundering old colonel furnishes a fund of humor also, and a Dutch innkeeper in love with a Scotch spinster of uncertain temper, lends ample comedy to the play. "The Luck of MacGregor" is to be presented in New York city at Easter, and Mr. Vroom will bring with him here his entire New York company and production.

Hull's Successor Not Yet Named.

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, has not yet appointed a callman for regular duty at borough fire headquarters in place of Frank Hull, who resigned Saturday. Captain Edmund H. Terry, who assisted at headquarters Saturday, was not on regular duty, but merely helped out for the morning by exercising the team. Lieutenant William Gaub is the only fireman on regular duty at the house today.

Brooksides to Open Season.

The Brooksides will start the baseball season on Saturday, March 28, when a game will be played with the Juniors on Hope Common. The lineup for the Brooksides will be as follows: Catchers, T. Mullin, Schoeller; pitchers, Conshay, Stoltz; first-base, Rutledge; second-base, Elliott; short-stop, W. Mullin; third-base, Connelly; left-field, Harney; centrefield, Howe; right-field, Conshay and Stoltz.

Principal Rothermel at N. P. H. S.

Dr. A. C. Rothermel, principal of the State Normal School at Kutztown, Pa., gave an educational talk at the North Plainfield Somerset street High School at noon today, before the cuasses of the high school department. Mr. Rothermel and his wife are the guests of County Supervisor Henry C. Krebs, of Fairview avenue, and were visitors at the school building this morning.

Servant Girl Accused of Theft.

Maryjana Madej, an attractive young Polish girl, was arrested by the local police yesterday on a charge preferred by her employer, B. P. Florey, of Woodland avenue, with having stolen $71 worth of colthing and laces belonging to Mrs. Florey. She was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning but at Chief Kiely's request the matter was adjourned until tomorrow. The prisoner was remanded in default of bail.

Tax Collector and Mrs. William R. Townsend, of Kensington avenue, within a few days will take up their residence with Mrs. Townsend's sister, Mrs. F. S. Cutter, at 36 Sandford avenue.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Edward Vroom, who is to be seen here tomorrow night in a play from his own pen, entitled "The Luck of MacGregor," tells a story illustrating the literalness of the English interpretation of American expressions. While purchasing some gloves in a London shop, Mr. Vroom noticed some singular looking ones which the saleswoman told him were made of kangaroo skin, with the hairy side of the skin within. Mr. Vroom remarked to a friend that he thought he would take a pair to America for Robert McWade, who, Mr. Vroom thought would be reminded by them of his tours through Australia, playing Rip Van Winkle to the kangaroos. Mr. Vroom remarked that they "would tickle Mr. McWade to death!" whereupon the saleswoman interposed: "I beg your pardon, sir, but I assure you they won't tickle him at all!"

Messrs. Cohan and Harris announce the engagement of Thomas E. Shea at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday and Saturday, when they will present that popular actor in a program of high class drama including "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and a new piece by Eugene Thomas entitled "A Soldier of the Cross." As Mr. Hyde, the Shea rendition of Stevenson's psychological problem is well known. It may be added, however, that in this role, Mr. Shea is the only successor of the late Richard Mansfield, who made the part so famous. "A Soldier of the Cross," which has been written especially for Mr. Shea, is a Roman drama with the scene laid at Pompeii, at the time of the early Christian struggles and the destruction of the city. Mr. Shea will portray the character of Ajax, a gladiator of the Emperor Titus. The story tells of his adventures in avenging the abduction of his daughter and the murder of his wife. He falls into the hands of his enemies and is condemned to die in the arena by the lions. The play is said to abound with intensely dramatic moments which are relieved by the graceful touches of a love tale. One of the features is the eruption of Vesuvius. Reports state that the productions of the program have the stamp of Cohan and Harris excellence. A capable company has also been provided.

LITERARY

An article of the utmost interest to American magazine readers is "The Influence of the Stock Exchange on the Development of America," by John Paul Ryan, in the March Metropolitan. Other important articles in this number which will be widely read are: "Americanizing the World's Food Products," by Alexander Hume Ford; "The Greenheart Fleet," by Day Allen Willey; "The Motor Boat is a Pleasure Craft," by W. L. Dudley; and "The Scouts of Progress," by James Anderson.

The humor of the picture on the front page of the March American Boy representing two grinning boys teasing a friendly but very smart looking dogs, will appeal to all boys. The contents of this number cannot fail to interest every reader. The fine serials presently running in the magazine are each continued two or more chapters.

A. M. Griffen's hardware store is the old reliable stand where you can get the best hardware, housefurnishing goods, etc. Contracts are made for all kinds of sanitary plumbing.

Harry K. Lister, of North avenue, has a large stock of Edison phonographs and Victor talking-machines. Drop in any time and hear the latest records. Machines can be purchased at prices to suit.

An inspection of the fine line of goods at the Woodhull & Martin store will convince you of the wisdom of trading at home, instead of going to New York. One of the most attractive lines of women's dress goods in all shades and weights is offered at low prices, and the women will also find the laces, embroideries just to their liking. In the men's furnishing department there is much to interest the men from collar buttons to shirts, collars and neckwear.

PRINCETON STUDENTS PLAY.

Produce An Elizabethan Drama, "A New Way to Pay Old Debts."

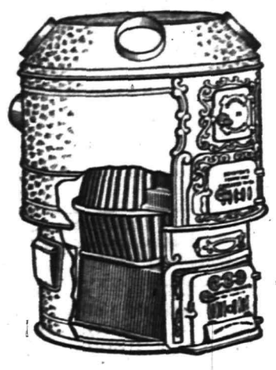
Following the custom introduced last year, the undergradutes of the English department of Princeton University presented there Friday night before an audience of 1,000 persons Philip Massinger's Elizabethan comedy, "A New Way to Pay Old Debts."

Mr. Van Winkle, a sophomore, who took the difficult role of Sir Giles Overreach, displayed a remarkable insight into the possibilities of his part, and his portrayal of the grasping extortionier in his success and the failure which finally drove him mad, swept away the audience.

"A New Way to Pay Old Debts" is one of the few Elizabethan dramas excepting Shakespeare's to retain its popularity until the present. It was acted by Davenport and Booth in this country, and has been often produced in England.

Miss Anna Mernagh, of St. James' Hospital, Newark, has returned to her duties, after a visit with her parents at Watchung.

Did You Burn Too Much Coal?



It's cheaper to have a good furnace, to say nothing of the comfort. The best furnace is the

BOYNTON

The Furnace with the Square Fire Pot

It has the only fire pot that furnishes perfect combustion, burns all the coal cleanly, without clinkers or clogging, and at the same time saves coal and labor. Look up a Boynton dealer and ask him to explain.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

Special Master's Sale

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

Between MARTHA E. FORCE, Complainant, and JOHN T. DOLBIER, et als., Defendants.

By virtue of and in pursuance of a decree of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, dated the twenty-sixth day of February, nineteen hundred and seven, made in a certain cause pending in said court, on bill for partition, wherein Martha E. Force is complainant, and John T. Dolbier, et als., are defendants, I, Nelson Runyon, the Special Master of said Court of Chancery, in said decree mentioned, will expose to sale, at public vendue, to the highest bidder, on TUESDAY, THE TWENTY-FIRST DAY OF APRIL, A. D., 1908, at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, on the premises hereinafter described, namely, all those certain tracts or parcels of land and premises, situate, lying and being in the Township of Fanwood, in the County of Union, and State of New Jersey, mentioned in the bill of complaint in this cause, and therein described as follows:

The First Tract—Beginning at a stake on the northeast side of the road leading from Scotch Plains to the Two Bridges, and in the line of land late of John Rogers, deceased, which stake is also the north corner of lot number two, hereinafter assigned and set off to Jonathan Dolbier; from said beginning running south, forty-three degrees and forty minutes west, and binding on lot number two, six chains and thirty-two links to a stake; thence binding on said lot north, forty-nine degrees and thirty-five minutes west, one chain and fifty links to a stake; thence still binding on said lot south, forty-three degrees and forty minutes west, ten chains and eighty links to a stake; thence binding partly on said lot and partly on lot number six, south forty-three degrees and twenty minutes west, seven chains and twenty-five links to a stone in a corner of William Hand's land; thence binding on his land north, forty-six degrees and forty-five minutes west, seven chains and twenty-two links to a stone in another corner of said Hand's land; thence binding partly on land in the possession of Silas Faitout north, forty-five degrees and five minutes east, sixteen chains and thirty-two links to a stone in a corner of the last mentioned land, and in the line of heirs of John Rogers, deceased; thence binding on the said heirs south forty-seven degrees east, five chains and sixty-two links to the south corner of the said heir's land; thence still binding on the land of said heirs, north, forty-three degrees east, eleven chains to a stake on the northeast side of said road, in the line of the said land late of John Rogers, deceased; thence along the side of said road, and binding on the said land south, fifty degrees and fifty-five minutes east, two chains and sixty-six links to the beginning, containing thirteen acres and forty-eight hundredths of an acre of land.

The Second Tract—[viz Number Six] Begins at a stake in William Hand's line, and in the north corner of lot number seven, hereinafter assigned to Jesse Dolbier; thence binding on said Hand's land, north, forty-three degrees and thirty minutes east twenty-five links to the first mentioned stone in the corner of said Hand's land, which stone is also the south corner of lot number one; thence binding on said lot north, forty-three degrees and twenty minutes east, four chains and seventy-five links to a stake in the line of lot number one, it being the west corner of lot number two; thence binding on the last named lot, south, forty-nine degrees and thirty-five minutes east, five chains and seventy-five links to a stake in the line of lot number five, it being also the south corner of lot number two; thence binding on lot number five, south, forty-three degrees and forty-five minutes west, one chain and forty-six links to a stone in the west corner of said lot which stone is the north corner of Matthew Connet's woodland; thence binding on said Connet's land, south, forty-three degrees west, three chains and fifty-four links to a stake in said Connet's line, it being the east corner of lot number seven; thence binding on said lot north, forty-nine degrees and thirty-five minutes west, five chains and seventy-five links to the place of beginning, containing two acres and eighty-four hundredths of an acre of land.

The tracts above described, being the same premises set off to Cutter Dolbier, by the Commissioners appointed by the Essex County Orphan's Court, to partition certain lands devised by Jesse Dolbier, deceased, designated by said Commissioners, as lots numbers one and six of said decedent's lands, as appears by the records of said Court, in book H, pages 242, etc., January, 1834.

The Third Tract—Beginning at a stone corner being Jackson Pound's and running with his line north, forty-nine degrees west, eleven chains and eighty links to a corner of William Hand, then with Hand's line north, forty-four degrees east, eleven chains and twenty-eight links to a corner of Johnson Martin; thence south forty-nine degrees east, five chains and seventy-eight links to a stone corner, being Matthew Connet's; thence with his land south, forty-four degrees west, three chains and forty-three links to another of said Connet's corner's; thence south, forty-nine degrees east, five chains and ninety-three links to another of said Connet's corners; thence south, forty-four degrees west, six chains and seventy-seven links, to the place of beginning, containing ten acres of land, be the same more or less. Being the same premises conveyed by Erkuries B. Dunham, et als. to Cutter Dolbier, by deed dated March 7th, 1849, and recorded in Essex County Register's Office, in book R. No. 8, of Deeds, pages 154, etc.

The Fourth Tract—Beginning at a stone planted for a corner, being the south corner of Johnson Martin's land, and west corner of a lot of woodland, formerly owned by Eliphalet DeCamp, deceased, and the north corner of land belonging to the heirs of Henry Tucker, deceased; thence binding in part on the line of said heirs, and partly on the line of Moses Tucker's land south, forty-four degrees and forty-five minutes west, eleven chains and ninety links to a stake on the line of said Moses Tucker, being also the east corner of a tract of land belonging to the heirs of John Dolbier, deceased; thence binding on the line of said Dolbier's heirs, north, forty-nine degrees and forty-five minutes west, five chains and eighty-nine links to a stake in an angle of the land of said Dolbier's heirs; thence binding in part on the line of said Dolbier's heirs, partly on the line of Jesse Dolbier and partly on the line of Cutter Dolbier, north, forty-four degrees and fifteen minutes east, twelve chains and nine links, also the west corner of said Martin's land; thence binding on the said Martin's line, south, forty-eight degrees and five minutes east, six chains to the place of beginning, containing seven acres and twelve-hundredths of an acre of land, more or less. Being the same premises conveyed to the said Cutter Dolbier by William Hand, Jr., and wife, by deed dated April 20th, 1853, and recorded in the Essex County Register's Office, in book R, No. 8, of Deeds, pages 156, etc.; including the estate and interest in dower of the defendant, Lydia A. Dolbier, widow of Erastus M. Dolbier, deceased, in the said premises; and including, also, the inchoate right of dower of the defendant, Sarah Dolbier, wife of John T. Dolbier, and also the inchoate right of dower of the defendant, Maria L. Dolbier, wife of Arthur H. Dolbier, and also the inchoate right of dower of the defendant, Kittie VanBuren Dolbier, wife of Frederick E. Dolbier, in the said premises; together with all and singular the hereditaments and appurtenances to the said premises belonging, or in anywise appertaining.

Tracts Nos. One [1] and Two [2] as above described, are subject to the lien of a mortgage for Three Hundred and Fifty Dollars, and interest thereon at six per cent. per annum, from September 1st, 1907.

MONTCLAIR CITIZENS SCORE SCHOOL BOARD.

At the public hearing held in Montclair Hall Saturday night an attempt was made to adopt a resolution censuring the Montclair Board of Education for criminal neglect in not adopting safeguards against danger of fire and panic at the public schools of Montclair. The calmer counsel of some of the four hundred men and women present prevented such severe condemnation, and the resolution introduced by Charles Whiting Baker was finally adopted, urging the School Board to take immediate action to reduce the danger of fire, panic and disease in the local schools and calling for the appointment of a committee to make an investigation of the buildings and bring the defects of construction to the notice of the Board.

The meeting Saturday night was called for the purpose of hearing the report of a committee of prominent citizens, appointed at a meeting held in Unity Hall last fall, to act in bringing about an adjustment of the differences that existed between the Town Council and the Board of Education and prevented the erection of the much needed Grammar School. The committee, while it has not achieved any definite results, has been informed that the Board of Education has prepared new plans for the building, and that the situation now appears favorable for the early commencement of the construction of the new school, which will cost over $200,000.

Lack of proper fire protection at the schools was brought up at the meeting by George Da Cunha. There were talks on the subject by Messrs. Starr J. Murphy, Frederick W. Gates, George W. Murray, F. W. Holloway, James Owen and others. All favored immediate action by the Board of Education in removing the dangers which Mr. Da Cunha declared have made death traps of some of the schools, but they opposed the adoption of a resolution offered by Ezra Fitch, censuring the School Board for criminal neglect, and favored the resolution, which was finally adopted. The discussion of the subject was very warm. F. Gordon Smith read the report of a fire inspector of the city of New York whom he had employed to visit the schools, and this report confirmed Mr. Da Cunha's statement of the dangers at the school. Great interest was taken in the meeting, and many women were present. Decatur M. Sawyer presided.

WANTS EQUAL NUMBER OF CHURCHES AND SALOONS.

The Rev. Albert von Schlieder, pastor of the fashionable Dutch Reformed church, of Montclair Heights, is of the opinion that the ratio of the churches to the population of Montclair should be the same as that of the saloons—one for every fifteen hundred persons.

The Rev. Mr. von Schlieder says there are too many churches in the town. He declares that of the twenty-one that are now supported here thirteen could safely be dispensed with. Eight ministers and eight churches are all that the town requires, Dr. Schlieder declares.

There are eight saloons in Montclair, and it is said that the excise committee of the Town Council intends reducing the number to seven. As there is no municipal control of the churches it is likely that the town will continue to have what Dr. von Schlieder believes is a surfeit of religious ministration. Dr. von Schlieder says:

"A low spirituality comes from the constant struggle to keep bills and salaries paid, creating an apparent necessity for fairs, suppers and other pharasaical claptrap to maintain the gospel, giving education to the young that religion is barter and calling forth a few, who, from the evidence of financial ability, are qualified to become pillars of the church. Haughty thoughtlessness is the struggle to compete through pulpit power. Witness the floating church populace which flocks to hear the latest voice and remains only until the next advertisement. And witness the effort of the faithful to attract that some may return and abide.

"We younger ministers are not the real soul savers; they are the older pastors, whose work is individual. Selfish individualism is created by the above conditions in breeding the odious church boss, who breeds factions who breed the devil in our churches. The people who are responsible for these thirteen unnecessary churches in Montclair are responsible for thirteen men dwarfing their powers and indirectly encouraging the most influential hypocrisy—namely, ministerial."

Killed by Engine in Jersey City.

Edward Simon, forty years of age, of No. 92 Pacific avenue, Jersey City, was run over by a drill engine at Van Horn street crossing, in Jersey City early yesterday morning, and almost instantly killed. He was crossing the track and did not see the engine approaching. He leaves a widow and three children.

Camphorated Oil.

This is splendid for cuts, bruises, sore throat bunions and lame backs. Put a pint of kerosene into a quart bottle, add all the gum camphor it will dissolve and shake until the camphor is taken up by the oil. Then mix with it a half pint of sweet oil and 5 cents worth of laudanum. Shake vigorously before using.

CHAPTER XI.

The Mad Chase.

Lord Strathgate was early abroad, which proves the keenness of his interest in the chase. His agents reported to him at daybreak, but had no news of their quest. No one remotely resembling the fugitives had been seen during the night. Although he had breakfasted and day had scarcely dawned, Strathgate could not remain idle. Instinctively his footsteps turned toward the strand. If Ellen had arrived during the night, she would probably have sought the harbor at once. Although the New Eagle had sailed, as she would find to her dismay, there were other ships in the harbor and upon one of these she might have taken refuge. Even though it was yet early, there was plenty of stir along the sea wall, and Strathgate mingled with the fishermen, boatmen, sailors and pilots busy about their various tasks. By the judicious expenditure of shillings and sixpences, he opened the most stubborn mouths. But no one had seen the missing pair. After a half hour's investigation, he was about to give it up as a hopeless task and return to the inn, when as a last venture he put his question to a young fisherman, the latest comer to the wharf.

"Yes, yer honor," replied the man, "I think there was a man and a woman, or a young girl among the passengers which my brother, who owns a wherry, put aboard a ship like yon Flying Star, late last night."

"Am I Your Wife's Keeper?"

The woman happened to be the captain's wife, and the young man was the supercargo of the ship, and the ship happened to be another ship, and not the Flying Star at all; but of that of course neither Strathgate nor his informant had any knowledge. The earl's interest was at once awakened.

"What ship did you say that was?" he asked.

"The Flying Star, I think 'twas called, though I'm no ways certain, yer honor."

"Whose ship was she? Of what nationality, that is?"

"She's an American merchantman, sir," returned the sailor, whose name was Cooper.

"And where does she lie?"

"She doesn't lie nowhere," answered another sailor, surveying the harbor, "leastways her berth was there nearest the warships"—he pointed off toward Admiral Kephard's fleet of grim war monsters swinging easily at their anchors in the strong ebb—"but she's gone now."

"She got under way at daybreak this morning," said a bystander; "yonder she is." He pointed down the harbor at a ship under full sail rapidly working toward the channel.

"Who has the fastest boat in the harbor?" cried Strathgate with sudden resolution.

"I have, yer honor," answered Cooper.

And although his claim was vociferously disputed by a dozen men who crowded around Strathgate, who rather liked the appearance of the man, pitched upon him for his purpose.

"A hundred pounds to you," he cried loudly, "if you put me on board the Flying Star before she gets out of the harbor."

"I'd like to see the color of yer money, yer honor, beggin' yer pardon," said Cooper.

Strathgate pulled out a full purse and passed him a ten-pound note.

"This for earnest money," he said. "Now hasten!"

"I'll want a hand to help me with the sails," said Cooper, full of excitement.

"Five pounds to the man that goes, if we win. I'm the earl of Strathgate."

"Yes, your lordship."

"Take me, Cooper!"

"I'll go!" cried one and another.

Cooper quickly selected his man, choosing one of the lightest and most agile of the applicants.

"Into the boat with you!" cried Strathgate as soon as the matter was settled.

Now that he had made up his mind, he was eager to be off. He did not know where Ellen was. He had no assurance that she was on that ship, but at any rate it was a possible clew, and anything was better than passing the day in idleness at Portsmouth. Perhaps Ellen had come in in some way during the night. Stop! It suddenly flashed into his mind that she might have come by sea. There would have been plenty of time, if she had gotten a boat, anywhere near the place where the carriage was wrecked. This made him the more impatient and anxious to get away.

Fired by the splendid reward for success, Cooper and his man worked double tides and soon had the sails hoisted and the boat ready for departure.

"Will yer honor come now?"

"Immediately," cried Strathgate.

"We haven't a moment to lose, your lordship," returned Cooper. "Those Yankees are swift footers and it'll be nip and tuck if we overhaul her."

Strathgate sprang into the boat and Cooper shoved off. The boom swung out to leeward and the sail of the cutter filled. She was in the lee of the wharf, however, and was moving very slowly when a horseman came galloping down to the strand at full speed. His sorry steed was completely blown. The rider dropped the reins on the horse's neck, sprang to the ground and ran out on the wharf, attracted thereto by the crowd of people watching the departure of Strathgate. As he ran, he shouted:

"Can any of you tell me anything about the New Eagle?"

"Ay, master," answered one of the boatmen, "she sailed yesterday morning for Philadelphia."

"Yesterday morning?"

"Ay, yer honor."

"What ship is that?" continued Carrington, peering straight down the harbor. "She looks like an American."

He was viewing her with the eye of sailorly experience.

"'Tis an American," answered another, "that be the Yankee clipper, Flying Star."

"When did she sail?"

"This morning at daybreak."

"Where is—"

At that moment Carrington's eye comprehended the little cutter gliding along the wharf. He recognized Strathgate standing up in the stern sheets with his arms akimbo, an insulting smile upon his face. With a muttered oath Carrington in two bounds reached the side of the wharf. The boat was increasing its speed at every moment.

"Strathgate!" thundered Carrington, "where is my—?" He stopped. "Where are the fugitives?"

Strathgate laughed ironically, while Carrington with eager eyes searched the recesses of the little craft, thinking that Ellen and Deborah would be aboard of her. His relief was inexpressible when he found that Strathgate was alone. Yet that did not solve the question that rose in his mind.

"Where is she, I say?" he thundered.

Strathgate's answer was an ironical bow.

"Am I your wife's keeper?" he laughed, waving his hat in disdain.

Carrington was armed. He hauled a pistol from his belt, cocked it and leveled it fair at Strathgate.

"Bring that boat into the wharf," he cried, "or I'll shoot you like the dog you are!"

Strathgate did not blanch. He balanced himself easily to the roll of the boat and looked square at Carrington.

"Would you add murder to your other follies?" he answered.

He was an easy mark, the distance was short, Carrington was a sure shot, and if ever a man had murder in his heart it was in that of Ellen's husband. Yet there was something in the dauntless way in which Strathgate faced him and in the fact that the latter appeared unarmed, that caused Carrington, with finger upon the trigger, to stay the pressure.

"Why don't you fire, my lord?" cried Strathgate.

"Draw your weapon, Strathgate," said Carrington, dropping the point of his own pistol.

"I'm sorry to say that I'm unarmed."

There was no use. Carrington could not kill him under the circumstances. He stood staring after him for a moment, and then raised his hand and shook it in the air.

"God have mercy on you if I meet you again!" he cried.

"Take the peril to yourself, Lord Carrington," Strathgate called out, and with a farewell wave of his hand the cutter shot out beyond the extremity of the pier, and, catching the full force of the breeze, which happened to be blowing straight up the harbor, necessitating a hard beat out against it, bore away toward the opposite shore.

Pistol in hand, Carrington turned and confronted the astonished crowd which had gathered in his rear.

"What went he after?" he asked.

The men facing him looked from one to another.

Carrington thrust the pistol back into his belt, tore out his pocketbook, opened it, and took out a ten-pound note.

"That for information."

One of the men whose boats Strathgate had disdained to employ forced his way through the crowd.

"I'll tell you for the money."

"Speak out. 'Tis yours."

"He come down here lookin' for a man and a woman, and Cooper, he owns the boat yonder, said his brother put a party containin' a man and a woman aboard the Flying Star or a ship like her last night."

"What then?" asked Carrington.

"Then he offered a hundred pounds for the fastes' boat to put him aboard the Flying Star afore she got clear into the channel."

"And he took Cooper's boat," said another boatman.

"Is she the fastest in the harbor?"

"Well, there's some as do say that Jim Haight's boat's got the heels of her."

"Here's your ten pounds," said Carrington. "Where's Haight?"

"Here I be, master."

"A hundred pounds to you," said Carrington, "if you put me aboard that ship, and another hundred if you put me there before Strathgate."

"And if I don't do neither?" returned Haight, quickly.

"Nothing," said Carrington. "It's win or lose."

"I take you, yer honor;" cried Haight, whose sporting blood was aroused, and the remark was greeted by three cheers from the wharf.

"If it's in the power of a Portsmouth boat to do it, Haight's the man for you, master," said one old veteran.

"Stay," continued Haight, "I'd like to know who I'm dealin' with."

"I'm Lord Carrington, first lieutenant of the Niobe yonder."

He pointed to one of the frigates swinging ahead in the line of battleships of Kephard's fleet.

"Right-o, your lordship," said Haight, making a sea scrape at the mention of rank, social, political and naval, of his speaker. "Lads, who goes with us?"

He picked up three or four volunteers, to whom Carrington promised a suitable reward.

"My boat's twice as big as Cooper's cutter, and I need the hands, your lordship."

"Take anybody, anything you please," said Carrington. "Where's the boat?"

"She be lyin' beyond the other pier. Shall I bring her here, or—?"

"We'll go there," returned my lord. "'Tis quicker."

Committing his horse to one of the bystanders, with instructions to take him to the inn, Carrington, followed by Haight and three seamen, ran back to the shore, made their way along the strand to the other pier, leaped into the boat, which was a large, swift cutter, as Haight had said, at least half again as big as Cooper's, which was now well down the harbor and going tremendously under every freshening breeze.

To cast off the lines, hoist the sails, warp the boat along the pier until she gained the open roads, was the work of a few moments. Carrington stood quietly while the skillful men worked busily around him, but so soon as the wind filled the sail and the boat gathered way he came aft, calmly displaced Haight at the helm and sailed the boat himself. And no one in that harbor knew how to do it better than he.

BOWLING.

A meeting of local bowlers interested in the formation of a five-man tourney will be held at Johnny Campbell's alleys tonight, when the selection of captains and drawing for teams will take place.

Thus far forty individuals have made entries, which assures at least eight teams and it is probable that the tourney will start with ten teams.

Immediately after the make up of the teams has been decided the Armrights and Invincibles will bowl the second half of their match contest. The teams will be made up as follows: Armright—Radin, Campbell, Reville, Skelly, Britton. Invincibles—Blatz, Willett, Laing, Nash and Stout.

Tom Brantingham Loses the Match.

Joseph Rochietti and Thomas Brantingham engaged in a lively shooting match, 100 birds, $25 a side at Mr. Brantingham's Hotel, Saturday afternoon. Mr. Rochietti won out, breaking 84 out of a possible 100, while his opponent finished with a tally of 83, losing the last bird and the chance to tie the score. A return match will be shot on Thursday at the Rahway Gun Club grounds. Another match of interest on Saturday was between John Kelly, of Westfield, and Joseph Terry, of Alton, 25 birds, $25 a side. Mr. Terry was the winner, breaking 17 out of a possible 25, while his opponent broke 14 birds. Sweepstake shooting followed. Mr. Kelly took first money, Daniel and Scott Terry tied for second money, while Joseph Terry took third.

ROMANCE OF SLAVERY.

Woman of 60 Finds Mother, 106, Lost Since Close of War.

Mrs. Louisa Fry, an aged negro woman of Pleasantville, has just found her mother, whom she has not seen since the slaves on a plantation near Charlottesburg, Va., were liberated at the close of the Civil War.

The mother of Mrs. Fry claims to be 106 years old. Mrs. Fry is past 60, but both women are said to have recognized each other at once when they met a short time ago in Philadelphia.

$100 Pearl in Oyster Stew.

A $100 pearl was found by J. R. Maule, manager of the R. T. Wood Company, in an oyster stew at Burlington in a local cafe. The stew cost 15 cents, and Maule says he will order one every day if the management will guarantee to give as big value for the money.

GOVERNOR'S NEWARK OFFICE.

Room In Son's Law Suite To Be Used for Holding Daily Business Conferences.

Governor Fort is to establish a headquarters in Newark so he can be seen on business matters without a trip to Trenton. Newark is already happy over the idea of being the seat of a "little capital" of the State government.

With his son, Recorder Franklin W. Fort, of East Orange, he has leased a suite of five offices on the fourth floor of the Scheuer Building, at Broad and Commerce streets. His son will conduct a general law business, and one of the larger offices will be reserved for the Governor in which to meet citizens by appointment. He will not decrease the time he now spends in the executive offices in Trenton, but, as he is in Newark awhile each day on his way to and from his home in East Orange, he will find ample time and opportunity to visit the Newark office.

Governor Fort has announced that he will not appoint for several weeks aditional Common Pleas judges for Essex and Hudson counties, as provided for in a bill which became a law on Friday by his signature. He will wait at least until the April term of the court opens.

Methodists Defy Bishop.

David Trout, sexton of the First Methodist church at Trenton, acted yesterday as a special policeman and sat through the services where he could keep one eye on the entrance and the other on the pulpit. Neither he nor any of the church officials would admit it, but everybody understood that Trout was sworn in for the purpose of keeping from the church the Rev. Dr. William A. Frye, appointed pastor at the recent session of the Methodist Conference.

A call for a meeting of the Democratic State committee of New Jersey, on March 26, in this city, was issued by Chairman Robert S. Hudspeth on Saturday.

The committee will fix dates for primaries for the election of delegates to the convention to choose delegates to the national convention and will set a date for the State convention.

Rev. Dr. Martin Resigns.

At the conclusion of the services in the Clinton Avenue Reformed church, Newark, yesterday morning, the pastor, Rev. Dr. Daniel H. Martin, requested the congregation to remain a few moments as he had an important communication to read. This communication proved to be Dr. Martin's letter of resignation as minister of the church, which he has served for eighteen years, having begun April 1, 1890.

WHERE PLAINFIELD EXCELS

Wm. Jeffery in Protest Against Personal Tax Tells of This City's Realty Wealth.

UNION COUNTY COMPARISONS.

Summit Shows Up Well In Many Particulars—Some Interesting Facts and Figures.

That the burden of a personal tax falls heavier in proportion on the rich than on the poor is the argument made by William Jeffery, a real estate specialist of Berkeley Heights and a former resident of this city, who today registered a protest against the present campaign in Plainfield to enforce such a tax.

"It is sad to announce," says Mr. Jeffery, "that Plainfield is following the assinine policy of 'soaking' personal property, instead of 'letting up.' All countries have tried to get at the elusive personal property as far back as we know anything about history. Always the same old result, the wise and the rich evade the tax and the poor always caught in the assessor's net, yes, the ones that are caught are those upon whom such a tax bears the heaviest, the merchant on his goods in the factory, again in the warehouse, again in the retail store, and then in the home, the producer gets it in the neck from first to last and the insignificant amount of the tax realized by this double dealing and inquisitorial method is ridiculous.

"The amount of this personal property tax in Plainfield is only twenty-five cents of the total tax raise of $1.47 for 1907, the balance, one dollar and twenty-two cents, is on real estate, yet with so small a proportion of the taxes shown to cover personal property, Plainfield is the highest in the county, with an assessment of personal property of $163 per inhabitant, Summit next, $116.50, and Elizabeth the headquarters of the great Singer Sewing Machine plant, etc., assessed at only $85.89 per inhabitant. Elizabeth has probably cut her wisdom teeth, and seems to be enjoying the fruits of satisfactory development.

"Ask any assessor who really knows his business and he will tell you that work of listing up personal property is his only trouble. He has to 'butt in' on people, sit on their front porches, sneak in to the neighbors' house and ask all kinds of questions about you—do you own the furniture? how many musical instruments have you? what salary do you make (when you make it)? Then he looks wise and says: 'I guess I will put you down for a couple of hundred dollars or a thousand dollars.'

"Of course no poor man wants his companion in misery to think that he is not worth a couple of hundred dollars, still he knows well enough that it is an unjust law, and no one knows it better than the assessor. That is the reason most of our assessors do not see or hear very well; they are ashamed to be caught at either game, and those of them who are not new at the work, pass on. If it were put to a vote, the assessors would round up a good majority for the abolition of the personal property tax I believe.

"Plainfield is richest, also, in churches in the county. You know churches do not pay any taxes, no matter how much property they hold. Plainfield is 'way ahead of the rest of the county in the value of her public schools, amounting to twenty-one dollars and sixty cents per inhabitant, over double that of Elizabeth and almost three times that of Summit per inhabitant. Summit has the largest value of real estate in the county per inhabitant, amounting to $1.74, and I suppose that's the reason the schools are not up to a higher amount in value, is because the residents of Summit do not have the 'Bungalow' or 'Adam Smith 1776' families, or else the city is short of proper school accommodation. Anyway, Plainfield stands at the top of the list, and whoever was responsible for this condition ought to get a gold medal from the present city authorities. If there were more than one or a few interested, give out more medals, even if you have to make them out of aluminum.

"Plainfield has also the highest graveyard value per inhabitant next to Westfield. This does not indicate that there are more dead ones in these two places proportionately than in the rest of the county. The value of the Plainfield graveyards amounts to two dollars and seventy-two cents per inhabitant, (dead ones not included). While you are alive the proportionate value of the graveyards as found by the assessor is the trifling sum of less than three dollars, and at this rate would give you under an equal division of the property enough to bury the whole of your family. But when you die your wife or mother-in-law goes to buy a cheap plot to give you a comfortable resting

P. S. C. WILL IMPROVE LOCAL TROLLEY SERVICE

Superintendent J. J. Gettings, of the Public Service orporation, who was to have held a conference with Mayor C. J. Fisk on Saturday regarding the proposed new arrangement of operating local trolley cars, was prevented from coming to Plainfield because of another important engagement. He has promised to be here this week, however, and present the company's plans for bettering the trolley service.

The plan to run the Netherwood cars through Front street, without a change at the Watchung avenue stand is being urged, and efforts will be made to have the change go into effect by April 1 so that the many ministers who will attend the Newark Conference, and who will stop at Truell Hall, may be able to ride between the Hall and the First M. E. church, without change. Mayor Fisk's attention has been called to the matter and he will do all in his power to bring about the improvement.

It is also expected that Plainfield will be remembered by the company in the distribution of new cars, as promised last fall. Mayor Fisk is insistent that old cars on the city lines be replaced with new ones and has given the company to understand that it must comply with his request. The company has further agreed to improve the Fourth street line by laying new rails thereby making it possible to operate the larger cars through that thoroughfare. New rails are also to be laid on sections of the Netherwood line, where no improvements have been made since the line was built.

SIX STOLEN BICYCLES RESTORED TO OWNERS

As a result of the published descriptions of the wheels recovered by the police from the boarding house of Ignoc Muskovitz at Dunellen, six of the stolen bicycles were identified by the owners at police headquarters this morning. The claimants are William F. Wilson, J. F. W. Bamberger, Fred W. Dunavan, John Apgar, Andrew H. Winrow and Ulysses G. Pierson, all of whom afterward preferred a separate charge against Muskovitz. There are two more of the machines waiting to be claimed and several frames and miscellaneous tires.

Muskovitz was re-arraigned on the six counts this morning and pleaded guilty. Bail was fixed at $200 on each charge, making $1,200 in all that he will have to furnish as he was held in $200 yesterday on the complaint made by Nicholas Thul. It was intended to arraign Peter Harsen, the other prisoner in the bicycle cases, on another charge from the one preferred against him yesterday, but his attempt at suicide compelled a postponement.

Stolen Property Recovered.

The hearing in the case of Mary Polack, or Mary Madej, as she first gave her name, charged by her employer with stealing clothing and laces from his home, was again adjourned in the city court this morning. Detective-Sergeant Flynn yesterday located $50 worth of goods that she had stored in a tenement house at Newark and it is believed she has more in a place on Franklin avenue, the borough. It is possible that she has committed a number of similar robberies in other places.

Alvah TenEyck Injured.

While turning the crank on his automobile yesterday in an effort to start the machine, the handle flew back striking Alvah TenEyck on the wrist, breaking a small bone. The arm was rendered helpless and Mr. TenEyck was obliged to seek the services of a physician. He is employed by the Pullman Palace Car Company, and in consequence of the accident, will be detained at home several days.

Women to Give Novel Entertainment.

The Women's Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will hold a novel entertainment in the parlors of the church, tonight, when numerous features will be introduced by Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnson, who recently returned from a trip abroad. There will also be a program of vocal and instrumental music. The decorations will be particularly attractive.

Margaret M. Shea.

Margaret M. Shea, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shea, of Jersey City, died Saturday. The body was brought to this city yesterday and burial was made in St Mary's cemetery. The parents formerly resided here, the father having conducted a saloon on West Third street near Plainfield avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Staats, of Brooklyn, have returned home after a visit with Plainfield relatives.

PRISONER TRIES SUICIDE

Peter Harson, Accused of Wheel Thefts, Makes Two Unsuccessful Attempts.

BARELY REVIVED SECOND TIME.

First Used Suspenders For a Noose and Afterward Fastened His Head In Chain of Cell Cot.

Making two attempts to kill himself in his cell at police headquarters, Peter Harsen, one of the men arrested Saturday night for bicycle thefts, all but succeeded in ending his life this morning. At his second try he adopted a novel method to strangle himself and but for the fact that his struggles were heard by other prisoners he would have been dead before help arrived. He was lifted down and Dr. Gesswein worked over him an hour before he was restored to consciousness. At one time it was thought his demise was but a matter of a few minutes and Rev. Father Delehanty was summoned to administer extreme unction.

Harsen protested from the time of his arrest that he is innocent of the charge and he took the imprisonment very much at heart. He was locked up in the first cell of the row at the police building, located in such a position that the inmate cannot be seen by those around him. He remained in a disconsolate mood all yesterday afternoon but at 9:15 last night Patrolman John Kelley heard an unusual noise coming from his cell. Rushing in he found Harsen slowing choking to death by means of a noose he had made from his suspenders and fastened about the door frame. He was cut down and quickly revived.

During the night Harsen was subjected to a close watch to prevent his making a second attempt, the vigil being relaxed just before court time this morning. Nothing was left with him that it was thought would aid in self-destruction but he was determined to die and at 9 o'clock he hit upon a scheme to make another try. Each of the cells at headquarters is fitted with two iron cots, suspended one above the other by a chain so they can be pulled to one side when not in use. Harsen shoved the upper cot up and then twisted the slack of the supporting chain about his neck. It fitted so tight it was like a noose and would have served his purpose very well but for interference.

There were five other prisoners near Harsen and when they heard him kicking and grasping they set up a yell that brought all the officers in the station on the run. Detective-Sergeant Flynn and Roundsman Higgins were the first to get to him and by that time the would-be suicide was in a bad way. His body hung limp and apparently lifeless while the color of the face was changing to black. He had fastened himself in the chain in such a way that it required several minutes to get him free. Two policemen had to lift him up while a third worked his head clear. When he was finally stretched out on the floor and Dr. Gesswein set to work, it appeared to be a hopeless task to bring him back to life. The physician persevered, however, and by 10:30 the young man was able to sit up on a cot.

Judge Runyon became very much interested in the case and after court adjourned had Harsen subjected to a rigorous examination. He is unable to speak English and the questions were put to him by Charles Miller, the police's Polak interpreter. When asked why he wanted to kill himself he declared he was being imprisoned for something he hadn't done and there was no use in living. He insisted that the bicycles stolen were taken by his brother, Albert Harsen, and Ignoc Muskovitz, the latter having been arrested and confessed his part in the thefts. Albert Harsen fled from his boarding house in Dunellen Saturday night.

After the examination, enough evidence had been secured to make the young man's guilt a question and Judge Runyon instructed the police to follow up at once anything that might tend to establish his innocence. Harsen was positively identified by George Geary yesterday as the man he had caught taking his wheel from in front of Roth's butcher shop Saturday night, but there is a chance that a mistake has been made. The prisoner is being closely watched to prevent any further attempt at suicide.

N. C. J. English About the Same.

Former Prosecutor Nicholas C. J. English, who was stricken with paralysis a few days ago, remains about the same. Occasionally he is able to recognize members of the family and friends. His physicians said today that they considered that he is holding his own and this is encouraging.

"CHANCE JOB" MEN PICKED UP FOLLOWING A "LIFT"

The local police have in custody at headquarters two young men who were picked up last night, evidently professional crooks, who dropped into town on a "chance job." They described themselves as Walter Carroll, aged 24, of Boston, and Arthur Fuller, aged 29, of Brooklyn, but both names and addresses are believed to be fictitious.

Carroll was arrested last night as he attempted to walk out of Madden's pool room on North avenue with an overcoat belonging to Richard O'Neill. Young men in the place noticed him take the garment and grabbed him as he reached the door. He was held by them while a messenger went out and returned with Roundsman Higgins. Players at Madden's place remembered that Carroll had been in there earlier in the evening with another stranger and several of them went out looking for him. They located the fellow on Park avenue and after a chase captured him on North avenue. He was turned over to Patrolman Messler and proved to be Fuller, Carroll's companion.

Although the overcoat charge has been made against Carroll, the two men have not been arraigned and are being held as suspicious characters while their records are being looked up. Carroll had several pawn tickets in his pockets and Fuller carried an empty suit case when captured. The police believe the men were preparing to commit a robbery and brought the case along to pack away what plunder could be gotten. They also had numerous pairs of gloves which is taken as evidence that they were taken from overcoats stolen and sold. Fuller is a clever pen and ink artist and showed the police samples of his work.

FAITHFUL MISSIONARY BORNE TO HER GRAVE.

With a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, the funeral of Mrs. Fanny Bond, wife of Lewis Bond, for many years a missionary in Macedonia, was held yesterday afternoon at her late home on Kensington avenue. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring and in the course of an address he paid a deserved tribute to the departed one whose life work had been for the Master. He eulogized her Christian character and the steadfastness with which she persisted in laboring in the far-off land when obstacles arose that would have daunted others.

During the service two selections, "Lead, Kindly Light," and "The Homeland" were sung by Miss Lucretia Case, of the First Presbyterian church choir. There were numerous floral tributes.

Burial was made in the North Plainfield cemetery, the pall-bearers being William Shotwell, Theodore Pruden, Abram Cadmus, T. E. Burroughs, C. M. Hummer and A. V. Searing.

Injunction Hearing.

The summing up by counsel in the hearing of Miles Reusch and others against Theodore Glazier, Jr., of Alton, in an effort to make permanent a temporary injunction, afterward modified, restraining the defendant from operating his fat rending factory at Alton, is being heard today before Vice Chancellor Walker at Trenton. It is expected that both S. S. Swackhamer, for the complainants, and Judge William Newcorn, for the defendant, will conclude their arguments this afternoon, when a decision from the vice chancellor will be awaited with unusual interest.

W. Edwin Williams.

Following a long illness from a complication of troubles, W. Edwin Williams died this morning at his home on Second place. He was forty-one years old and came to this city with his family from Brooklyn two years ago, first residing on Grant avenue near Fourth street. He was a contracting steam fitter with offices in New York. He belonged to the Masons and other fraternal organizations and though living here but a short time had many local acquaintances. A wife and one daughter survive him.

George Terrell.

George Terrell, for many years a prominent figure in Somerset county politics and holder of various offices, died yesterday in All Souls' Hospital, Morristown. He had been ailing for a long time. He was in his sixty-sixth year and was well known in this city, having lived nearly all his life in the Mount Bethel vicinity. The funeral will be held in the Mount Bethel church tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

LOSES $2,000 IN BLAZE

Councilman B. R. Waldron's 2:17 Trotter Perishes when Fire Destroys Barn.

OWNER SUSPECTS INCENDIARIES

Barn Found a Mass of Flames at 5 o'Clock This Morning and Another Horse Also Burns.

A valuable trotter owned by Councilman B. R. Waldron, of Codington avenue, was burned to death early this morning in a fire which totally destroyed the barn and caused the death of another horse stabled there and a loss of $2,000 to stable and contents. The trotter was valued at $350 and had a record of 2:17.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but Mr. Waldron stated this morning that he suspected incendiarism. He said that he has observed suspicious-looking men on his premises recently and that it has been a practise of certain men to go into the barn and smoke.

The fire was discovered at 4:45 this morning by William Uhrhahn, of Regent street, who saw smoke swirling from the crevices of the barn. Shouting the alarm, he rushed to the door, and on opening it, discovered the entire interior of the building to be a mass of flames. Mrs. Waldron, wife of the Councilman, telephoned for the North Plainfield fire department, but when the firemen arrived upon the scene, the barn was a mass of flames and nothing could be saved. Prompt action on the part of the firemen saved the chicken-coop, which stands near the barn. Captain Edmund H. Terry, Lieutenant William Gaub and Callman McCullough were at headquarters when the telephone alarm came in at about 5 o'clock, and Terry sounded a general alarm from box 135.

The blaze started in the hay directly in front of the horses' stalls, and the animals were suffocated. Mr. Waldron had left the barn on his milk route about an hour before Uhrhahn discovered the fire, and the horse and wagon he drove were the only things saved. Aside from the two horses, a new road wagon, two other wagons, two sleighs, four sets of harness, blankets and a quantity of hay and grain were lost. Mr. Waldron stated today that his loss will reach $2,000, partially covered by insurance.

Will Present the Pledge.

Following a presentation of the topic, "Shall We Present the Pledge?" by Robert Love, and a discussion of it by the members of the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union at the Y. M. C. A., last night, it was thought advisable by those in attendance to have the pledge presented on Sunday afternoon at the various schools in the city and borough. The lesson, which will be on temperance, was taught by Rev. J. W. Musson, of Faith chapel.

Madame Cottrelly Entertains.

Last night, Madame Cottrelly entertained an even dozen young people at her home in Dunellen. The guests were nearly all Plainfielders. The evening was devoted to games, followed by college songs and dancing. The scheme of decoration was daffodil yellow in the parlors and hyacinth in the dining room. Supper was served shortly before midnight.

Will Study About China.

A mission study class on China will be started tonight by the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel. Miss Harriet Halloway, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will be present to assist in organizing the class and deciding upon the course of study.

MOUNT ST. MARY'S COLLEGE NEARING COMPLETION

Imposing Structure on Mountain Slope to Be Ready for Sisters of Mercy by July First.

DEDICATION SET FOR AUGUST.

Bishop McFaul to Officiate at Ceremony—College to Open in Fall —Ground Gift of D. T. Kenney.

Situated on the southern slope of the picturesque Watchung Mountains, above the intersection of Mountain avenue and Terrill road, in North Plainfield township, the new convent of Mount Saint Mary's, the $200,000 college structure erected by the State order of the Sisters of Mercy, is now practically completed, and will become the Mother House of the Order about July 1, when Saint Joseph's Academy, now the Mother House of the community at Bordentown, will take up quarters in the new building. The new college, an impressive-looking structure of brick and limestone with a facade of 200 feet, is erected near the summit of the mountain, facing the south and commanding a superb view of Plainfield and North Plainfield. Mother Gabriel, the Mother Superior of the Order of the Sisters of Mercy and now superintendent of the Bordentown community, will make the new college her headquarters, and Sister Saint John, now in charge of the Bordentown College, will be the new rectoress. Mother Cecelia, with Sisters Mercedes, Concepta and Bernadetta, now of Saint Gabriel's Academy, North Plainfield, will also transfer their field of work to the new college, where they will assist the 160 other teachers of the order, 30 of whom will act as instructors at the new Mount Saint Mary's College.

Planned for the instruction and rooming accommodation of 200 pupils and a community of nearly the same number of Sisters, as instructors, the building is three stories in height and contains ninety-eight rooms. Two hundred feet in length, it is eighty-two feet deep, and on the east end is a single story addition, where will be the kitchen, heating plant and supply rooms. The large wings at the ends of the building, as shown in the architect's drawing, have not yet been built, but will be constructed as the community outgrows the present main building.

The main entrance, with its Indiana limestone porch, porte-cochiere and handsomely decorated door-way, is flanked by monolithic Corinthian columns, twenty-eight feet in height. From the vestibule, Rennaissance stairways of heavy oak lead up from the mosaic and marble panelled entrance to the main hall, large, lofty and square, at the end of which is a high broad corrider, running the width of the entire building. Across the hall-way, in the rear of the corrider, is the main office of the Mother Superior. Directly over the square hall-way, rearing to a height of 168 feet above the ground, the roof is surmounted by a tower, and cupola, which contains the big convent bell and is surmounted by the cross of the order. The rooms on the main floor include three large primary recitation rooms, the library, dining-rooms for the Sisters and pupils and officers of the directress and principal.

Above-stairs, on the second floor, are the music rooms—eight for piano instruction and three for vocal in-

CHIEF WOOLSTON SEES SCHOOL FIRE DRILLS

Chief Howard Woolston and Captain Edmund H. Terry, of the North Plainfield fire department, visited the two borough schools this morning, where fire drills were conducted by Supervising Principal Henry C. Krebs. At both the Somerset street school and the Watchung school, the drills were entirely unexpected by the pupils, and each building was cleared in a little over a minute after the alarm was given, without the slightest confusion. Chief Woolston congratulated Mr. Krebs on the efficiency of the drills and the training of the pupils in leaving the building.

Dr. A. C. Rothermel, principal of the State Normal School at Kutztown, Pa., who, with his daughter, Miss Ruth Rothermel, was Mr. Kreb's guest at the Somerset street school today, was an enthusiastic spectator of the fire drill there, which was held at about 9:30 o'clock. Without the knowledge to the pupils, the north front entrance of the school was locked and this exit cut off. This made it necessary for more than a hundred of the smaller pupils to leave the building by the main exit, and with the pupils of the high school department, this made a total of more than 400 of the 750 pupils in the school, who left by the main exit. There was no congestion, and the building was emptied in a minute and forty seconds.

Mr. Krebs is particularly strict about the order of the pupils in leaving the building, and enforces the rule of absolute silence. Chief Woolston endorsed his theory that disorder means confusion and possibly panic, and the principal has trained the pupils to leave the building quickly, without any talking. All were back at work again within three minutes after the alarm was sounded.

After the drill at the Somerset street school, Mr. Krebs and the department officials went to the Watchung school. Here there are 220 pupils, and at the sounding of the alarm bell, they left the building in a minute and thirty second.

In an effort to show the comparative efficiency of fire drills in the city and borough schools, Superintendent Maxson and Fire Chief T. O. Doane, of the city department, will be invited to conduct fire drills at the Somerset street school, and Supervising Principal Krebs and Fire Chief Woolston, of the borough, are to be invited to inspect a fire drill at the Plainfield High School in the near future.

Shooter Fined $5.

Elbert Cuff, a colored youth residing on lower Central avenue, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by Edward A. Couch with shooting firearms in the city limits. The complainant resides near the Cuff premises and stated to Judge Runyon that the defendant for the past year or more had been shooting bullets in all directions and frequently killing off some of Couch's choice fowls. Cuff was fined $5 and warned that if he persisted in shooting he would be sent to jail.

Bishop Dubs To Speak Here.

Bishop Rudolph Dubs, of Harrisburg, Pa., will be the speaker at the men's meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. His topic will be "Does It Pay to Be a Christian?" The open parliament following Alexander Irvine's address Sunday afternoon proved so helpful that it has been decided to hold another open discussion after Bishop Dubs' address, when he will answer questions dealing with Christian life and doctrine.

Mrs. Valentine Utzinger, of Grandview avenue, is able to be out again after a three months' illness.

Miss Margaret M. Hoagland, of Neshanic, has returned from a visit to relatives in New York.

Charles Waldron, who has been very ill at his home in North Branch, is able to be about again.

The Pluckemin brook was recently stocked with 175 trout by Game Warden Miller, of Somerville.

Harry Barker, of Neshanic, has been visiting relatives in Whitehouse.

WESTFIELD.

Dr. J. J. Savitz, of Westfield, county superintendent of schools, and the president of the County Board of Agriculture, are to meet the various Boards of Education of the county, to urge that at least one teacher from each district be sent to the Cape May School of Agriculture, to be held at Cape May during July. The school is under the department of public instruction at Trenton, and the idea is to have at least one teacher in each district know something about teaching the rudiments of agriculture.

Bills concerning the sewer extension, which is now completed, occupied the attention of Westfield Council at a special meeting held Saturday night. A date for hearings in the first batch of sidewalk ordinances for the year has been set for April 6 by the Council.

Miss Emma Starr, president of Westfield W. C. T. U. will represent that union at the county meeting, to be held at Elizabeth this week. She will speak at the meeting on "The White Slave Traffic."

Edward Van Ness has been appointed janitor of Westfield Presbyterian church in place of Edward Beers, resigned.

SOMERVILLE.

The teachers' training class of the Methodist church completed the present course of study last evening. This class has met at the parsonage every Monday evening, Rev. A. J. Bliss, pastor of the church, having charge of the class.

Culver McWilliam spent last week with his mother, on Altamont place, and returned Saturday to Lafayette College, where he is a student.

Mr. and Mrs. William Daken, of East High street, have returned from their European trip, which lasted about three months.

NEWARK, N. J.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

Concerning the Retirement of Wm. T. Rae & Co., and of the Continuance of the Business under the Proprietorship of

C. M. SANFORD

(Formerly with Messrs. J. Wiss & Sons.)

After Fifty years of active business life, the firm of Wm. T. Rae & Co. has retired.

With its passing into history goes a reputation for sterling integrity, reliability and honesty such as few concerns can boast of, and which it will be my earnest endeavor to maintain.

In announcing my advent into this business and continuing that of Messrs. Rae & Co., there are several facts which I wish to make public, namely:

(1) That it will ever be my purpose to live up to and not "on" the reputation which the house of Rae & Co. has established.

(2) That my stock of Diamonds and other Precious Stones, Gold Jewelry and Clocks will not only be as varied and comprehensive as that of any other Newark store of this character, but absolutely dependable and moderately priced as well.

(3) That I shall offer an Optical Service second to none in the city. This department, while under my personal supervision and direction, will be in charge of a skilled Eye Sight Specialist —W. E. Small, Ref. D.

(4) That Watch and Jewelry Repairing shall constitute an important part of my business, and that all such work entrusted to me will be executed satisfactorily and promptly by experts whose qualifications are the best.

To serve you faithfully and well and merit your good-will and patronage is my desire.

Chas. M. Sanford.

Rich Coats of Silk, Lace and Braid.

There never was a season more prolific of beautiful styles in women's dress than this one—never, never, never. And the chiefest of all the beautiful creations are the exquisite coats of silk, lavishly covered with lace and braid, which fashion produces in so many attractive original models as to win the plaudits of the whole world of fashion.

These rich coats may be appropriately worn on almost any occasion, for indoor evening affairs as well as at lawn fetes and seashore promenade.

We are extremely anxious to have you see our splendid collection of these charming coats for we know there is no other one like it in all New Jersey. Prices run from $22.50 up.

One of these coats is a short Madame Butterfly Effect made over silk, with braid in the most beautiful designs covering the entire coat; some with Persian Trimming around collar; may be had in any desired color, enabling you to match any costume. It looks like a garment that might cost $50 to $75. We say $35.

Another beautiful Madame Butterfly Effect made over silk is covered with lace and braids in various exquisite styles with Persian trimmings and may be had in any color desired. Price, only $32.

A Rich Lace Coat, short on hips, running to long points front and back; a most charming model, beautifully covered with lace in combination with pure silk braid and pretty Persian edge; may be had in white, black or any desired color to match your costume. Price, $37.50.

This Empire Long Coat of Rajah Silk in natural color will prove one of the most popular models because of its general usefulness. This coat is elaborated with braid front and back, the collar having a Persian edge and has cuffs of beautiful silk braid, unlined; light and dressy. Price, $37.50.

News of New Suits and Dresses.

Among the latest arrivals in the Suit Section are novel and pretty Mirage Jumper and Princess Dresses, beautifully trimmed with braid in many pretty colors, in a variety of styles; to sell at the popular price of $25.

Single and Double-breasted Prince Chap Suits, 4-Button Cutaway Suits, Madam Butterfly Suits and Suits with Hip Length Coats, are now shown in a variety of materials and colorings sufficient to satisfy to the highest degree all who favor us with a visit.

Choose from mannish mixtures and stripes in hard hand twisted serges, individual stripes and fancy checks in tans, grays, greens, reds, browns, reseda, oxford and Copenhagen blue, apricot and blondine.

The coats are lined with fancy striped silk or Skinner's satin and have fancy trimmings or facings of satin, and pique vestee. The skirts are in the prettiest circular, gored and plaited effects, with and without folds. There is no superior collection of suits anywhere at $25

At $32.50 we are showing particularly pretty Suits of Fancy Striped Serge in reseda or tan, the coat front pointed; with self-strappings and buttons, with white vestee; lined with white silk; the skirts are in pretty tunic effects, very dressy and most desirable in every way.

At $39.50 we are showing handsome Suits with Double Breasted Hip Length Coats and some fitted back; ¾-length sleeve; skirts kilt or side plaited, with or without folds, as well as the new flare skirts; made of tan shadow striped serge with mirage vest in steel blue, beautifully tailored.

UTILITIES MEASURE NEXT

Legislature Will Try to Dispose of an Important Bill This Week.

TO GREET SEC. TAFT TONIGHT

Bryan to Be Lawmakers' Guest On Wednesday—The Program As Mapped Out.

Big legislative propositions are always a bugaboo and the members of the House at Trenton are looking forward with gratification to getting the public utilities regulation question thrashed out this week. The defeat of local option last Tuesday cleared the calendar of one heavyweight proposition. Civil service reform has, for the present at least, been removed from general consideration and the legislators are prepared to dispose of some more things in that class.

There will be four days of work in the House this week and more than one night session, and the Senate will probably accomplish more than in any other sitting this year.

The joint session tonight to greet Secretary of War William H. Taft will not break into the regular work at all. Ordinarily the two branches would not convene until about 8:30 or 9 o'clock. To meet the man who aspires to the Presidency and his fellow guest, Baron Takahire, President Thomas J. Hillery, of the Senate, will call the joint session to order before 7 o'clock and present Governor John Franklin Fort, who in turn will present the distinguished visitors. The Senators and Assemblymen are to be requested not to run away to attend the dinner of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, at which the Japanese Ambassador, Baron Takahira, and the Governor are to speak during the evening.

The visit of William Jennings Bryan to Trenton on Wednesday will break into the morning session. He will be presented to the two houses in joint session by the Governor, and will probably make a much more extended speech than Mr. Taft.

The entrance of the Governor into the Assembly chamber will break a precedent almost as old as the State itself. The democracy of the forefathers who had a part in the Revolution was so deep-seated following their experience with monarchical government that they looked askance at the visit of a State or National Executive to the legislative halls.

In New Jersey the Governor is inaugurated in the presence of the Legislature and to its members delivers his inaugural address. But there is said to be no precedent for a visit to the legislative halls during a session. Both Senate and House have unanimously voted to invite Governor Fort to appear before them tonight, and the House has asked him and the Senators to be present Wednesday.

Secretary Taft and Baron Takahira will reach Trenton on the train due from Washington at 4:30 o'clock. Mr. Taft will be entertained at the bachelor apartments of Wilbur F. Sedler, Jr., former president of the Chamber of Commerce, while the Japanese nobleman will go to a hotel.

At 5:30 the two distinguished guests of the Capital City will go to the State House, where they will be received by Governor Fort and his staff. For an hour there will be a reception in the executive suite, after which the Governor and his staff will escort the party to the Assembly chamber.

After the social session the regular business will be taken up. It is understood that the conference committee of three Senators and three Assemblymen will get together during the evening in an effort to evolve a compromise civil service reform bill.

There is a plan afoot to have enough Republicans in the House vote with the Democrats for their elective public utilities commission bill on Tuesday. The Senate and the Governor are against an elective commission, and the result would be the same as that witnessed in connection with civil service.

PREACHES THE WATER CURE.

New Style Clergyman Advises Drinking 3 or 4 Quarts a Day.

The Rev. J. Wood Elliott, until last week rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church, Orange, yesterday afternoon made his advent as a lecturer of the "new thought" as exemplified by the Circle of Divine Ministry.

After declaring that he firmly believed he would never have a sick day, Mr. Elliott said that in order to overcome sickness it was necessary to obey God's laws by inhaling fresh air deeply and cleanse his lungs. He must also drink three or four quarts of water a day.

—Miss Kathryn Glenn's dancing class will hold a reception Friday night in the Camera Club rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. George White, of the borough, entertained company from Millstone over Sunday.

Miss Emma Roantree, of Grove street, is able to be out after two weeks illness with measles.

FIREMEN IN SCHOOLS.

Atlantic City Board of Education to Safeguard the Pupils.

Fire escapes are to be placed on the new High School and every escape now on school buildings in Atlantic City is to be made to conform to absolute rules of safety, following orders of the Board of Education given out Saturday. The action followed a sharp demand by State Curator Silas Morse, who is also a member of the local board, that every possible precaution be taken to prevent panic or loss of life in the schools.

The board also voted to equip each schoolroom with fire extinguishers and plans are being made to secure a force of professional firemen large enough to detail one man to each school building.

WILL DOUBLE HOTEL.

The Astor to Be Made Twice Its Present Size.

Ground will be broken on April 1 for an extension of the Hotel Astor in Broadway, New York, which will double the capicity of that house. The hotel now covers 200 by 162 feet, and the proposed addition will add 200 feet by 162 feet more. This means tearing down fourteen houses. This addition will increase the number of bed chambers to within 1,000 and the bathrooms to more than 700.

On the ground floor practically all the space will be given for an auditorium or concert hall. The roof garden will be doubled in size, with a continuous promenade more than 1,000 feet in length.

PATERSON IS JOYFUL.

Closing of Mails to Anarchist Newspapers Commended.

The announcement that Postmaster General Meyers had barred La Questione Sociale, the local Anarchist newspaper, from the United States mails on account of its inflammatory articles was received at Paterson yesterday with expressions of commendations.

Arthur E. Nichols, of New York city, and A. E. Furniss, Government officers, visited the plant of La Questione Sociale Saturday, accompanied by Patrolman Cirvino, of the Paterson police. One of the men apparently in charge of the office said "the Group" was the editor. He refused to give any names.

RECKLESS AUTOISTS.

Editor, The Daily Press:

May I trespass on your valuable space to relate an experience I had on the public highway on Sunday afternoon. I started with three ladies in a carriage to drive to Westfield. Just beyond Scotch Plains I slowed up a little when an automobilist behind me blew his horn. I at once started my horses and pulled to the right. The automobilist pulled to the right also, and passed me on that side, narrowly missing the horses. I shouted and he stopped and claimed he was on his side of the road, showing he knew nothing of the rules of the road. I drove a mile or so farther when I saw a large automobile coming towards me, and a great cloud of dust behind it. We had nearly approached each other when out from behind the automobile suddenly shot two large machines racing side by side. The one nearest me being in the gutter. The ladies were very much frightened and so was I. By the merest chance the chauffeur succeeded in turning his machine away from me, although it skidded so that it was running almost sideways. It was the most outrageous performance that I have ever seen on the road. If there is no law that can control these "Reckless Fiends" then it is pretty near time that the people raise up in their might and drive every automobile off the public highways.

J. M. BETTMAN.

DR. HERRING'S SERMON.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Dr. Herring has commenced a series of sermons on "The Apostles' Creed." Sunday night the Doctor said "for two thousand years men have been uttering this creed." Then he says "we know that the outlines of this creed were in existence in the second century," but "who wrote the creed is a problem?" For the first statement the Doctor is a little, about 500 years, off; Christ and the apostles had not yet appeared. For the second statement he is mistaken for so far as we can learn the apostles creed was not known until the fifth century. The Doctor's third statement is quite true for we cannot learn who wrote that creed. But one thing we do know that is, that the apostles did not write it.

For a church to adopt and teach a creed and call it the apostles creed is misleading and keeps the church members in ignorance, especially so when they don't know who wrote it, or where it came from. Human creeds have been a great hinderance to the cause of Christ, from the time the first creed was written, more churches have been split up into factions and sectarianism through creeds than any other cause.

The church of Christ today is split up into nearly six hundred sects and denominations each teaching something different from the other. The result is that millions of good, and well meaning people are so perplexed that they remain outside of all churches, because they don't know what church to go into.

It is a noticeable fact in the history of the church that many have found it needful to meet, from time to time, in great meetings to revise and restate their articles of their religious belief. Men naturally outgrow their man-made church creeds, even after they have been composed by the most intelligent and devout persons.

There is a creed, however, that all Christian churches can adopt; that creed needs no revision and never will. That creed, if adopted, will do more to bring about Christian union, for which our Lord prayed, John 17:19, 21, 22, and prevent the splitting up of Christian churches, and create more love to Christ, and to man than all man-made creeds combined. It would bring Christians into the one fold. What creed do I mean? Listen! "All authority hath been given unto me in heaven and in earth," Matt. 28:18. Gor said, "This is my beloved Son, hear ye Him," Matt. 17:5. Yes let us hear, and heed Him, He is our law, and creed giver.

When the Ethiopian heard Philip preach Christ to him, he enquired, "what doth hinder me?" Philip replied, "If thou believeth with all thine heart thou mayest." He said "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God," Acts 8:36-37. Christ asked "But who say ye that I am?" Simon Peter said "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God." Jesus replied "Upon this rock will I build my church." Notice! Not a man made creed, sectarian church, but "my church." Upon what will he build his church? Not on Peter, not upon Peter's confessions alone; not upon this truth alone but this rock, this Jesus, this eternal person, the Christ, the Son of the living God."

For conclusion permit me to say that there is already in existence, a body of Christians who's only creed is Peter's confession of Christ. They number one and one half million souls. They are building more than one meeting house per day. Next year, 1909, they celebrate their hundredth year as a Church of Christ.

Faithfully,
J. W. HARRISON.

PRESENT GOOD PROGRAM AT THIS ENTERTAINMENT

About 125 people enjoyed the musical and literary entertainment given in Trinity Reformed church last night by the quartet choir of the church, comprising Miss Etta Raybert, soprano; Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto; F. S. Cutter, bass, and E. D. Young, tenor; assisted by Miss Justine Roberts, of Brooklyn, elocutionist. The affair was given under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society and was a success in every respect.

An excellent program was arranged, and the various numbers by the quartet, as well as the solos, were greeted with hearty encores, to which the singers generously responded. Miss Lillian A. Force was the accompanist of the evening. The work of the vocalists demonstrated the care and training given under the direction of Arthur L. Titsworth, organist and choirmaster of the church.

The program opened with a quartet selection, "Parting Kiss," by Pinsuti, which was followed with a bass solo, "Awake, My Beloved, Awake," Oliver, by Mr. Cutter. He was in fine voice and his singing delighted everyone as was shown by the very hearty applause accorded him. Miss Roberts then gave two numbers, "Rosa," a pathetic Italian story, and "Tin Gee-Gee," with musical accompaniment. The first selection was original and both called for an encore. She at once won favor with the audience and during the evening she was repeatedly called back.

The next number was a soprano solo, "A Gypsy Maiden, I," Parker, by Miss Raybert. Her attractive voice was heard to the best advantage and in response to an encore she gave an old favorite selection.

"On the Beach" was the title of a tenor solo by Edmund D. Young, which he gave in good style, responding with an encore. Miss Roberts was again given a cordial reception when she gave an original selection, "The Shop Girl," being typical of an every day scene in one of the large department stores. Her second number was an imitation of a young woman practicing her music lesson, which was exceedingly clever.

Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto, gave two numbers, "Slave Song," Terese del Reig," and "Prayer," Starr, with a pleasing selection for an encore. She has a voice of great sweetness and strength and her singing was much enjoyed.

A feature of the program was a duet, "Ich Fukle Deinen Odem," Hoffman, by Miss Raybert and Mr. Cutter, which called forth hearty applause. Miss Roberts again favored the audience with some of her best selections and it was with regret on the part of the audience that her part of the evening's entertainment was concluded.

The final numbers were "Kate," Hawley, and "All Through the Night," Damrosch, by the quartet, which were a fitting close to the fine program. In the arrangements for the musicale Mrs. L. B. VanCamp and Mrs. George W. Cole assisted in the attractive decorations about the platform.

Presbyterial Society to Meet Here.

The twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Women's Presbyterial Society for Home Missions will be held in Warren chapel, Friday, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning with devotional exercises; reports of Presbyterial officers; address on "Freedmen," by Mrs. T. H. Amos. At noon luncheon will be served by the Missionary and Aid Society of the chapel. The afternoon session will begin at 1:30 o'clock with devotional services; addresses by Miss Mary Ogden White, on "Settlement Work Among Foreigners;" and by Miss Amelia Frost, missionary to Bannock and Shoshone Indians. At 3 o'clock there will be a conference for young people's work, led by Mrs. A. S. Lyon and Miss Harriet Halloway, and the young people's societies are invited to send delegates.

Lang Hearing Advanced.

The Supreme Court of the United States advanced for hearing on April 6 the appeal of Frederick Lang, who was convicted of shooting and killing his niece, Kate Gordon, near Brunswick, N. J., in April, 1906.

The Cough Cure His Great-Grandmother Used

Cure your children's coughs with the oldest and best-known cough remedy in the world—the same one their great-grandmothers used and had faith in.

is the same today as when it was first prescribed by Dr. Jayne 77 years ago. This remedy has relieved and cured coughs so successfully for generations that it is to-day the standard cough cure in thousands of homes all over the world.

Don't neglect your children's coughs—don't neglect your own cough. The system is quickly weakened by a constant irritating cough, and laid open to pneumonia and other pulmonary diseases. The best time to cure a cough is right now, and the best remedy is Jayne's Expectorant.

Three sized bottles, $1.00, 50c., 25c.

Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge is a safe cure for worms, a splendid children's remedy, and a tonic for the whole family.
Jayne's Sanative Pills is an effective liver regulator. A laxative, purgative, cathartic and stomach tonic.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Architects have already been secured to draw plans and prepare specifications for the new public school building to be erected in the northeast part of the township, and as soon as the plans are prepared, a special meeting of the taxpayers will be held to raise money for the erection of the building. While the site has not yet definitely been decided upon, it is urged that the building be erected in the vicinity of Fourth street and Clinton avenue. It is expected that the building will be completed in time for the re-opening of school in September.

The work of remodeling the parsonage of the New Market Baptist church is now practically completed, and the pastor, Rev. George H. Gardner, expects to take up his residence there with his family on Friday. Supervising Principal William F. Metz, of Somerville, will move to the borough next week to occupy the house vacated by Rev. Mr. Gardner.

Under the auspices of William G. Holton Council, a reception and dance will be held Friday evening at Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall. The tickets have already been placed on sale.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A new fire alarm bell has been installed in the school building. The new alarm is a much larger bell than the old one and can be heard in all parts of the building.

Owing to the bad weather only one sessions of school was held yesterday. The pupils were dismissed for the day at 12 o'clock.

The rain yesterday extinguished the mountain fire near the tower, which had been burning since Saturday.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith preached his last sermon as pastor of the Baptist church Sunday.

Bondsman Secures His Release.

Nelson Labaw, of Clinton avenue, who was recently arrested on a charge of obtaining money under false pretense and released on bail, was surrendered to the police by his bondsman yesterday. The amount was furnished by William Hamilton, of South Plainfield, and he asked to be released from the responsibility. Labaw was locked up and at noon had not succeeded in securing another bond.

Arrested on Wife's Complaint.

George LeMatty, who lives on Harmony street, was arrested last night at his home by Borough Marshal Lemuel Pope. The arrest was on complaint of his wife, who said that LeMatty had come home drunk, beaten and abused her. She will appear against him at his hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver tonight.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

In speaking of the success of Edward Vroom's play, "The Luck of MacGregor," in which he will appear at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, The London Era says: "Mr. Edward Vroom made his debut before a British audience in a dual capacity as playwright and actor. He was successful in both roles. The success of the play was immediate. The spirit of the play that of youth, chivalry and adventure. It is a subtle dramatic device beautifully worked out. Mr. Vroom has written a fine dramatic play."

Eugene Thomas' new religious play, "A Soldier of the Cross," in which Messrs. Cohen and Harris will present Thomas E. Shea at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday and Saturday, has for its scene the ancient city of Pompeii. The author, it is said, has not hesitated to avail himself of the melodramatic material that is the real historic background for the struggles of the early Christians. The period of Roman persecution and Christian martyrdom, rich in itself with a world of sensational data, has furnished for the dramatist enough thrilling episodes without once ever exceeding the bounds of probability. On the other hand, Mr. Shea, is happy in asserting that "A Soldier of the Cross" has kept free from the contamination of the sensualism that has been so often employed in the religious drama to obtain the so-called effects by contrasts. The tragedian is sincere in the belief that the message to be imparted can be driven home without resorting to the carnal and voluptuous. This statement is the more convincing when it is considered that "A Soldier of the Cross" has been a sweeping triumph both for actor and author. Furthermore, the overwhelming box office returns that have attended Mr. Shea's tour prove beyond a doubt that the exhibition of sensualism is not essential to the success of a religious play of early Christian period.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

A. H. Enander, the sanitary plumber of Watchung avenue, guarantees his work to give satisfaction and the charges are reasonable.

If you contemplate moving, let John Winzenreid, of Lee place, do the work. He employs careful help and his charges are reasonable.

The dairy products sold at the Brokaw creamery on East Front street can always be depended upon to give satisfaction, while the prices will be found within your reach.

George Stagaard, the Church street shoemaker, will make you a pair of shoes to order or repair old ones promptly and at prices to suit. He uses only the best leather.

When you buy coal of Boice, Runyon & Co., of Park avenue, you get the best and at lowest market prices. Full stock of lumber and masons materials on hand at all times.

"The White Store" is the place to shop. The women will find a large stock of seasonable goods, while the showing of women's dress goods for spring and summer cannot be excelled. Every department is strictly up-to-date and full values given.

Orange Saloons to Close at Midnight.

Orange commuters who are kept in New York after the 10:30 o'clock train tonight are warned to get their last drink in Hoboken. For beginning tonight there will be no saloon open in Orange after midnight under the new rule of the Excise Board. The Liquor Dealers' Association is preparing an appeal to the board to allow them to do business until 1 o'clock.

—Daily Press want ads. pay.

SCHOOL FRATERNITIES TO GO.

East Orange Educational Authorities Plan Campaign Against Cliques.

Definite steps, it is expected, will be taken by the East Orange Board of Education at its meeting tonight toward suppressing the various fraternities which flourish in the East Orange High School. It is believed that the board will take a stand radically opposed to the societies because of the tendency of the members to form cliques.

The matter was first taken up by the board about a year ago. There were four fraternities in the school then, and it is said there are as many today. Now the principals have been called upon for a report on the school societies. It is said that the rituals of the various societies are very strenuous and that candidates for election to them have to "ride the goat" in one of the local cemeteries.

GOV. GLENN ON LOCAL OPTION.

Tells Y. M. C. A. Men Prohibition Does Not Hurt Business.

Governor Robert Glenn of North Carolina, spoke at Trenton yesterday in Young Men's Christian Association Hall. The Governor deplored the recent defeat of the local option measure in this State, which he also criticised for its toleration of corporations of every kind. He said more vigorous work was needed in the cause of reform, and after some reference to the Civil War, asserted that the South is setting a worthy example to the North on the subject of temperance.

The speaker met with cold facts many of the arguments used against prohibition. The argument that prohibition does not prohibit, he said, is only true where officials fail to do their duty. That prohibition hurts business was characterized as an exploded theory in the face of facts.

CHAPTER XII.

Lady Carrington's Luck.

About two o'clock in the morning, as Ellen had expected, the breeze sprang up. It blew fitfully in cat's paws and light baffling airs at first. Ellen made the most of every possibility presented, however. She was desperately anxious to get to Portsmouth and she handled her boat with all her accustomed skill, rejoicing in her possession of it.

She did not awaken Debbie. She let the boat drift while she herself hoisted the single sail it bore. After an hour of vexatious backing and filling, she thought the breeze was growing stronger and by four o'clock to her great joy the wind had settled and was blowing steady from the southeast, straight up the channel, that is.

There are two entrances to Portsmouth harbor; one between the Isle of Wight and the mainland, the Solent, and the other around the southern extremity of the same island. Ellen had drifted seaward during the night and she decided that her best course was to round the island and run up to the harbor with a beam wind. The breeze was growing stronger every moment. Indeed, the little boat keeled over so far that sometimes the lee gunwales were perilously near the water line.

Presently, Ellen woke up Debbie in order to trim the ship, bidding her crawl up to windward. Before Debbie took her position, they made such morning meal as they could on tepid water and the remains of the hard bread, and then settled down for their run into the harbor. The little boat was jumping and pitching fearfully, but Debbie was almost as good a sailor as Ellen, and she suffered no inconvenience from the wild motion.

As for Ellen, her heart exulted. She had something to do besides think. The sailing of the boat required all her skill and ability. It was no light task to hold the helm in one hand and the sheet in the other and fight her way through the rising seas. The boat rode the water like a duck, however, and did not ship a drop of spray.

They were well past Bambridge when the day broke fair and clear. Ellen had been so occupied with the business of sailing the boat that she had not paid any attention to what was astern of her. It was Debbie who about a half hour after sunrise pointed out another and a larger boat following in their wake. In the presence of such a boat at such a time, there was nothing suspicious, yet some premonition of danger caused Ellen to survey the other vessel, a small lugger, perhaps a mile astern, with deep and intense interest. Something seemed to whisper to her heart that its presence boded no good for the fugitives.

In order to settle the matter, Ellen suddenly put up the helm and ran broad off toward the channel. The other boat followed her motions at once. At this confirmation of her suspicions, Ellen once more brought her own cutter on her previous course, and again the other boat followed the movements of the first.

"They're pursuing us," said Ellen.

"I thought so," returned Debbie.

"Who can they be?" queried Ellen tightening her grip upon the tiller.

"It might be your husband," answered Debbie.

And if that were so, it flashed into Ellen's mind that perhaps the best thing would be to throw her own boat up into the wind, doff sail, or at least just give her steerage way and wait to be taken back. But Debbie's voice dispelled that dream.

"It's more likely to be Lord Strathgate," continued the American girl, "than anyone else. He would naturally follow us to that little village, if he were not so seriously wounded as to be utterly helpless and of course he would pursue us. They would find the money you put on the wharf and anybody could guess the rest."

The thought smote Ellen's heart. There was so much probability of it.

"Ay," she said, "tis probably Strathgate as you say."

"He's undoubtedly intensely angry with us both, or with you at least, Ellen," continued Deborah. "You know you tried to kill him last night."

"I wish to heaven I had succeeded!" returned Lady Carrington.

"And we both left him helpless in the road and he can't be feeling very kindly toward us," went on Deborah with innocent simplicity.

"He pretended to love me," said Ellen, scornfully. "Well, he shall never take me into that boat. I'll sink this one rather than—"

"Oh, please don't do anything so rash," cried Deborah, alarmed at that threat. "I'm sure I don't want to be sunk and drowned because Lord Strathgate loves you and Lord Carrington doesn't."

"How do you know he doesn't?" cried Ellen.

"Why, you said that he and Lady Cecily—"

"Don't you ever dare mention that woman's name to me," returned the other, fiercely. "She beguiled him and enticed him—I hate them both!"

She was on the verge of another breakdown. Deborah was appalled by the vehemence of her companion and tactfully interposed a remark to change the trend of her thoughts.

"I think they're nearer to us now."

"They are," cried Ellen as she surveyed them with her practiced eye. "Their boat is larger, she spreads more sail. She goes three fathoms to our two. What shall we do? Here take the tiller a moment. Hold it just as it is and the sheet in the other hand."

"What are you going to do?" asked Deborah as she obeyed her captain's commands.

"I'm going to see if there are any powder and shot in the lockers forward. I was a fool to come away with only the charges in my pistols."

"Would you shoot him?"

"Ay, that I would," returned Ellen, "rather than fall into his hands."

She stepped forward and rummaged in the locker under the bows but found nothing. She made her way aft again and disturbing Deborah opened another locker in the stern sheets. There to her good fortune she found a flask of powder but no bullets. She was bitterly disappointed at this lack, but at least something was gained. She knelt down on the thwarts and with skill bred of ancient practice rapidly charged both her pistols.

"What are you going to do?" asked Deborah again.

"Use these on them," answered Ellen.

"You would not murder?"

"Peace, child. I have no bullets. These are but blank cartridges. Perhaps I can frighten them."

"Frighten Lord Strathgate!" laughed Deborah. "Don't try. It will only make him more angry, and—"

But Ellen stood up in the boat, balancing herself lightly in spite of the pitching, pointed her pistol at the other boat now not more than half a mile away, and pulled the trigger. There was a tremendous report, for Ellen had put in an extra large charge in default of a bullet.

Someone in the boat astern stood up and waved his hat.

Ellen let him have the other pistol. Of course, there was sound and nothing more. But the concussion, the noise and the smoke relieved her feelings. Deborah cowered down in the boat, released the tiller, let go the sheet and stopped her ears with her fingers. Ellen dropped her pistols and by the quickest kind of work, seized the tiller and sheet and got the boat under control before she broached to. It was a narrow escape, however, and convinced Lady Carrington that she could not indulge in any more sham battling. She watched the other boat carefully as her own gathered way once more but could detect no evidence that her firing had in the least intimidated those who were coming so recklessly after her.

Promising Deborah that she would not fire them again, she got the young woman to take the helm once more while she reloaded her pistols. She would have given anything for a couple of good honest leaden bullets. If she had even had a jeweled ring, she would have pounded it into shape and rammed it down the barrel, but she had divested herself of all her jewels except her wedding ring and she could not make up her mind to blow that away in the present emergency. Still the pistols were heavily charged and at close quarters there would be an unpleasant dose of powder for anyone who tried to molest her.

The other boat was coming up hand over hand now. In half an hour she would be alongside. Ellen swept the harbor ahead of her and was surprised to see—she had not noticed it in the interest excited by the chase—coming down under full sail a large ship, an American merchantman evidently. She jumped to the conclusion that it must be the New Eagle. If she could intercept that ship and get aboard of her, her troubles would be over. Provided the ship were willing to heave to or to check her way, the boarding of her would be an easy matter, and Ellen was sailing on such a course that the interception of her would not be difficult, if it were not for this boat close astern of her. Farther ahead Ellen also marked following hard on the great ship two boats like her own and the one pursuing. They were, like the merchantman, beating down the harbor and it seemed to Ellen's eyes that they were also chasing after the merchant ship.

She was more and more convinced as she studied it, that it could be none other than the New Eagle. With salvation staring her in the face, Ellen feared that she would be unable to escape her nearest pursuer. She looked back and could have screamed aloud.

"Ellen," said Deborah, who had given no thought to what was before her but who had been staring at the other boat, "I don't believe that's the earl of Strathgate."

"Who is it then?" asked Ellen who was thinking hard and desperately as to what were best to be done.

"It's—I'm sure it's—"

"Who, Lord Carrington?"

"Nay," answered Deborah with a little simper. "Sir Charles Seton."

"Impossible," cried Ellen brusquely. "How would he be there?"

"'Tis he, I'm sure. I recognize him."

"You have keen eyes," said Ellen looking back. "I always supposed that mine were good."

"You might recognize him if it were Lord Carrington," said Deborah patly.

"Do you mean to imply that I—that you—" Ellen gave it up as hopeless. "I don't care who it is. Look ahead. Turn your eyes from that young red coat. See yon ship! That will be the New Eagle. See how white her canvas! And, yes"—as the ship swung around on another tack and gave them a view of her broadside—"there's the American flag. That means safety for us—freedom, if we can shake off this pestilent pursuer in our wake."

"But I don't want to shake him off!" cried Debbie.

"You must. Would you fall into his arms? 'Tis most unmaidenly," answered Ellen.

"I don't care," cried Debbie, beginning to whimper.

"I guess you can stop crying," answered Ellen, contemptuously, "for we have no more chance of escaping from that boat than we have of getting aboard yonder ship."

Ellen's face gloomed as she spoke. To be foiled after all she had gone through by Sir Charles Seton, whose pursuit of her, after all, was simply for this mawkish, whimpering Deborah, whom for the first time in her life she hated, was more than she could bear. She came to a sudden resolution.

"I'll run the boat ashore and escape through the woods rather than be caught by them."

She swung the tiller over, hauled aft the sheet and in a moment the boat was running toward the island. In those days a long shoal, of which Ellen knew nothing, jutted out into the roads. She did not throw her boat deliberately on the shore, but ran along it looking for some suitable place to land. Seton's lugger, of course, followed her motions. They were both under the lee of the island, which broke the force of the breeze somewhat, but Ellen's vessel, being the smaller, got the worst of it and felt the wind less. Seton's boat was rapidly overhauling the other. In five minutes it would be alongside. Ellen swung the helm over and desperately headed straight for the shore.

"Stop! stop, Lady Carrington!" cried Seton, who was now in plain view. "I mean you no harm. Mistress Deborah, can't you—?"

"I can't do anything," cried Deborah, traitorously. "She won't let me."

"If you run down my boat," answered Ellen, handling her pistols, "I swear I'll use these weapons."

"There are no bullets in them," cried Deborah. "Don't be afraid."

Ellen turned on her like a young tigress. She could have struck her with her pistol. Sir Charles only laughed. He was in high glee.

"I wouldn't care if there were a thousand bullets in them. I intend to have you out of that boat, Mistress Debbie, and—"

There was a sudden scream from Mistress Debbie. The boat in which she sailed met with a sudden check. The little cutter grated upon the edge of the shoal. Ellen sprang to the helm, forgetful of everything else but the present peril. Her boat going at a rapid rate had taken ground. She hoped that the touch had been so light that the boat would not be stopped and wrecked. Indeed, she flung herself violently to starboard and the sudden shock swung the boat off the shoal. There was a scraping of sand beneath the keel and the little shallop slid on.

Sir Charles was close aboard. Not being a sailor, he had not noticed, and in the excitement of the chase, Sir Charles offering reward upon reward to the fishermen if they overhauled the other boat, these men forgot the peril, if, indeed, they knew it. For coming down at full speed and drawing half again as much water as Ellen's cutter, they ran hard and fast upon the shoal.

Ellen had counted upon their doing this very thing. She looked back with eyes of experience, and saw exactly their position. Indeed, they had barely escaped ripping a mast out of the lugger. They were rocking their boat furiously and making every effort to get off, but they had gone on fair and square, the tide was on ebb, and Ellen concluded they were fixed for some time.

She rose in the stern sheets and laughed gleefully. She put her boat about and ran down to pass in easy hail of Sir Charles and his men.

"Good-by," she called, laughing with mockery that stung him, "before an hour we shall be aboard yon ship. I am sorry that you were baiked. A stern chase is a long chase, Sir Charles, as you will find upon the sea."

Poor Sir Charles had little to say for himself. He felt very much chagrined and bitterly disappointed.

"Gooy-by, Sir Charles," called Deborah, sadly. "'Tis not my doing, and—"

"Mistress Deborah," answered Sir Charles, plucking up heart, "you have not seen the end of me. I shall find some means of following you wherever you go."

"There, Debbie," said Ellen, "heart up. You did your best to betray me, but I forgive you since we've got free. I told you Sir Charles would follow you and he'll find you all the sweeter for his mad chase. Now for yon ship."

And Ellen laid a course which would in half an hour intercept the oncoming merchantman.

"LUCK OF MACGREGOR" SCORES IN BRUNSWICK

"The Luck of MacGregor" which will be presented tonight at the New Plainfield theatre by Edward Vroom, the distinguished actor, scored a tremendous hit at New Brunswick last night. Mr. Vroom, who was a member of the Booth-Barrett company and the Modjeska company, has been touring England and Australia during the last decade and will make his triumphal return to Broadway early next month.

The New Brunswick Press today says of his performance in that city last night:

"One of the strongest and best plays this city has seen this season is Edward Vroom's new production, which was given its initial performance. 'The Luck of MacGregor' he calls it and as he is the author, manager and leading actor it looks as though the piece will be a lucky one for Mr. Vroom. The play, which is in four acts, dates with the days when the British held New York and the scenes are in that vicinity.

"Miss Katherine Mulkins, who formerly played in 'Checkers,' plays the part of Margaret Bruce and she's a little star, who won much favor last evening. Mr. Vroom was given encore upon encore by the audience, which, by the way, should have been much larger. He's a New Jersey man of whom this State should feel proud. His company is made up of able, well-known actors and is large. Plenty of comedy adds to the enjoyment of the piece. It is a drama that fills the auditors with patriotism.

"After a try-out in Perth Amboy, Plainfield, Trenton and Atlantic City, Mr. Vroom will take his company to New York where it will begin an engagement at the Garden theatre. It is beautifully staged and should have a successful run in the metropolis."

Auto License Rates.

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, framer of New Jersey's automobile law, in a letter of W. Clive Crosby, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club, says the feeling among the Senators is that the license fee should be raised to $3 for cars under ten horse power, $5 for from ten to thirty horse power, and $10 for any above that figure, and the drivers' fee should be raised to $2 and $4, no tourist privilege, the manufacturers' one to five cars at $5 per annum.

Not Blood; Paint.

The finding of a woman's clothing on West Twenty-first street, near Newark Bay, yesterday led the police to believe for a while they had a murder mystery on their hands. It later developed that the clothing was simply saturated with red paint.

struction—more class rooms for the advanced pupils, the community room, dormitories and private suites. On the top floor are twenty-six private bed-rooms, another pupils' dormitory, the infirmary, studio and novices' room. Aside from the main stair-case, there is a stair-case at each end of the long corrider, and an elevator.

A large gymnasium, 46x50 feet, is in the basement, with a recreation hall for the younger pupils, a physics laboratory, domestic science room and sewing rooms. The basement of the kitchen wing contains the heating apparatus for the entire building, storage bins, kitchen and butlery and sleeping quarters for the culinery Sisters. The roof is flat, except where the bell-tower rears its height in the centre, and is surrounded by a heavy baluustrade, forming a promenade, from which an excellent view of the valley may be obtained.

The property consists of forty-four acres, the gift of David T. Kenney, of North Plainfield, who is much interested in the institution's welfare.

Ground for the new building was broken in July, 1906, and, while the building is now practically completed, the Order will not take possission until July 1. The new college will be formally dedicated in August, when Bishop McFaul will officiate at the dedication services. The Order has secured a large tract of land, and a fund has already been started for the erection of a chapel adjoining the Convent.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Atterbury, of West Seventh street, have returned from their pleasure trip abroad.

Miss Ida Smith, of Easton, Pa., who has been spending a few days here with friends, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Codington and daughter, of Sandford avenue, have returned from a southern pleasure trip.

John VanPelt, of East Millstone, who has been visiting his son, Harry VanPelt, of Morris street, returned home yesterday.

Mrs. W. H. Gordon, Sr., of New Brunswick, has been visiting her granddaughter, Mrs. W. C. Dobbins, of West End avenue.

Will Discuss Street Work.

There will be a meeting of the Councilmanic street committee Thursday night to discuss in detail plans for the season's work on the streets. There is also to be a consideration of the work of macadamizing many streets in the east and west ends of the city as provided for in an ordinance recently adopted.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold its monthly meeting this afternoon, when a program of special interest will be presented. The collectors will also make their report at this time.

—The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Hope chapel will be held at the chapel tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

place for once, and they are confronted by an extortionate demand for a price that would make the angel Gabriel blush. The bereaved ladies must unload you at any price for peace sake and for the sake of respectability, so the plot you are dropped into cost you probably twenty or hundred times the amount of the assessed value per capita.

"The Elizabeth graveyards are assessed at only five cents. I repeat it for fear you may think it is an error in the print. Five Cents. And if prices are in proportion to the assessment, a decent plot down there ought to cost a bunch of money. I understand that Lizzie doesn't bother burying her dead there, she sends them over to Linden. Rahway can't stand anymore dead ones, she is filled up. We tax the dead, we tax those who are half dead. Those who employ capital and labor are taxed to death. We chase the spirit of personal property and try to tax it. The real living values escape our attention. People come and people go, prices of vacant land keep going up, and it has been the policy of the authorities to encourage the holding of land vacant by taxing it lightly, and 'soaking' the houses so that the tenants would have to pay high rents.

"Banks do not regard vacant land good enough as a rule to lend money on. They know that this is a waiting game, and they can't wait. They must show dividends regularly and unless some officer of the bank or a director who has money enough can arrange it, the officers (who are nothing more than clerks as a rule), stick up their noses at the mention of a land proposition. And the real reason is that one does not have to be a banker to invest in land. It will answer all purpose to be a respectable ground-hog, and wait for the dear people to come around.

"I am in the pork business. My Plainfield friends know that, but I am justifying my position in doing two things—first, living on my job and bringing up my children in the simple life; and second, telling you of the inequalities that exist. I know from experience, covering a period of twenty years in the real estate business, that the real estate owners, especially those owning improved real estate, are especially anxious that the personal property tax be abolished, and the amount now raised on it to be added to real estate. I have found too that the poor are busy grinding, while the rich are busy finding, and all are victims as well as the assessor of the lack of thought in making proper laws for the taxation that must be arranged equitably to provide money to run the government with.

"The men who are now in public office are for the most part just as anxious to do what is right as we are, but they do not know how. It has always been a wonder to me that the assessors do not hold meetings and take up the subject of taxation and thresh the matter out, each county could have an organization, and the counties could have a State organization to take up the matter and such a policy would do no end of good. It would even pay the State to encourage this by providing the ways and means for the meetings and allow public spirited citizens to address the assessors.

"I believe that Governor Fort wants to get down to the bottom of the tax question, and we must be prepared to help out when the time comes. I shall be pleased to try and answer any question on this subject which may be addressed to me.

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR M. E. CONFERENCE

Sunday Assignments, Lodgings for Delegates and Other Announcements are Issued.

BISHOP SPELLMEYER PRESIDES.

Laymen's Meeting On April 3—Complete List of Delegates and Their Hosts.

The complete official program for the Newark Conference was issued today under the direction of Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E church, who is chairman of the committee on program and anniversaries. The details for the conference, which will be held here from April 1-7, are completed. The first session will be held at Vincent chapel Tuesday morning, April 1, at 10 o'clock, with the examination of candidates for admission; local deacons and elders orders. The examinations will be continued in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock in the evening Rev. Dr. William H. Cawford, of Allegheny College, will deliver a lecture on "Savonarola, The Florentine Reformer." Bishop Henry Spellmeyer will preside. The lecture will be followed by an informal reception to the Bishop by members and friends of the Plainfield churches.

In connection with the conference one of the most important features will be the meeting of laymen, on Friday, April 3, at the First Baptist church. At 10 o'clock in the morning there will be a meeting of the lay electoral conference, which will be continued at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. At 3 o'clock the tenth annual meeting of the Laymen's Association will be held and Rev. Charles B. Mitchell, formerly of this city, but now of Cleveland, O., will speak on "The Mission of a Methodist." The importance of these meetings is that delegates are to be elected to attend the general conference to be held in Baltimore.

On Sunday, April 5, the pulpits of the various churches in the city and borough will be occupied by delegates to the Conference, as follows:

Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, 10:30 a. m., Rev. Fred Clare Baldwin. 7:45 p. m., Rev. George W. Smith.

First Presbyterian church, 11 a. m., Rev. Dorr F. Diefendorf. 7:45 p. m., Rev. H. J. Johnston.

First Baptist church, 10:30 a. m., Rev. Abner H. Lucas. 7:45 p. m., Rev. A. B. Richardson.

Trinity Reformed church, 10:30 a. m., Rev. William H. Morgan. 7:45 p. m., Rev. Warren L. Hoagland.

Congregational church, 10:30 a. m., Rev. George C. Wilding. 7:45 p. m., Rev. William E. Palmer.

Park Avenue Baptist church, 7:45 p. m., Rev. Charles L. Mead.

Grace Methodist Episcopal church, 10:30 a. m., Rev. Alexander H. Tuttle.

Monroe Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, 10:30 a. m., Rev. A. H. Hayes. 7:45 p. m., Rev. Wallace B. Fleming.

Hope chapel, 10:30 a. m., Rev. Herbert E. Lytle. 7:45 p. m., Rev. Matthew W. Womer.

Faith chapel, 10:30 a. m., Rev. John McMurray. 7:45 p. m., Rev. Perry H. Murdick.

Warren chapel, 7:45 p. m., Rev. David B. Tompkins.

At the meeting of the Young Woman's Christian Association, on Sunday afternoon, April 5, Rev. Henry A. Buttz, D. D., president of Drew Theological Seminary, will be the speaker.

At the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Saturday morning, April 4, 10:30, Rev. T. I. Coultas will occupy the pulpit.

Following is a list of the delegates, their hosts and places where they will be entertained:

"Personally Conducted Tour" to Italy Entertains Seventh-day Baptist Folk.

VENICE, ROME AND NAPLES.

Rev. Dr. Gardner, Messrs. Maxson and Stillman and Miss Dewey Act As "The Man From Cook's."

"An Imaginary Trip to Italy" proved a delightful form of entertainment at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, last night, under the auspices of the Women's Society for Christian Work of that congregation. The trip was under the personal supervision of Mrs. David E. Titsworth and en route four stops were made—the first being at Gibraltar, where Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardiner explained the interesting points. The next stop was at Naples, where William M. Stillman gave a description of the principal points. The third halt in the journey was at Rome, where Miss Carrie Dewey gave the explanatory talk, while Dr. Henry M. Haxson gave an enjoyable talk about Venice, the last stopping place.

The visit to Venice was especially enjoyable. There was arranged a Venetian cafe, where spaghetti, cheese, coffee and sandwiches were served in true style. Between the various stops appropriate music was rendered. Miss Carrie Dewey gave a description of steamer life, during which Miss Mabel Maxson was at the piano, playing several selections. There were also vocal solos by Elmer D. Cutting and Mrs. John Cottrell.

Before Venice was reached the curtain was drawn and disclosed a picturesque Rialto bridge, upon which was a group of people in Italian dress. They entertained with several Italian songs, chorus and solos, the numbers including solos by Theodore Davis and Mrs. Theodore Davis, assisted by the chorus. Mrs. Davis sang her solo while standing in a gondola and it was very effective. Another feature was a Dago banana song by John Cottrell, Jr.

Those comprising the Italian chorus were Mrs. W. C. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Davis, Miss Helen Rogers, Miss Mildred Green, Miss Mary Hunting, Miss Cecelia Cottrell, Miss Beatrice Cottrell, John Cottrell, Jr., Arthur Titsworth, Roy Titsworth and Mrs. E. F. Champlin. Several of the above named together with Miss Ida Spicer, Miss Mary Greene and Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis, acted as waitresses. They all wore the Italian costume.

During the evening there were sold Venetian and Neapolitan souvenir postal cards. Those in charge of the sale of candy, pop-corn, etc., were Mrs. Charles H. Dunham and Miss Nellie St. John. The refreshment committee comprised Mrs. Ira N. West, chairman; Mrs. Arthur L. Titsworth, Mrs. C. A. Rogers, Mrs. W. R. Mosher and Miss Lucy Dunham.

The general committee which arranged the affair comprised Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson and Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard. Much credit is due Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnson for her management. Recently returned from a trip abroad, Mrs. Truell-Johnson rendered valuable aid in the musical numbers, the real Italian songs were obtained by her in Italy and they added greatly to the pleasure of the entertainment.

New Skirt Making Plant.

Frank Kesselring, of Chatham street, the borough, has leased the third floor of the Taylor building at Park and North avenues and will at once install machinery for the manufacture of silk skirts. According to the plans he will be ready to start work next week and will begin with a large force of operatives. Mr. Kesselring was formerly connected with the Herzig & Kapp concern that first transformed the Rink building into a skirt-making factory and has a wide experience in the business.

Encampment Entertainment Planned.

Plans for a public entertainment to be held in connection with the next encampment of Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., No. 73, were discussed at the regular meeting of the Post held last night. The arrangements have been put in charge of Captain William Hand.

Lewis Breece.

Lewis Breece, son of James and Maria D. Breece, died Monday night at the parents' home on West Front street. He was in his twenty-second year. The funeral will be held at his late residence tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

W. Edwin Williams' Funeral.

The funeral of W. Edwin Williams, whose death occurred yesterday morning, will be held at his late residence on Second place tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

SUPPOSED "CHANCE MAN" HONORABLY DISCHARGED

Arthur Fuller, one of the two young men arrested Monday night as "chance crooks," received an honorable discharge in the city court this morning. The police investigated his stories and found that he is what he claimed to be and that Walter Carroll, nabbed as he was stealing an overcoat from Madden's pool room, was purely a chance acquaintance.

Fuller said that Carroll and he had met on a train coming out from New York and that after a social glass of beer they had dropped in to the pool room. It was then that he was seen by the frequenters of the place who corraled him later, believing after they caught Carroll red-handed that Fuller must have been in the game with him. He came here from Brooklyn, he said, in order to follow up "lightning" sketch work, at which he is very clever. Detective-Sergeant Flynn looked up the Brooklyn address and his complete exonoreation followed today.

With Carroll the story is different. The police's surmise that he is a professional crook is probably correct and he was committed to Elizabeth today in default of $200 bail on the overcoat stealing charge. He claims to be from Boston but pawn tickets taken from his pocket show that he has spent considerable time in New York.

ONE PERFORMANCE HERE COST "ANGEL" JUST $788

Donna Seymour, an actress, was arrested last night in New York on a warrant obtained on October 8 by Hestor Roy, of that city, charging her with obtaining $788 from him "by trick and device."

Roy alleged that on representation made by the actress he advanced $788 to back a theatrical venture. A theatrical company was formed, which gave one performance in Plainfield of "Mr. Blubeard." The company, with the exception of the star, Donna Seymour, was stranded. Miss Seymour had disappeared at the close of the performance.

PUPILS GIVE RECITAL AT Y. M. C. A. AUDITORIUM.

Pupils of J. Edmund Skiff gave a song recital at the Y. M. C. A., last night, before a large audience. An excellent program was arranged and the pupils acquitted themselves with credit. There was only one change in the program, Mr. Skiff singing "Israfel," in place of Carlos C. Gallup, who was unable to be present. The pupils were well received and given hearty applause by their many friends. The program:

"I Don't Know Why, or Co-Boss," Miss Helen Smalley; "Roses," Fred Kreidler; "Open Thou Thy Blue Eyes," "Come to Me, Sweetheart," Mrs. Price; "When I Was With My Dearie," Mrs. John C. Ketcham; "Lullaby," Mrs. Harry R. Moyer; "Were I a Star," Miss Laura E. Gesswein; "Day Dreams," Vincent Miner; "Because," Miss Hope Irene Miller; "Chanson Provencale," Mrs. J. Edmund Skiff; "Israfel," J. Edmund Skiff; "Carrisama," Miss Helen J. Hall; "Love Song," Willard Wadsworth; "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," Miss Bertha vanNuis Willis; duet, "Oh, That We Two Were Maying," Mr. and Mrs. J. Edmund Skiff.

BARKALEW PRESIDENT OF PLAINFIELD B. & L. ASS'N.

The Plainfield Building and Loan Association held its twenty-fourth annual meeting Monday night, when officers were elected and a statement of the financial condition of the association was presented. The receipts for the past year were $184,221.61, and the disbursements, including $916.56 cash on hand, were the same. The fourteenth series was opened at the meeting and already a number of shares have been subscribed for. These officers were elected for the year:

President, L. E. Baralow; vice-president, Henry Leifke; treasurer, W. R. Coddington; secretary, B. Frank Coriell; auditing committee, A. D. Edgar, Clarence Goss, William McD. Coriell; board of directors, L. E. Barkalew, Henry Leifke, W. R. Coddington, E. Wood Titsworth, Louis Klein, Jacob Voehl, J. P. Homan, W. A. Woodruff, J. C. Blimm, J. E. Flannery, B. Frank Coriell, E. M. Laing.

Mr. Shepard's Wedding.

Notes from Asheville, N. C., announce that the marriage of Miss Marie Rees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rees, of Kenilworth Lodge, Biltmore road, to Augustus D. Shepard, Jr., of New York, is expected to take place soon after Easter at All Souls' church, Biltmore. Mr. Shepard is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard, of "The Gables," Fanwood.

TELLS OF POLAND'S WOES

Mrs. Conner at Missionary Meeting Graphically Depicts the Oppressed Slavs.

IS A LIBERTY-LOVING RACE.

Masses Confined to Agricultural Pursuits and Are Heavily Taxed—Society Elects Officers.

A paper of unusual interest on "Poland" was presented by Mrs. W. A. Conner at the annual meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon. It gave a short history of the Slavs from the seventeenth century, describing the years of oppression and incidentally the heavy tax imposed on the natives.

Mrs. Conner said that there are no mills or factories in Poland and the people are forced to follow the pursuit of agriculture. They are not allowed to speak their own language, being compelled to use that of Russia. Whenever the mother tongue is used it is in secret and if detected doing so the natives are likely to be sent to Siberia. Mrs. Conner said that the oppression still exists today.

The speaker said that there is a society of Polish people numbering about 50,000, the objects of which are to work for education and betterment of conditions. Outside of the city halls there are no public buildings in the cities of Poland and once a large building is destroyed it is never rebuilt. Reference was made to the large number of Polish people in this country, where they are chiefly employed in the mines. In Chicago there are 250,000 such while in the American colleges there are 523 sons of Poland.

There is now a bill before the Prussian-Poland government to dispossess the Polish people in an effort to acquire the vast estates and then tax the former owners for the maintenance of the land and buildings. To offset this action a large movement is underway the purpose of which is to defeat the measure. Mrs. Conner said that the Poles are a liberty-loving people and whenever they have the opportunity they will fight for greater liberty. There is no redress from the oppression to which they are subjected to and there is nothing left for them to do but stand it as best they can. The mission work being done among these people is bearing much fruit and is a source of encouragement to those who are engaged in the labor.

The devotional exercises were in charge of Mrs. Elmer Giddis and in the absence of Mrs. Reuben Knox, who is ill, the chair was occupied by Mrs. Susan Wilson. These officers for the coming year were elected:

Honorary president, Mrs. D. J. Yerkes; president, Mrs. Reuben Knox; vice presidents, Mrs. Susan Wilson, Mrs. Hannah Flanders, Mrs. Morris A. Zook; secretary, Mrs. George H. Robins; treasurer, Mrs. Frank Jones. All of the collectors were re-elected.

A vote of thanks was given to Miss Leila Druse, Mrs. J. H. Buchanan and Mrs. vonBrakle for assisting in the musical part of previous services.

The treasurer's report showed that about $700 had been raised during the past year for missions, and of this amount about $300 represented dues. The payment of $25 for a life membership was also reported.

The meeting closed after an interesting sketch of the life of Miss Johanna P. Moore, who for a great many years worked among the colored people of the south, was presented by Mrs. Charles H. Smith. Miss Moore began her work immediately after the close of the Civil War and continued it until a few years ago.

Borough Neighbors' Row.

Mrs. James O'Donnell and Mrs. Vincent Kuldoshes, neighbors on Duer street, figured in a domestic fracas in their back yards Monday which ended in Mrs. O'Donnell pressing charges against her neighbor with the borough police. Both were to appear in court before Borough Recorder Dolliver last night, but the complainant did not come to the court room until the recorder had dismissed the case.

Men's Club Anniversary.

The Men's Club of Hope chapel celebrated its second anniversary, last night, by entertaining a large number of friends. A feature of the evening's program was a lecture on "Camp Life in the Northwest" by Rev. E. E. Roberson, of the Monroe Avenue church. Refreshments were served in conclusion. The affair was arranged by a committee composed of John Slorah, Harold Brownell and Philip Braunstein.

—Mr. and Mrs. William A. Conner, of Hillside avenue, are removing this week to their new residence just completed, corner of Hillside and Prospect avenues.

BLUECOAT DOWNS NEGRO ABOUT TO ASSAULT HIM

Julian Feinster and Al Saunderson, local colored men, engaged in a fight at Second street and Park avenue late last night. They were rapping each other in proper shape when Patrolman Messler happened along and grabbed both. Sanderson broke away and fled but the blue coat hung fast to Feinster and landed him in a cell.

After leaving headquarters, Messler picked up Patrolman Nolan and the pair went to Sanderson's home on Alrington avenue, one going to the front and the other to the back door. Sanderson was inside but he refused the cops' demand for admission. As a result Nolan put his shoulder to the front barricade and broke it down. He had barely gotten inside when Sanderson made a rush at him with every intention of committing an assault but the officer was prepared. He swung his club squarely at the negro's head and he went down and out. The force of the blow opened his scalp and it was necessary to call a physician to close the wound after he had been locked up.

When arraigned in court this morning, the two prisoners pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct and both were fined $10 or twenty days. Neither had any money.

THE COUNTRY SCHOOL AT THE MONROE AVE. CHURCH.

An entertainment entitled "The Country School" will be given at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church tomorrow and Friday nights. Nearly all of the participants are members of the church and have expressed a desire to return to the pleasures of the "old school days," some thirty or forty years ago in some cases. All will be dressed as small boys and girls and the effect will doubtless be funny. The cast will be as follows:

Good News to the Plainfield Shopping Public.

The Plainfield Credit Outfitting Company will add another link to their chain of successful stores throughout the State of New Jersey by locating at 103 Front, corner Somerset street, first floor, on or about April first. Extensive alterations are now underway and when completed the first floor at Front and Somerset streets will be fitted up with an establishment that Plainfield will be proud of. The modern style in which the new outfitting company will conduct the installment business will prove a great revelation to the economical shopping public of Plainfield and its suburbs and of vital importance to every head of a family. You must visit the new enterprising firm to learn of the many advantages they will offer. Their manager promises to carry as large an assortment of up-to-date wearing apparel for men, women and children as they do in all the other stores operated by the firm and through their close connection with the largest manufacturers they are able to undersell anyone in the business. They extend liberal credit to every honest person and take their payments in small weekly or monthly installments. All business with them will be strictly confidential.

Lectured On Haggai.

W. D. Murray gave a talk on the prophet Haggai at the Y. W. C. A. last night, in his course of Lenten lectures on "The Minor Prophets." There were about thirty out, and an informal discussion of the book of Haggai followed the lecture.

Paulock Girl Committed.

Mary Paulock, the servant girl arrested on a charge of theft preferred by her employer, waived examination when arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning. She was committed to the county jail in default of $250 bail.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Maxwell Honeyman, of Webster place, are parents of a daughter, born to them on Monday.

BIKE THIEF'S CONFESSION

Peter Harsen, Would-be Suicide, Implicates Others in Many Stealings.

STILL DETERMINED TO DIE.

Rash Prisoner Closely Watched—Muskovitz Admits Taking Twelve Wheels.

Though he had the police on the anxious seat for awhile as to whether or not he was guilty as charged, Peter Harsen, the bicycle thief twice frustrated in his attempts to commit suicide, reached the conclusion last night that it was a forlorn hope to try and convince the police that he was being wrongfully accused. He accordingly opened up to Charles Miller, the city court's Polak interpreter, who had been placed on guard over him, and made a complete confession of his part in the wheel stealing. He declared that he had gotten away with four machines in all, taken from in front of the following places: Waldorf Hotel, the post-office, F. T. Ostrom's office at Watchung avenue and East Fourth street and Kesselring's barber shop on Park avenue. His attempt to get away with George W. Geary's wheel Saturday night is what led to his capture.

Harsen also told Miller that it had been the practice of himself, his brother, Albert Harsen, and Ignoc Muskovitz, to come to town from Dunellen every Saturday night and each pick up a wheel. They would sell them to their countrymen after changing seats, tires and various other parts and those they couldn't dispose of would be hidden away. He gave the names of a number of men who had purchased machines from them and the police will probably get a few back. He also gave a Newark address where his brother, who fled Sunday, may probably be found.

Harsen is still determined to die because of the "disgrace of his arrest," as he terms it, and last night sought by various ruses to secure a knife or a razor. Miller was compelled to watch him closely until this morning when he was removed to Elizabeth in company with Muskovitz. The latter has admitted stealing some twelve or fourteen Plainfield wheels since last September.

School Pupils Quickly Found.

Joseph Corey, a farmer living at Mountainside, telephoned local police headquarters, last night, that two boys claiming to reside in Plainfield, had asked permission to sleep in his barn until morning. They gave their names as John and James Kidgely. A little later officials from the Groszmann School called at the station to report that two pupils, James Ridgeway and Bernard Johnson, had gone out for a walk and had not returned. They were sent to Mountainside and found the two barn-sleepers to be the pupils they were after.

Hugh Baldwin to Wed.

The wedding of Hugh G. Baldwin, formerly of this city, and Miss Abbie Caroline Oberthier, of Henderson, Texas, will take place tonight at the home of the bride's parents Mr. Baldwin is the son of A. C. Baldwin, of the late firm of Schepfin, Baldwin & Tweedy, who had a clothing house on West Front street about fifteen years ago. He is a graduate of Leal's School, but has now located permanently in the south-west, where he has business interests.

Miss Katie Moran.

Miss Katie Moran, for twenty years a faithful servant in the home of A. G. Thorn, of East Front street, died last Friday at the Home of the Divine Providence, at Ridgewood. She was a member of St. Joseph's church, of the borough, and had many friends in the two Plainfields. The funeral was held in St. Joseph's church, Newark, yesterday, and burial was in the cemetery of the Holy Sepulchre.

"The Cricket on the Hearth."

The junior class of the North Plainfield High School will present "The Cricket On the Hearth," on Friday night, April 3, at the Casino. Miss Stahlberger, of the high school faculty, will coach the juniors for the production, which is to be followed by a dance.

Organist Charmed.

Edward W. Vail has been the organist of New Brunswick Lodge, No. 6, I. O. O. F., for the past thirty years. Monday night the lodge presented a handsome gold watch charm to him in appreciation of his faithful service.

Oral Argument In Lang Case.

Prosecutor Berdine, of New Brunswick, has received notification that the United States Supreme Court has declined to hear the appeal of Fred Lang, convicted murderer, on briefs, but will listen to arguments in court on April 6.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Struck from behind by an eastbound trolley car near Rock avenue, yesterday morning, a wagon belonging to the Silzer Supply Co., of Newark, was badly damaged as the result of the collision. The driver claimed that the motorman did not ring his bell, and the first intimation he had of the presence of the car was the jolt in the back of the wagon. The horse was thrown down, and slightly cut about the forelegs and the rear axle was wrenched off the wagon, which was badly strained. It was left in a disabled condition at the side of the road and was taken to a local blacksmith shop for repair in the afternoon.

The partnership between Charles A. Coriell and his son, Abner Coriell, in the firm known as Charles A. Coriell & Son, has been dissolved. Prompt Action Is Pleasing Many Plainfield Citizens.

Get down to the cause of everything.

Bad backs are caused by sick kidneys.

Cure the kidneys you cure backache.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for kidneys only.

No time wasted trying to cure other troubles.

Plainfield people endorse their merit.

Mrs. C. Rosseter, of 127 Watchung avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Years ago I had backache and headaches, and was troubled also from attacks of rheumatism. On being advised that Doan's Kidney Pills were good for such troubles, I got a supply at Randolph's pharmacy, and found relief soon after I began using them. I now keep them in the house, and use them whenever I feel a twinge of pain in the back or any other symptom of kidney trouble, and it only requires a few doses to chase the pain away. I especially recommend them for rheumatic pain, for my system seemed to be filled with it before I used the remedy."

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

One of the weather whims of the training season found it cold in Dallas and warm in New York last Saturday.

One of the baseball sharps traveling with the New York Americans looks for Pitcher Manning to make good in fast company.

Manager McGraw is not saying much, but is going about the work of preparation in a thorough, businesslike way that predicts better results than were had last year.

Billy Gilbert has been under the weather since joining the Cardinals and may not play in the spring series against the Browns.

Joe Cantillon looks for the veteran George McBride to have a good season and to be something of a help to the Washingtons.

Collarless shirts and round caps may be comfortable, but they are slouchy and not as neat as collars and square caps.

Ban Johnson and Charley Murphy are against partisanship on the part of rooters' clubs that brings out ear splitting, unsportsmanlike noisemaking, and fair minded patrons of the game agree with them. Much of this rooting business has come to be very much overdone.

Del Howard of the Cubs is on the shelf with a broken finger.

From the lack of activity in the organization of the Lackawanna Baseball League it looks as though it will not be included in the baseball fraternity this season. Outside of a few telephone conversations between Secretary Knokle, manager of the Chatham team, and Manager Murphy of the Summit team, there has been practically nothing done toward getting the league in a playing condition.

Up to the present time there has been no metings, nor has there any been called for, which is usually in accord with baseball organization this time of the year. Morristown showed a great desire last fall for a league team, but has evidently lost the idea for such, as nothing has as yet been heard from it.

Dover's enthusiasm also seems to have been dampened, although "Dave" Driscoll, manager of last season's Elizabeth nine, signified his willingness to place a first class aggregation in that town, if no local representative could be found to conduct a team there. According to rumors Mr. Konkle has placed the league proposition before the Newton and Hackettstown "fans," but the silence he has kept since then indicates that the plans were not favorably received. Summit and Chatham are about the only two towns along the Lackawanna willing to continue in the league, though Boonton could be induced to join without much trouble. It is stated that unless something is done in the line of organizing soon, the grandstand and bleachers at Summit will be done away with.

"Phil." Smith, the erstwhile crack pitcher, is looking for a chance to sign with a first-class team for mid-week and Saturday games.

Clifford Randolph, of the Clinton Avenues, is reported to have a sore arm, but he is expected to round in shape when the bell rings.

The Juniors, it is said, intend staying in the field and will schedule a strong list of games.

"Lou" Wiltse left yesterday for Jersey City to join the "Skeeters," who under the management of Joe Bean, will at once begin practice.

Arrangements will be made in a few days to hold a meeting of the representatives of the Clinton Avenues, Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington teams with a view to discussing the possibilities of a league.

Jimmy Montross has regained his old-time form and wants to sign with a fast team for the season.

Ralph Stroud, the young Dover pitcher who first attracted attention by his work in the Lackawanna League, will have a try-out with the Trenton Tri-Staters this season.

Manning, the big Williamsport pitcher, who is with Griffith's New York Americans at Atlanta, is a Newark possibility. He won sixteen games and lost nine for the Tri-State champions last season, and of the regulars was second in fielding his position.

Any aid for Stallings in the way of a catcher from the New York Americans is unlikely. Rickey's arm is in bad shape and he will probably not report to Griffith this season. That leaves only Blair and Sweeney to help out Kleinow.

The Trenton Tri-State club has twenty-four men under contract, not counting one or two jumps to the Union League.

The Philadelphia Nationals have sold Leroy McIlvaine to the Wilmington Tri-Staters.

GOLF.

Announcements for the spring tournament of the Country Club of Lakewood show that the play will begin on Thursday, April 23, with a thirty-six hole qualifying round that will also include a team match open to teams of four from any club. Each member of the winning team will receive a medal and there also will be a prize for the lowest scorer in the qualifying round. Four sixteens will qualify for cups—the Country Club, Metedeconck, Carasaljo and Manetta cups. There will also be cups for each beaten eight. The eighteen hole handicap on April 25 will have two prizes, a best gross and best net prize. On May 2 there will be a day of mixed sports, including gymkhana games and a steeplechase at the Country Club of Lakewood.

Dates have been selected for the Lesley cup intercity matches, but not the course. In recognition of a request made by the New York team the time has been advanced three weeks. The match will be on Friday and Saturday, October 2 and 3.

Passing its invitation tournament last year on account of the burning of the clubhouse, the Apawamis club will this season resume the competitions held annually since 1897. The dates for the Apawamis tournament are July 2, 3 and 4.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Owing to the action of the Harvard faculty in recommending the reduction of the number of intercollegiate athletic contests during the academic year, a discussion has arisen in the other collages as to the advisability of adopting similar measures. J. B. Fine, head of the athletic executive committee here, when asked what would be Princeton's attitude on the subject, replied:

"I cannot see that it makes much difference whether the number of games on a schedule is twelve or six. There is just as much time required in the developing of a strong team, and thus the season extends over the same time. There are two questions involved, however, the athletic and the academic.

"In the former it is an essential that the present system be kept. As for the latter, it is a question for the individual athlete to decide. At Princeton there is a rule which prevents a man from competing for the university in more than two branches of sport, and there has been little difficulty with the scholarship of the men on that account. On the other hand, the university has lost many a valuable man from its teams on account of this restriction."

OUR SPRING OPENING EXHIBITION is Attracting Thousands.

Color Harmonies Seen in OUR HAT SHOW.

This is a season of exquisite color effects. At no previous period have more beautiful colorings been created, and at no time have milliners brought together materials blending so perfectly in color tone. Braids, ribbons, flowers and feathers have been wrought into many novel and beautiful shapes, and at the same time made to harmonize perfectly in their color tones. Of course there are many hats with a variety of colorings on but nothing like what we saw last fall when colors were so jumbled as to jar almost everyone. This season sees the natural reaction from last fall's radicalism, and as a result the hats may be said, without a degree of exaggeration, to be as pretty or prettier than ever in history.

Let us try to tell you of a few in detail.

Here is a beautiful Neapolitan Braid Hat in Light Blue. It has a high crown with folds of louisine ribbon, caught with large gold and rheinstone buckle and three tall graceful light blue ostrich plumes on the side. It is a hat that most women would call a dream, and its price is $30.00.

Another color harmony is a Hat of Milan Straw in Crushed Raspberry, one of this season's most fasionable colors. This hat is generously bedecked with large violets of the same shade, folds of crushed holding the flowers in place. These are velvet folds on the under-brim adding to the beauty of the hat. The price is only $17.50.

Here is a Rich Brown Hat of Milan Braid with medium crown, narrow brim rolled to the left side, the crown surrounded with rich roses, shaded from champagne to the deeper brown, with rich colored autumn foliage intermingled, and leather shade of messaline ribbon bows, the whole effect being soft and rich, pleasing alike to the conservative and the ultra fashionable dresser. The price is only $12.50.

A two-colored hat that is particularly pretty and effective is this one of Black Neapolitan Braid with high bowl-shaped crown, trimmed with novel folds of cerise taffeta silk ribbon; holding in place five standing rich ostrich plumes of cerise to mulberry shades. This is indeed a charming hat. The price is $39.50.

Another effective creation is a large Sedgwick Hat of Mackinaw Straw in steel blue. It has a high crown on which is a galloon of blue and gold braid, the gold in rich Persian design; two large white wings sweep from the front to the sides; they are tipped with blue. Button ornaments hold the wings in place. There is a pretty facing of taffeta with daintily plaited edge, which adds much to the beauty of this hat. We price it at $17.45.

Artistic Gowns. Revealing the Wonderful Skill of Designers and Dressmakers.

That there is art in dressmaking none who see this show of Spring apparel will attempt to deny. The designs this season reflect the influence of things Japanese upon our fashions and most of the coats show some of the kimono characteristics. The materials most in vogue are equally Japanesque, pongees and similar fabrics being largely used.

We are not stretching the truth when we declare that tailored were never handsomer than they are this season. And we do not go beyond the bounds when we say that at no time since ready-to-wear garments were introduced have more striking effects in style and color been obtainable for so little money.

There could hardly be anything wished for that cannot be found in this wonderful collection—the variety is so vast and the range of prices so wide.

Mirage Jumper Suits and Princess Dresses are particularly popular.

The Mirage Jumper Suits are here in many pretty styles in rich browns, blues, Copenhagen blue, raspberry and steel gray; nicely made in every detail; suits which any woman could proudly wear; marked at only $25.50.

Mirage Princess Dresses in the same colors as the Jumper suits, with neatly tucked yoke and cuffs, with large covered buttons bordering the yoke and in a single row down the entire front; and the bottom of the skirt with tucked girdle and two folds on skirt, the front of which is plaited. These are $35.00.

Mirage Prince Chap Coat Suits are here also in all the fashionable colors in strictly tailored effects; without ornaments; pockets with buttoned flaps; skirts generously plaited, at $49.00.

Handsome Coat Suits of Imported Natural Pongee, neatly striped, with embroidered collar and cuffs; fancy gilt and black Japanese buttons; lined with soft Peau de Cygne; the skirts generously plaited, $49.50.

Bordered Foulard Dresses may be had in all colors and black with white dots running to large dots forming the border; very charming indeed and low priced at $22.50.

Lingerie Dresses are here in a great variety of pretty styles. This one, for example—a Princess Dress of Persian Lawn with yoke of lace surrounded with lace medallions with blue tucked centers running around front and back; the sleeves have inserting of lace and blue tucking; the skirts with girdle of lace and tucked blue lawn; eight panels of lace and blue tucking around the skirt with deep flounce beautifully ornamented with lace medallions; a very charming dress indeed at a popular price—$18.50.

President Woodrow Wilson has stated he is favorably inclined toward the action of the Harvard faculty in reducing the number of contests, but also declared that there had been no official discussion of it in the Princeton faculty.

The system in vogue in Princeton at present gives no indication of any possible revision in the future. In the arrangement of athletic schedules the ratification by the faculty is required before any are made official. The matter of scheduling mid-week contests, which detract from academic work, the interest of the undergraduate is always the cause of friction in the arrangement of dates for games.

Many a valuable athlete has been unable to compete for Princeton owing to the two-sport rule. Eddie Dillon, who is captain of the football team and likewise plays second base on the varsity baseball nine, is a star hockey forward, and would have aided the Tigers materially last winter and the season before, but was prevented by this rule. With the introduction of aquatics into the curriculum of sports here, difficulty will be added, for any men who play football and baseball will be ineligible.

Harvard undergraduates are strongly of the opinion that a complete understanding exists between a faculty authorities at Cambridge and Princeton in regard to the ultimate shortening of intercollegiate schedules and that the time is not far distant when there will be launched in the Eastern intercollegiate world, with Harvard and Princeton as its sponsors, a movement not wholly unlike that in the West which resulted in the Western conference of colleges with their abbreviated schedules.

Developments of the past week tend to give much color to this belief on the part of Harvard men. These developments were the authorized statement from President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton, that too much time was being given to sports in colleges and that intercollegiate contests should be curtailed, and the action of the Harvard faculty "urgently recommending" that the Harvard committee for the regulation of athletic sports take immediate steps, with the support of other colleges, or otherwise, to materially reduce the number of intercollegiate contests.

That definite action in that direction will be taken at Harvard in the near future is certain. Although the Harvard faculty of late has shown a disposition to leave all matters pertaining to athletics in the hands of the committee on the regulation of athletic sports, the fact remains, that the faculty is, in the end, supreme, nor does it propose that the athletic committee shall run rough shod over its recommendations when made in terms so definite as to permit of no misunderstanding.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

E. B. Maynard's barber shop on North avenue is thoroughly equipped for doing first-class work. Children's hair cutting a speciality.

There is no better coal on the market than that sold by V. W. Nash, Sr., of Watchung avenue. Remember this when you place your next order for anchracite.

You may be looking for a desirable property either to rent or purchase. George F. Brown, of Somerset street, may be able to help you. Look him up. He also sells life, fire and accident insurance.

Funeral of County Detective Munro.

Trenton, March 25.—The funeral of County Detective Frank O. Munro, one of the largest this city has witnessed in recent years, was conducted yesterday afternoon from his late home, 132 South Stockton street. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Charles H. Elder, pastor of Trinity M. E. church. Masonic services for the dead followed the religious address. The services were largely attended by city and county officials and all of the many societies to which he belonged.

Painter Held on Arson Charge.

West Hoboken, March 25.—John Rebhahn, a boss painter, of this town, was locked up yesterday on a charge of arson. He is accused of twice attempting to set fire to a new building at Spring and Syms streets. The only motive, it is said, he could have for doing such a thing was that he did not get the contract to paint it. Witnesses claim that they saw him running from the premises to his home nearby. Rebhahn refuses to make a statement. He will have a hearing tonight.

Newarker Held Without Bail.

Trenton, March 25.—John Moran, of Newark, who was arrested on suspicion of having committed the robbery at the Gibbs home on Carroll street Thursday night, was held without bail by Police Judge Harris yesterday in the First District Court. All the goods that Moran took have been recovered. Two silver knives dropped in Hankinson alley Saturday were turned over to the police yesterday by Joseph Andrews.

—The New York firm which practically decided to take a five-year lease on the store in "The Bristol," L. L. Manning's new building on West Front street, has changed its plans and yesterday notified Mr. Manning that it would not come to Plainfield.

THE FORUM.

Mr. Ackerman for Delegate.

Editor The Daily Press:

Having followed his career in the Legislature very closely through the columns of your valuable paper, I wish to express my commendation of your expressed opinion that State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, our noble solon from Union, is worthy of the honor of being made district delegate to the Chicago convention of our party. With him as our representative at the Republican National convention, we would be sure to have the Fifth, New Jersey, Congressional district's ballots cast for the very highest type of candidate for the very highest office in the gift of the sovereign people.

Mr. Roosevelt Recommends to Congress Legislation Affecting Capital and Labor.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I call your attention to certain measures as to which I think there should be action by the congress before the close of the present session. There is ample time for their consideration. As regards most if not all of the matters, bills have been introduced into one or the other of the two houses, and it is not too much to hope that action will be taken one way or the other on these bills at the present session. In my message at the opening of the present session and, indeed, in various messages to previous congresses I have repeatedly suggested action on most of these measures.

To Prohibit Child Labor.

Child labor should be prohibited throughout the nation. At least a model child labor bill should be passed for the District of Columbia. It is unfortunate that in the one place solely dependent upon congress for its legislation there should be no law whatever to protect children by forbidding or regulating their labor.

Employers' Liability.

I renew my recommendation for the immediate re-enactment of an employers' liability law, drawn to conform to the recent decision of the supreme court. Within the limits indicated by the court the law should be made thorough and comprehensive, and the protection it affords should embrace every class of employee to which the power of the congress can extend.

In addition to a liability law protecting the employees of common carriers the government should show its good faith by enacting a further law giving compensation to its own employees for injury or death incurred in its service. It is a reproach to us as a nation that in both federal and state legislation we have afforded less protection to public and private employees than any other industrial country of the world.

Use of Injunctions.

I also urge that action be taken along the line of the recommendations I have already made concerning injunctions in labor disputes. No temporary restraining order should be issued by any court without notice, and the petition for a permanent injunction upon which such temporary restraining order has been issued should be heard by the court issuing the same within a reasonable time—say, not to exceed a week or thereabouts from the date when the order was issued. It is worth considering whether it would not give greater popular confidence in the impartiality of sentences for contempt if it was required that the issue should be decided by another judge than the one issuing the injunction, except where the contempt is committed in the presence of the court or in other case of urgency.

Combinations of Farmers.

In addition to the reasons I have already urged on your attention, it has now become important that there should be an amendment of the anti-trust law because of the uncertainty as to how this law affects combinations among labor men and farmers, if the combination has any tendency to restrict interstate commerce. All of these combinations, if and while existing for and engaged in the promotion of innocent and proper purposes, should be recognized as legal. As I have repeatedly pointed out, this anti-trust law was a most unwisely drawn statute. It was perhaps inevitable that in feeling after the right remedy the first attempts to provide such should be crude, and it was absolutely imperative that some legislation should be passed to control, in the interest of the public, the business use of the enormous aggregations of corporate wealth that are so marked a feature of the modern industrial world. But the present antitrust law, in its construction and working, has exemplified only too well the kind of legislation which, under the guise of being thoroughgoing, is drawn up in such sweeping form as to become either ineffective or else mischievous.

Combinations Absolutely Necessary.

In the modern industrial world combinations are absolutely necessary. They are necessary among business men: they are necessary among laboring men; they are becoming more and more necessary among farmers. Some of these combinations are among the most powerful of all instruments for wrongdoing. Others offer the only effective way of meeting actual business needs. It is mischievous and unwholesome to keep upon the statute books unmodified a law, like the antitrust law, which, while in practice only partially effective against vicious combinations, has nevertheless in theory been construed so as sweepingly to prohibit every combination for the transaction of modern business. Some real good has resulted from this law. But the time has come when it is imperative to modify it. Such modification is urgently needed for the sake of the business men of the country, for the sake of the wageworkers and for the sake of the farmers. The congress cannot afford to leave it on the statute books in its present shape.

Trades Unions.

Twenty-two years ago, by the act of June 29, 1886, trades unions were recognized by law, and the right of laboring people to combine for all lawful purposes was formally recognized, this right including combination for mutual protection and benefits, the regulation of wages, hours and conditions of labor and the protection of the individual rights of the workmen in the prosecution of their trade or trades, and in the act of June 1, 1898, strikes were recognized as legal in the same provision that forbade participation in or instigation of force or violence against persons or property or the attempt to prevent others from working, by violence, threat or intimidation. The business man must be protected in person and property, and so must the farmer and the wageworker, and as regards all alike the right of peaceful combination for all lawful purposes should be explicitly recognized.

Right to Combine Recognized.

The right of employers to combine and contract with one another and with their employees should be explicitly recognized, and so should the right of the employees to combine and to contract with one another and with the employers and to seek peaceably to persuade others to accept their views and to strike for the purpose of peaceably obtaining from employers satisfactory terms for their labor. Nothing should be done to legalize either a blacklist or a boycott that would be illegal at common law, this being the type of boycott defined and condemned by the anthracite strike commission.

Time For Tariff Revision.

The time has come when we should prepare for a revision of the tariff. This should be, and indeed must be, preceded by careful investigation. It is peculiarly the province of the congress and not of the president, and indeed peculiarly the province of the house of representatives, to originate a tariff bill and to determine upon its terms, and this I fully realize. Yet it seems to me that before the close of this session provision should be made for collecting full material which will enable the congress elected next fall to act immediately after it comes into existence. This would necessitate some action by the congress at its present session, perhaps in the shape of directing the proper committee to gather the necessary information, both through the committee itself and through government agents who should report to the committee and should lay before it the facts which would permit it to act with prompt and intelligent fairness. These government agents, if it is not deemed wise to appoint individuals from outside the public service, might with advantage be members of the executive departments, designated by the president on his own motion or on the request of the committee to act with it.

For Free Wood Pulp.

I am of the opinion, however, that one change in the tariff could with advantage be made forthwith. Our forests need every protection, and one method of protecting them would be to put upon the free list wood pulp, with a corresponding reduction upon paper made from wood pulp when they come from any country that does not put an export duty upon them

Substitute Osteopth Bill?

Trenton, March 25.—A second hearing was given by the Assembly Committee on Public Health yesterday afternoon on House bill 262, designed to create a State board of osteopathic examiners, which shall have the power to license, after examination, osteopaths. As at the previous hearing a large number of physicians from all over the State appeared in opposition to the measure. Dr. Herman L. Bleyle, of Newark, was one of those who spoke against it, as did Dr. David English, of New Brunswick, and Dr. Philip Marvel, of Atlantic City. Malcolm MacLear, of Newark, representing those back of the bill, discussed its merits. The committee reached no decision regarding it, but it is understood will report a substitute giving the osteopaths one examiner on the State Medical Board.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Gloucester saloon-keepers Sunday strictly observed the provisions of the "bishops' law" and kept their bars exposed to the view of passersby.

A spelling bee for the championship of Cumberland county will be held in the near future between pupils of the Bridgeton, Vineland and Millville high schools.

Suffering from contusions of both legs caused by a log rolling on him, Albert Gilgan, nine years old, of 831 Market street, Camden, was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital last night.

During a friendly tussle yesterday Joseph Bore, forty-six years old, of 419 Jersey avenue, Gloucester, sustained a fracture of the left leg and was removed to Cooper Hospital, Camden.

James Boyle, of 214 Market street, Paterson, was shot in the hand with a bullet from a twenty-two calibre revolver yesterday afternoon. The injured man says the shooting was accidentally done while he was handling a revolver.

Kicked in the side by a horse yesterday Raymond Haines, twenty-nine years old, of 307 Atlantic avenue, Camden, was thought to have been seriously injured, but at Cooper Hospital physicians found only slight injuries and he was able to go home.

In a runaway accident on upper Hamburg avenue, Paterson, last Saturday afternoon, Henry Hortley, of 177 Lewis street; James Young, of Great Notch, and Charles Downey, of Stony Road, were thrown from a wagon and injured A St. Joseph's Hospital doctor dressed their wounds and the men were able to make their way home unassisted.

Sheriff Wilbur, of Mercer county, Saturday placed an attachment for $111.12 on the $10,000 house of William A. Kuser, in Cadwallader place, Trenton. The complainant, who is a loan agent, declares that he loaned the money to Mrs. Kuser on an automobile. Some time ago the Kusers moved to Philadelphia, taking the automobile with them.

When William Rogers, a railroader, returned to his home in Trenton from work Saturday, he found that his wife and baby had disappeared. An hour later a van backed up to the door and the driver declared he was after the furniture, having been told by Mrs. Rogers that no more instalments would be paid on it. Rogers told the driver to go ahead. He says he has no idea where his wife is, but thinks she left home because she had to stay alone at nights while he was at work.

As a result of a fall sustained while roller skating several weeks ago, Richard R. Holmes, fifteen years old, son of William Holmes, of 334 Clinton street, Camden, died Monday from cerebro-spinal meningitis. Shortly after his fall the boy became ill and for a number of weeks he had been kept alive by food being artificially administered. The sorrow falls doubly hard on the parents from the fact that some years ago another son, then the age of Richard, was drowned.

Nearly a score of prisoners in the Camden City jail had a bad fight Monday night. Fred. Gross, who was temporarily insane, broke off the gas fixtures running through his cell, soon the cellroom was filled with gas, and Gross' fellow prisoners feared asphyxiation. They yelled and finally set up a united shout, which brought Captain of Police James, who soon opened doors and windows. When Captain James opened the door he was nearly overcome by the gas. Gross was then placed in a cell without gas fixtures.

HEIRESS WEDS SECRETLY.

Miss Georgi Became Bride of Ralph Camp on March 11.

The Rev. Gottlieb Andreae, of Jersey City, confirmed the report that he had married on March 11, Miss Isabelle Marie Georgi to Ralph Camp, son of an agent of the United States Secret Service, in that city. Mrs. Camp is an heiress to a large share of the $1,000,000 estate left to her mother by Maximillan Hershel, a recluse.

Hershel, who came to New York from Germany forty years ago, was kindly treated on his arrival by the father and mother of Mrs. Georgi. When he died, July 25, 1903, it was found that he had left his estate to Mrs. Georgi.

BOY CRAP SHOOTERS SPANKED.

Parents Invited to Witness "Jersey Justice."

Ten small boys at Kearny were each soundly spanked Monday in an ante-room of the Kearny police court for shooting craps in the street.

Shooting craps has become the principal diversion of the youth of Kearny, and Recorder James Kelly has discovered that fines, which the parents usually pay, have failed to stop the sport. He sent word yesterday to the parents of each of the ten lads, inviting them to a spanking bee in his office. Many came, and the others sent word that the Recorder could go as far as he liked.

—The Bayonne theatre, Broadway and Twenty-third street, in that city, which was damaged by fire several months ago, reopened Monday afternoon with Rice & Barton's burlesque "Big Gayety Company." There was a full house at the opening and the show made a big hit.

HUMAN STOMACH HAS BECOME DEGENERATE

Animals Are Healthier Because of Strong Digestive Apparatus.

An interesting interview was recently obtained with L. T. Cooper, the young man whose theory and medicines have created such a sensation during the past year.

Mr. Cooper, in speaking of the remarkable success of his medicine, had this to say on the subject: "My medicine regulates the stomach. That is why it is successful. The human stomach today has become degenerate, and is the cause for most ill health. In the horse, the dog, and the wild animals generally, you see no nerve exhaustion, no chronic debility. They are not shut up day after day with practically no exercise, and they are not able to stuff themselves with food when their bodies have not had enough work to justify it. The human race has been doing this for years, and look at the result—half the people are complaining of poor health, not real illness—just a half-sick, tired, droopy feeling. They don't really know what is the matter with them.

"I know that all the trouble is caused by weak, overworked stomachs. I have proved this with my medicine to many thousands of people in most of the leading cities of this country. I expect to do the same thing in Europe next year. This is the real reason for the demand for my preparation."

Among those who have recently been converted to Cooper's theory is Mr. Monroe Brown of 8 Hancock Street, Winchester, Mass. Mr. Brown has this to say of his experience with the new medicine: "For over seven years I suffered with catarrh of the stomach, and for the past year I was lame with rheumatism. I attributed this to my stomach trouble, as my circulation was very poor. What food I ate would turn to gas almost at once. I would have a sensation of bloating, and would have to belch frequently to relieve this. My heart also became affected, and I would suddenly become dizzy and have palpitations. I was tired and dull and despondent at all times. I lost a great deal of flesh, and was nervous and depressed. This went on for over seven years, although I spent hundreds of dollars trying to get relief.

"When Cooper was in Boston I heard a good deal about his ideas on stomach trouble. Next, one or two friends told me that his medicines had greatly helped them. I purchased some of the New Discovery medicine. Today I am perfectly well; I sleep like a boy, can eat anything and have no rheumatism or heart trouble. I no longer have any gas on my stomach, and feel as I did years ago. No one could be more astonished by these facts than myself. They are remarkable, but true. This is indeed a wonderful medicine."

The Cooper preparations have been more widely sold and discussed since being introduced than anything of the kind ever before sold by druggists. We sell them and explain their nature. —T. S. Armstrong.

FATALLY SHOT; YET WALKED THROUGH TUNNEL

Hoboken, March 25.—With a probably fatal bullet wound in his head, Colameres Taunazio, forty-six years old, of 427 East Seventeenth street, walked from Hudson and Christopher streets, New York, through the tunnel under the Hudson river yesterday, and was picked up unconscious on the rails at the terminal here.

Although half a dozen trains sped by him he managed to avoid being hit by taking temporary shelter in the safety niches. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where he is likely to die.

Twelve Italians, a negro and Michael Farrell, an Irishman, formed a gang putting in rails and laying ties in the tunnel at Christopher street and Hudson. The Italians began to fight, and the negro ran away. The Irishman stood aside while pickaxes, crowbars and shovels were being hurled about, but no attempt was made to attack him. Several of the Italians drew revolvers, and more than a dozen shots were fired.

One man dropped to the tracks, and, seeing him fall, the rest fled through the tunnel. Believing that the man was dying, the Irishman carried him to the side of the tunnel, and, after making a pillow out of his coat and placing the wounded man's head upon it, made his way to the nearest shaft to the street.

There he found a policeman, who, after sending in a hurry call for an ambulance, descended in to the tunnel with the laborer, but the wounded Italian had disappeared. Believing that the other Italians had carried him away, the policeman returned to the street and reported the shooting at the Charles Street Station.

Not until an hour later was any trace of the wounded man found. A track-walker at a signal box near Hudson place and River street was the first to see Taunazio. The man went staggering along the south track from the tunnel terminal under the river and, just as he neared the signal box, fell unconscious on the rails. The trackwalker ran out and pulled him to satisfy just as a New York bound train appeared from the Hoboken terminal.

The wounded man was then carried to the office of John O'Rourke, from where an ambulance took him to St. Mary's Hospital. The Hoboken police were notified, and after Taunazio's wounds had been dressed he was questioned by two detectives of the local bureau, but refused to make any statement as to who had shot him. The New York detective bureau was notified.

DEUTSCH STILL IN JAIL.

A report came from Perth Amboy yesterday that Joseph Deutsch, the private banker who is held in jail at New Brunswick pending an appeal of his sentence of two years in prison, would be discharged on bail yesterday afternoon, but the banker is still confined. The bail is $3,500.

Deutsch was charged with defrauding depositors in his banks at Perth Amboy and Rahway. His wife has remained loyal to him and has spent all of her money in his behalf, and was threatened with eviction yesterday because she could pay no more rent to house herself and three children.

Hebrew Show Ends in Disorder.

Paterson, March 25.—What threatened to be a small sized riot was narrowly averted at a hall in River street last night, when the police stopped a Hebrew performance because no permit had been secured. A comedian was impersonating an Irishman at the time and the 200 spectators thought the police had taken offense. They crowded around and attempted to explain in dialect that no harm was intended, and the police had a hard time before they made themselves understood. A rush on the box-office was made by actors and audience, but the manager said he had not yet received any money from the owner of the hall, who had collected the receipts. A compromise was finally effected.

Infant an Heir to Millions.

Chicago, March 25.—An event of great importance to the family of the late Otto Young occurred last Sunday night, in the birth of a boy to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel K. Martin. The boy is the ninth grandchild to share the millions left by the merchant. Until the birth of this, their first child, the Martins; under the terms of the will, had no claim on the fortune beyond Mrs. Martin's left interest in its income. Now they have an heir whose prospects are worth at least $3,000,000. It is the first Young grandchild to be born into its own rights since the death of Mr. Young.

Police Thought Girl Drugged.

Trenton, March 25.—Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Lutze, Frederick Lutze and Miss Clara Barker, all of this city, were arrested late last night as they were entering a hotel. They had dined together, and the police say Miss Barker had imbibed too freely. A policeman who saw her being carried from a cab thought she had been drugged. At the police station the Lutzes gave the name of Adams and said they were from New York and Newark. Such is not the case. Miss Barker, according to the police, is suffering from alcoholic coma.

CHAPTER XIII.

An Impromptu Affair on the High Seas.

It was hardly possible at first, even for so practiced and acute an eye as Carrington's, to determine whether he or Strathgate had the better boat. In the first place, the two cutters were continually on opposite courses, splitting tacks, the wind blowing straight into the harbor, and it was not until they had passed and repassed each other several times that Carrington became convinced that he was gaining on his antagonist. The gain, however, was a slight one. The difference in the rate of sailing between the two boats was not very great.

Both of them sailed faster than the Flying Star in the air then prevailing. When the big ship got out into the channel she would probably run away from the two fishing boats without difficulty. The wind being as it was necessitated a hard beat out, and again this gave the smaller vessels an advantage, for they could hold on where the great ship was compelled to tack for fear of shoal water. And with every tack they gained distance.

Carrington studied the sea intently and concluded that if the wind did not shift and it did not come to blow harder than it was, there was every prospect that both boats would overhaul the ship. Whether he could beat Strathgate at that game, however, in the time at his disposal was a question. At any rate there was nothing to do but hold on. Master Haight had viewed Carrington's usurpation of the helm with some misgiving at first, but his distrust soon gave place to admiration, for never was a small boat better handled than by the young naval officer. If Carrington had been sailing the cutter in a race for a stake of £10,000, he could not have watched her more carefully or handled her more skillfully. He made everything tell.

That worthy fisherman, Cooper, who was sailing Strathgate's boat, albeit he did very well, was a mere tyro compared to Carrington. Indeed, Carrington felt as if he were sailing his boat for love, honor, happiness, revenge, all the passions that can engross a heart and move a soul. Strathgate was no sailor, but after an hour's rapid sailing even he could see that eventually Carrington would overhaul him. He spoke of this to Cooper, wringing a reluctant admission of the truth of his conclusions from the sailor, but the latter promised to put him alongside the merchant ship at least before Carrington ran him down.

For perhaps an hour the three vessels—the ship and the two small boats—held on, every moment bringing the little chasers nearer their great quarry. The Flying Star was making no especial effort at speed. Her royals were not yet set. She was proceeding on her voyage rather leisurely, in fact, and the others were in high hope, Carrington, especially. He thought that he at last had Strathgate where he could not escape, and if Ellen and Deborah were on that ship, they could not get away, either.

Into this peaceful nautical passage at arms, suddenly a new factor was introduced. That, of course, was Ellen's boat. Sheltered by the island neither Strathgate nor Carrington had noticed it until it suddenly shot into view. Now Ellen had a better wind than any of the other three. On a broad reach she came down on the big ship, as a sailor would phrase it, hand over fist. Her little boat was heeled over until the lee gunwale was awash and danced over the waves at a terrific pace.

Carrington saw the boat first. The reckless way in which she was being sailed caught his eye. It was too far for him to distinguish who sailed it, but he could tell that one of them was a woman. Something made him believe that it might be his wife. He gave the tiller to Haight, went up forward and stared hard. He would have given anything for a glass but there was nothing of that kind in the fisherman's boat and he had to trust to his unaided eyesight. The longer he looked the more sure he became that it was Ellen. His first impulse was to alter his course and head directly for her cutter, but he realized the moment he conceived the design that he could never intercept her, that his only chance was to overhaul the ship for which she was evidently making. He would thus lose no distance. If she did not intend to try to board the ship he could chase her afterward. The sailors on Strathgate's boat evidently pointed out the situation to him just as it had presented itself to Carrington, so all three held on.

Ellen had the shortest distance to sail, and a free wind, while the ship and the other two boats had a hard beat before them. There was nothing Carrington could do in fact but hold his course, yet with what a fever of impatience he continued his steady beat to and fro across the harbor. The only satisfaction he got was that with every tack he gained perceptibly on Strathgate. Indeed the boats passed each other close enough for conversation, but Strathgate had nothing to say to Carrington and Carrington controlled himself waiting for a convenient opportunity to express himself fully and unequivocally.

Both of them, moreover, were engrossed in the other boat. As the boats converged upon the ship, there was no doubt in Carrington's mind, or in Strathgate's, as to the identity of its passengers. The wind was getting stronger as they drew farther out into the open channel and the rate at which they were drawing nearer to the ship grew correspondingly slower. Carrington gritted his teeth in his vexation.

"I'll Kill You."

Still he held on. It was such a race as he had never sailed before. He held on although he knew that if the wind increased, his case was a hopeless one; held on, although he saw Ellen's boat in a few moments would intercept the ship; held on, when he saw that boat disappear on the lee side of the ship; held on when he saw the ship thrown into the wind to make a half board so that her way was practically checked; held on when two figures appeared upon the deck of the ship, and one, a boyish looking youth, walked over to the weather gangway and stood in full view of the approaching cutters, waved a hand, lifted a cap disdainfully and then disappeared; held on when he saw the boat which the two had abandoned, trailing astern at the end of a long line.

It was my lord's nature to hold on doggedly so long as there was the faintest possibility of success and beyond. And he kept up the chase of the big ship even though she suddenly covered with light canvas and, catching the full force of the breeze, greatly accelerated her motion. He held on even though a slant of the wind brought the breeze over the quarter of the big ship as she bore away on her course to the eastward. Carrington marked that with sudden surprise. The ship was not going to America apparently.

But it was evident, even to the most sanguine mind, that the game was up. Strathgate's boat was suddenly put about. The cearl had abandoned the chase and was going back to harbor. Carrington was not so easily daunted, or perhaps he was more blind to the possibilities, for he strove to persuade the boatmen to continue the chase. He would have sailed to France, or to America, or to the end of the world, in whatsoever boat he was on so long as it would float. But the boatmen were not so minded. They were not provisioned for such a cruise nor prepared for it. Not even the incentive of unlimited financial rewards with which Carrington strove to dazzle them could make them agree to continue the pursuit. They were clamorous for putting back to Portsmouth, seeing plainly that they had failed. It was only the personal authority of Carrington's rank and station which kept them from summarily dispossessing him from the helm. They were not quite ready for that when Strathgate's boat came rushing down toward them.

It was Carrington's opportunity. Balked in his chase of his wife, he determined to wreak his vengeance upon the earl. As the boat drew close to his bows, by a sudden sweep of the helm he sent his own heavier cutter crashing fair into it. The force with which he struck the other boat caused Strathgate's smaller vessel to hang on the bows of Carrington's boat. There was no loss of life, for Strathgate, scarcely worse for the disaster, followed by Cooper and the lad, scrambled aboard Haight's cutter.

White with passion Strathgate rushed aft, shaking his fist at Carrington, who sat laughing bitterly in the stern sheets. At Strathgate's back were Cooper, furious over the deliberate wrecking of his boat, and the boy eager to join in the fray.

"By heaven!" cried Strathgate, fiercely, "what did you mean by that?"

"I should think that my meaning was obvious even to you," says my lord, indifferently, although he was seething with anger to see his adversary within his reach.

"I don't know you, sir," cried Cooper, shaking his fist, "but you sunk my boat. You done it deliberately. It'll cost you a matter of £50."

"'Tis cheap at the price," answered Carrington. "Don't worry, my man. Just pipe down," he continued, as Cooper opened his mouth to expostulate. "I'm Lord Carrington. You shall be paid for your boat and something for your trouble."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

As a result of a systematic study of the Pompeian remains, the "props" and scenic effects used in Thomas E. Shea's production of "A Soldier of the Cross," which Cohan and Harris will present at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday, have been reproduced, it is said, to an exceptional degree of realism. In that of the gladiator in this piece Mr. Shea is essaying a role which has been part of his ambition; and it is reported by the press of other cities that in this new piece his success has been universal. The date of the story is fixed at the time of the Pompeian disaster; and is said to be given a stage representation, scientifically real. An arena combat with lions is another feature. The play deals with high and low life in the Roman city, and particularly with the patrician oppression. The author, Eugene Thomas, is at all times full of human interest, and, it is said, has handled his subject with great care and skill. A love affair between a noble and a slave girl is gracefully interwoven. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will also be presented by Mr. Shea with complete production Friday night and Saturday afternoon. A competent company has been provided.

Victim of Knife Bit Improved.

Newton, March 25.—Mrs. Mary Hary, who was stabbed and beaten by her son, William Sheldon, at her home near Swartswood Village on Thursday, has exhibited a remarkable vitality and her condition at a late hour was reported as slightly improved. There is a small chance for her recovery, it is said, but the outcome of her injuries, the most serious of which is the knife wound in her side, is still in doubt. The woman's assailant recovered from his seeming insanity yesterday and was in an apparently normal condition. He asked Sheriff Gunn what the charge was against him and on being informed made no comment.

Creditors Get 11 Per Cent.

At a final meeting of the creditors fo the Walter T. Armitage Company in New Brunswick Monday, a dividend of 11 per cent. was announced. This is all that the creditors will receive from the bankrupt. The proven claims amounted to $8,000 and the assets were but $1,200. Mr. Amitage came to New Brnswick from Newark a few years ago and established a plant in Highland Park for the manufacture of oil silk, on which he had patents. He failed a couple of years ago.

Operation on Pistol Victim.

Rahway, March 25.—Herbert Jeffris, thirteen years old, who was shot in the face Friday night and was operated on Saturday for the purpose of removing the paper wadding from his throat, underwent another operation yesterday, when the powder grains were taken from his face and mouth. Dr. John M. Randolph was the surgeon. Young Jeffris was shot by a boy named Crocker, fifteen years old, with a toy pistol, which he fired at short range.

BOROUGH GIRLS LOSE TO P. H. S. FIVE, 14-4

In a game marked by stubborn defensive playing on the part of the borough five, the Plainfield High School girls' basketball team won from the North Plainfield High School girls five by a score of 14-4 in a well played contest at the city high school auditorium yesterday afternoon. This is the second game of the season between the two teams, and the city school girls were victorious in the first contest by a margin of nearly forty points. N. P. H. S. points were made from the foul line.

The play yesterday showed great improvement in the game of the borough five. The girls guarded closely and showed accuracy in passing. At the end of the first half, the score was 8-2 in favor of the P. H. S. girls. When the teams came on the floor again, the borough girls were particularly good on the defensive, scoring two more points from fouls and holding their opponents to three baskets. Miss Fleming made five baskets for P. H. S., but the city team could not score from the foul line. The lineups and summaries:

P. H. S.		N. P. H. S.
Madeline Durar	left forward.	Margery Cooley
Barbara Fleming	right forward.	Anna Daly
Louise Andrews	centre.	Marjorie Hart
Bessie Alpaugh	left guard.	Ida Englehart
Esther Crampton	right guard.	Helen George

Field goals: Miss Fleming, 5; Miss Durar, 2. Goals from fouls, Miss Cooley, 3; Miss Daly. Referee, Miss Margaret E. Mosher. Fifteen minute halves.

HOPE Y. M. C. FIVE WINS FROM HOLY CROSS

In the second game of a series of three games between the basketball fives of Hope Y. M. C. and the Holy Cross Club, the Hope five were victorious by a score of 56-36 at the Hope chapel gymnasium last night. The first game of the series was won by the Holy Cross boys by a score of 36-32.

Snyder and Hunter, for the Hope five, and Conroy, of Holy Cross, did the best work, each scoring eight baskets. The game was cleanly played, only two fouls being called during the entire contest. Hope excelled in team work and shooting. The lineups and summaries:

HOPE Y. M. C.		HOLY CROSS.
Snyder	right forward.	Conroy
Hunter	centre.	Millar
Kenney	left guard.	Williams
Rimmer	right guard.	Mosher

Field goals: Snyder, 8; Hunter, 8; Conroy, 8; Mortimer, 5; Millar, 5; Grey, 3; Firstbrook, 4; Kenney, 2; Mosher, 2; Rimmer. Referee, Rev. George A. Warner. Umpire, J. Kenney. Timer, Smith. Scorer, P. C. Sweeny. Twenty minute halves.

PERSONAL.

Miss Anna K. Coggeshall, of New York, is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. Maxwell Honeyman, of Webster place.

Miss Helen Lake, of this city, is visiting at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Sharp, at Annandale.

Bryan Can't Come.

Speaker Frank B. Jess, of the House, at Trenton late yesterday, received a telegram from William Jennings Bryan, saying that he appreciated the invitation to address the Legislature, but had been forced to change his plans and could not be in New Jersey today. He was due at the State House at 11 o'clock. Mr. Bryan is repairing New York fences.

CHURCH STRIFE IS ENDED

Rival Colored Baptist Flocks Settle Their Differences at Conference.

PASS HARMONY RESOLUTION.

Rev. G. W. Bailey's Band Promises to Discontinue Services As Ebenezers At Reform Hall.

At a meeting of the pastors of the colored Baptist churches of the city held yesterday in the Mt. Olive Baptist church, it was decided by unanimous vote to allow the Ebenezer Baptist church at East Third street and Filmore avenue to retain its name, and the congregation which has been meeting in Reform Hall under the same name agreed to the resolution which was adopted to that effect. The subject was thoroughly discussed by the pastors after which the resolutions were adopted.

The resolutions state that in view of the fact that there has been a misunderstanding between the faction of the Ebenezer Baptist church and those who now constitute the membership of the church, the officers and members of the faction agree to give up the name to the original church and to turn over all claims and property of the Ebenezer Baptist church. The resolutions were signed by Ernest Crite, as trustee, and Spencer Conway, deacon.

Rev. Dr. E. W. Roberts, of New Brunswick, president of the Middlesex Central Baptist Association and Rev. L. L. Croom, corresponding secretary of the association, took part in the discussion. Dr. Roberts was made chairman and Rev. David W. Cannon, the newly-chosen pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist church, was the secretary. The object of the conference was stated by Rev. M. A. Alexander, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, after which remarks were made by Spencer Conway and Ernest Crite. The meeting was harmonious throughout. Rev. G. W. Bailey spoke on the subject and offered prayer and the congregation at the close joined in singing "Bless Be the Tie That Binds."

PRIMARY BILL FORCED OUT OF COMMITTEE

Majority Leader Martin invoked the Morgan rule in the House at Trenton yesterday, the first time since its adoption, and forced the Fort primary bill out of the committee on elections of the House. He secured the fifteen names necessary and served the petition on the chairman of the committee. Those who signed the petition were himself, Morgan, Blohm, Hines, Smith, Lewis, Daab, Fake, Keffer, Kirstein, Lyon, Clark, Crosby, Smalley and Devine.

As soon as the bill was reported several county and State leaders made their appearance on the floor and began to get busy with the opponents of the bill. Mr. Martin offered a motion calling upon the sergeant-at-arms to clear the floor of all but members and newspaper men. This passed, but the rule was not rigidly enforced. "Dory" Strong, of Middlesex, was one of those not driven out. Mr. Martin looked directly at him and said:

"Mr. Speaker, the rule is not being entirely enforced and I wish it."

Strong reddened, hung his head and walked out.

Mr. Martin then offered a number of amendments to the bill and moved they be printed at once. There was an effort to delay this, but by a close vote the motion was carried.

NEW LOCAL OPTION BILL INTRODUCED IN HOUSE

Assemblyman B. Frank Buck, of Cumberland, sprang a new local option bill in the Assembly at Trenton yesterday. It was drawn and introduced for the Anti-Saloon League, and is entitled "An act concerning the granting of licenses for the sale of intoxicants in the several municipalities and townships of the State."

It provides that if in any town, township, borough or city a majority of the legal voters shall file with the court or board having control of liquor licenses a petition against the granting of licenses, no license shall be renewed for at least two years, nor thereafter until a petition in favor of licenses shall be filed with the licensing body.

Provision is made for the sale by druggists on written prescriptions. Sale in quantities of more than one quart for manufacturing purposes is also permitted. The bill sets forth the form of petition and provides for the canvass of the petition by the licensing power after it is filed. It is made a misdemeanor for any person to unlawfully sign a petition as a qualified voter.

Work Hard and Live 100 Years.

Edward Van Pelt, of No. 822 East Jersey street, Jersey City, celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of his birth yesterday. He is in almost perfect health, his only affliction today being a heavy cold. For years Van Pelt was a fish dealer in Elizabeth. Only two Presidents have presided over this country under whose administration Van Pelt has not lived, Washington and John Adams. In giving his recipe for long life Van Pelt said: "Get plenty of fresh air, abstain from liquor and tobacco in any form, be temperate in eating, rise and retire at regular hours and work hard."

CHANCELLOR DAY, ROOSEVELT'S AVOWED ENEMY, MUST MAKE HIS CONFERENCE VISIT BRIEF

While Newark Conference Meets Here, New York Conference Will Hear Dr. Cook's Charges.

MAYOR TO WELCOME VISITORS.

Mr. Fisk Will Introduce Governor Fort—H. N. Dingley to Speak to the Laymen — Dr. Buckley Coming.

Final arrangements have been made for the Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which will hold its annual sessions in the First M. E. church and Vincent chapel April 1-7 inclusive. Mayor Charles J. Fisk has promised to deliver the address of welcome to the 500 delegates on Wednesday night and will introduce the speaker of the evening, Governor J. Franklin Fort, who will be his guest.

Rev. Dr. James R. Day, chancellor of Syracuse University and the persistent opponent of the Rooseveltian policies which he has so bitterly attacked in the public press from time to time, will be among the distinguished visitors. As he will have to answer the charges brought against him by Rev. Dr. Cook, who alleges that he has violated the church law by speaking ill of the civic magistrates, Dr. Day, it is said, will not spend much time here as the New York Conference will hear the case next week. Rev. Dr. James M. Buckley, the editor of the Christian Advocate, will be another distinguished visitor. He was recently exonerated on charges brought against him by the same Rev. Dr. Cook, whom Methodists do not appear to take very seriously.

Among the other official visitors, as noted in yesterday's Daily Press will be Rev. William V. Kelley, D. D., editor Methodist Review; Rev. Stephen J. Hebren, D. D., editor Epworth Herald; Rev. George E. Reed, D. D., President Dickinson College; Rev. George Elliott, D. D., Field Secretary Board of Home Missions; Rev. Adna B. Leonard, D. D., Secretary Board of Foreign Missions; Rev. William F. Anderson, D. D., Secretary Board Education; Rev. John Krantz, D. D., Sales Agent Methodist Book Concern; Rev. Abram S. Kavanagh, D. D., Superintendent Methodist Hospital; Rev. M. C. B. Mason, D. D., Secretary Freedmen's Aid Society; Rev. J. A. Gutteridge, D. D., American University.

Delegates to the General Conference at Baltimore will be selected at the big laymen's association to be held in the First Baptist church all day Friday, April 3. The lay electrol conference of the association, however, does not begin until 3 o'clock in the afternoon as told in yesterday's issue of this paper. H. N. Dingley, of Syracuse, president of the Methodist Brotherhood, will be the chief speaker. Rev. Dr. Charles B. Mitchell, of Cleveland, Ohio, and formerly of Plainfield, will also make an address. His subject will be "The Mission of a Methodist."

N. J. DEMOCRATS SPLIT.

Reform Wing Comes Into Existence at Newark Meeting.

Democrats dissatisfied with the leaders of their party in Essex, whom they denounce in no uncertain terms as "selfish and conscienceless," assembled in Achtel Stetter's, in Broad street, Newark, last night, and formed an organization with which it is proposed to depose City Counsel James R. Nugent, of Newark, and a State committeeman, as leader in the county and the alleged dictator to the Essex County Democratic Committee. Almost at the same time about fifty members of the county committee gathered at their headquarters, a block and a half away, and decided to tender to Nugent a testimonial dinner in the Krueger Auditorium, in Newark, on April 23.

Edward M. Waldron was chairman of the meeting, and Thomas F. Bowers secretary. Every ward in Newark was represented. Ward organizations will be formed at once. The fight will be waged on the lines of the New Idea reformers.

Men's Club Musicale.

Under the auspices of the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church tonight a musicale will be given by Miss Anna Lucretia Case, soprano soloist; Joseph McIntyre, pianist, and Sigmund Culp, violinist. The artists are all so well known that a musical treat is assured all who attend.

ACKERMAN FAVORS TAFT FOR PRESIDENT

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman has come out with an announcement that he favors Secretary of War William H. Taft for the Republican Presidential nomination. His choice is important inasmuch as he is a candidate for the district delegateship from this county and his selection it is believed, will meet with the hearty approval of the rank and file of Union county voters. Particularly in Plainfield there is a strong Taft sentiment although Governor Hughes, who is not taken seriously by many wise ones, has a large number of followers here.

Governor Fort was the first in New Jersey to come out in Taft's favor and his declaration in his favor many other Republican State leaders have assured President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft of their support of the latter's candidacy. State Senator Colby has also declared himself in line for the Ohio man. United States Senator John Kean, it is understood, opposes Mr. Taft's boom but former United States Senator John F. Dryden is heartily in his favor. Former Governor Franklin Murphy and United States Senator F. O. Briggs are likewise said to be lined up against the Ohioan.

LEGISLATURE HONORS FARMER-ORATOR MARTINE

"Farmer-orator" James E. Martine, he of many unsuccessful political campaigns, was the guest of honor of the New Jersey legislature; the body which but a short time since came near making him an United States Senator to succeed John F. Dryden.

"Jim" got up with the chickens yesterday morning for had he not read that his bosom friend, William Jennings Bryan, the Peerless One from Nebraska, had accepted an invitation to speak before the State's solons? He took a train for Trenton shortly after the sun rose and was hob-nobbing with Senator "Joe" Gebhardt, of Hunterdon, and other tried and true admirers of the author of "The First Battle" when word arrived that the "Peerless One" could not keep his engagement.

State Senator E. R. Ackerman hearing that his distinguished fellow-citizen of Union county was in the corridors of the State House introduced a resolution that "Mr. James E. Martine, of Union county," be admitted to the privileges of the floor of the Senate. The resolution went through "with bells on" and "Our Jim" was given a place of honor in the Upper House for the time being. It was not long, however, before the Democrats in the Assembly learned that the "Farmer-orator" was "in their midst." In a few minutes, Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, a worthy Republican member from Union, took his cue and introduced a resolution that the same "Honorable James E. Martine, of Union county," be extended the privileges of the House and be invited to address the members of this body.

Well, did "Jim" speak? Did he? For ten minutes he kept on thanking the House for the honor and telling his audience how sad he was that the "Greatest Living Statesman"—W. J. B.—could not be present.

Church Theatricals Tomorrow.

Regular rehearsals have been held for the presentation of the farce, "Lunch in the Suburbs," to be given by the Sunshine Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue church in the church parlors tomorrow night. The cast has been coached for several weeks past under the supervision of Miss Elsie Goddard and Miss Helen Brown. Home made candy will be for sale at the play by a committee of members of the band. Miss Agnes Scribner is chairman of this committee, and she will be assisted by the Misses Mildred and Margaret Miller, Margaret Hutchinson and Louise Paterson.

Justice Reserves His Decision.

Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy reserved decision in the contract case of Wyckoff vs. Bodine, heard at the borough police court, last night. The principals are Edmund Wyckoff, of Grove street and A. B. C. Bodine, of Summit avenue, and the amount is $43.90. Judge Mundy will give his decision Friday night. Codington & Swackhamer represented the plaintiff and Robert Newton Crane was counsel for the defendant.

HOUSE BLOCKS 'MACHINE'

Assembly Votes to Sit Up Until All of Fort's Pledges are Kept.

SENATE RESOLUTION BEATEN.

Pierce, of Union, and Smalley, of Somerset, Make Good—Moxon and Kirstein Line Up With "Machine."

Plans of Republican leaders not in harmony with the policies of Governor Fort and the "new idea" Republicans to force through the House the Senate resolution for final adjournment on April 3 were forestalled yesterday at Trenton by the adoption of a resolution offered by Martin, the Republican floor leader and likewise the leader of the "new idea" Republicans.

By a vote of 32 to 20 the House placed itself on record as against adjourning until the campaign pledges of Governor Fort have been fulfilled; until the Legislature has done its duty by the people with regard to the public utilities and other important bills. It is intended as a warning to the Senate that if it blocks important measures, it will be kept at its work far into the summer.

Vote for Resolutions.

Martin's resolution was as follows:

"Whereas, the civil service, public utilities, nor the election reform bills have yet been passed; the Hahn investigating committee report has not been considered, and the proposed constitutional amendments have not been adopted; and

"Whereas, the Governor stated in his inaugural address that 'every promise made to the people in the platform of the party prevailing in the last election must be kept and 'this is a duty which both the legislative and executive branches of the government must regard as obligatory;' therefore, be it

"Resolved, That this House will not consent to an adjournment until the Legislature has fairly considered these subjects and substantially fulfilled the pledge made to the people."

In speaking of the resolution, Martin said he was authorized to speak for the Governor in the matter.

Immediately afterward Martin, to clinch his victory, moved a reconsideration and asked that his motion be defeated. This was done to prevent the matter being brought up again. The motion to reconsider was defeated by practically the same vote as on the adoption of the resolution.

Thompson, Republican, of Mercer, first voted against the resolution and then changed to the affirmative, evidently for the purpose of moving for a reconsideration.

Martin Confers With Fort.

That the intention of the legislature to adjourn finally on April 3, without doing more business, had come was forced on the notice of Leader Martin this morning, when he saw Buxton, of Morris, circulating a petition in the House calling for an agreement to support the Senate concurrent resolution to adjourn next Friday. Martin hurried in to see Governor Fort, who demanded that the leader break up any further attempt to stifle legislation.

It is understood that Martin told Governor Fort the plan was to completely defeat everything which he, Fort, had recommended to the Legislature.

After this exciting episode in the House, sundry bills which have been slumbering in committee were reported. Among them was the Holcomb House bill, which provides for the repeal of the measure allowing the use of voting machines. Holcombe has bees using every effort to get this bill out of committee, but it took Martin's resolution to get it on the floor.

The vote for the resolution was as follows:

Clark, Colgate, Crosby, Devine, Fake, Hines, Lewis, Lowrey, Martin, McCold Morgan, Pierce, Radcliffe, Smalley, Smith, Thompson, Whitehead (Republican), Auf der Heide, Beecroft, Blohm, Daab, Eppinger, Firth, Hendrickson, Holcomb, Kenny, Morris, Ramsay, Sullivan, Tantum, Tumulty, Van Cleef (Democrats, total, 32.

Against the resolution were:

Buck, Buxton, Cattell, Gibbs, Ginnelley, Housel, Irick, Speaker Jess, Keffer, Kirstein, Lyon, Miller, Moxon, F. B. Potter, Ridgway, Voorhees, Young (Republicans), Baker, Valente, Keough, (Democrats), total, 20.

THEATRICAL MANAGER SUES A TRUCKMAN

The case of William J. Counihan, proprietor of the New Plainfield theatre, against Henry J. Wierenga, truckman, in which the plaintiff seeks to recover $70 on a promissory note and $24 as commissions on carting for theatrical companies, was called in the district court shortly after noon today and was resumed at 2 o'clock, after an hour's recess. W. A. Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, represents the plaintiff, and John P. Owens is counsel for the defendant.

Considerable time was spent in selecting a jury, many persons called being challenged. The following eleven men were finally accepted: Fred Sandford, John Auten, P. Connelly, David White, William Feiring, William Young, Michael Higgins, Theodore Shirley, Justice Thomas Snape, John Hall, William Mellick.

In presenting the case, Mr. Codington explained that Mr. Wierenga was under contract to Mr. Counihan to do the carting of theatrical properties for the theatre at the rate of twenty-five cents per trunk, $5 for a single horse load and $10 for a two-horse load of scenery. In addition Mr. Wierenga agreed to give Mr. Counihan twenty-five per cent. of the amount he received from theatrical companies for hauling. Later the contract was changed so that Mr. Wierenga was to receive thirty cents for each trunk, and instead of furnishing both horse and wagon for bill-posting, he agreed to furnish the wagon and Mr. Counihan was to obtain the horse. Each night following a show a duplicate bill for carting was to be given to Mr. Counihan for comparison in settling accounts.

In October, 1907, Mr. Coddington said, Mr. Wierenga gave up the contract of his own volition, and at that time he owed Mr. Counihan $70 on a note dated September 24, 1907, and which he had still failed to pay. Besides, he claimed $24 as commissions for carting, remaining unpaid. Mr. Coddington stated further that there were five shows for which Mr. Wierenga had done work and for which no accounting had been made.

According to counsel for the plaintiff Mr. Wierenga had repeatedly promised to settle for the note after he had allowed it to go to protest, and also for the commissions, but as yet had not done so. He explained that Mr. Wierenga had failed to make a setoff amounting to $110 for the use of a wagon fifty-five days at $2 per day, and another claim of $43 for extra labor.

There was considerable amusement when Mr. Counihan was called as the first witness. He walked to the stand and instead of being seated, he turned about and began addressing the jury, intending to tell his story. Prompt rapping of the gavel by Judge Newcorn, together with the assistance of Mr. Coddington, bought Mr. Counihan to his seat, with the explanation that it was his first experience in court. Afterward he substantiated the story as related by Mr. Coddington, Samuel Cunningham, treasurer of the theatre, was the next witness called, and he had just begun his testimony, when court adjourned to 2 o'clock. He was again put on the stand at the opening of the court this afternoon.

INFORMATION BUREAU FOR CHILDREN'S ALLIANCE

Dr. M. P. F. Groszmann, chairman; J. A. Lane, also of this city, and C. A. McCall, of Newark, comprising a committee from the New Jersey Children's Protective Alliance, met at Dr. Groszmann's school last night, when it was decided to establish a bureau of information in an effort to widen the scope of the alliance in the advancement of child life in New Jersey.

The alliance seeks the protection of every child in New Jersey, especially among the poorer classes, and where children are employed in factories and mills. It will strive to obtain the co-operation of every society with similar objects in the State and to that end circulars will be widely distributed.

In establishing a bureau of information it will be the purpose to obtain all necessary material which will tend to enlighten those interested in the work and be able to give any desired information that an individual or society may want from time to time. Another meeting of the committee will be held within a short time to further the interests of this work and discuss other plans which will tend to the betterment of conditions among the children of the State.

GREAT ADVANCE IN MEAT

All Local Butchers Make an Increase of Three to Five Cents a Pound.

SITUATION IS UNPRECEDENTED.

Scarcity of Cattle Makes Prices Highest Since 1888—No Sign of Change for the Better.

Retail prices of meats of all grades have increased two cents a pound within the last week and before another week has gone by it is very probable that prices will go from three to five cents a pound higher as the result of a strange combination of circumstances which has affected the cattle-raising industry of the country.

The local meat dealers are now compelled to pay higher prices for their meat and consequently the retail prices have taken a corresponding jump. The increase in price is universal with the local butchers. The farmers have not increased their prices to any great extent, but there is very little meat for the local trade purchased now except through the metropolitan packing houses. A raise in meat prices comes about this time of year as a rule, but rarely amounts to more than one or two cents at most. It is not since the blizzard of 1888 that meat has been sold at the local markets at such high figures.

Speaking of the increase in prices, a local butcher said this morning: "The raise in price primarily effects lamb, pork and beef, although veal is also slightly higher. We buy in hundred pound lots as a rule and the wholesale prices have jumped three and four cents a pound. The greatest increase has been in the price of lamb, so far, and we have to pay about 3½ cents a pound higher, wholesale. Beef and pork have gone up three cents and I believe that pork will go higher. We have not had any trouble getting the meat, so far, although there is a persistent rumor that shortage with the wholesale dealers may make it difficult to get certain cuts of meat if the conditions continue."

In fact, it was said yesterday at the offices of the Schwarzchild & Sulzberger Company, First avenue and Forty-fifth street, New York, that if existing conditions become much worse it will be necessary for the big packers of this country to import sheep and cattle from the Argentine Republic, England and Australia.

Persons visiting the butchers' shops in the last week for their customary supply of meat, no matter what its quality, have found that from three to five cents a pound has been added to the price they paid for beef a week ago. When they turned to lamb and mutton as a substitute they found that the price had increased two cents a pound, and upon asking for the price of pork found that the heavy demand had increased that product from one to two cents a pound from sausage to loin roasts and chops.

When patrons asked for an explanation the only thing that could be said by the retailer was that the wholesale price had been increased from $2 to $2.50 a hundred pounds, and that the loss to the dealers in bone and fat was so much greater in proportion that they felt compelled to make the increase larger than that made by the wholesaler, whose sales in bulk did not call for such a proportionate loss.

At the offices of the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Company, New York, yesterday afternoon it was said that it was true that the wholesale prices of all meats had increased, and was also told that the prices are likely to go still higher within the next week or ten days.

"We handle about twenty-five per cent. of the meat output of this country, and we have our buyers scattered throughout the entire country, trying to buy sheep and cattle," said Mr. Sulzberger. "For the last week we have been receiving telegrams from them every day reporting a great shortage of the usual supply of sheep and cattle. In fact, they say that they cannot buy one-third of what we need, and that there are no cattle on the farms compared with what there ought to be at this season of the year.

A Situation No One Foresaw.

"This is a condition no man in the business foresaw, although it is perfectly plain to all of us now. Last fall, when the cattle raisers were preparing to put their cattle up for winter feeding and were ready to go into the market and buy lean cattle for fattening purposes, they made their accustomed demand on the banks for money. Just about that time the money stringency came on and currency practically went out of circulation, so that the banks could not get the cash to lend to the farm-

NO FIGHT OVER DELEGATES TO CHICAGO—KEAN; ACKERMAN'S CANDIDACY FAVORED BY HILLERY

CLARENCE E. TEEL NOW HEAD OF LOCAL ELKS

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., held its annual meeting, last night, during which the following officers were elected: Exalted ruler, Clarence E. Teel; esteemed leading knight, Lawrence Marshall; esteemed loyal knight, John H. Cose; esteemed lecturing knight, Robert S. Craig; tiler, Edward C. Searing; secretary, William R. Townsend; treasurer, Harry B. MacDonald; trustees for three years, S. P. T. Wilbur; representative to the Grand Lodge session at Dallas, Texas, George O. Stevens. Reports showed the lodge to have made splendid gains in membership and finance during the past year.

Following the business session the initiatory degree was conferred upon three candidates, John A. Lawrence, Richard L. Bellis and A. E. Force.

The attendance was the largest noted at any meeting of the lodge in many months and the customary social period lasted until after midnight. A feature of this part of the program was a "Dutch" supper served by Caterer Timbo. There were also numerous vocal and instrumental musical selections.

SPOKE ON VALUE OF STORY-TELLING BY MOTHERS

Taking for her subject, "The Use of Story-telling in Education," Miss Susan E. Holton, a teacher in the Connecticut public schools, spoke at length in exemplification of the art of story-telling in connection with the annual meeting of the Plainfield Mothers' Association at the Plainfield High School auditorium yesterday afternoon. Miss Holton is a professional story-teller, and was one of the speakers at the National Congress of Mothers recently held at Washington, D. C.

Claiming that story-telling was a valuable feature of home life in strengthening the element of comradeship, Miss Holton urged its adaption by mothers as well as teachers. The selection of the actions of characters in well-known tales as ideal of certain phases of character is a better means of discipline than scolding, according to the speaker, and furthermore story-telling is a valuable training to the child and a means of educating a literary appreciation.

Miss Holton said that there were three classes of story-telling which appeal to children of different ages. The very young child likes to hear stories of nature, and little animals and people. Later the child is attracted by fairy stories, which are of educational value, because so many of them are based upon classical myths, or have allegorical significance. When the child grows older still, it is attracted and interested by narrative, which includes much history. Miss Holton concluded her remarks by narrating stories of each of these three classes, and also presented a list of books, including the various kinds of tales.

N. H. PROBASCO SUCCEEDS FATHER AS CHURCH DEACON.

Dr. Norman H. Probasco was elected a deacon at the regular business meeting of the First Baptist church, last night, to succeed his father, the late Dr. J. B. Probasco, who served in that capacity for a great many years and who was the senior deacon. The election of Dr. Norman H. Probasco followed a unanimous recommendation of the board of deacons.

A report was received from the officers of Faith chapel, stating that fifteen new members have been received by baptism and six by letter and experience. By reason of the fact that they have united with Faith chapel, they also become members of the First Baptist church. Four members of the home church were also enrolled as members of the chapel.

O. B. Leonard, as chairman of the benevolent committee of the church, reported that during the past year about $2,500 was raised and distributed in the usual way.

KEAN MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT.

Ex-County Chairman Says He Would Like Honor and Adds That Morris County Will Have a Delegate.

Former County Chairman Hamilton F. Kean, a brother of United States Senator John Kean, today announced his candidacy for district delegate to the Chicago convention in the course of an interview. He qualified his position, however, by the assertion that he would stand provided the people, meaning the Republicans of Union county, wanted him for the honor. Earlier in the day, State Senator Ackerman admitted that he was pleased at the mention of his name for the same honor and did not deny that should the people want him he would gladly accept. State Senator Thomas J. Hillery is among the first to come out in favor of the Ackerman candidacy, having told a Daily Press representative today that he would "be very glad to see Mr. Ackerman named for the honor."

"There will be no contest between the Senator and myself," said H. F. Kean today to a Daily Press representative. "We are very good friends. You may say that if I should desire to go to Chicago I don't believe the Senator would oppose me and if the Senator should like to go I would in all probability be for him. There will be no misunderstanding between us and I know that we can come to an agreement." Mr. Kean said that he did not know that Mr. Ackerman was a candidate for the place.

When the Union county Senator was approached on the subject he admitted that he felt highly flattered over the mention of his name and would consider it a very high honor. "I do not care to discuss the subject, however," he said. "That matter is purely for the people of Union county to decide and it would be unbecoming for me to seek the place."

Senator Hillery unequivocally declared that he would be glad to see Senator Ackerman named from Union county. In the interview he said:

"I have not given much attention to this subject but I can say that I would be very much in favor of Mr. Ackerman. I don't know how the matter is to be settled. Mr. Hamilton Kean was a delegate last time I believe and his brother, the United State Senator, is a candidate for delegate-at-large. I don't suppose that both brothers will go but that is a matter for the party to decide. I am only one man in the ranks and cannot, therefore, speak for Morris county. I have heard the name of Richard Williams, of our county, mentioned but I am quite certain the matter has not at all been settled upon. It may be that there will be two district delegates from Union as it has the controlling vote and that the alternates will come from Morris and Warren." When Mr. Hillery was asked how about himself, he declared that he was not seeking the honor and would be glad to waive any rights his friends might deem he had in favor of any other from Morris county.

Mr. Kean stated that there would probably be one delegate from Union and one from Morris with alternates from Morris and Warren. He said that he understood that Mr. Williams would be Morris county's delegate.

Hope Chapel Society Election.

The Young People's Society of Hope chapel elected the following officers at the annual meeting last night: President, Miss Bertha Jones; vice-president, Donald C. Mortimer; secretary, Allen Snyder; treasurer, Miss Clara Hunter; chairman lookout committee, Harry Kenney; prayer, Miss Edna Eckert; missionary, Miss Mary Mortimer; social, Miss Elsie Slorah; flower, Miss Elsie Rimmer. The society voted to contribute $12 to the support of Rev. George Pierson, a missionary located in Japan.

George Wharton Edwards Honored.

NEWARK, N. J.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

Concerning the Retirement of Wm. T. Rae & Co., and of the Continuance of the Business under the Proprietorship of

C. M. SANFORD

(Formerly with Messrs. J. Wiss & Sons.)

After Fifty years of active business life, the firm of Wm. T. Rae & Co. has retired.

With its passing into history goes a reputation for sterling integrity, reliability and honesty such as few concerns can boast of, and which it will be my earnest endeavor to maintain.

In announcing my advent into this business and continuing that of Messrs. Rae & Co., there are several facts which I wish to make public, namely:

(1) That it will ever be my purpose to live up to and not "on" the reputation which the house of Rae & Co. has established.

(2) That my stock of Diamonds and other Precious Stones, Gold Jewelry and Clocks will not only be as varied and comprehensive as that of any other Newark store of this character, but absolutely dependable and moderately priced as well.

(3) That I shall offer an Optical Service second to none in the city. This department, while under my personal supervision and direction, will be in charge of a skilled Eye Sight Specialist—W. E. Small, Ref. D.

(4) That Watch and Jewelry Repairing shall constitute an important part of my business, and that all such work entrusted to me will be executed satisfactorily and promptly by experts whose qualifications are the best.

To serve you faithfully and well and merit your good-will and patronage is my desire.

TESTING NEW MOTOR CAR.

Garwood Company Making a Series of Trials of Self-propelled Vehicle.

Garwood, March 26.—The Strang Gas Electric Car Company of this place is making a series of tests of a new form of self-propelled motor cars. A gasoline engine is the prime source of power. This engine is connected with the generator which furnishes current to operate the motors. In addition to these is used a storage battery, from which the excess power required to start from stations and climb grades is obtained.

The car Irene, which is the first product of the company, is now in the plant of the company here, where it is undergoing inspection by the general public. The car is sixty-five feet long and weighs fifty-five tons. Five more cars of this same pattern are now in process of manufacture.

In a recent test the car attained the speed of a mile in fifty-eight seconds, and an effort will be made to reduce this time at a trial trip over the Pennsylvania Railroad next Sunday. The car will leave here Sunday morning and go to the Jersey City terminal of the Pennsylvania road via Oak Island Junction. Leaving there at 1 p. m., the run to Philadelphia and return will be made. One hour and twenty minutes is the time allotted to make the trip, and as there are no restrictions as to the speed, it is hoped that even faster time may be made. To obtain this some changes in the gearing apparatus have been made at the plant.

Men prominent in railroad engineering in New York city, and representatives of the Pennsylvania and New York, New Haven and Hartford railroads, with President Strang and a staff of engineers and assistants, will make the trip.

Newark Prisoner Escapes.

Rahway, March 26.—Max Baumenzleit, of Newark, escaped from the State reformatory here yesterday through a window from which he cut a bar. He had been in the place since last fall. He was one of the helpers in the dining-room, beginning work at 4:30 a. m. He was missed an hour later. Thus far no trace of him has been obtained. He was sixteen years old, five feet nine inches tall. Baumenzleit was sent to the reformatory last October on a charge of having stolen a horse from a "Wild West Show" at Hillside Park, Belleville. His younger brother, who was implicated, was sent to the State Home for Boys at Jamesburg.

SAVED BY ALERT ENGINEER.

Driver of Train on Siding Sounds Warning When He Sees Man Being Dragged.

Helmetta, March 26.—Meyer Levinski, a peddler from New York city, in attempting to board a moving passenger train, eastbound, here last night, slipped and would probably have suffered injuries had it not been for Engineer Edward Caine, of Hightstown.

Levinski arrived at the depot after the train had started and attempted to board it. He caught hold of the sidebar of the last car, and the momentum prevented his securing foothold and he was dragged along.

The Hightstown accommodation train was awaiting orders on the siding, with Engineer Edward Caine at the throttle. He saw the man's plight, and, knowing the crew of the moving train were unaware of the danger, gave the whistle signal to stop the passing train. Engineer John Worts, of South Amboy, brought his train to a sudden stop, when Levinski was found uninjured beyond slight bruises.

Date Set for Murder Appeal.

New Brunswick, March 26.—Prosecutor Berdine yesterday received official notification from James C. McKenna, clerk of the United States Supreme Court, that the appeal in the case of the State of New Jersey against Frederick Lang, had been advanced and set down for hearing on April 6, being at the head of the court call for that day. Lang was convicted and sentenced to death on a charge of killing his niece, Katherine Gordon. The appeal, fought through all the courts of the State, and now taken to the United States Supreme Court, is on the ground that two of the members of the grand jury which indicted Lang were over the legal age, and that Lang was given no opportunity to protect his interest by protecting the selection of these grand jurors at the time they were sworn in.

Accused Man Collapses.

Summit, March 26.—John Tooma, one of the silk workers of West Hoboken, who has been locked up here on a charge of stabbing and beating two fellow-Armenian silk workers, and who, with two others, pleaded guilty to the charge at a hearing before Judge Hicks, Monday night, collapsed in his cell in the police station here yesterday and was later taken to Overlook Hospital, in a serious condition. Five other prisoners, who were witnesses and participants in the fight here Sunday, in which two men were nearly beaten to death, were taken to the Union county jail in Elizabeth today. The victims of the assault are still in a serious condition in Overlook Hospital here.

While attending a shooting match Monday, Edward Bintliff, pitcher on the Beverly baseball team, was accidentally shot in the eye. Physicians are trying to save the eye.

THE OPENING DAYS ARE FOR YOUNG FOLKS, TOO.

In our Opening Exhibition in which so much is displayed for grown folks we have not overlooked the young folks.

Equally important with the millinery and gowns for women are the hats and suits and dresses for misses and children, and the apparel for very little boys and girls. Our stocks of outfittings for young folks are truly immense—no other store begins to show lines so complete, novel and diversified. Surely there is everything here that any young lady could wish for and everything a mother could desire for her child.

MISSES' SUITS AND DRESSES.

We have been paid many compliments the past couple of days on our exceptional collection of Tailored Suits and Pretty Dresses for Misses and Petite Women.

Our Misses' Suit Section is entirely separate from the Women's Suit Section and has a character all its own. Many styles are shown here that will be seen in no other store in the state, being confined to us by the makers. We pride ourselves in showing a variety of models pleasing alike to the young lady who likes to dress dashingly and daringly as well as the most demure little maiden. All can be perfectly satisfied, not only in the matter of style and quality, but in price, for our prices are notably low.

Misses' and Junior Suits in smart 3-piece guimpe and coat styles and one of the newest military models of the finest worsteds and serges with invisible and hair-line stripes, in Copenhagan, tan, green, navy and brown, beautifully trimmed with braids, rajah and silks of contrasting colors; sizes 14, 16 and 18; very special values at these three prices:

22.50, 25.00 and 29.50.

Misses' Princess Lingerie Dresses of finest Batiste, in white, light blue, pink and tan; richly trimmed with fine eyelet embroidery and valenciennes laces; beautiful and exclusive models in sizes 14, 16 and 18; fairly valued at 30.00; offered by us for..... 19.50

Dainty Dresses for Girls—The entire dress made of open work and eyelet embroidery, with single or sectional flounces; body in the newest kimono effects, elaborately trimmed with embroidery and insertions of lace; 6 to 14 year sizes; three very special values at these prices:

9.98, 12.50 and 16.50.

A particularly pleasing model is the newest Princess Effect made of imported reps in white, pink and blue, the front beautifully hand embroidered; sizes 6 to 14; value 10.50, is offered here at special 7.98

Rev. D. T. Van Horn, who was called last August to the Scott Memorial Reformed Episcopal Church, Beverly, will resign and go to India to conduct a small mission. He was a missionary there for thirteen years.

Swallowing poison tablets, William Gardner, fifteen months old, of 943 Lawrence street, Camden, was found in terrible agony by his mother yesterday and hurried to the office of Dr. Bently, where he recovered after several hours.

On a charge of embezzling $61,137 from various fire insurance companies, David Magill was held in $500 bail by Justice of the Peace Barr, in Camden, yesterday. A warrant was issued for W. R. G. Rowland on a similar charge.

At a congregational meeting of the Tuckerton Presbyterian church, Monday night, John M. Buyers, a Princeton student, was unanimously called to the pastorate. Mr. Buyers has preached there several times and has made a favorable impression.

It required four shots from a revolver in the hands of Policeman Knauff to kill a supposed mad dog at Broadway and Kaighn avenue, Camden, yesterday. After the second shot was fired the officer was attacked by the animal, but he escaped injury.

Articles of incorporation were filed in Jersey City yesterday by the Bergen Amusement Company, capitalized at $50,000, which is to manage circus, theatrical and musical productions. The incorporators are Frank A. Robbins, Frank A. Robbins, Jr., and Charles A. Robbins, all of 67 Condict street, Jersey City.

Stanelle Golden, nineteen years old, of Lodi, is in jail in Hackensack because of his liking for phonographs. He didn't have money enough to buy one, so, it is charged, he stole $70 from a fellow boarder's trunk and went to Hackensack and "blew in" $35 of it. Golden was happy in the possession of a machine and $5 worth of records when arrested.

Hanging by one arm on the edge of a well twenty-eight feet deep, the four-year- old daughter of William Seaman, of Almonesson, near Woodbury, cried for help yesterday until rescued by a colored farm hand. The girl had stepped on the decayed covering of an old well that Mr. Seaman did not know was there, having recently moved on the Jones farm at Almonesson from Philadelphia.

Police believe that the robbery of the shoe factory of G. W. Lewis & Co., of Burlington, in which the plunder consisted of shoes stolen from cases packed for shipment, has been solved by the arrest of William G. Noble, of Trenton, as a suspect. Noble had a hearing before Magistrate Smith yesterday and was sent to the county jail. He declared that shoes found in his possession by Constable Fleetwood had been sold to him by persons unknown to him.

Energetic men of the Business League of Atlantic City have run against a snag in their efforts to have the channel of the Inlet deepened following discovery that even to spend city money the consent of the State and Federal Government must be secured. Members of the league are studying plans to raise a half-million dollars for jettying under plans of Professor Haupt, but may abandon the project because of the need of unwinding red tape in government departments at Washington.

The death of Dennis F. Ryan, thirty-four years old, a lawyer, in his office in the Fuller building, in Jersey City, on Monday, is attributed by his friends to the use of headache powders. He was subject to headache, and half an hour before his death bought a powder which he had used occasionally for such pains. He was associated in business with Police Justice Joseph P. Farmer, was assistant secretary to Edward Hoos when Mr. Hoos was Mayor, and was chaplain of the Jersey City Aerie of Eagles and a member of the Jersey City Lodge of the Order of Elks. He lived with his parents at 809 Montgomery street, Jersey City.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

Arrangements are now being made to hold a meeting of representatives from teams in Plainfield, Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington with a view to fixing a schedule of games. The meeting will probably be held next week either at Somerville or in this city.

"Phil" Smith has decided not to play professional ball this season, but is open for an engagement to play with a good team on Saturdays only.

The Daily Press has made arrangements to bulletin the scores of the big league games as soon as completed each day, the same as last year. The returns were very popular with the sporting fraternity and will doubtless be equally so this year.

The Jersey City Eastern League Club and the New York Nationals will meet at the Polo Grounds in April and "Lou" Wiltse will probably pitch against his brother, George Wiltse.

Captain Mike Donlin, of the New York Giants, was painfully hurt in Sherman, Tex., Monday. During the game with Austin College he was standing about twenty feet from the plate, getting a drink of water, when Seymour swung at a ball and missed. The bat slipped from his hand and struck Donlin behind the right ear. Although there is a big swelling at the base of Donlin's skull, no serious results are anticipated. Roger Bresnahan also got on the injured list when he twisted his ankle while playing in the game against Austin College.

Billy Milligan has come to an agreement with the Buffalo club on the salary question and signed a contract.

Hans Wagner, who persists in declaring he will not play ball with Pittsburg next season, and who has spurned several big offers from outlaw clubs, will coach the Carnegie Technical School nine of Pittsburg this spring and will deliver lectures on how to play baseball to the scholars.

Mert Whitney, the big first baseman the Buffalo club purchased from Youngstown, has not signed with the Bisons yet. Whitney is dissatisfied with the terms offered him by President Potter.

George McConnell, who will pitch next season instead of playing first base for the Bisons, is said to be a master of the "knuckle" ball, which is an improvement on the old-time floater. In its course to the batter the ball floats up to the plate and takes a shoot hitherto peculiar only to the pit ball. Rucker, the Brooklyn pitcher, is also using the new curve with success at Jacksonville.

The Atlantic League, at its meeting in Allentown Monday, adopted a schedule. The season will open on May 6 and close on September 8.

GOLF.

There will be no foreign invasion by an Intercollegiate Golf Association team during the coming season. This has been reluctantly admitted by the collegians, but only after weeks of persistent effort. The real hazard in the way is the failure of four of the golfers to secure the necessary paternal consent. They are H. H. Wilder, of Harvard, president of the Intercollegiate Golf Association; Robert Abbott, of Yale; Ralph Peters, Jr., of Princeton, and W. Fellowes Morgan, Jr., of Harvard.

Without these four, who are among the foremost players in the association, it is considered that any attempt to gather together a representative team would be next to useless. Ellis Knowles, of Yale, the intercollegiate champion, and W. T. West, of Princeton, may go abroad, but they will play as individuals.

The Van Cortlandt Park public course, which has been thrown open after being closed all winter, is not likely to prove attractive to golfers at present. The turf is too soft for anything like satisfactory play. Golfers are wondering why the course should be put in commission now, the one time of the year when the tramping of hobnailed boots does the most damage.

The week-end competition at the Dyker Meadow Golf Club was won by W. D. Walker, who returned a card of 99—12—87 in the eighteen-hole medal play handicap. Thirty-eight players were entered. Despite the recent wet weather the course is in excellent condition, practically all the casual water having disappeared.

Unless a good many of the nearby golf clubs stir themselves the names and addresses of their secretaries will not be included in the new book of the Metropolitan Golf Association. Although this book will go to press next week, no fewer than twenty-seven clubs are delinquent. They are as follows:

Ardsley Club, Arsdale Golf Club, Bedford Golf and Tennis Club, Briarcliff Golf Club, Century Country Club, Westchester Country Club, Lakewood Country Club, Cranford Golf Club, Crescent Athletic Club, Deal Golf and Country Club, Essex

Plainfield, N. J., March 26, 1908.

Let the names of Carlton B. Pierce, of Union county, and W. W. Smalley, of Somerset county, be engraved among the roll of honor of the present Legislature for surely they are entitled for commendation for the entitled to commendation for the as representatives of the people in the Lower House at Trenton. Only yesterday they were included in the majority which blocked the scheme to bring about and adjournment of that body on April 3. Their voices were heard in the affirmative when a vote was taken on Leader Martin's resolution that the Assembly keep at work until every promise made by the Governor to the people be fulfilled and until every subject of importance now before the House be given mature consideration. These faithful servants of the people were mindful of the fact that they would be derelict should they not use every effort to enact the pending civil service, public utilities and election reform bills as well as adopt the constitutional amendments and consider the Hahn investigation report. Both Pierce and Smalley lined up with the splendid majority that served notice on the Senate that it would fight it out for reform "if it takes all summer."

Mr. Richard Croker, of Ireland, has begun a libel suit against an English paper for assailing his reputation as a sportsman. Yet as "Dick" Croker, the notorious chieftain of corrupt Tammany Hall, he never invited the truth to be placed on record by such proceedings in New York. But how happy the Metropolitan newspapers would have been for such a chance to be sued!

Congressman Fowler is out for the nomination of Taft and Fort. He must have been feeling the pulse of the voters in the Fifth District. Perhaps there were some other things he discovered that he has not yet seen fit to make public.—Newark News.

Let's see; that's the man from this district, isn't it. Well, well, almost forgot about him.

The Elizabeth Times ventures the assertion that Hillery is "hardly, as yet, of Congregational proportions." As Morris saved the day for the Republicans in the last Congressional campaign, it surely is entitled to every recognition, and where is there a man in that county better qualified for the nomination and election than the genial and brilliant "Tom" Hillery?

The Duc de Caulnes is going to work. Must be a reform movement in royal circles.—Trenton True American.

Not at all. It's the same old game—he's going to "work" papa-in-law.

MRS. W. M. SANDFORD, JR., AGAIN PRESIDENT OF M. A.

Mrs. W. M. Sandford, Jr., was re-elected president of the Plainfield Mothers' Association at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon at the Plainfield High School. Mrs. F. L. Holt was chosen as first vice president; Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, second vice president—a new office; Mrs. H. G. Phillips, recording secretary; Mrs. Morris Benton, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. L. H. Gates, treasurer. This is the third annual meeting of the association, which now numbers ninety-nine members.

The business session included the reading of the annual reports of the different committees. These comprised the reception committee, entertainment committee, literary committee, membership committee, progress committee, child committee, domestic science committee and visiting committee. The reports showed the association to be in a flourishing condition. Its objects is to stimulate interest among the parents of public school pupils, and to secure their co-operation with the teachers.

DISAGREEMENT OF JURY

Out for Hours, It Could Not Agree on Verdict in Suit Against Freeholders.

REV. MR. FRANCIS A MEMBER.

Minister Now Under Heavy Bail On Charge of Fraud—Was Among Jurors In Contractor's Case.

With a six-man jury, of which Rev. George Francis, now under $2,500 bail on a charge of fraud, is the foreman, the case of Joseph Kingston against the Union County Board of Freeholders, in which the plaintiff seeks to recover $50 for mason work performed on the Leland avenue bridge, occupied the whole of the morning in the district court. William R. Coddington, of the firm of Coddington & Swackhamer, represented the freeholders and V. W. Nash, Jr., the plaintiff.

At 1 o'clock the foreman informed the court that the jury could not agree and asked that it be discharged. Judge Newcorn instructed the members that they would have to remain out until 2 o'clock, when court reconvened and he would then receive their report. At 2:30 Judge Newcorn discharged the jury, which failed to agree.

This was the second trial of the matter, the first one giving the plaintiff a verdict for full amount. Much of the testimony offered in the first instance was presented this morning. The question about which the argument centered was whether Mr. Kingston, who was engaged to make repairs to the Leland avenue bridge, had fulfilled his contract. He contended that he had done as he agreed, while the defendants, through Freeholders J. Hervey Doane and S. P. T. Wilbur claimed that the job was not done in a workmanlike manner and that Mr. Kingston was not entitled to the $50.

Freeholders Doane and Wilbur and County Engineer F. J. Hubbard were called as witnesses and they told of the contract, what was to be done and of the condition of the work afterward, which, according to their testimony, was not satisfactory. They said that Mr. Kingston was to have removed a foundation wall and build a concrete pillar three feet underground, but instead made it seven inches. They also claimed that the material was not the best, there being more sand and gravel than cement.

The plaintiff maintained that he did all that the contract called for, that is repair one end of the bridge, that he used the best material and that the work was finished in the best possible manner. A fellow-mason, Charles Smith, was called as a witness and he substantiated Mr. Kingston's testimony, adding that the work was done as well as he could have accomplished it. He said that he examined the material and found it to be all right.

In his appeal to the jury, Mr. Coddington said that Mr. Kingston did not want to take down the defective foundation so he built a parapet wall, and in his opinion based on the testimony of his witnesses, Mr. Kingston failed to keep his contract.

"It is high time," declared Mr. Coddington, "that the public is protected from such imposition as this. Mr. Kingston is a poor man and no doubt needs the money, but the interests of the county must be protected and the freeholders are sworn to safeguard the money of the taxpayers. It makes no difference whether it be a question of $50 or $50,000 the principle is the same." While presenting his argument, Mr. Nash reviewed the history of the contract, adding that while Mr. Coddington had said that it was the duty of the freeholders to be economical in the expenditure of funds, if the board was as careful with the big work as it has pretended to be with the $50 contract in dispute the taxpayers would be money in pocket. It was Mr. Nash's contention that his client had performed his work strictly in accordance with the contract and he asked for a verdict.

It was about noon when Judge Newcorn gave the case to the jury, after calling its attention to the important points. He declared that there was only one question to decide—was the contract completed as agreed to for the price of $50. If it was not the plaintiff could not recover damages and was not entitled to any compensation. Those comprising the jury were Rev. George Francis, Edward Nelson, Thomas Fahy, Morris Abrams, A. G. Jenkins and Clarence Rittenhouse.

Another Family.

The Daily Press has been requested to state that Miss Kate McCarthy, of South Second street, who appeared in the city court Monday morning as plaintiff in a case against Ru-Buck, is in no way related to the family of Daniel McCarthy, of West Sixth street. A similarity in names has caused the later family considerable annoyance.

OBITUARY.

Bessie Louisa Kingslow.

Bessie Louisa Kingslow, daughter of William H. and Katie W. Kingslow, died yesterday at the parents' home on West Fourth street. She had been ill a long time. Miss Kingslow was in her fifteenth year and was a member of the Mount Olive Baptist church. She is survived by several brothers and sisters, one of whom is Harry Kingslow, at present engaged in the drug business at Richmond. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

Winfield R. Chase.

Winfield R. Chase, the three-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield S. Chase, Jr., of Willever street, died yesterday afternoon after an illness with pneumonia. The funeral will be held at the parents' home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 and burial will be at Hillside.

A CHURCH FOR SMOKERS IS THE LATEST FAD.

Religious services exclusively for men in which the congregation will be privileged to smoke and divest coat and collar if desired is an innovation planned by the Rev. Sydney Goodman, assistant rector of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Atlantic City.

The church for men is to be conducted in the new parish hall recently erected, adjoining the church in Kentucky avenue. The auditorium has seating capacity for 350 persons. Services are to be held immediately after the regular Sunday evening service.

A moving-picture show will afford entertainment. Mr. Goodman feels that many men who refrain from attending church services by reason of embarrassment due to the presence of the fair sex will take advantage of the opportunity to listen to religious topics expressed in a practical manner.

E. A. WHITTIER SUES WASHINGTON LIFE CO.

Edmond A. Whittier, prominent in the people's lobby, filed in the Supreme Court yesterday at Newark a suit for $20,000 damages against the Washington Life Insurance Company, of New York, of which he was until recently New Jersey manager. The action was brought through William Mayo Atkinson.

"The gravamen of our action will be that the company, as principal, has not lived up to its agency contract with Mr. Whittier, as its agent, and that he has a cause of action for this alleged breach of contract. The trial of this case will necessitate that issuance of a commission to the State of New York to take the testimony of some of the leading men in the insurance and banking world."

Trading Stamps With Funerals.

Funeral directors on the Northwest Side in Chicago, are giving trading stamps with funerals to increase business. This became known yesterday, when a widow cancelled an order at a downtown undertaker's because he would not give stamps. The matter will be brought before the Chicago Undertakers' Association.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Several of the delegates to the Methodist Conference to be held in Plainfield next week will be accommodated at Dunellen homes during the sessions. Rev. E. C. Dutcher, of the First Methodist church, and Rev. Samuel K. Doolittle will attend the conference. Rev. William S. Coeyman will be the guest of Isaac J. Stites, Rev. Eleander Jamison will stay at the home of S. Firman Gise, in the borough.

Dunellen lads are well represented on the squad of the Plainfield High School baseball team. Giddes is a promising candidate for short-stop, Dutcher is out for first base, and Dodwell is among those trying for positions in the outfield. The first practise was held yesterday.

John Dutcher played centre on the Plainfield High School senior class team, which defeated the interscholastic school five at the school auditorium yesterday afternoon by a score of 39-33.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Thornton, of New York, have returned home after spending a week with Mr. Thornton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Thornton.

Mrs. William Habedank has taken possession of the farm formerly occupied by Mrs. Van Nuis in the township.

The condition of Mrs. George Apgar continues to show consistent improvement.

CHINESE R. C. PRIEST FIRST TO ARRIVE HERE

On the steamship Ryndam, which arrived at Hoboken, Tuesday, was Rev. Peter Chang, said to be the first Chinese Catholic priest to come to this country. He was accompanied by Bishop August Heninghus, of a Chinese diocese, who went to China as a missionary twenty-one years ago. At the dock Monsignor Charles J. Kelly, rector of the Church of Our Lady of Grace, Hoboken, and formerly of Plainfield, and Rev. D. J. Ahne, chaplain of St. Mary's Hospital, Hoboken, met the bishop and priest. They will be guests of Father Ahne at the hospital.

Father Chang is twenty-seven years old. He wears his hair in a long queue down his back. He speaks German fluently, but does not speak English. Next Sunday morning he will celebrate mass in the Church of Our Lady of Grace. Monsignor Kelly had to give bond of $500 to assure the United States Government that Father Chang would not remain in the country more than twenty days. If he should desire to stay longer a similar bond will have to be deposited at the expiration of the twenty days, because of the immigration restrictions.

ACCUSED OF STEALING GAS.

Cranford Restaurant and Boarding-house Keeper Held on Light Company's Charge.

Cranford, March 26.—Joseph J. McCaffrey, who runs a restaurant and boarding-house at 20 North avenue, was arrested last night by a Westfield constable on complaint of the Cranford Gaslight Company, which claims he used gas without a meter. He was taken to Westfield.

The police story is that McCaffrey borrowed some gasfitter's tools and uncapped the service pipe connecting it with the house service, and used the gas for cooking range, gas logs and illuminating purposes. The company's inspectors have been taking observations of the premises since a fire in the house three months ago, which was said to have been caused by an explosion of gas in the cellar.

The police say the meter was removed when the former tenant vacated the premises about two years ago.

ers. In consequence the farmers could not buy any more cattle to fatten. But, worse still, they could not borrow any money on the cattle they had on their farms and ranches with which to buy food for them for the winter.

"As a consequence, it was necessary for the cattle raisers to ship to the markets as fast as they could all of the cattle they did not have grain enough on hand to feed. This, as you will recall, made a heavy supply greater than the demand last fall, and meat went much lower to the retail trade, but meat got so low that people who had only been able to buy it once in a while found they could buy it more frequently, and the oversupply was used up in that way.

"While, of course, the greatest hardship will be felt by the poorer classes, those in the middle walks of life as well as the rich people will have to pay the increased price. 'Chuck' as well as porterhouse will be higher, but 'chuck' will not rise with a corresponding degree of rapidity. 'Chuck' is taken largely by a class of people who will not stand for an increase in living expenses to any great extent, and those butchers who sell this grade of meat heavily will be afraid to raise the price very much for fear of trouble with their customers. You know the foreigners on the east side are particularly averse to having their living expenses increased, and you know there are many in New York who would not hesitate to attack the butcher who tried to raise prices very much."

Mr. Sulzberger said pork had got up a cent or two a hundred pounds, but the tendency was upward.

May Have to Buy Meat Abroad.

Mr. Sulzberger added that he did not see the slightest sign for any change for the better, and he continued: "If things get much worse and our buyers are not able to get the cattle here it will be necessary for the packers in the United States to call on the Argentine Republic, Australia and England for our beef and mutton supplies because we cannot get enough at home.

"There have been no exports of meat for some time, and in fact we are paying freight every day on meat that never goes aboard the steamship. We find it cheaper to stand the loss of the freight on the consignment that is supposed to go on a certain ship than to go out into the market and buy the beef, kill and dress it for shipment, and send it to the other side for sale. We stand the loss of freight charges rather than the combined loss of the difference between what we sell the meat for and what it costs us added to the freight."

Burning Brush Causes Alarm.

A telephone message sent to borough headquarters early yesterday afternoon summoned the department to Wilow avenue, where a brush fire had got beyond control. The firemen beat out the blaze before it had done any damage to fences or outbuildings which were threatened.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

THE CIVIL SERVICE BILL'S FATE

Senator Ackerman's latest statement regarding his civil service bill that is to come up in the Legislature this week in the hope of reconciling the differences between the Senate and Assembly on the measure, is full of good arguments and sound reasoning. The Union county representative tell the purpose of the bill and what its passage would accomplish. It is for the benefit of all the people; it means a square deal to those holding and seeking employment in the public service; it would guarantee that the business of the State would be conducted as well as it can be conducted, on lines of efficiency; it provides that faithfulness and efficiency shall be protected and rewarded, and that men who distinguish themselves in public work shall be guaranteed a reasonable tenure of office.

Such a bill, it would seem, ought to secure the support of all of the members of the Legislature desiring good government, especially when it is known that civil service laws in other States have worked for the benefit of the government and the taxpayers and that no serious attempt has ever been made to repeal them when once they have been placed upon the statute books. But the opposition to the Ackerman measure is not based upon reasonable grounds. It is inspired entirely by partizan zeal—the desire of political bosses to retain the spoils system, with all the opportunities it gives for serving selfish purposes and compelling the taxpayers to pay for the cost of keeping the bosses in power. No arguments as to the good effects of such a bill will be efficacious to overcome such antagonism. What is needed just now at Trenton is a demonstration to the members of the Legislature, who are trying to carry out the wishes of the machine representatives, that the people will not submit to such misrepresentation and will show their disapproval at the proper time of the men who stand for the violation of the pledges made last fall by the State platforms and the candidates of both parties.—Newark News.

Affects 'Phone and Telegraph Cos.

Trenton, March 25.—A hearing was given by the Assembly Judiciary Committee Tuesday afternoon on House bills 231 and 232, the first compelling telegraphic and telephonic companies to convey messages only by wire, and the latter making it compulsory to mark messages with the time filed and the time received. No one spoke against the measures, and it is probable they will be reported favorably.

Monument Design Accepted.

The Bayonne Patriotic Monument Association last night selected the design for a monument submitted in competition by Miss Eleanore Eadie, of No. 89 West 36th street, Bayonne. It is entirely original and shows a Civil War scout on duty, with a sailor in the rear. The monument will cost $5,000 and will be erected in City Park. The money will be raised by popular subscription.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following transfers of local real estate have been recorded at Elizabeth: Clifford D. Manning et al. to Effie D. Lockwood, southeasterly side West Eighth street, 100 feet northeasterly of Grant avenue, Plainfield, $1; Henry P. Pugh et ux. to Norman K. Barnes, northwesterly side West Fourth street, 54 feet southwesterly of Prescott place, Plainfield, $1.

Jeffersonian Banquet.

The Young Men's Democratic Club of New Brunswick announced yesterday that it will have a Jefferson banquet on April 13, with Mayor W. E. Florance as the guest of honor and with speakers of national and State prominence. Edward F. Houghton is the chairman of the committee in charge and Thomas H. Hagerty the secretary and treasurer.

Not Suing For Divorce.

Miss Ethel Jackson, who created the title role in "The Merry Widow," has denied in New York the story published in an evening paper that she was about to procure a divorce from her husband, J. Fred Zimmerman. She declared that there had been no breach between herself and Mr. Zimmerman.

A Literalist.

"Well, and what did the doctor say?"

"Said I must diet and get a divorce."

"A divorce!"

"Well, practically that. He said I must give up whatever doesn't agree with me."—Boston Traveler.

More Than Innuendo.

"I shall expect you not to wear my clothes," said the lady of the house.

"You needn't worry on that point, madam," retorted the new maid. "I wouldn't even patronize your dressmaker."—Washington Herald.

Her Reason.

Judge—Madam, this court has indisputable proof that your age is thirty, yet you say you are only twenty-four. How do you explain this?

Witness—Well, your honor, I can only say that I was six before I learned to count.

Down and Up.

With winter drawing to a close
We read the cheerful sign
On goods that once were fifty cents,
"Marked down to sixty-nine."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 29, 1903.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Home missions.—Progress in the Philippines.—Matt. xiii. 31-33.

The Scriptural references include the parables of the mustard seed and the leaven. The idea suggested in each is that from small beginnings the kingdom of heaven grows and spreads until it becomes great and powerful. The least of seeds becomes a great tree. A little leaven leaveneth the entire lump.

These parables are particularly applicable to the kingdom in the Philippines. It is a great field, and today is "the day of small things," but we are not to despise it for that reason. Under God the small becomes great. Even at the present time great progress has been made in our Pacific islands educationally, governmentally and religiously. Churches and Sunday schools in fair numbers have already been established. Tracts are being distributed perhaps as in no other place in the world. The people no longer under the domination of priest craft are more willing to hear what Protestants have to say. But vice and immorality are widespread. Drunkenness has a terrible hold upon the people, and the saloon should go. When we consider all things we may well rejoice over what God has done already in the Philippines. The seed of the word is taking root, and the leaven of the kingdom is widely spreading.

The following "Philippine Notes" from the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor Manual are interesting and instructive:

The saloon is the greatest enemy of progress in the Philippines, as it is the greatest foe to missions everywhere. Break it down at home, and you will do the most for missions abroad.

Christian Endeavor came to the Philippines in that splendid society on Dewey's flagship, the Olympia. It speedily spread among the Filipinos, and it is destined to be an important agent in planting Protestant Christianity in those islands.

There are about 1,725 islands in the Philippine archipelago, with an area of about 122,000 square miles—a glorious new empire to win for Christ.

The population of the islands is about 8,000,000, nearly all of them Catholics, though, fortunately, 3,000,000 are independent Catholics. There are 270,000 Mohammedans, 75,000 Buddhists and Confucianists, 200,000 Animists—a complicated task for the missionaries.

All the largest denominations and several of the smaller ones hastened to the Philippines at the close of the war with Spain and inaugurated a second war with ignorance, superstitution and barbarism.

About 18,000 converts have been made by our missionaries in the Philippines. More than 100 little churches have been built, each a center of light in much darkness.

The missionaries have distributed more than 20,000,000 pages of religious literature through the islands, and each page is a precious seed that may bring forth glorious fruit.

The native converts have begun to take up the work of evangelizing their brethren. Seminaries have been established to train the native preachers and schools to train the native deaconesses and other women workers.

Nearly 800,000 of the Filipinos speak English fairly well, and this is a great help toward the spread of the gospel.

There are employed in Filipino schools 800 American teachers and 6,000 Filipino teachers. Nearly 500,000 children attend these schools—one of the most encouraging signs for the future.

Seattle Pickups.

Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., in his address to the Endeavorers in convention assembled at Seattle, among other things, said: "The key word of Christian Endeavor is 'training'—training in expression, training in service, training in living, training of the heart, training of the mind, training of the tongue, training of the boy and girl, training of the young man and woman, training to make citizens, training to make effective Christians, training in the church, training for the church, training by the church. The three great departments of Christian Endeavor are the weekly meeting, the committees, the unions, each of them indispensable to the movement and each of them, wherever etablished, so many training schools for the church, the nation, the world of the future.

"The prayer meetings are the training schools in expression.

"The committees are training schools in service.

"The unions are training schools in fellowship and united action."

In conclusion he said: "Take courage and press on, Endeavorers. See clearly, think straight and act."

Gideon Equipment.

Are you a Gideon Endeavorer?

If you are, and it is a good kind to be, you possess three things—a torch, a pitcher and a trumpet.

The torch—You lead a life that is a light, and you are ready to let your light shine.

The trumpet—You have convictions, and you are ready to express them.

The pitcher—You have common sense. You know that there is a time to speak and a time to keep silence, a time to work and a time to rest. You know when to smash the pitcher, let the torch glare out, blow the trumpet and shout with might and main, "The sword of the Lord and Gideon!"

Character.
Courage.
Wisdom.

No bad equipment, that, for the doing of Christian Endeavor work.—Christian Endeavor World.

To Work Out the Golden Rule.

You recognize only one Master, and your work is one of co-operation. The aim of the Christian Endeavor is not for its members to live as selfish individuals, but to ease the burdens of the less fortunate, to work for one another and work out the Golden Rule. —Hon. James R. Garfield at Seattle Convention.

AN ANCIENT HIGHWAY.

England's Great North Road Is Two Thousand Years Old.

Before we reached Hatfield, a few miles out of London, we had already been impressed with the magnificence of this Great North road, which is said to have been built by a Mr. Caesar, whose headquarters were in Rome at the time. It is the direct route from London to Edinburgh and has been traveled for so many centuries that the earliest histories of England contain accounts of the movement of troops upon it. It is a great thoroughfare for vehicles of all sorts, motorists and cyclists, and in these modern days there are well worn footpaths along either side for pedestrians. We passed scores of motors, and I was told while in England that the popularity of motoring had noticeably diminished the number of grst class travelers by rail. We found the road for its entire length of 400 miles in perfect condition. In many portions the macadam is said to be nine feet thick. Long sections of the road are oiled, and on no part of it was there any appreciable amount of dust. There are few sharp curves, and the grades are so slight that it has become a great thoroughfare for speeders, with the result that there are many police traps for which one has to watch. We found that we could stop in almost any little village and get information as to just where the traps were located—as, for instance, they told us at Bigleswade, which is a better looking place than its name, to look out for traps just the other side of Buckden and again in approaching Weston.—Frank Presbrey in Outing Magazine.

IN THE HOME.

An open fire is certainly a happy feature in it.

Readable books and magazines lying around loose are one of the important things.

In the living room there must be a softly shaded light placed low for reading and sewing.

Chairs that can be sat upon are a more necessary essential than some housewives think.

Stilted suits of furniture are a good thing to avoid; also loud papers and highly colored pictures.

A carpet that can be walked on by the family is much better than one preserved for the sacred feet of strangers.

As to tobacco smoke and dust—well, there have been homes with them and places without them that utterly failed to be homes.

Cheerfulness and love and mutual accommodations as to tastes, go further to make a real home than overzealous spotless and everlasting oversight.

Some Witty Titles.

The pupils of one of the high schools of Philadelphia evinced great interest in a competition for a prize to be awarded the pupil who should submit the wittiest list of titles for twelve sham books on a dummp shelf. The following are some of the titles received in the competition:

"A New England Puss," by M. E. W.

"Thoughts On My Bed," Stead.

"On Different Tacks," by Van Hammer.

"Lizzie Wouldn't," by John Wood.

"The Fatal Blow," by John Knox.

Porter's "Tales of Lost Baggage."

"Lost In the Wash," by the author of "Bachelor's Buttons."

"Grinding the Poor," by Mill.

"Owe No Man," by O. W. Holmes.

"After the Ball," by the author of "Our National Game."

Morse on "Our Old Houses."

"Woodchucks and Rabbits," by Burroughs.

"E. E.," by the author of "My Double."

The First "Coin Sweater."

"Coin sweating," which so often figures in the Old Bailey calendar, is a very, very old crime. More than six centuries before Christ there was a coin sweater, one Alexander of Byzantium. He was chief officer of the public treasury, and he amassed an immense and sudden fortune by "clipping" the money in so skillful a manner that his frauds could only be discovered by weighing. The Byzantines gave him the nickname of "The File" from his making such dextrous use of that tool, whence probably comes the modern term of "file" applied to thieves, pickpockets and cunning hard-headed scoundrels.—Pearson's Weekly.

Sure Enough Hogs.

Mose, the dark cook of a party of surveyors in eastern Texas, was greatly annoyed by the razorback hogs that roamed around the camp. One evening while he was at the spring a particularly ravenous band of these "piny woods rooters" raided the cook tent and ate up everything that was edible and some things that weren't. For several moments after his return from the spring Mose could find no words to express his feelings. "Waal," he finally exclaimed, "de good Lawd suhtainly knowed his business when he named hawgs 'hawgs!' Dey sho' is hawgs!"

Sense From the Senator.

"Are you going to answer the accusations your enemies have made?"

"I think not," replied Senator Sorghum. "As a rule, answering accusations merely helps to keep the public from forgetting them."—Washington Star.

THE ESCAPADE

A POST MARITAL ROMANCE

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

ILLUSTRATIONS BY [illegible]

"Payment is not enough to compensate me, Carrington," cried Strathgate, furiously.

"No," returned Carrington, "there's nothing that I might offer you that would pay you for what you've done, you dastard!"

"What do you mean?"

"You know very well what I mean, although I confess I have done some wrong to your powers of fascination," returned Carrington.

"And what, pray, may be the explanation of that statement?" queried Strathgate.

"I thought that you had run away with my wife; I thought so yesterday morning, that is; but now I see that she fled from you as well as from me."

"It's a lie!" cried Strathgate.

Both men were now so worked up and so blinded with passion that they did not care for the open-mouthed, open-eared audience which crowded around them.

"She did go with me," continued the runaway.

"It looks like it this morning. If she went with you, how did she come to be on yonder ship while you were here?"

Strathgate laughed evilly.

"If you must know it, my lord, your wife fled in my company."

"Damn you!" cried Carrington.

But Strathgate went on without heeding.

"An accident, a broken coach wheel stopped our journey. I rode on ahead to make arrangements for our passage to some happier land on yonder ship. Lady Ellen elected to go by water."

"I don't believe a word of it," returned Carrington. "If it were true," asked my lord again, "I ask you why you were not on the ship?"

"I overslept myself this morning, with the consequences which you see."

"You haven't seen the end of those consequences, my Lord Strathgate," continued Carrington.

"No?"

"Not by any means. We'll settle the question as to which of us is to live—"

"And have Lady Ellen?" interrupted Strathgate.

Carrington whipped out his pistol.

"Another word like that and I'll kill you without giving you a chance for defense."

"You threatened to murder me on the wharf an hour or so ago," and Strathgate, equably. "What prevents you from doing it now?"

"A thing of which you know nothing," answered Carrington.

"And what is that, pray?"

"A sense of honor."

"Indeed," answered the earl, "I had understood that your honor was in Lady Ellen's keeping."

The sweat stood out on Carrington's face. He locked his jaws until the muscles rose like whipcords. He was under the strongest possible constraint a man may put upon himself.

"My honor is in her ladyship's keeping," he said slowly at last, "and I am confident that she will never put it at the hazard of a blackguard like yourself."

This time it was Strathgate who gave way.

"You have another pistol at your belt. Give it to me. Take you one end of this boat and I the other. We'll see then who has the right to live and love."

"I dishonor myself," said Carrington, rising and abandoning the tiller, which was instantly grasped by one of the crew, "by meeting you in this way, but I'll do it. Here!"

He extended one of the pistols.

"I would prefer a choice," said Strathgate, not extending his arm to take it.

"As you will," returned Carrington, extending both of them to him. "You honor me in doubting my good faith," he remarked as Strathgate took one of the pistols. "Haight," said Carrington, "take your station amidship, out of range, and count three. There shall be no firing done by either of us until after the word 'three.' Are you agreed, Lord Strathgate?"

"Entirely," returned the other, stepping forward.

But Master Haight did not propose to have his vessel turned into a field of honor, which would be a field of blood. He interposed a vigorous objection.

"Gentlemen," he began, "I'll have no murder done here."

"There shall be none," said Carrington. "'Tis a fair duel with each man a chance for his life."

"I don't know about that, my masters," returned the sailor, "but I say this: This boat's mine, I'm the captain of it, and I'll have no fightin' aboard. Savin' yer honors' graces, it can't be done. You agree with me, Cooper? You, Jack? You, Ned?"

"Ay, ay," returned the others, closing about Haight and interposing between the would-be combatants.

"Gentlemen," continued Haight, who was not without a certain decision of character, "I swear to God there ain't goin' to be no fightin' on this boat. I don't know the rights and wrongs of this quarrel, but this boat's mine and I won't have it. You'll oblige me, Lord Carrington, by givin' me that pistol. And you, sir—" turning to Strathgate, "will do the like. When you get ashore I've naught to say about your actions, but here—"

He held out his hand imperiously for Lord Carrington's pistol and motioned Cooper to take that of Lord Strathgate.

The boat had shot up into the wind and lay idly rocking, practically drifting. Cooper's cutter had been shaken off and was a floating wreck some distance away. Cooper had a distinct interest in the quarrel, for he muttered:

"You're right, Haight, there can't be no shootin' here. Yonder gentleman might get a bullet in his in'ards and then who'd pay me for my sunken boat?"

Strathgate interrupted with a laugh, one of those irritating laughs that drove Carrington nearly frantic:

"Did you arrange all this with the captain of your boat, Carrington?" queried Strathgate. "Is this a bit of bravado, with the appearance of this worthy sailor at the proper moment?"

"Curse you!" cried Carrington, leaping up to windward. "Come up to windward with you."

He leveled his pistol full at Strathgate, having sprung clear of the huddle of men who happened to be to leeward. Strathgate had followed his movements and two shots rang out simultaneously. Quick as had been the rush of the two men, however, the sailors had followed suit. Haight threw himself upon Carrington and bore him back against the low rail, nearly throwing him overboard, while Cooper struck Strathgate's arm such a violent blow as he pulled the trigger that his pistol was hurled backwards and fell into the sea.

Haight was the first to recover himself.

"Gentlemen," he said in tones that indicated he had come to a final decision, "you've had it out now and there's got to be no more of it. Unless you give me your word," he said, turning to Strathgate, "and you give me yours, Lord Carrington, to abide peaceably in the boat until we get ashore, so help me God! I'll lash you down to a ring bolt with a rope, and—"

"There's naught for it," returned Carrington whose pistol, knocked from his hand, had been taken possession of by one of the men, "but to give you the promise, for you have my pistol, the other has gone overboard and while I have a sword Lord Strathgate is without a weapon."

"Oh, you have my word, too," said Strathgate carelessly.

"He'll keep the forward end of the boat and you'll stay aft, my lord," said Haight to Carrington, "and now we'll put back to harbor."

My lord Strathgate amused himself during the hours that elapsed before he and Carrington were landed at the same wharf whence they had taken their departure, by humming graceful little tunes, whistling merry little airs and in general disporting himself as if he were having a delightful time.

My lord Carrington, who had more at stake, was gloomy and silent. He did not cast a glance in the direction of his brother earl reclining on the deck forward until the vessel was made fast to the wharf. Then he sprang out and touched Strathgate on the shoulder.

"We have matters of moment to settle, my lord," began Carrington gravely, "and it were better that we settle them quietly as gentlemen, which one of us at least is."

"I agree with you in that proposition," returned Strathgate bowing.

"We shall doubtless find friends in Portsmouth and may conclude our arrangements without the unseemly interruptions of brawling seamen."

"Brawling seamen!" growled Haight under his breath. "The only peaceable people aboard the cutter were Cooper and myself and the men."

"I am staying at the Blue Boar," said Strathgate gravely.

"I also," returned Carrington.

"Very well, I shall await a visit from your friends as soon as may be convenient."

"There are men on the ships yonder," said Carrington gravely, "brother officers of mine. One of them will call upon you forthwith."

Strathgate bowed but made no other reply as he walked away toward the inn.

Carrington stayed a moment or two longer to complete arrangements for paying for the boat he had destroyed and then with a heavy heart, turned toward the town. He was in a terrible state. He had had no sleep the night before. He had ridden both day and night. The chase of the morning had not conduced to quiet his nerves, and the insults of Strathgate, whom a punctillio kept him from picking up in his arms and breaking as he would a stick, had not rendered him any more easy. His first duty was to get something to eat and to refresh himself by a bath. He would then send a message to some of his shipmates in Admiral Kephard's fleet who could be counted upon to attend to all the arrangements of the meeting a l' outrance between him and his enemy.

Although Carrington was as angry as a man could well be and as full of bitter hatred toward Strathgate, he did not intend to throw his life away on that account. He had other things to do, one of which was to chase Ellen wherever she went and find out the truth. He did not believe Strathgate's extravagant assertions about the earl's arrangement to meet Lady Ellen on the ship, but there was a possibility of truth in it and that at least kept him from entire confidence in his wife.

As for Strathgate, he was not feeling any too happy either. He had risked everything, got himself embroiled with a man of Carrington's determined character, had upon him all the odium of having run away with another man's wife, and yet he had lost the wife!

His sensuous admiration of Lady Ellen was turned to something like hate. He did not want to throw away any points in the game either, and he made up his mind to kill Carrington, if it was in his power, and to wreak such vengeance upon Lady Ellen as would cause her to remember to the very last hour of her life the time in which she flouted him.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Thomas E. Shea, who is starring this season under the direction of Messrs. Cohan and Harris, will present at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday night, Eugene Thomas' new religious play entitled "A Soldier of the Cross," in conjunction with a special performance of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Mr. Shea is fortunate to possess in "A Soldier of the Cross" a drama, chronicling the trials of the first Christians of ancient Pompeii, which is inviolate of the sensualism of the pagans. The makers of religious plays have always yielded to the temptation to introduce into their work the coarse and lascivious suggestions of pre-Christian times, for the express purpose of contrasting the new and the old ideals. It has always been the opinion of Mr. Shea that a play of this kind would meet with greater success if the offending material were eliminated. This has been done to a marked degree; and without in the least impeding the flow of sensational and melodramatic events with which a play of this early period must necessarily abound.

General Drake 71 Years Old.

General J. Madison Drake, who for more than half a century has been a newspaper publisher in New Jersey, yesterday at Elizabeth celebrated the seventy-first anniversary of his birth. He published a paper in Trenton in 1854, and after the Civil War started the first daily newspaper in Elizabeth. General Drake raised the first company of volunteers in New Jersey on April 1, 1861; unfurled the first Union flag on Confederate soil on May 24, 1861, and was the first to enter the enemy's works at the battle of Newbern. General Drake expects to issue next week his "Historical Sketches of the Revolutionary and Civil Wars."

Clothing in China.

In winter throughout the cold latitudes of China the Chinese of all classes wear fur, wool or hair lined garments. Even the cooly laborers have their sheep or goat skins, and people of the middle and official classes have many sets of garments lined with the richest furs. In China houses are rarely heated to the winter temperatures of European or American interiors, and in consequence fur lined clothes are worn indoors as well as out.

Divorce for Doctor.

Special Master F. B. Levis at Trenton has recommended a divorce for Dr. Lyman B. Hollingshead, of Pemberton, from his wife, who was Miss Maude H. Hanson when she married him in 1899. Dr. Hollingshead charged that his wife deserted him in 1905, secured a position in a Philadelphia church choir, and fell in love with the organist of the church, who was a married man with two children.

Davis Show Nets $1,500.

It was announced yesterday that the net receipts of the Robert Davis Association's Sunday show at Jersey City were $1,500. This money is being distributed among the poor by the committee, consisting of William E. Smith, Eugene F. Kinkead, Robert Davis, W. Peter Wedin and County Collector Stephen M. Egan.

Priest Quits Elizabeth.

The Rev. Father Ignatius, assistant pastor of the Sacred Heart church, at Spring and Bond streets, Elizabeth, left his parish yesterday to become pastor at St. Benedict's church, Newark. His place will be taken by the Rev. Father Meinard, of Newark.

P.H.S. SENIORS TRIM INTERSCHOLASTIC CHAMPS

The senior class five, basketball champions of the Plainfield High School, defeated the 'varsity team, interscholastic champions of city and borough in a close, though listless game at the school gymnasium yesterday afternoon. The final score was 39-33, and the game was won in the last few minutes of play. At the end of the first half, the score was 14-10 in favor of the senior team, but the school team tied the score in the second period and were only passed by a fast finish.

For the 'varsity, Morris did the best work, scoring seven baskets. Line and Lambert won the honors for the class five, the former making fifteen points and the latter fourteen in the course of the game. The game was witnessed by a gallery of half a dozen girls of the school, principally "rooters" for the victorious senior class five. The lineups and summaries:

Lambert	right forward	Morris
J. Dutcher	centre	Caldwell
Schofield	left guard	Robins
Hammond	right guard	Parsons

Field goals: Line, 7; Lambert, 7; Morris, 7; Caldwell, 6; Dutcher, 4; Mortimer, 2; Schofield, Robins. Goals from fouls: Caldwell, Line. Referee, Henry Pound. Scorer, Miss Sara Sanderson. Timer, Miss Esther Crampton. Fifteen minute halves.

LOCAL SCHOOLBOYS OUT FOR BASEBALL PRACTICE

With the coming of warm weather and the gradual disappearance of frost from the grounds, the baseball squads of the local school teams are getting together for the first outdoor practices, and on both sides of the brook lots of interest is being shown in developing strong nines. Over in the borough a squad of twenty baseball candidates got out on the Westervelt avenue grounds Tuesday afternoon with Principal Benjamin Phelps as coach and had their first warming up of the season. Candidates for the slab include William Day and Lawrence Smith as the most promising, and Fred McClintock, captain of the nine, will probably be behind the bat. The North Plainfield High School team will play the first game of the season with the Bernardsville High School nine at Bernardsville, Wednesday, April 8, and many of the games of the season will be played on out-of-town diamonds. Manager Parsons has not yet completed his schedule.

The city high school nine will again use Crescent Oval as their home diamond, and a good-sized squad reported there for the first practise Monday afternoon. The diamond was pretty soft, but the squad had some fast practise for an hour or two, under the direction of Captain Chauncey Murphey. The team will be weakened by the absence of Charles Loizeaux, who will not return to school, Douglass and VanDeventer, who graduated.

Candidates for the pitcher's box are VanZandt, Dey, Foster, Murphey and Snyder, and Doane will probably be behind the bat. Dey and Dutcher are trying for first base, Brick and Snyder for second, Giddes and Moses Rubenstein for short-stop, and Murphey and VanZandt for third. Among the most promising of the outfield candidates are Wilcox, Dodwell, Beeken and Hammond. Regular practises are to be held daily when the weather permits, and the team will have a practise game with the Mono A. C. nine at Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon. Manager William Rafferty is trying to arrange for two more games with the Monos before the regular season opens with a game with the DeWitt Clinton High School of New York, at Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, April 4.

MISSION SOCIETY'S MEETING.

Hope Chapel Organization Hears Reports and Elects Officers.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of Hope chapel held a largely attended annual business session and religious service yesterday afternoon. The program prepared by the Board of Missions for the Interdenominational conference was carried out and visitors who participated were Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, Rev. L. R. Howard, Mrs. I. C. Pierson, Mrs. J. H. Manning and Mrs. Joseph W. Gavett. The treasurer's report showed that $100 had been raised and expended for mission work during the past year.

The following officers were re-elected: President, Mrs. G. H. Condict; vice-president, Mrs. L. R. Howard; secretary, Mrs. M. W. Clark; treasurer, Mrs. Joseph Brown. In conclusion refreshments were served by the social committee of which Mrs. James ePnny is chairman.

Sunday-school Elects Officers.

Officers were elected and reports presented at the annual meeting of Faith chapel Sunday-school last night. The meeting was opened with prayer by U. B. Crane, after which favorable reports were received from the various committees. These officers were elected: Superintendent, L. W. Randolph; assistant superintendent, Frank Stewart; secretary, William H. Conger; assistant secretary, Russell Stewart; treasurer, Edward Baker; librarian, William La Rue; chairman music committee, Miss Florence Randolph; chairman missionary committee, Mrs. Gilbert Van Nest; superintendent home department, Mrs. J. W. Musson.

Will Receive Bids for Stone.

The Councilmanic street committee will meet tonight for the purpose of receiving bids for the coming year's supply of crushed stone, crosswalks and culverts. The awarding of the contract for crushed stone has aroused more than usual interest owing to the competition between the Watchung Stone Company, Smalley Brothers and other stone companies. The Watchung Stone Company was the successful bidder last year and will make a determined effort to get the contract this year.

Bills Sent to Gov. Fort.

Passed by the State Legislature, a bill giving fire apparatus in all municipalities the right of way, is now before Governor Fort. Another measure which has been sent to the Governor is a bill which makes it a misdemeanor to permit a child under sixteen, unaccompanied by a parent or guardian, to attend theatres or frequent a public dance hall.

Again Visited by Thieves.

A sneak thief entered the home of David M. Runyon on Arlington avenue, Tuesday night, and appropriated two overcoats and a small quantity of silverware. This is the second time in eight months that Mr. Runyon has suffered in this way. On the previous occasion a colored servant girl was the culprit.

RAILROAD TAX FIGHT DELAYS CITY'S BUDGET

In preparing the annual city budget, the Councilmanic finance committee expects that the amount to be received from the railroad tax will materially assist in keeping the local rate down. At the same time the finances are being so planned that even if the city does not receive the extra money it will still be possible to keep within last year's figures and not raise the rate. That is the purpose of the committee, as well as other members of the Common Council.

There are new public schools to be built, but these can be taken care of through the issue of bonds. The question of increased school accommodations is becoming a serious one with the Board of Education, and the situation is realized by the Common Council. By the sale of the Washington School property the city will have to vacate it in the near future and it is for this reason that the Board of Education is anxious to get the new Darrow avenue school building started.

While the other city departments may want a little more than last year a strong effort will be made to equalize the appropriations. The appropriation for the Public Library will probably be the same as last year, $7,500, that being the sum asked for. Each committee realizes the importance and necessity of keeping within a certain limit and no efforts are likely to be made to go beyond that which is actually required to run the departments.

The budget will probably be introduced at the April meeting of the Common Council.

"BOX OF MONKEYS" SCORES WITH SOUTH PLAINFIELDERS.

Local and professional talent furnished a highly successful program of entertainment at Washington Hall, South Plainfield, last night, when "A Box of Monkeys," a farce, was presented by a local cast and Miss Adele VonOhl and G. V. N. Semond rendered original songs and sketches. The hall was filled to "S. R. O." capacity, and a neat sum was realized in profit.

To quote from "copy" of "Our South Plainfield Correspondent," "the large audience filled every seat and declared that the entertainment equalled anything they had seen in the adjoining village of New York." The cast for "A Box of Monkeys" included LeRoy Clawson, Munroe Pyatt, Miss Sadie Randolph, Miss Mildred F. Johnson, Miss Florence AO. Johnson. Music was furnished by Miss Edgar, of Westfield. An informal dance followed the entertainment.

MILL BLOWN UP BY BOMB.

New Jersey Shoddy Mills Building Wrecked.

The Hampton Shoddy Mills at New Hampton, two miles from Hampton Junction, were partly blown up by a bomb yesterday afternoon. One building, which contained much machinery, was wrecked and several employes in other parts of the mills were hurt by flying debris. There was no one in the wrecked building. The mills are leased by John Nierenberg, of New York, and there has been some trouble with discharged employes.

The bomb, which is believed to have consisted of two sticks of dynamite, exploded at 4:30 o'clock. It was placed under the building, which contained a grinding machine and an engine which were running. The building was torn to pieces and the engines were broken and hurled in all directions.

Thomas Clawson, a former employe, was arrested, and the police are looking for several other men. Their theory is that several were in the plot, and that Clawson was selected to carry it out.

Meeting of Classis of Raritan.

Whitehouse, March 26.—The classis of Raritan will meet in stated spring session in the Reformed church at Pottersville on Tuesday, April 14, at 10:30 a. m. The sermon will be delivered by the retiring president, Rev. Isaac Sperling, pastor of the Reformed church at South Branch. Consistory reports are to be forwarded to Rev. Charles E. Corwin, of North Branch, ten days in advance of the meeting. Rev. B. V. D. Wyckoff, pastor of the Reformed church at Readington, is the stated clerk of classis.

PARK AVENUE BAPTISTS HEAR CHURCH REPORTS

Reports of the various church officers and of the societies and departments of the Park Avenue Baptist church were read at the annual church meeting held last night. Rev. Arthur E. Finn, pastor of the church, presided, and opened the business session with prayer and scripture reading.

James E. LaRue was elected treasurer of the church Benevolent Fund in place of E. F. Vail, who was not a candidate for re-election. Harry C. Runyon was re-elected church clerk. Theodore I. Runyon and D. M. Runyon were elected deacons, and the vacancy for the third deacon was again left unfilled. John H. Doane and Martin B. Stutsman acted as tellers for the balloting. It was voted to open the church pulpit to Methodist preachers a week from Sunday, when Conference guests will preach at the morning and evening services in the church. The announcement of the annual parish meeting, to be held Wednesday evening, April 8, was made by the pastor.

Reports of the church departments showed gratifying results along all lines for the past year, and the report of Lewis R. Schofield, treasurer of the church, showed a neat balance on hand after the year's expenditures. H. F. Cuming, as secretary of the Sunday-school, read a gratifying report, supplimented by the report of Joseph Hawkins, treasurer of the school. The deacons' report was made by T. I. Runyon. D. M. Runyon reported for the Fellowship Fund, and Secretary E. Frank Vail for the Benevolent Fund of the church.

Reports on the work of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the church were made by Mrs. S. Arthur Krom, the secretary, and Mrs. John H. Doane, treasurer. Mrs. I. Wesley Johnson, treasurer of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church, also read her report. Mrs. James S. Pray reported for the Women's Home Missionary Society, and the Misses Louise Harral and Elvira Runyon for the Y. P. S. C. E. The report of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society was presented by Miss Alice Brown, of the intermediate department, Miss Arline Brown, the secretary, and Miss Mabelle Stutsman. Other reports received were from Mrs. John H. Doane, chairman of the General Visiting Committee, Martin B. Stutsman, of the Ushering Committee, Lewis R. Schofield, of the Welcoming Committee, Roland Coles Treadwell of the Harbinger Board and Miss Olive DeLany for the What-soever Circle of King's Daughters.

HELPLESS MAN CREMATED IN BED AT BLOOMFIELD.

Patrick Graham, seventy-four years old, of Bloomfield, was burned to death at his home yesterday morning when a spark from his pipe set fire to his nightshirt. Mr. Graham, who was a rheumatic cripple, was unable to help himself, and while his daughter was preparing breakfast slowly burned to death.

The flames also set fire to the bed clothing, and when his daughter Mary entered the room with his breakfast she was driven back by smoke and fire. Before she could enter the room again her father was dead. Miss Graham was also severely burned about the head and face. She may recover. Mrs. Graham was at church when the accident occurred, and when she heard of her husband's death she collapsed. Her condition is also critical.

This is the third mishap in the family in fifteen months. The first was the death of Martin Graham, their only son, who was a conductor on the Erie Railroad. He was fatally crushed between cars at Forest Hill. Three weeks ago Mrs. Winifred Lipsett, a daughter of Mr. Graham and a bride of only a few days, died from pneumonia.

Says Slender Hand Is Not Artistic.

Montclair, March 26.—Dr. S. C. G. Watkins, of North Fullerton avenue, Montclair, has upset the theory that the long, slender hand is the artistic hand. Dr. Watkins has taken plaster casts of one hundred artists' hands, and his studies prove that the long, slender hand does not denote the artistic temperament. On the contrary, the sqpare, useful hand is the artistic hand, and the long hand, with slender fingers, is the aesthetic hand.

Peacemaker Gets Sprained Knee.

Simon Hermon, of Cedar street, Montclair, was walking along Orange road yesterday, when he made a kick at two fighting dogs in order to separate them. The vicious swipe which Hermon made at the animals caused him to fall heavily to the sidewalk. His right knee was badly sprained and he sustained severe contusions.

Dunellenite In the Toils.

Charles Fisher, who hales from Dunellen, was arrested on Somerset street late last night for disorderly conduct while in an intoxicated condition. Sentence was suspended at his hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver at the borough court today.

Mrs. E. D. Moffett, of Orchard place, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Tams, of Trenton, has returned home.

Rev. A. E. Hinn will speak at the Rescue Mission tonight at 8 o'clock.

CHARLES N. FOWLER FAVORS TAFT AND FORT

Representative Charles N. Fowler, of this Congressional district, announces that Taft and Fort are his choice. Mr. Fowler said in an interview that he considered the Presidency of the United States the first office of all the world today in distinction, responsibility and power. To it, he said, should be called only such men as typify what is best in American manhood, culture and fitness.

"In qualities of heart, strength of character, mental endowment, splendid equipment and surpassing experience," he continued, "there seems to me to stand one man conspicuous above his fellows, and that is William H. Taft. Can any one doubt that he thoroughly understands American institutions, appreciates their relation to each other, and that he knows our laws and is acquainted with our people and their needs? Do not all agree that he will make a just, wise and truly great President?

"For these reasons Mr. Taft is my candidate. But such a candidate should have a worthy associate, and New Jersey should again take her place on the ticket with Ohio. Fortunate are we in having as successor of Hobart the man who presented the name of Hobart to the convention at St. Louis in 1896. Already our jurist-Governor is eminent among the reform Governors. The ticket of Taft and Fort would be invincible; therefore let it be the ticket of every New Jersey Republican from this day forward."

DR. HALL, PROMINENT PRESBYTERIAN, DEAD

The Rev. Dr. Charles Cuthbert Hall, president of Union Theological Seminary, New York, died yesterday morning at the Presbyterian Hospital in New York. His death followed an operation performed Monday afternoon to give him relief from an obscure tropical disease, contracted a year ago in India. He leaves a widow and four children.

Dr. Hall died at the age of 56, one of the most prominent Presbyterian clergymen in the East. He was born in New York, the son of a large drug dealer. He was graduated at Williams in 1872, at the age of 19.

Following a two years' course at the Union Theological Seminary, he went abroad in 1874 and studied in London and Edinburgh. On his entry in the ministry, he served as pastor of the Union Presbyterian church at Newburg. In 1877 he accepted the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church, Brooklyn. There he served for twenty years, until his election to the position of president of the Union Theological Seminary in 1897.

Without rendering himself open to charges of heresy, Dr. Hall gained note as a theologian. His position of neutrality and spirit of conciliation were maintained through, and in spite of the controversy over the tenets of Dr. Briggs and their consequence—the impeachment of Dr. Hall by Dr. Fox in 1897.

The Fox charges against Dr. Hall were posted shortly after his election to the presidency in 1897. The result was a triumph for Dr. Hall's position. The Brooklyn presbytery, by a large majority, elected by standing vote to lay the charges on the table.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Dr. Harold D. Corbusier, of Watchung avenue, has purchased the fine residential property, 612 Park avenue, and will reside there after April 1.

—Max Tepper, of the dry goods firm of Tepper Brothers, has leased J. A. Smith's residential property at 31 Central avenue, and today Mr. and Mrs. Smith moved to their handsome summer home on the River road near Bound Brook. Mr. Tepper's lease is for one year.

—Charles H. Hand has leased his residence of 504 Belvidere avenue to Charles Eppa Lipscomb, formerly of Washington, but now associated with the publication of "National Alumni," with offices at 34 Union Square, New York, and he will take possession May 1. Today Mr. Hand moved to his new home at 155 Crescent avenue.

School Paper Elections.

Elections for editor-in-chief and members of the editorial board of the Plainfield High School "Oracle" will be held at the school tomorrow morning. Miss Sadie Brower, present editor-in-chief, who was appointed to fill out the unexpired term of William T. Lambert, has refused to be a candidate for re-election. Each class will nominate two members of the board, a boy and a girl, to be voted on by the entire school.

Miss Louise DeCamp, of Chester, Morris county, is spending a few days at the home of Mrs. E. H. Corey, of Somerset street, and C. Frank French, of Washington avenue.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church, a dime social and informal entertainment will be held tonight.

Large Thumbs.

"People of great strength of character, who are guided by the head rather than the heart, have large thumbs," says Irving R. Bacon. "Whenever you see a person with a strikingly large, well developed thumb, you may be almost certain you have before you one who is a natural born ruler, eminently practical and fond of whatever is useful. Wherefore also he is fond of history. A large thumbed woman may fall in love as deeply as her small thumbed sister, but will not marry unless she can see a sufficient bread and butter supply ahead. But she is more apt to be a real helpmate when adversity comes."—New York Journal.

Hash in Pepper Shells.

Chop cold roast veal or fowl fine; cover with cold water and cook slowly until very tender. Then season to taste with salt; add a dash of cayenne and a generous lump of butter. Remove from the fire and add sufficient bread crumbs to give "body" to the hash. Have at hand the required number of pepper shells washed cleaned; fill these with the hash, stand upright in a baking pan, dot with butter, half fill the pan with boiling water and stand in a hot oven over fifteen minutes. This makes a delicious luncheon dish or an entree.

ENJOY 'COUNTRY SCHOOL'

Rollicking Entertainment at Monroe Ave. M. E. Church Makes a Genuine Hit.

J. STEPHEN HIGHAM TEACHER.

Rev. E. E. Roberson, the Pastor, Takes Part—The Songs Particularly Good—All Dressed As Children.

"The Country School" given at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, last night, attracted a capacity audience and the abundance of genuine fun furnished by the participants kept everyone laughing from beginning to end. It carried many of the other older people present back some thirty or forty years to their school days, although not many were permitted to play the pranks which combined to make last night's affair such a rollicking affair.

Everyone in the cast took his or her part in true style and under the direction of J. Stephen Higham, who planned the entertainment and acted as teacher, there was no end to the mirth-provoking incidents. The participants were dressed as boys and girls and this was exceedingly funny.

Miss Charlotte Aldrich was at the piano, during the evening, with the exception of being the accompanist for Louis Tallamy, who sang a topical song. In that he was accompanied by Mrs. Tallamy. The music was that of "I Can't Do that Sum," from "Babes in Toyland," while the words were in the nature of local hits. One verse follows:

"No doubt you've heard about this fuss they've had around our town,
"Where a citizen no longer has the right to stand around,
"The cop will nab you by the neck, and hustle you off to jail.
"Would you subtract or multiply to get the price of bail?"

The entertainment will be repeated tonight when several new features will be introduced. Those taking part are as follows:

Rev. E. E. Roberson, Walter McGee, John Praed, William Jacobs, John Daub, Mansfield Smith, Blanchard Randolph, Louis Berger, Thomas Lawson, Harry Luidi, Harry Cox, Louis Tallamy, Harry Gilmour, Stephen Higham, E. H. Beekman, Mrs. E. H. Beekman, Mrs. Mansfield Smith, Miss Charlotte Aldrich, Mrs. John Daub, Mrs. Louis Tallamy, Mrs. W. B. Grannatt, Sr., Miss Georgia Beekman, Mrs. Walter Manning, Mrs. Edward Beekman.

E. R. ACKERMAN SHOWS VIEWS OF OTHER LANDS

Exhibiting nearly one hundred stereopticon slides on scenes in foreign countries, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman gave a most interesting lecture in explanation of the pictures at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. The affair was under the auspices of the Swedish Pilgrim church and a fair percentage of the parish was present. The slides, many of which were reproductions of photographs, taken by the Senator himself, were beautifully colored and included views of the natural and architectural wonders of the foreign lands, as well as many pictures illustrative of the customs of the European peoples.

Especially interesting were the views of Japan, China and India and the pictures illustrating the religious customs of the East. These included a series of slides from photographs on the banks of the Ganges, the west bank of which is thickly built up with palaces and temples, while the east bank is a desert stretch. This is because the Easterner believes that to die on the west bank of this much worshipped stream means a certainty of salvation, while to have life end while on the east bank signfies that the sould of the departed will go into a donkey in its next existence. Excellent views of the Taj Mahal, the pyramids and scenes of Sweden and Norway were shown, and the last views were reproductions of photographs of the Lusitania on her maiden trip, when the Senator was a passenger.

Mr. Ackerman was introduced to his audience by Rev. Theodore Englund, pastor of the church. A neat sum was realized for the general fund to defray parish expenses.

"Plainfield Beauty" a Winner.

At the American Horse Exchange show in New York on Wednesday, George Rohlig's bay mare, "Plainfield Beauty," captured two cups, one being first prize in Class 23 for novice saddle horses, and the other being second prize in Class 16. MISSION WORKERS MEET

Three Hundred Members of Elizabeth Presbyterial Society in Conference.

SESSIONS AT WARREN CHAPEL.

Morning and Afternoon Meetings an Delegates Entertained at Luncheon There.

Delegates and representatives from the twenty-nine auxiliaries of the Women's Presbyterial Society for Home Missions in the Presbytery of Elizabeth were in all-day session at Warren chapel today, when about three hundred mission workers from nineteen cities, towns and boroughs of the presbytery met in conference at morning and afternoon sessions as the guests of the Warren Chapel Missionary and Aid Society. The occasion was the twenty-fourth annual meeting and delegates began arriving from out of town by trolley and stage at about 9 o'clock this morning and the church was thronged with visiting members of the various societies at the opening devotional services of the session, held at 10 o'clock this mornin . Mrs. Eben B. Cobb, of Elizabeth, was in charge of this service.

The formal address of welcome was made at the beginning of the business session by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel. The session immediately followed the devotional service. In the name of the assembled societies, the response to this address of welcome was made by Mrs. Augustus S. Crane, of Elizabeth, president of the general society. Reports of the various officers of the general society were next received. These included the report of Mrs. J. Anderson Frazer, of Elizabeth, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Adrain G. Lyon, of Perth Amboy, secretary of Young People's work; Mrs. Elia S. Beale, of Roselle, secretary of the Freedmen, and Mrs. Laura Van Derbeck, of Somerville, secretary of literature. The treasurer's report, by Mrs. J. Edward Keron, of Elizabeth, showed the money received from the various auxiliaries of the Presbytery during the past year. This amounts to $5,872.01 from the Women's Board and $508.22 from the Freedmen Board. The money raised during the year by the various local churches is as follows: Crescent Avenue church $1,150; First Presbyterian church $227; Warren chapel, $156.81, and Hope chapel, $115.

Following the reports came the appointment of the various committees of the general society for the coming year. After this came an address on "Freedmen" by Mrs. T. H. Amos, colored, from one of the Southern States. The morning session, which was opened with a hymn, was then concluded by the singing of the doxology.

The visiting delegates were entertained at luncheon by members of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel. The tables were set in the side rooms adjoining the main church, and were tastefully decorated. Mrs. J. H. Snyder, chairman of the local society entertainment committee, was in charge of the luncheon arrangements and was assisted by a corps of members of the society, who acted as waitresses.

The delegates convened for the afternoon session at 1:30 o'clock, when the session began with the singing of a hymn and scripture reading and prayer by Mrs. J. T. Scott, of Lamington. Following this came the roll-call of societies, to which 318 members responded. After this were addresses on "Settlement Work Among Foreigners," by Miss Mary Ogden White, and "Our Indians" by Miss Amelia Frost. Then the conference offering was taken up and reports of committees were presented. The session adjourned after the benediction, offered by Rev. J. O. McKelvey. The conference on Young People's work, followed adjournment and was in charge of Mrs. Adrain Lyon and Miss H. Halloway, the secretaries.

Mrs. I. C. Pearson, of Watchung avenue, and Mrs. W. W. Casselberry, of Dunellen, are the vice presidents of the general society.

Delegates to the meetings included representatives from the auxiliaries of the various Presbyterian churches at Basking Ridge, Bethlehem, Califon, Cartaret, Clinton, Cranford, Dunellen, Elizabeth, Greystone, Westminster, Lamington, Liberty Corner, Metuchen, Perth Amboy, Plainfield, Pluckamin, Rahway, Roselle, Springfield, Union, Westfield and Woodbridge.

'JUDGE' WADSWORTH DEAD

Once Wealthy Resident and Leader in Politics Ends Days in Industrial Home.

PASSED AWAY THIS MORNING.

Graduated from Trinity College and Gave Promise of a Brilliant Career—Leaves No Known Relatives.

Louis F. Wadsworth, graduate of Trinity College and at one time one of the leading citizens of Plainfield, died early this morning in the Industrial Home where he had been an inmate for the past ten years. He had been failing gradually for eight months through the infirmities of old age and recently the end had been expected at almost any time.

Known to everyone as "Judge" because of having once held the office of justice of the peace, Wadsworth's death ends the career of a man who began life with everything in his favor and who knew what it meant to have wealth and the respect of a community. Plainfield has probably never had a citizen mode adept at political manipulation or parliamentary law and there were days when a State or county convention without "Judge" Wadsworth presiding would be like Hamlet with the melancholy Dane out of the cast.

Born in Hartford, Conn., May 26, 1825, he was given all the mental and social training that money could command. His father was a wealthy merchant and Louis and his brothers received an academic education and finally graduated from Trinity College, receiving special awards for his splendid standing in the classical course. At the time he was ranked as an exceptionally proficient Latin student and he always retained his knowledge of the subject. He was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

After a brief stay in Michigan with a brother, young Wadsworth made his way to New York. He became allied with the Tammany Hall politicians and there received his instruction in the methods adopted to win political battles. He took part in many hard-fought campaigns and contributed no small part to their success. As a reward for services on one occasion he was appointed to an important position in the Customs House and this he held for a long time. He resigned after his marriage to a Mrs. Fisher, of Morris county, this State, very wealthy in her own right and the owner of a handsome country place near Dover where they made their home.

Wishing to get within easier reach of New York, the Wadsworths moved to Plainfield in 1871, purchasing the property at the east corner of East Second and Richmond streets. From the time that he came, "Judge" Wadsworth took an active interest in civic affairs and was soon one of the leading Democratic workers in the city. His influence and methods spread about the county and then to the State. Those who remember him at the conventions claim that no one before or since could equal his executive ability or his exercise of parliamentary rules.

Though a leader in the Democratic party, in his days a strong combination locally, the only office that the Judge" was elected to was as a member of the Board of Education, serving a term from 1884 to 1887. It was principally through his efforts that the Irving school at Fourth street and Monroe avenue was built. He also acted as justice of the peace, more as a means of keeping interested in something than anything else.

Mrs. Wadsworth died fifteen years ago and the "Judge's" loss of money and position began shortly before her demise. He spent freely for drink and "good times" and finally was reduced to absolute want. His relatives had either passed away or lost track of him and with health gone and his mental capacity failing the Industrial Home was the only haven left. He went there in 1898. At the Home he was a veritable book-worm and sat day after day reading articles of travel, sociology, civics and law. He made regular trips to the Public Library for books and in addition eagerly seized hold of any magazines or papers that were brought to the place. In his younger days he was a great baseball enthusiast, having played on the old Atlantic team of Brooklyn, and in the summer season he followed the games of the big leagues as industriously as any present-day crank.

The "Judge" had no family of his own and it is hardly likely that any of his brothers or sisters can be located. He rarely mentioned them and no letters ever came to him, possibly because he preferred not to let them know where he was.

Opening of Sewing School.

The sewing school that meets in the W. C. T. U. rooms will resume its sessions next Tuesday afternoon. Gentiles and Jews will be welcome.

CITY RECEIVES BIDS FOR CRUSHED STONE

The Watchung Stone Company was again the lowest for the contract for furnishing the city with crushed stone, when the bids were opened at a meeting of the Councilmanic street committee last night. Three offers were submitted on the crushed stone proposition, the Watchung Stone Company, Smalley Brothers and J. Y. Wilson. The average bid of the Watchung Stone Company on the four sizes desired was 82½ cents, while that of Smalley Brothers was 85½ and that of Mr. Wilson $1.02½.

Bids for crushed stone were asked on four sizes—screenings, ½ inch, 1½ inch and 2½ inch stone, and outside of the screenings, the other sizes were designated as A, B and C. The bid of the Watchung Stone Company was the same throughout, that is 75 cents for screenings, 95 cents for the ½ inch, 85 cents for 1½ inch and 75 cents for the 2½ inch.

Under classification B, the bid of Smalley Brothers was 90 cents for screenings, 90 cents for ½ inch, 85 cents for 1½ inch and 75 cents for 2½ inch stone. Under classification C, Smalley Bros. bid was $1.05 for screenings, $1.05 for ½ inch, 90 cents for 1½ inch and 80 cents for 2½ inch, and the bid of Mr. Wilson was $1.20 for screenings, $1.10 for ½ inch, 95 cents for 1½ inch and 85 cents for 2½ inch. The average of Mr. Wilson's bid was $1.02½.

The Watchung Stone Company and Andrew Roach were the only bidders for furnishing cover stone, curbing and crosswalks. For cover stone the bid of the company was 30 cents a square foot and that of Mr. Roach 28 cents. For 4x16 curbing the bid of the company was 30 cents a lineal foot and that of Mr. Roach 45 cents a lineal foot. For 4x20 curbing, the company bid 60 cents a lineal foot and Mr. Roach 56 cents a lineal foot. For 4x2 crosswalks the company bid 65 cents and Mr. Roach 78 cents and for the 4x30 crosswalks, the company bid 75 cents and Mr. Roach bid $1.00. Basing these bids for curbing on the basis of the total per one unit of each, the bid of the Watchung Stone Company was $2.80 and that of Mr. Roach $3.07.

No action was taken by the committee last night in awarding the contract, but the matter will be presented at the April meeting of the Common Council.

VILLAGE BAPTIST PARSONAGE THREATENED BY FIRE.

A fire which was discovered in the kitchen of the Baptist parsonage at South Plainfield, threatened the entire destruction of the dwelling yesterday afternoon. Several articles of clothing suspended from a line over the kitchen range caught fire and the fury of the flames was increased by the bursting of a bottle of lamp oil. In a few minutes the whole room was ablaze and the members of the family were powerless to do anything.

Neighbors were attracted by the fire and assisted by several passers-by, who formed a bucket brigade, the blaze was finally extinguished, but not until considerable damage resulted. During the progress of the fire much of the furniture was carried from the house.

Hartridge School Incorporated.

Certificate of incorporation has been filed in the office of the county clerk by the Hartridge School, the principal offices of which are at 107-109 West Seventh street and 303 East Seventh street, this city. The objects for which the corporation is formed are to take over a concern of the same name. The total authorized capital stock is $20,000, divided into 400 shares at a par value of $50 each. The incorporators are Emelyn B. Hartridge and Elizabeth H. Mapelsden, of Plainfield, and Julian Hartridge, of New York city.

SENATOR GIVES WARNING

Ackerman in Appealing for Utility Bill's Passage Points to Platform Pledges.

CITES SOME TIMELY FACTS.

Referring to Power of Rate Fixing, the Senator Advances Some Valuable Suggestions.

That proper legislation covering the operation of the public utility companies of the State must conserve and protect the millions invested as well as the wager-earner is the declaration of State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county, who is deeply interested in the passage of a proper public utilities regulation measure by the present Legislature. He points to the platform pledges made by the party during the last campaign and sounds a warning that the safety of representative government depends to a very large extent on the faithful fulfillment of such promises.

In an interview with a representative of The Daily Press today, the Senator clearly and concisely defines his views and makes some valuable suggestions regarding the rate-making power.

"The Republican platform upon which the Republicans carried the State last fall declared among other things," said Senator Ackerman, "that the party has already undertaken the question of supervision of public utility corporations with a view of increasing the efficiency, safety and economy of service in the interest of the public. We pledge ourselves to enact a law providing for a commission with ample jurisdiction and power to enable it to regulate such corporations effectively and authoritatively.'

"The safety of representative government," the Senator continued, "depends largely on the faithful execution of pre-election platform pledges and I believe that platforms are made to stand on and adhere to after you are elected by the people—otherwise party organization will be destroyed and the rule of faction will be established in its place.

"On the question of public utility legislation I will stand by the platform of the party, but, as Senator Silzer states, 'the platform of neither party declared that the State should assume the rate making function.' Rate making and rate fixing is not absolutely essential to the success of an effective regulation of public utility corporation, but on this question my position is not final although at present from my point of view there does not appear any logical or economic reason for putting that vast power in the hands of a commission who may use it either wisely or unwisely.

"Senator Gebhardt strikes the key of the situation when referring to the Senate Committee substitute by asserting, as he did, that a bill providing for efficient service, as does the Robbins bill, contains a power of a very drastic nature, more so than even the rate making power. It seems wise in clothing a commission with that power not to step at present too far in other directions. Legislation of this kind is new and somewhat tentative in its character and as Secretary Taft remarked in the House of Assembly Monday evening 'tentative legislation should proceed along slow and cautious lines; it was in this way that the common law of England has been built up to stand as it has stood successfully the severe test of time.'

"General Harrison once said 'the length of the step is not so important as the direction in which the step is taken.' Abuses and mismanagement have been the poison to the success of many an enterprise and the railroads and other utility companies have not escaped those human failings. The officers and managers of the corporations have a duty and a responsibility, which they cannot ignore, both to the public and to the thousands of wage earners who depend upon the success of their enterprises and they must conduct themselves so as to dissipate the feelings of hostility which so many feel and display.

"The false idea seems to be spreading that the public utility and transportation companies represent a few conscienceless individuals who are preying upon the people regardless of law and morals. In my judgment the more widely this view is held the greater the danger to the business security and prosperity of the people and for that reason, if for no other reason, I favor standing by our platform pledges for a proper and reasonable regulation of these companies.

"In New Jersey alone, not to mention the other States, the aggregate market value of the securities of semi-public corporations held for investment by New Jersey savings banks, fire and life insurance com-

AGENT HAYNES' FAREWELL

Veteran Railroad Employe, Now Retiring on Pension, Dines His Friends.

GUESTS' HANDSOME PRESENT.

Masonic Jewel As Their Remembrance of Occasion—The Repast An Excellent One.

Joseph A. Haynes, who has been employed by the New Jersey Central for fifty-three years, and for more than a quarter of a century as station agent in this city, tendered a farewell dinner, last night, the guests being those who have been employed under him while agent here. Included among those present was Edward Martin, the colored station porter for more than twenty years.

The dinner was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Haynes at the North Avenue Station, which is soon to be vacated by them to make room for the new agent, Joseph Kpehler, of Bound Brook.

Mr. Haynes was presented with a handsome Masonic jewel, the gift of the guests. The presentation speech was made by J. P. Ryno.

Those at table were J. P. Ryno, F. H. Stein, Ticket Agent V. W. Hunt, the veteran telegrapher Charles H. Schermerhorn, for fifty years an operator; Peter McDonough, the youngest telegrapher operator who ever served here; Baggage Master Jeremiah Garretson, William Wilson, Harry Carey, S. Seals, E. B. Fuller, J. A. Taylor, William Gaston, Chas. Ryno, George Smith, John Ackerman, Isaac Ryno, Addison Ackerman; Chas. Schwartz, Van Fleet Ryno, Alexander Wolf, Joseph Apgar and Edward Martin. Mr. Haynes entered the service of the Jersey Central at the age of 14 on August 2, 1855.

The most excellent dinner was prepared and served under the direction of Mrs. J. A. Haynes, whose reputation in the cullinary art is widely known.

GREEN GETS A CHOICE.

Judge Runyon Gives Him His Preferences of Sentences.

Something new in the way of sentences was handed out by Judge Runyon in the city court this morning. Maze Green, a very small man with a large appetite for drink, was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness. He has frequently been before the magistrates on both sides of the brook and not long ago did sixty days at Elizabeth. After hearing the arresting officer's story Judge Runyon said:

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Green. I'll give you twenty days now and twenty the next time you come before me, or else nothing now and sixty days when you show up again. What do you say?"

"Nothing now," was the prisoner's reply, and the bargain was on. Green is only about four feet and a half high and as a result it is almost impossible for him to carry even a few small drinks without going down and out.

New Yorkers Guests of Pedeflous.

Henry C. Mouquin, the well-known restauranteur; S. J. Lentier, Gus Schwartz and G. H. Stephens, of New York, are guests this afternoon of Henri Pedeflous, at one of his famous mushroom dinners. The affair was to have been given in honor of Richard Walters, former Mayor of Carthagena, Colombia, S. A., but for some reason he missed his connections and failed to meet the party in New York when they started for Plainfield. Last night the above-named were guests of Mr. Mouqin at a dinner given by him at his restaurant at Sixth avenue and 28th street, New York.

West End Tabernacle Elects.

The annual business meeting of the West End Tabernacle was held last night, when reports were presented and these officers were chosen for the coming year: Superintendent, Robert Love; assistant superintendent, George Robbins; secretary, Joseph V. Taylor; assistant secretary, Miss Helen Taylor; treasurer, Fred Lancaster; organist, Mrs. Joseph V. Taylor; assistant organist, Mrs. H. Pennoyer; superintendent home department work, Mrs. John Stryker; assistant superintendent, Mrs. James Stryker; librarian, Joseph Taylor.

One Part He Could Hear.

Henry Mohring, an aged German very hard of hearing, was arraigned in the city court this morning, charged by the police with trespassing on private property on W. Eighth street and cutting limbs from trees. It proved to be a big contract to get Mohring to understand what the proceedings were about and Judge Runyon had to call on the court officers to assist him in explaining. When he shouted "sentence suspended" Mohring heard it immediately and made a run for the door.

CONSOLIDATION SETBACK

Now Considered Improbable That Referendum Bills will Reach Legislature.

THE DILLY DALLY POLICY.

Too Late Now to Get Desired Referendum Measures Enacted Before Lawmakers' Adjournment.

Another year must elapse probably before the question of union between Plainfield, Union county, and North Plainfield, Somerset county, is brought before the voters of the two communities for final verdict, it having been practically decided by those having charge of the matter not to introduce the necessary referendum bills in the Legislature during the present session. According to the best of authority it would be practically impossible to have the necessary measures passed by both Senate and House before adjournment particularly inasmuch as public hearings would likely be granted before final action would be taken.

The subject has been hanging fire for some months, in fact since the Bi-municipal Consolidation Commission reported that mature investigation had brought conviction that merger of the two communities only with annexation of North Plainfield to Union county would be desirable. Finally former Judge Gilbert Collins, of Jersey City, was retained to draft the required bills for introduction in the Legislature. Senator Ackerman was chosen to champion them and it soon became known that State Senator Frelinghuysen would use all his influence, rhetoric and logic to prevent their passage. As both Senators will come up for re-election this fall, their friends say that the decision to postpone the fight over the matter relieves a situation embarrassing to both.

Former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, the father of the consolidation scheme, only recently returned from abroad and when he learned that no steps had been taken to introduce the referendum bills he got hard at work. But it is said now that he has been convinced that it would be unwise to go ahead now when it would be next to impossible to get the bills through before Legislature's adjournment.

AMATEUR THEATRICALS BY GIRLS' MISSION BAND

A clever farce, "Lunch in the Suburbs," was presented in the lecture room of the Crescent Avenue church last night by a cast of ten members of the Sunshine Mission Band of the church. A capacity audience greeted the players, who developed some commendable amateur talent by the interpretation of their lines. Nearly $100 was netted as a result of the affair, and the money will be sent to girls' schools in Syria and the Philippine Islands, to which the band makes regular contributions.

The lines of the play were unusually clever, presenting many ludicrous situations evolving during a luncheon tendered by a suburban woman to a party of intimate friends from the metropolis. The part of "Mrs. Jenkens," the hostess, was taken by Miss Mildred Brownlee, while Miss Janet Lane, as "Kitty," her daughter, helped her receive and entertain at table her guests. The visitors included "Mrs. Brown," Gladys Chase; "Mrs. Montstuart," Miss Beatrice Hedges; "Mrs. Page," Miss Dorothy Parvin; Mrs. Lawson," Miss Frances Zelie; "Mrs. Jenkens, the hostess' mother-in-law," Miss Carolyn Ross, and "Mrs. Martin," Miss Dorothy Lyon. Miss Lyon, as the last named guest, is in the role of a deaf woman, and added much to the interpretation of her lines by some cleverly adapted stage business.

At the conclusion of the dramatics, home made candy was offered for sale at a prettily decorated booth, where Miss Agnes Scribner presided, assisted by the Misses Helen Terry, Louise Paterson, Margaret and Mildred Miller, and Margaret Hutchinson. The success of the production was in a large measure due to the coaching of Miss Elsie Goddard and Miss Helen Brown. Miss Harriet Goddard is president of the Band, which numbers thirty members.

Miss Kingslow's Funeral.

The funeral of Miss Bessie Louise Kingslow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Kingslow, of West Fourth street, who died Wednesday night, will be held in the Mount Olive Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

James Clawson, of Park avenue, who has been spending a part of the winter at Weirsdale, Fla., returned home yesterday.

ROOSEVELT TO ANSWER PASTOR

Notifies Dr. Scudder, Critic of Governor, that He Will Send Reply Soon.

Jersey City, March 27.—Rev. Dr. John L. Scudder, pastor of the First Congregational church, this city, yesterday morning received a reply to the letter he sent to President Roosevelt, in which he condemned Governor Fort for opposing the Crosby local option bill after it was introduced in the House, and predicted the defeat of the Governor if he is named for Republican Vice-President of the United States. The President states that he will answer Dr. Scudder's communication as soon as possible.

Dr. Scudder does not think much of the new local option bill, which was presented to the legislators on Tuesday by Assemblyman Buck, of Cumberland county, after it was handed to him by Superintendent Burke, of the Anti-Saloon League. In discussing it Dr. Scudder said:

"The new local option bill is, in my judgment, a weak measure, but it is so near nothing that I would not be surprised to see the present Legislature pass it."

To Push Bills Along.

A few minutes before the House adjourned for the week, yesterday afternoon, Majority Leader Martin offered a resolution that the rule under which bills may be held for one day before going to the Senate after passing the House, be suspended for the rest of the session and be sent over immediately instead. The resolution was adopted. Mr. Martin stated afterward that he had no particular bills in mind, but was simply following custom.

Truant Officer Stell Out.

After a conference the Jersey City Board of Education at midnight last night went into open meeting and, after dismissing Charles Stell, who had been truant officer for several years, appointed Joseph Blease in his place. The vote was 7 to 6 in each case. There was strong opposition to Blease's appointment, due to the fact that he was formerly engaged in the saloon business. He is a Democrat. Stell is a Fagan Republican.

Missing Bayonne Girl Located.

Bayonne, March 27.—Grace Bloodgood, thirteen years old, who disappeared from her home, at 39 North Forthy-ninth street, March 2, was located yesterday living with an aunt in East Orange. The police have been seeking some trace of her. A few days after her disappearance her sister Pearl received a note from Jersey City, saying the girl was in a resort there. Detective Griffin went to Jersey City and disproved the statement.

To Discuss Convention Hall.

Atlantic City, March 27.—The erection of a convention hall, to cost $450,000, promoted by the Business Men's League, will be decided tomorrow, when the question will come up before the organized merchants. The building considered will have a seating capacity of 15,000.

Little Hurt by Long Fall.

Jersey City, March 27.—While at play yesterday Henry Tillson, seventeen years old, of 106 Zabriskie street, fell seventy-five feet from the Palisades and escaped serious injury. He suffered only from cuts about the head.

BOMB WRECKS A MILL AND HURTS EMPLOYES.

Hampton Junction, March 27.—A dynamite bomb was exploded at the Hampton Shoddy Mills, at New Hampton, two miles from here, yesterday, and several employes sustained minor injuries and a building containing a grinding machine and engine was destroyed.

The building and machinery were blown in all directions and the fragments struck several employes working in other buildings. No one was in the building when it was wrecked.

A former employes of the company has been arrested.

Evolution.

In the days when the higher education of women provoked more discussion than it does at the present time, a number of Cambridge University men—among them Arthur Clement Hilton, who was born a wit and died a clergyman—were discussing the establishment of women's colleges.

Hilton, says his biographer, Sir Robert Edgecumbe, expressed himself in favor of the movement.

"Of course, he said, "when women get their gegrees they will not be Bachelors but Spinsters of Art, and then after a while they will proceed to the degree of M. A.—MA."—Youth's Companion.

Careless Actor Starts a Fire.

Bayonne, March 27.—The carelessness of an actor nearly caused a serious fire at the Bayonne theatre last night. Just as the final curtain fell a performer threw a lighted cigar stump into a pile of scenery and there was a quick blaze. The audience had started to depart and there was no panic. The blaze was put out with an extinguisher. Three months ago a blaze at this theatre did $5,000 damage.

Suspect Gets Away from Policeman.

Rahway, March 27.—Policeman Michael J. Healey saw a negro loitering around the depot last night and later, seeing the negro walking up the track, he hailed him to stop. The man started to run but Healey caught him at Poplar street. The man, however, slipped out of his coat and got away. A search of the coat showed $10.40 loose in a pocket.

Want Subway to Bayonne.

Bayonne, March 27.—A communication from the Seventh Ward Civic Improvement Association of Jersey City was received yesterday by the Bayonne Civic Federation, in which the latter is asked to aid in the efforts to have a subway built from lower Jersey City to Bergen Point. The federation meets April 6.

Disguised Herself at a Man.

Trenton, March 27.—Disguised as a man, wearing her husband's clothes, Mrs. Ida Walters, of 909 Beatty street, yesterday administered a beating to Mrs. Margaret Selah, a neighbor. Mrs. Walters was fined $5 later by Police Judge Rees. Her husband paid the fine.

Increase Township Committees.

Assemblyman Carleton C. Pierce, of Cranford, introduced a bill in the lower house on Wednesday, permitting the legal voters of townships, by referendum, to increase the membership of township committees from three to five members.

PECULIAR PROPERTIES OF NEW MEDICINE

Cooper Preparation Attracts Widespread Attention by Expelling Internal Parasites.

The interest created in leading cities during the past year by young Mr. Cooper with his new preparation, is largely accounted for by a peculiar quality possessed by this medicine, which he calls his New Discovery.

Mr. Cooper believes that internal parasites, or tapeworms, are responsible for much ill health, and it is an undoubted fact that his medicine has expelled immense numbers of these creatures in various cities visited by him. The young man also believes that stomach trouble is the main cause of all ill health. He claims that few can have poor health with a good digestion. He further claims that his Discovery medicine does nothing but tone up the stomach, yet it not only expels the parasites, but relieves many other ailments not as a rule associated with stomach trouble.

Little Jessie Birdsall, daughter of Mrs. Ida Birdsall, living at 2138 Carroll Avenue, Chicago, is among many relieved of a large parasite by Mr. Cooper's preparation during his stay in that city. In speaking of the matter to Mr. Cooper, the mother said: "My child Jessie, who is fourteen years old, has been suffering with this trouble for over seven years. Until this morning we did not know what the trouble was. She was extremely nervous; the least little thing would upset her; her tongue was coated, and at times she would have a good appetite, then again could not bear the sight of food; she was restless at night, had a bad breath, especially when she got up of mornings. We tried everything to relieve her, but met with no success. We were just on the point of having to give anything else, when we began to read of Cooper's New Discovery. Several days [illegible] this medicine. Jessie [illegible] it regularly, and the morning this parasite left her system. I don't wonder that she has always felt bad, and nothing we would give her seemed to relieve her. Now that she is relieved of this tapeworm I feel sure that she will grow better each day, and enjoy perfect health. Mr. Cooper, your medicine is worth a thousand times more than you charge for it. I know of a number of people troubled the same way as Jessie has been, and I certainly expect to tell them personally to try your medicine."

We would advise anyone who has been troubled for some time with general poor health to try this great medicine. We are agent for it in this city.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

Concerning the Retirement of Wm. T. Rae & Co., and of the Continuance of the Business under the Proprietorship of

C. M. SANFORD

(Formerly with Messrs. J. Wiss & Sons.)

After Fifty years of active business life, the firm of Wm. T. Rae & Co. has retired.

With its passing into history goes a reputation for sterling integrity, reliability and honesty such as few concerns can boast of, and which it will be my earnest endeavor to maintain.

In announcing my advent into this business and continuing that of Messrs. Rae & Co., there are several facts which I wish to make public, namely:

(1) That it will ever be my purpose to live up to and not "on" the reputation which the house of Rae & Co. has established.

(2) That my stock of Diamonds and other Precious Stones, Gold Jewelry and Clocks will not only be as varied and comprehensive as that of any other Newark store of this character, but absolutely dependable and moderately priced as well.

(3) That I shall offer an Optical Service second to none in the city. This department, while under my personal supervision and direction, will be in charge of a skilled Eye Sight Specialist —W. E. Small, Ref. D.

(4) That Watch and Jewelry Repairing shall constitute an important part of my business, and that all such work entrusted to me will be executed satisfactorily and promptly by experts whose qualifications are the best.

To serve you faithfully and well and merit your good-will and patronage is my desire.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Joseph Truitt, of Greenbrook road, has entirely recovered from a tedious illness.

Edwin H. Marshall, of Verdon street, is kept at home with an attack of the mumps.

E. B. Maynard, of North avenue, is detained at home with an attack of bronchitis and asthma.

Mrs. Robert Rushmore, of West Eighth street, has returned from a delightful sojourn at "The Homestead," Hot Springs, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bushnell, of Pittsburg, are visiting Mrs. Bushnell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Martin, of Hillside avenue.

Miss Florence Smalley, of Jackson avenue, who is a student at the State Normal School, Trenton, has been visiting her home for a few days.

Miss Mabel C. Trembath, a teacher in the North Plainfield Grammar School, has returned to her duties, having recovered from a recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Reynolds, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Waring, on Park avenue, have returned to Orange.

President R. I. Tolles, of the Common Council, who has been suffering a severe attack of rheumatism, is much improved and is able to be out again.

Mrs. Herbert S. Guinn, of South avenue, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Hugh Aikman, of Brooklyn, sailed Wednesday for Jamaica.

W. V. Mundy, of Duer street, who recently underwent an operation at the hospital for the amputation of his leg, continues to improve steadily and he hopes to return home within a short time.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet tonight for Bible study.

The McAll Auxiliary will hold its monthly meeting at the Public Library on Wednesday morning, April 1, at 11 o'clock.

An inquirers' meeting will be held at the Park Avenue Baptist church tonight, when it is expected that several persons will present themselves for membership.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church will hold a Chinese reception at the church this afternoon. There will be a musical program and Miss Grace Carter, of Montclair, will make an address and show Chinese curios.

STEEL WORKS ENEMIES ACCUSED OF DYNAMITING.

Perth Amboy, March 27.—Chief of Police Burke yesterday quoted one of the officials of the Pennsylvania Steel Companys as saying that he believed the dynamiting of the Raritan river bridge between this city and South Amboy Tuesday night to have been done by enemies of the steel company who have been harrassing it for several years. This is the company which has been building the bridge.

The steel company has employed non-union help for a long time and the chief says that the official of the company thought that the troubles which the company had several years ago with union men had its sequel in the recent outrage. This is not the first bridge being built by the company that has been wrecked. The Pennsylvania Railroad bridge over the Hackensack was similarly dynamited about two years ago, but the damage done by the explosion was comparatively slight.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR NEGRO BURGLAR.

New York, March 27.—After having been convicted of a burglary, William Clark, thirty-five years of age, a negro, was yesterday sentenced to the State prison for life by Judge Foster in the General Sessions.

Clark was convicted of robbing the apartments of Mrs. Ida Clark last September after he had brutally assaulted the woman. In 1897 Clark was sentenced to two years in State prison and five years later got six years and six months.

The prisoner addressed the court, saying he was innocent of the charge on which he had just been convicted. At the close of his speech Judge Foster declared that if there had been any doubt in his mind as to the negro's guilt the latter's speech had removed it.

BIG BOND PROJECT.

Would Allow $3,000,000 Issue by Newark for Repaving.

Under the provisions of a bill introduced in the Assembly yesterday afternoon by Assemblyman Valente, of Hudson, Newark might issue bonds to the extent of $3,000,000 for the repavement of paved streets, while Jersey City might issue them to the extent of $2,500,000, and Hoboken to the extent of $650,000. The bill simply provides that the bond issue for such purpose shall not exceed $10 for each inhabitant.

Mr. Valente said that he did not know the object of the bill, but would look it up before the measure went to second reading.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The annual championship tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association will be held over the links of the Essex County Country Club on May 26, 27, 28 and 29. These dates, selected at a recent meeting of the executive committee of the association, fall the week after the men's metropolitan tourney at Baltusrol.

It will be the first time in several years that the women's championship has not conflicted with the men's. Miss Georgianna Bishop, of the Brooklawn Country Club, is the champion at present, but it is not known whether or not she will be able to defend her title, as she intends to spend the greater part of the season with relatives in the West.

It has been decided to hold the annual championship tournament of the Women's Eastern Golf Association on the links of the Oakley Country Club on June 9 and 10. This competition will, as usual, consist of thirty-six holes, medal play. Last spring Miss Mary B. Adams, of Boston, won the title after a sensational play-off of a tie with Miss Fanny C. Osgood, the former champion.

Immediately following the Eastern championship and over the same course, the tri-city competition for the Griscom trophy will claim attention. Last year the Boston women won the trophy.

Wallace F. Sinclair, the former South Orange golfer, has returned to this vicinity after an absence of nearly three years. Sinclair was runner-up to John M. Ward in the New Jersey State Golf Association championship tournament at the North Jersey Country Club in 1905.

Report has it that Miss Elizabeth Hurry, of New York, has been playing at the top of her game in California. The Apawamis and Englewood golfer will probably prove one of the most consistent point winners on the metropolitan team during the ensuing season.

BASEBALL.

The report that Clifford Randolph, the slab artist for the Clinton Avenues, has a sore arm, is said to be untrue. He is said to be in fine condition.

Walter Nelson, of New Market, the former crack catcher for Rutgers College, has signed with Bridgeport, of the Connecticut State League, and will undoubtedly make good.

John J. Kenney, at one time the leading baseball crank in the city, has announced his intention of seeing the opening game at American League Park, this season, as the guest of "Willie" Keeler.

The local baseball season will begin during the early part of May, according to the custom of former years.

The New York American League club has moved its office to 320 Fifth avenue.

Jimmy Shekard is captaining the wrold's champions in the absence of Chance.

Hobe Ferris seems to be adapting himself to third base all right in the Browns' games in the South.

George Upp, the new pitcher of the Reds, is said to have a quick motion that is very much Patsy Flaherty.

A contributor submits that "after many years of raising the dickens Hans Wagner now is raising chickens." True, but as poetry very much bush league.

Sam Crawford was largely responsible for Ty Cobb's coming to terms with Detroit. Fielding Yost, the Michigan football coach, also helped persuade Tyrus to sign.

A cinnamon bear mascot has been presented to the Cubs in Jackson, Miss. It is all the more valuable because it escaped a recent raid of note on the Southern canebrakes.

The Detroit Club has taken out accident insurance policies on twenty members of the team for $10,000 apiece. The policies run until the end of the championship season.

Arrangements have been completed between the New York club and the Yale and Fordham managements whereby the Yale-Fordham game on April 4 will be played at the Polo Grounds.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Edward Wilson, colored, of Millville, was held under $300 bail by Recorder Brown, of Vineland, yesterday, on a charge of stealing a bicycle.

Daniel Marquette, of Mantua, who was injured in a runaway last Monday, died from his injuries yesterday. Coroner Hunter gave a certificate of accidental death.

A spade with a gilded handle and tied with red, white and blue ribbons was used yesterday by Rev. Peter J. Petri, of the Chelsea Catholic church, near Atlantic City, when he turned the first sod for a new parochial school to be finished by September 1.

The body of the young man found in the Delaware river on Tuesday is still at the Camden morgue unidentified. In fact, no one has yet applied for permission to see the body, which, because of the publicity given the case, leads the authorities to believe that the man was from a distant point.

The large steam sawmill belonging to Jacob Hitchner, at Malaga, about five miles from Clayton, was burned to the ground yesterday, entailing a loss of over $3,000, with no insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown. About twenty men are thrown out of work.

Camden Lodge of Elks last night elected these officers: Exalter ruler, John H. Switzer; esteemed leading knight, E. Wilmer Collins; esteemed loyal knight, Louis Leigh; esteemed lecturing knight, Albert Austermuhl; secretary, J. Fred Newton; treasurer, Edward H. Saunders; tiler, Allen Jarvis.

Detected in an attempted robbery of Benjamin Bonham's grocery store at Bridgeton last night, the thief tried to escape in the team of Dr. Elton Corson, who was attending a patient in East Bridgeton. The city authorities, after a chase of five miles, captured the thief. He was committed to the county jail, after giving his name as Harry O'Connor.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"A Soldier of the Cross," Eugene Thomas' new religious drama, is the vehicle in which Messrs. Cohan and Harris will present Thomas E. Shea at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night, in conjunction with a special performance of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." The new play, with its scene in the ancient city of Pompeii, depicts the conflict of the first followers of Christ with Imperial Rome at the time of the great eruption of Vesuvius. The author, it is said, has not hesitated to avail himself of the melodramatic material that is the real historic background for the struggles of the early Christians. The period of Roman persecution and Christian martyrdom, rich in itself with a world of sensational data, has furnished for the dramatist enough thrilling episodes without once ever exceeding the bounds of probability. On the other hand Mr. Shea is happy in asserting that "A Soldier of the Cross" has kept free from the contamination of the sensualism that has been so often employed in the religious drama to obtain the so-called effects by contrast. Cohan and Harris have spared neither time nor expense to make the tour of Thomas E. Shea both a financial and artistic success. Every scenic effect in detail for each of the plays is carried, so that the different productions will be up to the usual Cohan and Harris standard. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" has been provided throughout with newly acquired productions, and has been embellished to such an extent that two special baggage cars are necessary for traveling. The dramatic personnel has been carefully organized, many of whom are well-known players.

MEN'S CLUB MUSICALE PROVES HIGHLY PLEASING

The musicale given at the First Presbyterian church last night under the auspices of the Men's Club of the congregation, attracted a large audience appreciative of the genuinely artistic work of the artists and the well-selected program. Joseph McIntyre was at the piano, Sigmund Culp the violinist and Miss Anna Lucretia Case the soprano.

The program comprised three numbers in part first and four in part second, but the audience was so enthusiastic that an encore was requested and generously given after each number. The work of Mr. McIntyre at the piano and Mr. Culp as violinist was a revelation to many and the hearty applause given was evidence of the true appreciation. As soprano, Miss Case sang in her best style. In part first her number was aria from "Romeo and Juliette," Gounod, and as an encore she sang "Annie Laurie." In part second she sang the last number, "The Minstrel," with violin obligato. The sweetness and strength of her pleasing voice was never heard to better advantage.

Mr. McIntyre opened the program with "Rhapsodie No. 8," Liszt, and in this difficult number as well as the succeeding ones, his complete mastery of the piano was displayed in brilliant fashion. In part two he gave two numbers, "Caprice," and "Valse de Concert," by Joseffy, and they aroused the greatest enthusiasm of the audience, which called for an encore.

The appearance of Mr. Culp, whose work as a violinist, has won fame for him in this country as well as abroad, was a noteworthy event. He played "Rondo Capriccioso," Saint-Saens, and the delightful "Fantasie," from Faust," together with encores. His renditions brought forth warm praise and he carried off a good measure of the success attending the musicale.

The program follows:

"Rhapsodie No. 8," Liszt, Mr. McIntyre; "Rondo Capriccioso," Saint-Saens, Mr. Culp; aria from "Romeo and Juliette," Gounod, Miss Case; "Caprice," and "Valse de Concert," Joseffy, Mr. McIntyre; "Faust," "Fantasie," Sarasate, Mr. Culp; "The Minstrel," (with violin obligato), Hildach, Miss Case, Mr. McIntyre and Mr. Culp.

Plainfield Legion Elects.

Plainfield Legion, No. 435, National Protective Society, elected these officers last night: Worthy past president, Horace J. Martin; worthy president, James E. Church; vice-president, Wallace Bell; secretary, Arthur C. Hunting; treasurer, Miss Bertha C. Fischer; chaplain, Mrs. Myra W. Hunting; conductor, Miss Helen V. Murphy; guard, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Seidel; sentinel, George C. Church; pianist, Mrs. Ida J. Petit; assistant pianist, Miss Loretta G. Clawson; trustees, Horace J. Martin; degree master, Alfred Seidel. The officers will be installed at the regular April meeting. James E. Church was chosen as a delegate to attend the special session of the National Legion to be held at Buffalo, April 23.

P. H. S. Baseball Tomorrow.

The Plainfield High School baseball nine will open the season on Crescent Oval tomorrow with a game with the Mono A. C. As far as possible all members of the school squad will be given a try-out in the course of the game. Captain Chauncey Murphey put the candidates through a fast practise on the Oval diamond this afternoon and the material is rounding into good shape.

panies, amounts to over $122,000,000. In other words anything which adversely affects the prosperity of the semi-public corporations, imperils the savings banks and their depositors, fire and life insurance companies and the policy holders. Therefore the true and final interest of the people, rich and poor alike, who rely on the solvency of the institutions named are best served with caution and wisdom on the deep and far reaching question of the rate-making power.

"The business machinery of the country is very delicate and easily disorganized which statement is emphasized by the shrinkage of nearly $2,000,000,000 in market value of securities during the general depression from which we are slowly recovering. The fact that rats and mice are found in a house does not give sufficient reason for burning the house—the thing to do is to catch them.

"Proper legislation covering the operations of the Public Utility companies of the State must conserve and protect the millions invested and the millions paid in wages to those engaged in the industries—also the commerce, health and life of the people who send freights, who use water, gas and electricty—and who travel over the railroads of the State. This question is very deep and far reaching, involving the problems of economics.

"Regarding the power of rate fixing I advance the following suggestions:

"First. Placing the power of fixing of all rates in a Board of Commissioners is practically so unlimited as to amount to a change in the relationship of government to property.

"Second. The evils complained of are not and have not been so incurable as to demand for a remedy a change in the relationship of government to property.

"Third. The partly accomplished and continued suggestions of a further change in the relationship of government to property are resonsible for the inability of railroads to obtain new capital for investment.

"Fourth. The stopping of rebates and discriminations and the correcting of financial methods produce beneficial results which are warmly welcomed by investors.

"Fifth. Among the investors are life and fire insurance companies, savings banks, trustees and executors of estates, widows and orphans, whose investments in the securities of public utility companies foot up in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

"Sixth. There are millions paid in wages to the thousands of employes (about 50,000 in New Jersey), which in turn are widely distributed among the different industries.

"Seventh. The question of rate-making is so far-reaching that it should not be entrusted to any commission except as a last resort and when everything else has failed.

"Eighth. Conditions surrounding the industry of transportation have been better in the United States than elsewhere and therefore the grounds for complaint have not been as great as in other countries.

"Ninth. We must stand by the Republican State platform on the question of supervision of public utility corporations with a view of increasing the efficiency, safety and economy of service in the interests of the people.

"Tenth. If we attempt to fix the price of the finished product of public utility corporations, should we not be willing to have the State guarantee their credit in the securing of new capital and arrange to protect the employes in case State government rate-making should not prove profitable."

Pythian Memorial Service.

Joint committees from Perseverance and Unity lodges, K. of P., will meet tonight to arrange for the annual memorial service of the lodgemen. Perseverance will be represented by V. W. Nash, Jr., B. J. Schreiner and Robert Gow, and Amos Andrews, Jeremiah Van Winkle, Jr., and Frank Putnam from the committee from Unity Lodge.

For Girls' Championship.

The girls' basketball team of the East Orange High School will play the Plainfield High School girls' five at the local school auditorium tomorrow afternoon. The game will decide the girls' scholastic championship of the State, for the East Orange five recently defeated the Newark High School five, who claimed the title.

Planning Active Campaign.

The colored Republican Club recently organized, met at Reform Hall, last night, and transacted routine business. Plans are being formed to conduct an active campaign among the colored voters.

Sale of New Spring Suits
Ladies' and Misses' 18.00 to 20.00 New Spring Suits at -:-12.50-:-

This is the most extraordinary early spring sale announced by any store this season and includes 250 of the choicest garments ever offered, even at regular prices.

There are ten of the smartest spring styles in this collection—materials are fine serges, plain and fancy panama and plenty of light and dark fancy mixtures in checks and stripes. The up-to-date styles include 27-inch box front coats, Prince Chap, single breasted, chic-cut-aways and very clever three-button effects.

You are sure to like the skirts for they are made according to the very latest full-plaited patterns, made with folds of same material, 2 to 5 inches wide.

Don't miss this, for such an economy event does not very often present itself at so opportune a time.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Word was received yesterday of the death of John Cooper, for many years a well-known resident of the borough, who passed away at the home of his son in Port Reading yesterday morning. The body will be brought to Dunellen for the funeral services, which will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock at St. John's church. The interment will be at St. Mary's cemetery, Plainfield.

Dr. T. J. Logan, of New Market, will open offices in the Kuldoshes building about the first of the month. Mr. Logan has been a resident of New Market for about a year past, having formerly practised dentistry at Weehawken Heights.

The Women's Bible Class of Holy Innocent's church held a regular meeting at the church yesterday afternoon, at which Mrs. A. S. Phelps presided. The meeting was followed by a Lenten service and address by the pastor.

P. H. Herkstroter has gone to Chatham, N. Y., where he is now in charge of a large produce farm. His family will move to Chatham to join him in about a week.

Miss Gertrude Robbins, of the New Market public school factulty, is the guest of friends in Chicago, Ill., this week.

Edward Maurer is now a full-fledged motorist, having purchased a big two-cylinder touring car.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

George Arrowsmith has sufficiently recovered to return to his work in the coal storage grounds.

Miss Jennie McGeagin, of Elizabeth, is spending a few weeks with Mrs. Patrick F. Kane.

Miss Sadie Schenck, of Oak Tree road, is ill with pneumonia.

BOROUGH MAYOR URGES FREEHOLDERS TO ACT.

Urging their support of the petitions introduced by the North Plainfield Council for the macadamizing of Rock avenue and Watchung avenue, near the borough limits, Mayor Samuel Townsend had a session with members of the County Board in the North Plainfield Council Chamber Wednesday and set the proposition before them for approval. The freeholders present included Andrew Lutkins and Wiliam Demler. Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley and Chief Howard Woolston, of the North Plainfield fire department, were also at the conference.

Mr. Townsend strongly emphasized the feeling of the local Council that the county should make some return as a benefit for the tax money paid in every year for the maintenance of roads. He stated that for some time past the borough money has been used for road maintenance and said that it is now "up to the freeholders." The petitions call for the macadamizing of Watchung avenue from the borough limits to its intersection with Somerset street, and for the macadamizing of Rock avenue from near Greenbrook road to Somerset street. It is claimed that these improvements will open up the borough to the "over-the-mountain" boroughs by giving several highways to North Plainfield in place of only Somerset street.

The freeholders have already received the petitions from the North Plainfield Council, but would not act on them because they were not legally framed. They have been sent back and will be drawn up correctly at the next meeting. The freeholders would not pledge themselves to support the measures, but seemed favorably impressed with the proposition.

SIC FAMA AD ASTRA; ANECDOTE ON DREW

The chef d'oeuvre of anecdotes, characteristic of John Drew, has just come to light apropos of Miss Louise Drew's present part of "Miss Minety" in the new Ethel Barrymore play, "Her Sister." Miss Drew first saw the manuscript of her part when she was one of the party that accompanied her father on the automobile tour through Italy last summer. Mrs. Drew was also of the party. As Charles Frohman had promised to dispatch the manuscript to Miss Drew as soon as it was put into form, careful pains were taken everywhere by the party to leave specific addresses for forwarding all mail from town to town.

From Saranto to Orsant is one of the finest tours known to any Italian traveler. It winds itself along a devious course, affording the most delightful, because the most unexpected, glimpses of the Mediterranean. It was this trip that Mr. Drew's family had taken when it was decided to stop at Orsanto, where a rest might be had and where perhaps the delayed mails might catch them. Orsanto has, upon one of its hillsides, one of the most picturesque of Italian inns. It is conducted by a father and a son.

Addressing the son, in "his best Italian," Mr. Drew ordered lunch for the party and especially some fresh milk for Miss Drew. Something was muttered by the waiter as he served the lunch, but thinking it a bit of local obscure Italian, the remark went unanswered. Then it was that Miss Drew discovered the milk to be quite warm. The waiter was recalled and requested once more "in Mr. Drew's best Italian," to serve some ice.

The amazement of the party is better imagined than described when the waiter replied in emphatic "American English:"

"Why, boss, you might as well ask for a gold mine in this country as a chunk of ice."

Father and son, it turned out, had lived for years in New Orleans; had made their fortune there and returned to Italy to buy out the little inn that, from the earliest days, had always been the object of their greatest envy.

The men tremendously interested Mr. Drew, who immediately felt kindly towards him, and, in fact, invited him to look him up if ever he came to New York.

"And your name?" said the innkeeper.

"Why, John Drew," was the answer.

"Oh, yes, I know you," the fellow said. And Mr. Drew waited to hear his name connected with one of his more famous characterizations.

"Yes, I remember your name," continued the innkeeper, in all seriousness. "You run a cigar factory over there, don't you?"

And visions of his bete noir, the signs painted "John Drew Five Cent Cigar," floated before the eyes of the star of "My Wife."

AMUSEMENTS.

Into its sixth great week, "Paid In Full," enters at the Astor theatre, Monday night, Wagenhals and Kemper have in this new play by Eugene Walter, the dramatic sensation of the current season and from present indications it is destined to run at this high speed through the summer months. In the triumph of "Paid In Full" there is a reward for daring, unconventionality, striking originality, for Walter copied no one in his method and as a result he has been acclaimed the author of the hour. In the entire four acts there is not a dull moment, nor is there a single moment when the auditor can really guess what is going to occur next. Mr. Walter takes his auditors wholly by surprise at every angle and it is this surprise which commends the play to the attention of all virile, forceful men and women. "Paid In Full" is unquestionably a play to be seen for it tells a wholesome, natural story in a most convincing and life-like manner. The Wednesday matinees are continued at popular prices while the Saturday matinees are as usual at night prices.

Barnum & Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth, the coming of which is always a matter of great interest to young and old alike, is doing a unprecedented business at the Madison Square Garden, New York. There are circuses and circuses, but to the New Yorker Barnum & Bailey's circus is the only one, as well as the greatest one, in all of the world. New York loves huge things and so it loves its circus, which, by the way, is the only one that is annually seen in the Empire City. Big as has been the circus during previous years this season it is bigger than ever. As exhibited at the Madison Square Garden it will be the biggest thing of its kind and the world has known. The huge entertainment will mark an epoch in the development of the circus. Rich and glorious in novelties, wonderful acts, sensational feats and thrilling surprises, the circus still finds abundant room for real educational features. No other form of entertainment devised by man makes so many appeals to so many people as does the circus. A city in itself is the circus this season. It contains fifteen hundred people. The menagerie is larger than that possessed by any of the local zoological societies around the country. There are seven hundred horses. The big spectacle, "Cleopatra," with which the circus entertainment opens, calls for a thousand men and women. On the program there are one hundred and ten acts. There are three hundred and fifty performers and they come from all corners of the earth. Twenty-seven different languages are spoken by the people on the roster.

Otis Skinner's Phillipe Bridau in "The Honor of the Family," at the Hudson theatre, is just now being discussed by all theatre-goers who have witnessed this wonderful presentment of the swaggering, devil-may-care Colonel, who takes everybody by storm, not only in his uncle's household, but every one in the big audiences present at each performance of this very attractive Potter play. All New York is unanimous in their praise of this wonderful piece of character acting as represented by Mr. Skinner and that "The Honor of the Family" will be seen at the Hudson until late spring there now seems little doubt. The splendid cordiality of Mr. Skinner's auditors is illustrated at each performance by rounds of applause after each curtain and seldom is a performance played through without a veritable ovation for the star who, although holding the curtain speech in great disfavor, is compelled to come before the footlights with a word of thanks, in order that the play may go on.

"Every one who can possibly go so owes it to himself to see David Warfield in 'A Grand Army Man,'" says the Middletown (N. Y.) Press. William Winter in the New York Tribune: "Mr. Keenan's performance at the Belasco theatre as Gen. Warren in 'The Warrens of Virginia' is one of the worthiest and most admirable impersonations that have been seen in this city of late years, and no lover of the art of acting could fail to appreciate it or should miss the opportunity of seeing it. The representation as a whole," adds the distinguished critic, "is prominent among the best now visible in New York." David Belasco's beautiful setting of "The Warrens of Virginia" in the Belasco theatre, coupled with the strong work of Charlotte Walker and Frank Keenan as Agatha Warren and Gen. Buck Warren respectively, may be counted on to attract audiences for weeks to come. Out-of-town playgoers appear to like the special Thursday matinees.

Spring Clothes
Different from the Ordinary

Easter is drawing near, besides every day now makes the Winter Suit and Overcoat more burdensome, and there's no good reason why you shouldn't have both a New Spring Suit and Overcoat just when you need them.

Young men of pronounced ideas look for distinctiveness as well as for exceptional quality, and in M. & B. Garments they find both. The more modest dresser is also able to satisfy his fancy among the conservative models.

Our New Spring Suits and Overcoats depart from last season's style in coloring as well as design, the brighter patterns taking precedence. They're cut along the most approved lines, yet exhibit touches of tailoring skill which individualize them.

Spring Suits, Overcoats and Raincoats, $12 to $35.

Spring Suits and Overcoats for Boys

Our provision of Spring Garments for youngsters of every age is extraordinary in both character and assortment.

The new patterns are unusually attractive, and our tailors have crowded into them more style and goodness than is ordinarily seen in Boys' Clothing. Yet every mother of a boy may gratify her wish here without feeling a strain on the purse.

Boys' Spring Suits and Overcoats, $3 to $16

NIGHT SONG BY THE SEA.

Wind and rain are at the pane,
Shrilling, drumming without cease;
And the breakers' loud refrain
Gives the shuddering heart no peace.
Lord of all the things that be,
Pity thou the souls at sea!

Snugly roofed with warmth and glow,
And encompossed soft by sleep,
Little we land-dwellers know
Of the terrors of the deep.
Lord, in thy sweet charity,
Pity thou the souls at sea!

On the smiling face of morn
Sure are we to gaze again;
What of those poor waifs forlorn
Furrowing the untracked main?
Lord, in their dire need of Thee,
Pity thou the souls at sea!

Although riven be the rail,
Snapped the shroud and rent the mast,
May they into harbor sail,
All their perils over-past!
Lord, in Thy compassion, be Pilot to the souls at sea!
—Clinton Scollard, in The Independent.

Motor Boat Disease.

New occupations and recreations are known to have developed a variety of new diseases, and now De Forest, a French surgeon, has called attention to a form of accident peculiar to those who use motor boats. The machinery often starts suddenly and rapidly after a hitch in its working, at which time the handle of the heavy balance wheel is very liable to strike the operator before he can get out of the way. The result is usually a fracture of the bones of fingers, wrist or forearm, sometimes of the leg, and the blow is so sudden and violent that the breaks are quite unlike those from falls or other ordinary accident, more resembling those from large calibre projectiles without the penetrating effects. The bone fractures at the point of impact instead of at its weakest part.

Preserving Marine Specimens.

To the Museums Journal Dr. H. C. Sorby contributes a paper on the best means of preserving marine invertebrates for museum purposes in such a manner that their natural coloring will be retained. As regards his own private collection, the author finds anhydrous glycerin—covered, when necessary, with a layer of almond oil—the most satisfactory medium, some specimens which have been preserved in this manner for fully five years displaying their tints with even more than normal brilliancy. The chief difficulty in the case of museum specimens would be in the use of large rectangular vessels, owing to danger of leakage.

"Barbarities" in Fashion.

One hears, with interest, of captain artistic evening confections, arranged on strictly classical lines, that depend wholly for their final touch on large barbaric ornaments that ostensibly hold together the draperies of the corsage. In the construction of these beautiful barbarities enamel plays a large part, since their raison d'etre alone depends on color, picked out with great blister and baroque pearls.

Electric Arc Under Water.

Experiment has shown that an electric arc can be employed under water for fusing metal. The intense heat turns the water surrounding the arc into steam, thus forming an insulating cushion of vapor. It has been suggested that with proper apparatus the electric arc could be employed by divers for quickly cutting through large chain cables or iron plates under water.

Don't have too good an opinion of yourself, but insist upon it in others.

It is a good thing to have the friendship of dogs, but don't let them depend upon you for all their bones.

An old bachelor generally thinks he knows everything and eventually marries to prove it.

TOPLESS BODICE.

It is more than decollete.

It's all in the elusive trimming.

The lining is quite up to standard test.

It shows best in a black, preferably spangled.

The black stops two or three inches short of the edge.

This alarming hiatus is filled in with cream tulle, lace or jeweled effects.

Thanks to the arrangement beauty's bodice seems to be open nearly down the belt line back and front.

More startling still the effect is that of a high girdle rather than of a bodice, as the dress material does not reach the height of the shoulder strap.

In short, this mode suggests Venus rising out of her bodice, instead of the time honored sea.

Electricity and Memory.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Society of Canada, Sir James Grant, M. D., presented a paper on the neurons and cells of the brains in their relation to the faculty of memory, and, after stating that, as with the other tissues of the body, so with the cells of the brain, evidence of lessening power and activity appears with the passage of years, he added the very interesting statement that the line of present investigation demonstrates that the electrical current through the brain rotates its molecules to such a degree as to produce a most notable physiological response in the direction of improved memory.

Wireless Telegraphy on Mountains.

The French engineers have lately made successful tests of wireless telegraphy between the lofty observatories on the crown of Mont Blanc and the Valley of Chamonix. It had been feared that the absence of moisture in the frozen surface might interfere with the earth connection, but no such trouble was experienced. The only difficulty arose when the alternating current dynamos of the electric light system in Chamonix were at work. At such times the wireless messages could not be transmitted nor received.

Better Than Scarecrows.

According to recent experiments by Stanilas Tetard, a widely-known French agriculturist, wheat and other cereals can be protected against the ravages of crows, which are particularly fond of the grain when its sprouts are just pushing above the ground, by treating the seeds before they are sown with a mixture of coal tar, petroluem and phenic acid. This treatment, which delays the growth of the seed for a day or two, but causes no damage, imparts an odor which is insufferable to the crows, but which disappears after the sprouts have attained a larger growth, when they are no longer subject to attack.

Gigantic Electric Arc.

An 80,000-volt electrical transformer was recently installed at Butte, Mont., for the local lighting and power company, the distance over which the current is transmitted being 60 miles. During the insulation tests of the transformer the voltage was run up to 160,000 and at this pressure an arc was formed between the ends of the cables and the transformer tank, over a distance of five or six feet. But India rubber disks fixed on the cable terminals prevented the formation of the arc. When 80,000 volts are used there is no brush discharge, and the disks are not needed.

Hydrogen as an Illuminant.

The production of oxygen and hydrogen on an industrial scale by the decomposition of water with electrolytic apparatus in Germany has led to the suggestion that hydrogen thus produced may find a wide field of employment as a lighting agent. It is now used for inflating military balloons. For lighting purposes it is compressed in steel cylinders. With a proper burner it is said to be a cheaper illuminant than acetylene, the relative cost for equal illuminating power being 25 for hydrogen to 50 for acetylene.

Electric Light from Car-Axles.

The "axle-light" system is in use on the trains of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad on an extensive scale. Each car has its own storage batteries supplied with electricity generated by the axles of the wheels, and the locomotive headlights derive their illumination from the same source. It is estimated that each full train, exclusive of the locomotive, develops nearly 5000 candle-power light.

No Reason for Not Fighting.

Jimmy—"You're afraid to fight; that's what it is."

Tommy—"No it isn't, either; but if I do my mother'll know and lick me."

Jimmy—"How'll she find it out, eh?"

Tommy—"She'll see the doctor going to your house."

A Good Reason.

"Why is it you eat so much bread and butter when you are visiting and none at home, Jimmie?"

"'Cause home I know there's something else coming. Visiting, I don't."

"You say the victim was shot in the head?" queried the coroner.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness.

"Previus to the shooting had there been any trouble or threats that would have led the victim to expect the shot?"

"No, sir; I don't think such a thing ever entered his head before."

CHILDREN'S SAYINGS.

A little girl in Camden, surprised her grandma the other night by concluding her prayer with "Amen! Good-night everybody."

"Who do you mean?" asked her grandma.

"Why, God, the angels and everybody up there," was the reply.

A little girl on asking a blessing at a play-table, was heard to say: "O Lord, forgive us for having something to eat."

A very little girl said the other day: "She would like to go to Heaven if it was not so much trouble getting there."

A little boy, 4 years of age, was rebuked one day for swearing. "You swear, papa," was the reply.

"Only when I'm mad," said the father. In less than 10 minutes the little fellow was swearing again, adding by way of explanation: "Well, papa, Ise mad now, Ise mad."

"Tommy," queried small Dorothy, "what is food for thought?"

"I don't know," replied Tommy, "unless it's head cheese."

Mamma—"Why, Elmer, haven't you a kiss for papa when you haven't seen him for two months?"

Elmer (aged 5)—"No, mamma, men don't kiss each other; it looks childish."

Small Eleanor—"Papa, have you paid the doctor for the new baby yet?"

Papa—"No, dear. Why do you ask?"

Small Eleanor—"'Cause if he charges full price I wouldn't pay. It ain't near as big as the one he left next door."

"Johnny," said Johnny's little brother, "a fly is a fly because he flies, isn't he?"

"Yes, that's it."

"And a flea is a flea because he flees, isn't it?"

"Shouldn't wonder."

"Then why are bees bees?"

"Because they be," said Johnny.

Mrs. Naybor—"Why, Katie, you don't bring me over any of that home-made candy you promised me last evenin."

Little Katie—"No'm. It turned out better'n we expected."

Some little while ago a popular writer visited a jail in order to take notes for a magazine article on prison life.

On returning home he described the horrors he had seen, and his description made a deep impression on the mind of his little daughter Mary. The writer and his off-spring a few weeks later were in a train together, which stopped at a station near a gloomy building. A man asked:

"What place is that?"

"The county jail," answered another propmtly.

Whereupon Mary embarrassed her father and aroused the suspicions of the other occupants of the carriage by asking in a loud, shrill voice:

"Is that the jail you were in father?"

THE FOX AND THE 'COON.

How They Manage to Get Through the Winter.

The fox, as cunning as he is, sometimes goes hungry in the winter.

When there is no snow on the ground he depends to a great degree on mice for his food, but now the mice are all safe, so he must sharpen his wits and catch a partridge or rabbit.

Or, dreadful to relate! he may visit the hen-coop. He will even visit the chicken-coop if he gets too hungry.

Down in the deep woods the raccoon is sleeping soundly in a hollow tree.

The raccoon is a real little brother to the bear. He walks like a bear, and he has the same droll countenance.

All through the winter months he sleeps just as the bear does, living on the fat that he stored up in the autumn when food was plenty.

COIFFURE DECKING.

There's the comet aigrette.

It shouts straight from the forehead.

It streams very violently backward.

There are tinsel ornaments in silver and gold.

There are flowers and foliage in the greatest variety.

Jeweled ornaments in wing shapes are in very high favor.

Bandeaux, rosettes and bow-knots are seen on many heads.

Ribbon fillets are charming on young brows of a classic mould.

A Deducted Kitten.

Miriam had asked her mother for the meaning of the word deducted, and had received for reply: "It means taken away." The next morning she came in with a rueful face and said: "Mamma, the old cat has deducted one of her kittens."

The Little Brown Bulbs.

The little brown bulbs went to sleep
In the ground,
In their little brown nighties they slept very sound;
And winter he raged and he roared overhead,
But never a bulb turned over in bed.
But when spring came tip-toeing over the lea,
Her finger on lip, just as still as could be,
The little brown bulbs at her very first tread
All split up their nighties and jumped out of bed!

MR. SHEA APPEARS IN GREAT DRAMA TONIGHT

In the stupendous, spectacular, Roman-religio play, "A Soldier of the Cross," which Cohan & Harris will present at the New Plainfield theatre this evening and tomorrow afternoon, Thomas E. Shea, an actor of unusual attainments, affords the theatre-goers of our day one of those rare opportunities of witnessing what might be called a big, clean, thrilling play, and one in which the eye as well as the ear is pleased.

Ajax, the role of a gladiator which Mr. Shea portrays, is one that requires years of careful training combined with a splendid physique and an intimate knowledge of stage detail and technique. The story of the play is an almost historical recital of the persecutions of the Christians in the early ages, and it has been said by no less an authority than a Bishop in a large western city, where the play was performed, that he "never heard and certainly never preached a sermon that carried such tremendous force and conviction with it and one that stirred the heart as well as the mind."

The comments from the larger cities have been most laudatory, and the scenic features of the play, both mechanical and electrical, are said to be really startling. An eruption and earthquake in the last act are acknowledged to be magnificent specimens of modern stage picture.

Tomorrow night Mr. Shea will play "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," a powerful play of dual personality, which has been in his repertoire for many years, and which will likely remain there for many to come.

S.P.C.A. COMMITTEE'S PLANS FOR FOUNTAINS

It is the desire of the members of the fountain committee of the Plainfield branch of the Society Prevention Cruelty to Animals that one, at least, of the fountains to be erected in this city, be of more ornate character than the others, and that an attractive site be selected for it. Such a fountain, it is believed, would be a monument in the streets of this otherwise beautified city, which until now is remarkably lacking in monumental adornment. But aside from the beauty of such a fountain, it would confer an inestimable blessing upon those humble servants of man—the horses—especially during the hot summer months, when but few opportunities are afforded them to quench their thirst, on their rounds through the streets. The drivers of local vehicles, and those from outside are now thrown back upon the hospitality of saloon-keepers to supply their teams with water.

It is believed that there are enough public spirited people in the community to see to it that the funds for the erection of such a fountain be provided.

For those interested, and as illustrative of the possibilities in this direction, there hase been placed on exhibition in the show window of J. Hervey Doane, on Park avenue, the sketch models of two fountains which give an idea as to their acceptability from the standpoint of beauty. The models show a large trough, capable of accommodating—if necessary—three horses at one time, small bowls for dogs and cats and a basin for humans.

Fountains like these have been placed, recently, in various cities of the United States by the local humane societies and by private individuals; and it considered fitting that Plainfield should emulate the example. A suggestion has been thrown out that perhaps the children attending the schools of Plainfield would gladly embrace the opportunity of themselves providing one of these ornamental fountains, which could then be identified as their special gift, by some suitable inscription.

CHAPTER XIV.

Admiral Kephard Joins the Pursuit.

We left Sir Charles Seton hard and fast in his boat on the shoal. Sir Charles had nothing to do but study the ocean and observe that which transpired upon it, for a few moments of hard work convinced worthy Master Whibley that only the rising tide would float his vessel. Sir Charles saw the whole drama enacted before him. He saw Ellen run down the Flying Star; he saw that vessel's way checked; he could see Deborah followed by Ellen clamber aboard. He marked the other two boats chasing down the channel and made a shrewd guess that one carried Carrington and the other Strathgate. He saw the collision, although of course he was too far away to know who was responsible or what was happening. He even saw the smoke from the two pistols which were discharged by the belligerents on the boat and after a time detected the report faintly, but other than that he kuew nothing.

It was some time before the rising tide coupled with their own tremendous exertion got the boat off the shoal. Sir Charles had had plenty of time to mature his plans. He knew that Ellen was on that ship. He guessed that Carrington and Strathgate had gone back to Portsmouth, if one or the other, or both of them had not been killed in that interchange of pistol shots, and he surmised that the first duty to which they would devote themselves would be to see which one could kill the other.

He therefore determined to chase the ship. Not in his own boat, oh, no! He had a better plan than that. A ready and resourceful man was Sir Charles Seton. And while he was deeply in love with Mistress Debbie, the more in love because through Ellen's persistence his sweetheart had been, as it were, dragged out of his arms and therefore added the value of the unattainable to his pursuit of her, yet he was not in addition blinded by passion, jealousy and hatred as were Carrington and Strathgate. He knew that Mistress Debbie despised men of the Strathgate stamp, and although everything in petticoats was fair game for Strathgate, he also knew that the earl was on this occasion bent toward Lady Ellen. Therefore, he was in a saner and brighter mood than the other two.

Not far away lay the great ships of Admiral Kephard. The admiral had announced his intention of posting down to Portsmouth by coach. The first thing he would do when he arrived would be to board his flagship which lay at the head of the line of a dozen little ships several miles away from the place where Sir Charles had taken ground. Sir Charles reasoned that the admiral would be in a hurry to get to Portsmouth and that even if he did not press the post boys, he would probably have reached his ship by the time Sir Charles could get there.

Therefore, he possessed his soul in such patience as he could until his own boat once more got under way. He had bidden Master Whibley to mark well the course of the merchantman upon which Ellen and Deborah had taken refuge. This ship headed steadily eastward and seemed to have settled down for a long voyage.

It took but a short time for Sir Charles to run alongside the Britannia. Bidding the men wait for him, he scrambled up the battens to the gangway and stepped aboard.

An officer met him at once.

"I am Sir Charles Seton," began the soldier, "captain in the Sussex light infantry."

"I am pleased to see you, sir," answered the officer, courteously, extending his hand. "I am Lieutenant Collier of the royal navy."

As Sir Charles shook the sailor's hand he asked:

"Is Admiral Kephard on the ship?"

"Yes, sir. He came aboard a half an hour ago and went immediately to his cabin."

"May I see him?"

"I'll send your name in. Mr. Mortlake," said the officer, turning about.

A smart midshipman ran across the deck and touched his cap.

"My compliments to Admiral Kephard and say to him that Captain Sir Charles Seton of the Sussex light infantry desires the privilege of speech with him."

"Ay, ay, sir," answered the midshipman, saluting again and scurrying aft.

"Might I ask you, Mr. Collier," said Sir Charles, "if the Britannia is ready for instant service?"

The lieutenant smiled.

"All his majesty's ships are ready for service at any time."

"Yes, yes, I know, of course," returned Seton, "but what I mean is, could this ship be got under way at once?"

"On the instant."

"And is she prepared for a cruise?"

"She could go around the world and take her departure within an hour," returned the lieutenant with a pleased sense of demonstrating the efficiency of his majesty's navy beyond peradventure. "May I ask why you wish to know?" he continued turning to Sir Charles.

This was an embarrassing question, but Sir Charles was saved the necessity of answering, for the midshipman came running to the quarterdeck once more and saluted.

"Well?" said the officer to the expectant boy.

"Admiral Kephard's compliments to you, sir, and he begs you will escort Captain Seton to his cabin ot once."

"You're in luck, captain," returned the officer, "the admiral is not always so easy of access. Will you step this way, sir?"

"After you, sir," said Sir Charles, bowing and following the lieutenant until he was ushered past the marine orderly on duty and into the admiral's cabin.

The admiral was just completing his toilet. His body servant was helping him on with his coat. He had evidently just had a bath to refresh him after the fatigues of his journey.

"Oh, Seton," he cried as the other came in, "glad to see you, man. Sit down. John,"—to the servant—"fetch out a decanter of navy sherry. Whisky, Seton, whisky, although perhaps you army men affect port."

"I guess we can follow the navy's lad in something stronger than port," laughed Sir Charles.

"What brought you here, Sir Charles?" continued the admiral as he poured out a liberal glassful for Seton and another for himself. "I left you at Carrington. But, no, I remember you rode away before I did, just after my lord. Have you come on any trace of fugitives?"

"Admiral," said Sir Charles, gravely, "I know where they are."

"And that damned lubberly hound, Strathgate, is he—"

"He isn't with them. They gave him the slip."

"You don't say? Good!" laughed the admiral. "How was that?"

Seton rapidly detailed the circumstances as he had deduced them.

"Well done, that woman has spirit enough," continued the old soldier, "to command a frigate. You will never convince me that she's taken up with a man of Strathgate's caliber."

"She went away with him, though," said Seton thoughtfully.

"Ay ay, but she knows no more of the world than a baby. She simply made use of his proffered assistance to escape from an intolerable situation. You take me, Seton?"

"I do, admiral, and I confess I hardly blame her. How Carrington could tolerate Lady Cecily for a moment beside that splendid woman—"

"To say nothing of that other splendid woman, Mistress Deborah Slocum, eh, Seton?"

"I admit, admiral—"

"Even 'Saints' Rest' becomes heavenly when looked at by the aid of such a pair of black eyes? And the lady, boy?"

"I confess, sir," answered Seton, somewhat abashed by the frank questioning of the old man, "that I have some reason to believe, in short—"

"In short, my boy, you've been chasing her all night, have you?"

"You're right, sir."

"And what now?"

"I told you, admiral, that I knew where they were."

"Well, where are they? Out with it, lad. Disclose your information and come to the point. All these side issues are unworthy of a soldier," laughed the old seaman, well knowing that for most of them he was responsible.

"They're on a merchant ship bound up the channel and going fast when I saw them last."

"What?" cried the admiral. "Give me the particulars."

Sir Charles rapidly ran over the scene of the morning.

The old admiral threw back his head and laughed.

"And she outwitted you all, shook Strathgate off the track, led you ashore, watched Carrington and Strathgate fight it out under her very eyes and got clean away?"

"She hasn't got away yet, admiral."

"What mean you?"

"I came here to make a proposition to you."

"A proposition to me?"

"Yes."

"You have a fast ship at your command, I take it."

"Do you mean the Britannia?" said the admiral, mentioning his flagship.

"I do."

"Of course she's fast. The admiralty know me. I wouldn't take a slow ship."

"Is she as fast as that merchantman, do you think?"

"Why, my boy, there isn't a merchant ship on the seas that she couldn't overhaul in anything like a wind."

"Admiral," said Sir Charles ingenuously, "I lay you a wager."

"What is that?"

"A hundred pounds that you can't overtake that merchant ship."

"What!" roared the admiral. "Me take out one of his majesty's ships to chase after a runaway wife and a foolish girl?"

"I beg your pardon, admiral, if you refer to Mistress Deborah Slocum, I must ask you to moderate your language," protested Sir Charles, warmly, his face flushing.

"Go to! go to!" laughed the admiral. "I'm old enough to be your father. But the idea of an admiral of the white taking a hundred gun ship-of-the-line out to chase a paltry merchantman for—impossible, my boy, impossible!"

"But," said Sir Charles, "the navy cannot afford to decline a bet, a wager with its sister service. I'll lay you a thousand pounds, admiral, that you can't do it."

"My lad," said the admiral gently, after a moment's reflection, "no wagers are needed. I'll do it because I'm fond of the girl and Carrington, too. I can overhaul them before nightfall without doubt and I'll be glad to do it, although just exactly what warrant I have for stopping an American ship on the high seas and taking from her another man's wife I can hardly say."

"I can help you in that, admiral. As to warrant, if you'll bring to the other ship and give me a boat crew, I'll go aboard the American and do the rest. Mistress Deborah, I am sure, will come willingly."

"Don't be too sure of that," returned the admiral, "don't count upon a woman until she's your own, and don't count too much upon her after that, as Carrington might say."

"Nevertheless, I think I speak by the card," said Sir Charles.

"Very well, you know best. Having been a bachelor all my life, I know more about ships than women, but hark ye, Seton, this one thing. Don't you come back to the ship after I put you aboard that trader, with only Miss Deborah. The two have to come together, or go together, you understand?"

"Yes, sir."

The admiral struck the bell on the table beside him. Instantly the marine orderly popped in the door.

"My compliments to the officer of the deck," said the admiral to the orderly, "and ask him to beg Captain Beatty to favor me with his presence in the cabin."

"Yes, sir," returned the orderly, saluting.

A moment after—an incredibly short time it seemed to Seton, who was unaware of the way in which an admiral's requests are obeyed—Captain Beatty, the officer mentioned, presented himself before the admiral.

"You wish to see me, admiral?"

"Yes, Beatty. By the way, let me present to you Sir Charles Seton of the Sussex light infantry, captain in his majesty's land forces. Seton, this is the Honorable Archibald Beatty, my flag captain. Beatty, will you get the Britannia under way at once?"

"Yes, sir," returned the captain. "Are the rest of the fleet to follow us?"

"No," answered the admiral, "signal to the rest of them to disregard the movements of the commander-in-chief. Then signal to the Renown for Lascelles to take command until we return."

"Very good, sir," returned the captain. "And what course shall we lay?"

"That which will get us into the channel quickest, and then as due east as the wind will let us. I'll be on deck, however, before you're ready for that."

"There are several boat parties ashore, admiral, do you wish me to wait for them?"

"No, sir, you will weigh at once."

"Very good sir," returned the captain, saluting and turning away.

"And Beatty," the admiral called after him, "a drop of navy sherry with me before you go."

"Thank you, admiral," said Beatty, filling his glass.

"I'll give you a toast, Sir Charles," said the admiral.

"Yes," returned the soldier.

"A short cruise and the women at the end of it!"

"I drink to that with all my heart!" returned Sir Charles.

"And I also," said Captain Beatty, greatly mystified, "although I don't understand exactly."

"We're going to chase a Yankee merchant ship, Beatty, and take a couple of ladies in whom Sir Charles is interested off of it."

"A couple!" cried Beatty.

"I'm only interested in one of them," said Sir Charles warmly.

"It's a runaway sweetheart and a runaway wife, Beatty," continued the admiral, "Lady Carrington and Mistress Deborah Slocum."

"And which one is Sir Charles interested in?" asked the sailor, smiling.

"In Mistress Slocum, of course," laughed the admiral. "Now, captain," he continued, assuming his quarterdeck manner, "I want you to get the ship under way in the quickest possible time. Let's show this land lubber here what his majesty's navy can do when it's in dead earnest. Imagine there are a dozen Frenchmen out there, all boiling for a fight, and bear a hand!"

"Ay, ay, sir," said Beatty, saluting and withdrawing from the cabin.

A moment later there came faintly through the bulkheads the shrill whistling of the boatswain and his mates, followed by a deep cry:

"All hands up anchor!"

Not Without Seeing.

"Do you believe in love at first sight?"

"Let me see her first and then I can tell you."

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

If the hands are not good and the nails badly shaped, try to improve the latter by training the cuticle. Every night soak the fingers in hot water for five minutes. Then with an orange wood stick press back the cuticle to lengthen the nails. Afterward rub in cold cream. Do not omit this or the soaking will make the cuticle very dry.

Sage tea as a hair tonic may be made by mixing two ounces of dried sage and two ounces of green tea, then putting them into three quarts of water, boiling in an iron kettle. This should simmer until reduced to two quarts, then stand for twenty-four hours in the same kettle. Afterward strain and apply evenly to the hair at night. It is a stain as well as tonic.

After the infant has had its bottle or been fed it should not be put at once to lie down. Instead set it upright and the knee, carefully supporting the delicate little neck with one hand while with the other you rub gently upand down the spine for a few minutes. This treatment, which is much recommended by experienced trained nurses, helps up the gas and lessens the tendency to colic and sickness.

To heup reduce a double chin practice the following exercise: Stand erect in a military position. Place the hands lightly on the hips, fingers forward. Drop the chin slowly on the collar bone, then throw the head back with a quick, even movement—that is, not a jerk, yet putting all the muscles into quick play. Repeat ten times. Turn the head quickly to the right till the chin is just over the right shoulder, then back again. Repeat ten times. Then turn the head to the left in the same way. Repeat ten times. Do not tire the muscles of the neck, but gradually increase the number of exercises daily until you can practice each one about fifty times without after discomfort.

An Unconscious Meal.

Once John Muir, author and ranchman, was dining with a friend. They sat down, and Muir began to tell a story. The waiter came around several times, but the story was so good nothing was ordered. Muir talked and talked, and in between he would reach over and break off a piece of bread from a French loaf on the table. This he did a good many times. The story reminded him of another, and so he talked and ate bread until finally, being very hungry, his companion broke in with:

"Well, what shall I order for you, Mr. Muir?"

"Order?" he repeated in his abstraction.

"Yes, order—to eat."

He looked over at the last little remaining piece of bread on the plate and said, as if waking from a dream: "Eat? Why, I've had all I want. That bread was bully."—Bookman.

Mutton Hash With Green Peas.

Chop the lean portions of cold roast or boiled mutton fine. Cook in enough cold water to cover, adding, if the flavor is liked, a little minced inion. Bring slowly to the boiling point, then move the vessel to a cooler part of the range and simmer until the meat is very tender. Season with salt, pepper and butter, thickening with flour. Have ready stewed peas, fresh or canned, seasoned for the table, also a sufficient number of buttered rounds of toast; heap a help-hot oven fifteen minutes. This makes a delicious luncheon dish or an entree.

The Only "Merrymaking."

The school record kept by an old time teacher of "No. 6" in a New England village contains at least one item which moved a chance reader to smiles. It is this:

"Special honor badges were given to Flora and Minetta Lovett for the best attendance. During the entire school year they were not once absent to attend any picnic, reunion, excursion or merrymaking, the only exception being the afternoon of May 10, when their twin brothers were ill from the effect of something they had eaten and not expected to live, although they soon recovered."

Matter of Necessity.

"I thought I ordered my eggs fried."

"I believe you did."

"But these are scrambled."

"Well, we couldn't help it today. Mary slipped on an apple peal when bringing them up from the basement."

Pardon These Tears.

Guest (pointing to picture of a lady)—And whose portrait is this?

Host (who has married the sister of his deceased wife)—It is an excellent likeness of my dear departed sister-in-law.—Tit-Bits.

No Substitute.

"Did you miss me when I was gone, hubby?"

"You bet I did. The phonograph broke down the second night after you went away."

Colds Are Always Dangerous

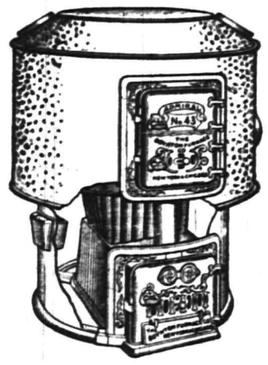
It's easy to catch a cold at any season, and hard to get rid of it unless you treat it in time with

DR. D. JAYNE'S EXPECTORANT

Upon the first sign of a cough or congested cold, go to your druggist and get a bottle of this remedy—the oldest and most reliable known—for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Inflammation of the Lungs, and similar diseases. In countless numbers of homes this has been a standard remedy for 77 years.

All druggists sell it in $1.00, 50c. and 25c. bottles.

Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge is a splendid tonic for adults as well as a safe Worm Cure for children.



Does Your Furnace Leak Gas?

The faintest odor of gas in the house is disagreeable. It's due to the faulty construction of the old style of furnace, and any Boynton dealer will tell you why the can never leak gas under any circumstances, and will give you a cleaner, hotter fire than any round fire pot and do it with less coal and trouble, and no dust in the house. Now is the best time to see him.

BOYNTON

The Furnace with the Square Fire Pot

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

NEW SILK SLIPPERS.

Dainty Footwear Made of Dresden Ribbon Lined With Batting.

For those who do not care for slippers of wool or yarn neew booties are made of Dresden ribbon lined with cotton batting and sewed to a sole, just as knitted slippers are. These are comparatively easy to make at home, and trimming and shirring may be used to make them as dressy as the most fastidious could desire.

Wide ribbon shirred from arch to toe and again shirred at the heel will have graceful folds at the side, and such a slipper is best made by first sewing the ribbon all around the edge of the sole and afterward shaping to fit the foot. This will necessitate taking a V shaped wedge from the material in front, but the shirring and a bow at the instep hide the seams, so the effect is not marred an any way.

It is one of the hardest of tasks to find a satisfactory woolen slipper to match the dressing gown, and by using the new idea material for both may be bought at the same time, so there will be no reason for a variation of hue.

When necessary the slipper top may be ripped off and cleaned, for sewing the ribbon to the sole takes little time, and the ever neat appearance of the slipper will well repay any trouble.

If ribbon is not used a piece of paper may be pinned to the sole and the pattern for the slipper cut, and the quilted silk may be cut from the paper. When this is done a row of tiny rosettes might be used to hide the seam in front.

RECIPE FOR SPRINT MAT.

A bundle of straw.
A quart of cherries.
One full pint of "greens."
A pint and a half of green apples.
A handful of grass, if you have it.

Flowers or feathers may be used instead of fruit.

Mould the straw in a plate form, shaping the crown high above.

When it has become firm, garnish the crown with the fruit for flowers, adding the "greens" at discretion.

Set it away in a dust-proof box, lined liberally with fragrant sachets, and in two days it will be quite ready to wear.

New Insulating Material.

Mr. Muller, a Bavarian inventor, has patented a new insulating material which has a high specific resistance, approaching that of guttapercha and porcelain, and is almost incombustible, as it will even stand exposure for a short time to the electric arc withiout burning. According to the patent specification, the composition of the substance is as follows: 00 parts of mineral pitch are dissolved in 20 parts of a volatile solvent, such, for example, as benzine, and from 25 to 75 parts of this solution are added to 100 parts of finely ground asbestos. The mixture is then submitted to very great pressure, and is dried at a low temperature to expel the whole of the solvent.

Appreciation In the Home.

"As far as my observation goes, there is one fault by no means common to men alone, I am sorry to say. That is the fault of taking things for granted in the home life," says a writer in Good Housekeeping. "There is lack of appreciation for the little things being done for one's happiness or comfort. I believe we all need to be more careful to show and express our appreciation in our daily lives for the many kindnesses which are shown us and thereby radiate a circle of domestic happiness."

Forestry in Manchuria.

For the purpose of promoting the forestry industry in South Manchuria, the Chinese officials have engaged a Japanese expert from Tokyo to act as head master for the proposed school of forests at Mukden for a term of four years, with two Chinese gentlmen as his assistants, but, owing to the lack of funds, the school has not yet been opened.

The Father's Fault.

Mr. Sampleson is a very isascible man, and is in the habit of punishing his boys very severely. Not long since he observed that one of his sone needed a new pair of trousers. He scolded the boy for wearing out his clothes so fast. "Pa, no trousers can last any time the wau you hits," replied the son, resproachfully.

Roquefort Rabbit.

Take about one-eighth of a pound of Roquefort cheese and mash with a silver fork on a plate until soft and creamy. Add a half teaspoonful of salt and mustard and a tablespoonful of soft butter. Add ale enough to blend in a creamy mass, spread on toast or wafers and serve at once.

Seems So.

"Pop, who was Ananias?"

"Ananias, my son, was the man who conceived the first summer resort booklet."—Philadelphia Press.

For the woman who does her own laundry work great saving of time and strength may be found in the use of the small five cent vegetable brushes. They are just the thing to rub soiled neckbands, wrists and all badly soiled garments.

A tiny sore at the corner of the lips should be at once well powdered with boracic acid powder and kept covered with it till it disappears.

Wash articles of brass which are tarnished in the water in which potatoes have been boiled and they will be as bright as if new.

SHEA'S MASTERLY ACTING

In "A Soldier of the Cross," Tragedian Displays His Greatest Talents.

SCENERY EXCEPTIONALLY FINE

Audience Is Captivated by Splendid Roman-Religio Performance at the New Plainfield Theatre.

A representative and extremely enthusiastic audience saw for the first time in this city that great dramatic actor, Thos. E. Shea, in his new piece, "A Soldier of the Cross," by Eugene Thomas, last night, at the New Plainfield theatre.

Preliminary notices have been printed generously regarding this play, the local management has put forth its best endeavors to impress upon the public the merits of the attraction, and last night as one left the theatre he felt that in this case at least the show had made good.

The story of this magnificent Roman play is a simple one, and, briefly, concerns the search of a gladiator Ajax—played with consummate skill by Mr. Shea—for his daughter, Claudia—a slave child, played effectively by Miss Pearl Ford, who has been sold by Arabs into slavery and is afterwards found with a band of Christians hiding in a cave at the base of Vesuvius. A scheming woman of royal blood—Princess Astralia—superbly rendered by Miss Charlotte Burkett—is involved in the plot as a rival for the hand of a dashing noble—who loves the slave girl. Ajax after great struggles finally recovers his child and through her simple teachings and the martyrdom of the captive Christians embraces their faith—becoming a "Soldier of the Cross." The last act shows the dungeon cells where the Christians are confined before death in the Arena. It is here that the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius occurs and the earthquake destroys the prison, miraculously preserving the lives of Ajax, his daughter, and her royal lover.

Rarely indeed these days is to be seen the style of acting witnessed last night. Seldom do we see passages and scenes built up with such effectiveness. The construction of the play, with its clean wholesome theme is admirable. Its exposition is clear, the unfolding of the plot logical and tense with interest, and unlike most modern stage representations it has no big scene in its third act, but sweeps on with its thrilling situations and conflicting emotions to the awe inspiring eruption at the very close of the last act. Peculiarly fitted, physically and vocally, for the role of the gladiator, Mr. Shea also invests his characterization with a keen intelligence in his reading, an ease and grace in his movements, and what is so rare nowadays, a distinct disinclination to rant where it might easily be mistaken for force. His "Calvary" scene in the third act was poetic in feeling and deeply imbued with the proper religious fervor.

Others in the cast whose work was commendable were Robert Lee, J. E. Gilbert, James Cassady and Spencer Charters.

Scenically, Mr. Thomas' play is one of surpassing beauty—from the forbidding cave in the first act, with its distant clouds, emblazoned cross and vision of angels, on to the destruction of Pompeii, which has never before been attempted on any stage.

Plainfield welcomes Mr. Shea and his capable company in his other interesting play, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," to be performed this evening.

Chapel Car Work.

An interesting paper on "Chapel Car Work" was read by Miss May Shreve at the meeting of the Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. David Sutphen, of Madison avenue. Miss Shreve gave an account of the six cars at service in religious work. No. 1, "Evangel," dedicated in 1891, at service in the South; No. 2, "Emanuel," traveling on the Pacific coast; No. 3, built by William Hills, of New York, in honor of his living wife and named by her "Glad Tidings," operating in the Northwest; No. 4, "Good Will," at work in the Southwest; No. 5, "Messenger of Peace," built by 75 Baptist women who gave $100 each towards its construction, its field in the Central West, and No. 6, "Herald of Hope," built by young men in our land and devoted to service on the northern frontier. The paper was preceded by devotional services, led by Miss Fountain, and was followed by a social hour with refreshments.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS ENDS MISSION MEETING

The balloting for officers at the concluding session of the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Women's Presbyterial Society for Home Missions in the Presbytery of Elizabeth, held in Warren chapel all day yesterday, resulted in the re-election of Mrs. Augustus S. Crane, of Elizabeth, as president of the general society. Mrs. I. C. Pierson, of Watchung avenue, and Mrs. W. W. Casselberry, of Dunellen, were re-elected vice-presidents, and Mrs. Gideon Ludlow was chosen corresponding secretary to succeed Mrs. J. Anderson Frazer, of Elizabeth. Mrs. Frazer was selected as secretary of the Freedmen, in place of Mrs. Ella S. Beale, of Roselle. Miss Catherine Reed, of Basking Ridge, was elected recording secretary to succeed Mrs. Alward, of the same town. Mrs. J. Edward Keron, of Elizabeth, was re-elected to office for another year, as was Mrs. Adrain G. Lyon, of Perth Amboy, secretary of Young People's work.

The afternoon session of the meeting was followed by a conference on Young People's work, in charge of Miss Harriet Halloway, of East Fifth street, and Mrs. Adrain Lyon, of Perth Amboy, the two secretaries of this department. Several of the out-of-town delegates remained in this city as guests of various members of the local society for the night.

CONGRESS BOOMS FOR HILLERY AND REILLY

In both Warren and Morris counties booms have been started for "favorite sons" for the Congressional nomination in the Fifth district, John I. Blair Reilly, who recently resigned the Warren county committee chairmanship after twenty years service, and State Senator Thomas Hillery being the two men whose names are frequently mentioned. Mr. Hillery is said to have the support of "Uncle Dan" Voorhees, although the Morris county leader is also quoted by one of his friends here as being favorable to a seventh nomination for Charles N. Fowler. Mr. Reilly's candidacy was sprung at a dinner given in his honor recently at Phillipsburg and it was taken as significant by the leaders that he made no attempt to deny that he had ambitions that way.

Union county will be without a candidate it is understood unless Mr. Fowler's friends bring him out again. Efforts on the part of the correspondent for some time to get information from Mr. Fowler as to whether he will be a candidate and whether he would accept renomination have failed, but according to his admirers here it is probable that he will come out at what they call "the proper time."

"The Country School" Repeated.

"The Country School" entertainment was repeated at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, last night, before another capacity audience and with even greater success than the first night, which was due to the fact that the participants had become more familiar with their lines. In the singing of the topical song to the tune of "Put Down Six and Carry Two" from "Babes in Toyland," Louis Tallamy was assisted by Mrs. Mansfield Smith and the two made a decided hit. Several extra verses were added and the local hits were greatly enjoyed. The affair will net a large sum as profit to be placed in the church treasury.

Would-be Caller Was Drunk.

Edward Kiely, who lives on Steiner place, had too many drinks last night and was refused admission to a house on Harmony street, where he went late in the evening to make a call. He refused to leave the house, and got so noisy that Edward Mundy, a neighbor, summoned Borough Marshal Kiernan, who arrested Kiely. At his hearing today, Borough Recorder Dolliver gave him his choice of $5 or seven days. He had no money.

Conference Minister to Speak.

Rev. Henry A. Buttz, president of Drew Theological Seminarl, at Madison, and one of the delegates to the Methodist Conference to be held here next week, will address the 4 o'clock meeting at the Y. W. C. A. Sunday afternoon, April 5.

Truant Arraigned In Court.

On complaint of Miss Ball, the truant officer, George Buss, a small boy, was arraigned in the city court this morning for not attending school. He promised Judge Runyon that hereafter he would be on hand before the doors opened and sentence was suspended.

Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, acting pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will be entertained tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Van Emburgh, of East Second street.

BRYAN LOSES DISTRICT

Congressional Delegates to Democratic Convention Likely to Favor Gray.

MARTINE ADMITS HIS DEFEAT.

"Farmer-orator" Says It Is Probable That Delegates From This Section Will Not Be For His Friend.

"Farmer-orator" James E. Martine admitted today that the Fifth Congressional district, which he came within an ace of sweeping when running for Mr. Fowler's place three years ago, may send an anti-Bryan delegation to the Denver convention. When shown published reports of an interview with General D. F. Collins, Union county's chairman, the sturdy old worshipper at the Bryan shrine today said that he was full aware of the fact that the Elizabeth leader is heart and soul for Gray and against a Bryan delegation, but that it would be up to the rank and file of the party to say what's what.

"I do not doubt for one minute that Morris county will be against Mr. Bryan," said Mr. Martine, "but I have a firm conviction that Warren will present a solid front for the Nebraskan. It will all depend, as you see, on Union and I know that some of the leaders are working hard to prevent any Bryan delegation. But by the very gods, I do believe that no matter what the Fifth district does or how New Jersey stands when lined up at Denver, Mr. Bryan will be nominated by a very large majority. To nominate either Judge Gray or Governor Johnson would be most unwise and if either one is chosen I want to predict right now that the nomination will fall flat as that of Alton B. Parker's did and you only have to look at the Democratic political map to see what it did to us."

Mr. Martine said that he was not a candidate for district delegate but that of course he would much like to attend the convention. "There wouldn't be any mistake about my vote," he added with a merry chuckle.

The action of the Democratic leaders in choosing April 23 as the date for the Democratic State convention for the selection of national delegates has brought to a fever heat the local contest which has been smouldering for some time as to the 5th Congress district delegates from Union, Warren and Morris counties. From this county alone there are three candidates for the delegateship, William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, and Charles H. Moore and Alfred A. Stein, Elizabeth councilmen. Both of the Elizabeth candidates favor Judge Gray. Morris county wants a representative in the Congress district and Warren, which was the only county not represented four years ago in the Fifth, will no doubt come in for consideration.

General D. F. Collins, county chairman, said yesterday that despite the many applicants for the honor, harmony will prevail when the delegation is finally selected. This means that the 5th district will be stirred for Gray, and as General Collins is in favor of Gray's candidacy it seems evident that Union county has been safely launched away from Bryan waters.

New Idea Dollar Dinner Tonight.

The dollar dinner of the State League for Limited Franchises and Equal Taxation will be held in the Krueger Auditorium, in Newark, this evening. Gardner Colby, chairman of the committee, said yesterday that the dinner will aim to bring together those in and out of the organization who have been in sympathy with the principles espoused by the New Idea followers. The speakers will be Governor Fort, William P. Martin, leader of the Assembly;; Assemblymen Colgate, Morgan, Hines and Whitehead; State Senator Colby, Sheriff Frank H. Sommer, George L. Record, General E. Burd Grubb and ex-Mayor Mark M. Fagan.

Building Goes Off City Property.

The small frame building occupying part of the property at East Fourth and Sycamore streets, recently purchased by the city as a site for a police station, is being moved today to a new location directly opposite on Sycamore street. The building was bought by Bateman Thatcher. A temporary barn has been erected on the city property to house the police patrol until the police station is finished.

Express Kills Elizabeth Man.

While on his way home from a meeting of a sick benefit society, of which he was a member, Frederick Kleiner, of No. 414 Schiller street, Elizabeth, was struck and instantly killed by a Philadelphia & Reading express train at the Schiller street crossing of the Central Railroad at midnight. He had climbed over a freight train to get across the track and jumped in the path of the express.

FOR DISTRICT CONVENTION

Alexander Gilbert Presides at Elizabeth Meeting Which Arranges all the Details.

TO BE AT TRENTON ON MAY 5.

Basis of Representation Same As to State Convention and Same Delegates For Both—The Delegates Present.

Arrangements were made yesterday at a meeting of the Fifth Congressional Committee at Elizabeth for the district convention to be held at the Trenton House, Trenton, on Tuesday morning, May 5, at 10:30 o'clock. At that time two delegates and two alternates to the National Republican convention at Chicago will be chosen to represent this district. Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House Association, presided at the meeting and Harry VanGilder, of Morristown, acted as secretary.

It was decided to make the basis of representation the same as that arranged for the State convention, which on the same day at Trenton selects for delegates-at-large. That is there will be one delegate to the district convention for every 300 Republican voters and one additional in case of 150 odd more voters in the given section. This means that Plainfield will have seven delegates to the district convention, apportioned as follows: First ward, one; Second ward, two; Third ward, one; Fourth ward, three.

At the meeting, Union county was represented by Mr. Gilbert and John I. Howe, of Roselle; Morris by Mr. VanGilder and Jacob W. Welsh, of German Valley, and Warren by Joseph Fulper and I. W. Ingham, of Belvidere. Hamilton F. Kean and Assemblyman Buxton, the latter holding the poxy of "Uncle Dan" Voorhees, represented the State Republican committee, while Frank H. Smith as Union county chairman, was also present.

JUDGE ATWATER GIVES BAKER THREE YEARS

Walter Carter and Walter Baker, colored, were among those arraigned before Judge Atwater in the Union County Court, this morning, for sentence. They were arrested recently by the Elizabeth police, as they were getting off a trolley car in that city, on a charge of robbing the homes of William Nelson and Mrs. Jennie Gauthier, of Watchung avenue. When picked up, clothing belonging to Mr. Nelson was found in their possession. They entered a plea of not guilty to the charge, but the weight of evidence was against them.

Baker, who has a bad record, having previously served eighteen months in the Eastern Penitentiary of Philadelphia; was sentenced to three years in State Prison, while Carter was given eighteen months at the same place. The latter is well-known in Plainfield, where he formerly lived. Lately he had been making his home in Newark.

John H. Loving, also colored, found guilty of stealing a watch from Stanley Paulock, of Watchung avenue, about a year ago, was put in charge of the probation officer and fined $25, the agreement being that he is to pay the money at the rate of $2 a month. After taking the watch Loving remained away from Plainfield for nearly a year. A month ago he walked into Paulock's place to inquire the time. The proprietor recognized his watch and had Loving arrested.

Special Salvation Army Services.

Brigadier Theodore Stanyon will preside at the musical to be given tonight at Salvation Army Hall by the National Staff Band, of New York. Tomorrow morning at 1 o'clock, Col. William A. McIntyre will speak at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church. There will be music and singing by the members of the band. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon a program of sacred music will be given by the band at the army hall and Col. McIntyre will give a brief record of army operations. In the evening at 7:30 o'clock he will conduct a evangelistic service in the First Baptist church, assisted by Brigadier Stanyon and the staff band.

Alfred Schuldenfrei to Wed.

Albert Schuldenfrei, manager of the Woodhull & Martin Company, will join the benedicts next Tuesday night, the wedding to take place in New York. The employes of the company here have presented the bride-to-be with a handsome cut-glass punch bowl and pedestal.

HAMILTON KEAN'S CLAIM

Friends of Former County Chairman Tell Why He Should be Delegate.

CORRECTS MISUNDERSTANDING.

Mr. Kean Explains In Letter to The Daily Press That He Has Never Been Thus Honored.

It is more in the nature of a recognition of his invaluable services to the party than anything else, according to his many friends in Union county, that former County Chairman Hamilton F. Kean is being boomed for the nomination of district delegate to the Republican National convention at Chicago. The formal announcement of his candidacy exclusively in The Daily Press has gotten his friends to work and they declare that there will be no contest. If State Senator Ackerman's friends finally decide that their favorite should be named for the honor, it is believed that the two candidates will get together and make an arrangement satisfactory to all concerned.

The argument used by Mr. Kean's friends is that for more than two decades he has given much of his time, exceptionally good political judgment and a considerable contribution annually to the Republican party in Union county and in the Fifth Congressional district. It is said on very good authority that were it not for his work during the last Congressional campaign, Mr. Fowler would have been, undoubtedly, snowed under in Morris county. That would have meant his crushing defeat and would have triumphantly elected James E. Martine who carried all before him in Union and Warren counties.

Concerning the formal announcement of Mr. Kean's candidacy in The Daily Press the other day, the Elizabethan has sent the following communication to clear up a general misunderstanding on one point:

"Editor, The Daily Press:

"Referring to your article on the subject of delegates to Chicago, I beg to correct the statement made there that I have ever been either a delegate or alternate to a National convention. At the last convention Union county had two alternates, Mr. Charles J. Fisk, Plainfield, and Mr. Frank H. Davis, Elizabeth.

"Yours very truly,

"HAMILTON F. KEAN."

As Mr. Kean states, he has never been accorded the distinguished honor in all the twenty years of his service. During these twenty years he has been an active member of the Union County Republican Committee, for of which years he served as its chairman. In addition, for three years he has been a member of the Republican State Committee.

JOHN WILSON DEAD.

Was the Oldest Employes of the National Bank of North America.

Following a brief illness with bronchial trouble, John Wilson, of Watchung avenue, died at his home at 3 o'clock this morning. He removed with his family to this city from Bayonne seven years ago and during his local residence had made many friends. He was the oldest employee in point of service of the National Bank of North America, which recently suspended, holding an important position in the teller's department. He had not been engaged in any business since the bank's suspension.

Mr. Wilson is survived by a wife, one daughter, Miss Nana Wilson, and three sons, George D. and Louis V., of New York, and John R., who resides at the home. He was a member of the Bayonne Council, Royal Arcanum, and the Bank Clerks' Insurance Association. He was also an attendant at the First M. E. church.

The funeral will be held at the late residence Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock and burial will be at Hillside.

Adams After Shrievalty.

Freeholder Emmor K. Adams, of Cranford, is now being boomed as a candidate for the shrievalty nomination. As stated exclusively in The Daily Press some days ago, the other candidates include Captain Robert Kirkland, of Elizabeth, and Assistant Postmaster William H. Wright, of Rahway.

Sent to the State Home for Girls.

Maryjana Madei, the young Polish girl who was arrested a week ago, charged with stealing $71 worth of clothing and laces belonging to her mistress, Mrs. B. P. Florey, of Woodland avenue, was today sent to the State Home for Girls by Judge Atwater.

An Ackerman Law.

Senator Ackerman's bill providing fees for the probating of all wills and estates not exceeding $200 has been signed by Governor Fort.

BISHOP SCARBOROUGH TO BE HERE TOMORROW

The Right Reverend John Scarborough, D. D., bishop of the Episcopal diocese of New Jersey, will be in this city tomorrow when he will administer the rite of confirmation at the Church of the Heavenly Rest in the afternoon and at Holy Cross church in the evening. The bishop will be the guest of Rev. Charles I. Townsend, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, upon his arrival, and will confirm a class of thirty candidates at a special service at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. He will make an address at this service as customary. Music will be a feature of the service, at which Rev. Mr. Townsend will officiate.

In the evening, Bishop Scarborough will visit Holy Cross church, North Plainfield, where fourteen candidates will be presented for confirmation. Rev. George A. Warner will be in charge of the service, which will be held at 7:45, and the bishop will occupy the pulpit. There will be a special musical service in connection with the confirmation rite and Choirmaster H. Raymond Loder, of New York will be at the organ. The members of the confirmation class will receive their first communion at the early morning service at the church Sunday, April 5. Dr. Scarborough will be the guest of W. L. Saunders, of Rockview avenue, tomorrow evening, and will spend the night at Holy Cross rectory, the guest of Rev. George A. Warner.

The bishop will be in this city again Sunday, April 29, St. Peter's Day, when he will administer the rite of confirmation to a class of fourteen candidates at St. Stephen's church. He will give a talk to the class.

S.P.C.A. WARNING TO LOCAL HORSE OWNERS

The attention of the S. P. C. A. having been called to the fact that there are a large number of horses in Plainfield and vicinity suffering from the mange, steps have been taken to stop the use of such animals in general business. W. A. Coddington, counsel for the society, has notified several owners of horses afflicted with the disease that it is contagious and that they must not drive the horses in public places. Everyone notified has acceded to the request of Mr. Coddington, but there are many other owners he has failed to reach, and he wants them to know of the action taken by the society.

After being warned not to use horses afflicted with the disease and persisting to do so, the society will at once prosecute the owners to the full extent of the law. The disease is readily communicated and is likely to do great damage if measures to prevent its spread are not adopted promptly.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAS A BUSY EVENING.

The fire department was called out twice last night on box alarms. The first came at 7:30 from 47 and was for a slight blaze at the home of Patrick Reagan on West Third street above Grant avenue. A lamp dropped from the kitchen table and set fire to the floor. The flames were extinguished before any great damage had resulted.

The second alarm was turned in at 10:45 from box 21 at Watchung avenue and East Third street. An employe of the Morris automobile garage on East Fourth street ran a car into the building and left a lighted lamp on it. The lamp exploded and set fire to a tire of the machine, the flames spreading to the floor. Workmen upstairs in the place discovered the trouble and summoned the department. As in the previous case the damage was slight.

Francis Rogers to Sing Here.

The appearance of Francis Rogers, the famous tenor, at the musicale to be given at the home of Mrs. Geo. A. Beaton, on West Seventh street, Thursday afternoon, will be a noteworthy event. Joseph McIntyre, pianist, under whose direction the affair will be given, is considered fortunate in being able to secure Mr. Rogers.

Will Lead a Farmer's Life.

Henry Williams, of West Front street, has resigned his position with F. H. Firstbrook and beginning with next week will lead the sylvan life on a farm at South Stirling. He will tender a farewell dinned to a party of friends before going.

Funeral of Infant.

The funeral of Winfield R. Chase, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield S. Chase, Jr., of Willever street, was held at the parents' home yesterday afternoon. Rev. L. R. Howard officiated and burial was in Hillside cemetery.

NO MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

Commission Decides Not to Make Recommendations in its Report to City Fathers.

REPORT READY ON APRIL 24.

Then It Will Be Up to the Common Council—Investigators Are Pessimistic Over the Scheme.

Having practically completed its work of investigating the problem of municipal water supply control, the Plainfield Water Commission met last night in the office of Mayor C. J. Fisk for the purpose of discussing the situation and learning what has been accomplished, especially by the engineering committee, of which Joseph O. Osgood is the chairman. After a full consideration of the facts as presented, it was the unanimous decision of the commission not to make any recommendations.

It was decided to appoint a committee from the commission to draft a report for presentation to the Common Council with a view of giving the citizens an opportunity to vote whether they desire to establish an independent water supply or purchase, through condemnation proceedings, the Plainfield-Union Water Company plant.

While the work thus far accomplished is said to be satisfactory to the commission, it is stated on authority, that the majority of the members are not enthusiastic over the proposition of acquiring a municipal water plant, either by establishing an independent one or purchase of the one now in use. While it is realized, it is said, that it would be possible to condemn the plant of the Plainfield-Union Water Company, it is known that it would be impossible to fix a purchase price, and then some of the members of the commission feel that if the city should buy the local plant it would have a white elephant on its hands.

The commission, it is said, considers the matter purely as a business proposition, and all agree that either plan suggested would be expensive to the city. If the property of the Plainfield-Union Water Company should be purchased, the city, it is declared, has no assurance that the company would not establish another plant on its land adjoining the pumping station and distribute water to the towns between here and Elizabeth. Such action would only tend to further deplete the city's water supply. At the same time, it is argued, it would not be able to get any revenue for water sent out of town, and it would have to depend on its local sales to maintain the plant.

It is said to be a serious question in the minds of many as to whether a municipal plant could be maintained within a reasonable figure and it is admitted that the present method of water supply is by far the most reasonable from a financial point of view and that it would not be a wise policy to heavily burden the city with bonds.

The report to be presented will cover in detail every phase of the situation and will also give figures showing the estimated cost of an independent plant and purchase of the Plainfield-Union Water Company property, and will contain data on local water supply, covering very fully the whole course of investigation.

The special committee to be appointed to formulate the report will present the same to the commission at a meeting to be held Friday night, April 24, and it will then be sent to the Common Council at the regular May meeting.

Those present at last night's meeting were Mayor C. J. Fisk, J. B. Dumont, W. L. Saunders, J. O. Osgood, Harry L. Hall, Dr. Justus H. Cooley, William S. Tyler, Councilmen R. I. Tolles and Frederick E. Mygatt and Leon Thurlow.

Delay in Street Work.

Just why the delay in completing the brick pavement contract is not altogether apparent to Contractor C. M. Meeker. He says that he has been ready to start the work any time during the past two or three weeks, but that the street committee is holding him up. He is anxious to finish the work and claims that if he again fails to do so within the time limit prescribed it will not be his fault and no blame can be attached to him. Chairman Gloak, of the street committee, expressed the opinion recently that the work should be resumed about April 1, when he believed the weather would be settled enough to prevent further interruption.

Going to California.

Edwin Langley, of West Fourth street, who has been employed at the Potter Press Works for many years, will leave Tuesday for Pittsburg from which place he will proceed to California. He will remain on the Pacific coast for an indefinite period.

Thos. E. Shea in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" at New Plainfield Theatre this Afternoon and tonight.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Thomas E. Shea, who appeared at the New Plainfield theatre, last night, will remain at the playhouse for performances this afternoon and tonight. Tonight he will present "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

The inimitable and unique George Sidney, that comical caracturist and fun purveyor, with his big musical company, will be at the New Plainfield theatre as the ushers' annual benefit next Friday night. This year a new musical comedy has been prepared for the further exploiting of this clever fun-maker's peculiar and popular comedy eccentricities. Without considering the big clever company that surrounds him, George Sidney himself holds a magnetic relation to the public, unlike that of any other fun-maker. He has a droll, laughter-compelling personality, a modest yet suggestive make-up, and a quality of pure, unaffected humor that seems a law unto itself. The apparent personal enjoyment of the topsy-turvey situations of which he is usually the victim, in the character of the busy one, provokes merriment in itself. In the comedy, full recognition of this natural humor possessed by Mr. Sidney is given, and the entire production has been constructed so that others of the cast have every opportunity. There are many new musical features in "Busy Izzy's Boodle," many of which were written especially for the comedy, and the following may be mentioned: "That's What My Organ Plays," "Good Bye Sweetheart," "Under the Mazuma Tree," "I Wanta Gibson Man," "Zoo Loo," "The Circus Queen," and the many bright, sparkling musical interpolations which have always characterized the Sidney productions.

PERSONAL.

WEBSTER PIONEERS

OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

(Second Article.)

O. B. LEONARD.

The grandfather of the late Catharine R. Webster was Joseph Webster, who was born March 17, 1779; died December 20, 1854. He made a will November 6, 1847, designating Catharine R. Webster executrix and Jesse Vail and Nathan Laing executors of his estate. This will was witnessed by Jacob Manning, William Webster and John Edgar. It was duly probated January 6, 1855, before Hon. Cornelius Boice, of Plainfield, then Surrogate of Essex County, N. J.

Joseph Webster, the testator, married in 1802 Amy King and had one child, Nathan Webster, who married in 1824 Catharine R. Vail and were parents of one daughter, Catharine R. Webster, sole heiress of her grandfather's property. Her father (Nathan) died in 1827 and her mother in 1825, surviving the birth of Catharine only about a fortnight.

The six brothers and five sisters of Joseph Webster (who was the youngest of all the children), were the following: William, John, Samuel, Hugh, Isaac and Marsh Webster, Mary, Martha, Susannah, Sarah and Anna Webster.

The parents of these twelve children were Hugh Webster, Sr., and Sarah Marsh, married in 1753. He was born in 1730 and died 1815. Being an exemplary Friend he was conscientiously opposed to the use of the sword or gun. In 1758 Hugh Webster was drafted in the Colonial service during the French and Indian War. He had to suffer for his peace principles and on this occasion was arrested and taken several miles from his home to answer before Captain Benjamin Stites, who demanded that Hugh must go into the service himself or furnish a substitute. Webster positively refused o do either. The guard then led him a few miles further to the place where the militia had assembled. But they in the meanwhile had moved away from the encampment and the guard left Webster there to take care of himself. Hugh at once retraced his steps towards home, stopping at Captain Stites' to inform him that the attendant had abandoned him and so he set himself free.

An extract from the last will and testament of Joseph Webster is herewith given. In this interesting document many of our citizens are specifically mentioned and will be pleased to read the bequests made by the testator and former resident of Plainfield.

Extract from Joseph Webster's Last Will.

I give all my wearing apparel to my beloved wife, also the use of three-quarters of all my real estate and personal estate as long as she remains my widow. I give and devise the use of the other one-quarter of my estate, both real and personal, to my granddaughter, Catharine R. Webster, during her natural life and in case of the death or marriage of my wife before Catharine, then she shall also have the use of the property both real and personal hereinafter devised to my widow. I mean by the foregoing devises to my said granddaughter to create in her a life estate and no other. In case of the death of Catharine before my widow, then my widow if unmarried shall have the use of the other one-quarter of my property during her widowhood.

In case my widow and my granddaughter or either of them or the survivor should need more than the interest arising from my estate for their comfortable support, I do order my executors and the survivors of them to pay them so much of the principal money as they shall require for that purpose.

At the death or marriage of my wife and the decease of my granddaughter, then I give all my estate, both real and personal, to children of the body of my granddaughter, their heirs and assigns forever to be equally divided between them. But in case my granddaughter shall die without having a child or children of her body begotten or any issue of such child or children, then I do order and direct my two surviving executors or the survivor of them to make sale of all my personal and real estate (not before sold) and to divide my whole remaining estate and distribute the proceeds thereof as follows: The ¼ part thereof equally among the brothers and sisters of my wife or their representatives, the other three-quarters part to be divided into eight shares namely, ⅛ to my brother John's children, ⅛ to Ira F. Randolph's and Mercy Evan's children, ⅛ to Martha Laing's children, ⅛ to my brother Samuel's children, ⅛ to my sister Sussannah's children, ⅛ to my brother Hugh's children, ⅛ to my sister Anna's children, and the remaining ⅛ to my brother Marsh's children, and in case of the death of any of the said children, then representatives shall take the parents' share. Provided, nevertheless, that if my granddaughter should make a will herself, disposing of said estate the ¼ part thereof to any of the brothers and sisters of my wife or their representatives to the entire exclusion of the others, and of the other three-quarters to any of my brothers and sisters' children or their representatives although not named in this my will to the entire exclusion of the others of them, then said property shall be divided as she by her will may order and direct.

And I do hereby authorize and empower her to make such testamentary direction of all my estate. I do hereby authorize my executors and the actors and survivors to sell any and all my real estate in such a way and at such times as my widow and my grandchildren shall think advisable. Provided that they or the survivor of them shall think it best so to do during the life time of my said widow and granddaughter or the survivor of them.

Lastly I nominate constitute and appoint my wife and Catharine R. Webster, executrix and Jesse Vail and Nathan Laing executors of this my last will and hereby revoke all former wills by me made.

ELIZABETH ELKS ELECT.

All Elizabeth Elkdom turned out last night for the annual election of officers in Elizabeth Lodge, No. 289, B. P. O. E., some warm fights for various positions having been promised. The election resulted as follows:

Exalted ruler, Samuel Cohen; esteemed leading knight, Augustus W. Schwartz; esteemed loyal knight, Abe J. David; esteemed lecturing knight, J. R. Covington; secretary, Emil J. Hartzel; treasurer, George B. Cladek; trustee for five years, George T. Carroll; tiler, C. T. Murray; representative to the grand lodge, Ralph R. Thomas; alternate, Edward Strauss. Several of the offices were warmly contested.

The installation of officers and a grand stag social will be held next Tuesday night. The lodge expects to move into its new quarters, formerly the Williamson mansion, and now refitted to equal any lodge quarters in the State, within a short time.

Boudoir Suggestions.

One teaspoonful of glycerine, with five times that amount of water, will often make refractory straggles stay in place. The mixture should be shaken well and applied with a soft brush just before going out.

The woman who can make it a rule to lie down for twenty minutes after lunch will be the woman who keeps fresh-looking longer in life and can stand more fatigue as she goes along.

A shining nose is an effect than can hardly be overcome by the ingenuity of the novelist. A mixture composed of one ounce of distilled water, eight minims of distilled tincture of lavender and two grains of sulphate of zinc, will, if applied with a soft piece of muslin four times daily, do much to correct the trouble. The balm should be well mixed and should not be allowed to remain overnight.

Many girls wash their hair too often, especially if it is inclined to be oily. Too frequent shampooing only aggravates the condition. A dry cleaning will do all that is required at times, especially if cornmeal is used. Perfume half a pound with an ounce of orris root, powdered. Let this stand in a jar for several days (it is well to keep the mixture prepared) and then rub it well through the hair up over the scalp. Then brush out. This will absorb the oils and bring the dust, too.

New Postoffice in New York.

Washington, March 28.—Plans will be opened today for the new postoffice building in New York. Eight of the leading architects of New York have submitted competitive plans. The judges who will pass upon the plans are James G. Hill, of Washington; Henry F. Horncastle, of New York city; E. M. Wheelwright, of Boston, and Frank Miles Day, of Philadelphia. Thirty-four of the leading architects of the country have been requested to submit plans under the same act for the new public building at New Orleans. Nine of the architects have offices in New Orleans. None of the thirty-four is in the competition for the New York postoffice building.

AMUSEMENTS.

Vaudeville in its entirety will be presented at Proctor's Newark theatre during the week commencing Monday, March 30th, when Tim McMahon's Pullman Maids heads the bill. In this vehicle McMahon is given ample opportunity to exhibit the versatility and that made him famous a decade ago when he was associated with Billy Rice, Billy Emerson, Billy West and the other names that have made minstrelry; the men who raised this form of entertainment to the high standard it now enjoys. Ten pretty and spritely young misses assist Mr. and Mrs. McMahon (Edith Chappolle) in this production. The six Musical Nosses under the direction of B. A. Rolfe present a musical diversion that for scenic and artistic conception is unsurpassed they present a scene in "Old Seville" in which they play all sorts of brass and reed instruments in a pleasing manner. Ben Welsh appears again with new songs and paradies, in the dialects that have made him as famous as his brother Joe. Work Ower presents a laughable acrobatic comedy skit. Barry and Hughes get a laugh a minute during their occupancy of the stage. Griff Brothers are a marvelous team of European acrobats. Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Darrow draw pictures in smoke, sand, rags and shadows, a seemingly impossible feat. The Brittens, two dusky hued performers, who never fail to please the new animated pictures, will complete the bill.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

No time like the present to open an account with the Plainfield Savings Bank and there is no better place. Liberal interest is paid on all deposits.

When your watch gets out of order let Charles E. Vail, the Park avenue jeweler, repair it. The work will be done right and the charges will be reasonable.

Ten Eyck & Harris deal exclusively in the highest quality anthracite coal and the prices are the lowest in the market. Place your order with the firm next time you want coal.

Dudley Miller, the Park avenue druggist, calls your attention to his very complete line of remedies for all ailments, including the famous Rexall goods. His soda fountain is popular these days.

The careful housekeeper will find S. Scheurer & Co.'s grocery store on West Front street, the ideal place to trade, not only for groceries, but for fruits, vegetables and meats of all kinds. Besides selleing the best in the market the attractive feature is the price, it is so reasonable.

When Women Meet.

"Two cups of flour,
Leave off the sleeves,
Boil for an hour,
Some autumn leaves,
Then get a willow plume, you know,
Frappe it well, and serve it so.

"Some pretty lace,
Beat to a froth,
Of salt a trace;
I sponge the cloth."
What is this stuff the paper prints?
Just cooking mixed with fashion hints.

A Winner.

An Irishman, becoming interested in the local excitement over cockfighting, decided to enter a bird in whose prowess he evidently had every confidence.

On the eventful day Pat arrived at the pit with a fat, sleek duck under his arm and, proudly setting it down before the slim adversary, remarked:

Anarchist Bill Up to Fort.

Senator Avis' bill making the issuance of literature suggesting the death of any person a high misdemeanor, punishable by fifteen years imprisonment, $5,000 fine, or both, passed the House yesterday afternoon. The bill is similar to one introduced in the Assembly by Mr. Burpo this week.

Bars Sales to Consumers.

The bill to prohibit the sale of liquor under a wholesaler's license to consumers, introduced by Assemblyman Morris, passed the House yesterday afternoon. The bill allows wholesale dealers to sell in quantities not less than thirty-two gallons, and is designed to prevent them.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

Do Not Endanger Life When a Plainfield Citizen Shows You the Cure.

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Plainfield testimony:

S. C. Conklin, of 134 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was suffering from aches and pains in my side, back and hips. My kidneys did not work as they should, and as far as I could learn from physicians I was in very bad shape with my kidneys and bladder. I was casting about for a cure but nothing I did helped me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at L. W. Randolph's pharmacy. I took three boxes and they cured me. I gave a statement at that time telling what this remedy did for me and I am glad to repeat the praise I gave Doan's Kidney Pills at that time."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Members of the Camden Lodge of Elks are discussing the advisability of erecting a new home on the present site at Broadway and Federal streets.

While driving between Millville and Buckshutem, George Ireland was thrown from his buggy by the shying of his horse and sustained a dislocated shoulder.

Atlantic City housewives have been asked by the Board of Health to report milkmen who serve milk in dirty bottles, as a part of the war declared against careless dealers.

Ruth, the eight-year-old daughter of William Reeve, of Church street, Mt. Holly, is in a serious condition, as a result of being run over by a wagon in front of her home.

The Du Pont Powder Company has given orders that all steamers must be loaded in midstream at the Gibbstown plant hereafter, so that in case of accident no damage will be done to the works.

The Fire Committee of Atlantic City Council will probably enroll extra firemen in the city department for the purpose of furnishing men to guard city schools, according to the plans of the Board of Education.

The members of the First Baptist church, Ocean City, will reopen their church next Sunday after having been closed for the last three years on account of lack of funds to pay the current expenses.

William Kates got too near a glory hole in Moore's glass factory, Clayton, Wednesday night, and his clothes caught fire. Isaac Moncrief and Charles Fry tore off the blazing garments. Kates' back was badly burned.

After several hours' suffering from burns received when her clothes caught fire at a bonfire, Mary Douner, five years old, daughter of Frederick Douner, a carpenter, of 2840 Cleveland avenue, East Camden, died yesterday.

Members of the Atlantic City Troop have formed a rifle team to compete with Company L, Third Regiment, and the Morris Guards for the local championship. The team will probably be sent to Sea Girt after the State championship during the summer meetings.

Temperance people at Millville are jubilant over the fact that the West Jersey Express Company is enforcing the order, which went into effect last Tuesday, not to carry any more C. O. D. orders for liquor. For years this method of buying has been practised in this supposed-to-be "dry" town.

Knocked down by a team in charge of the wife of Dr. C. R. Grier, at Fifth and Royden streets, Camden, yesterday, Sadie Weightman, twelve years old, of 521 Benson street, sustained a fractured collarbone and numerous cuts and bruises about the face. The child was removed to Cooper Hospital. She was roller skating at the time of the accident.

A fire that is supposed to have been started by a spark from a nearby chimney damaged the residence of John Westcott and Richard Brown, on Church street, Mt. Holly, to the extent of about $500 yesterday afternoon. The firemen confined the flames to attics, but in so doing soaked the entire building with water.

HIGH BIDDING FOR HUSBAND.

Elizabeth Young Woman Who Raised the Price from $157 to $350 Lands Prize.

Elizabeth, March 28.—Because Mary Barna did not have enough money to buy Steve Gurick, he is now the husband of another woman. He was married to Annie Markowitz by Judge Mahon in a public court here several months ago. Steve himself had very little to do with it, except in the beginning.

It appears that Steve had engaged himself to both women, but Annie had first claim. Mary offered her $157, all she had saved, but Annie said he was worth $350, and she wouldn't sell him for a cent less. Then Mary said she would pay the $157 down to bind the bargain and $3 a week until Steve was fully paid for, but again Annie refused.

Mary took the matter into court on a charge of breach of promise, but the judge decided that Steve belonged to Annie, and that Mary had recognized the fact by trying to buy him from her.

Baby With Two Perfect Tongues.

Malone, N. J., March 28.—A singular freak of nature has been discovered in the person of a four-month-old baby, the daughter of Frank Narrow, who resides in Chasey. The child has two tongues, one directly over the other, the under tongue being one-third smaller than the upper. The baby seems to be in perfect health and does not appear to be inconvenienced by her additional tongue.

Shame on Him!

"Of course, John," said Mrs. Younghusband, "I like my kitchen quite well, but I'd like to have one of those new portable ranges."

"But, my dear," protested her foxy husband, "we'd have to get portable cooking utensils to go with it."

"That's so. I never thought of that."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

William O'Loughlin, who was the star catcher for the Clinton Avenues last season, has about decided to give up the game. He expects to take a position with the railroad and this will prevent his playing.

The New York Giants, as well as the Highlanders appear to be justifying the most sanguine expectations of their many friends in spring practice. An unusual thing is the fact that neither manager has shown any inclination to release new men, preferring to wait until after the season opens.

Moffett, of Dunellen, may be given an opportunity to show his ability as a catcher by Manager Dorflinger, of the Clinton Avenues. He did some backstop work last season and was considered good.

Thus far there has been no signs of baseball life about Westfield, the one-time centre of the National game in this vicinity. No more Lackawanna League for that town.

Although plans have not been announced, Hoboken will undoubtedly have a strong team this season under the management of Phil. Daab.

"Willie" Deegan they say has given up professional baseball and will devote his entire time to the hotel business. There have been many changes since he pitched for the Orange A. C.

Elizabeth will have several teams this year, as usual, and there will also be a deficit at the end of the season, as usual, for some of them.

Neither George Dupee or Minford will be found in the game this season. Both have other things to occupy their time and they have no interest in playing ball again.

Howard Craig has not announced his plans and it is not known at present whether he will play ball this year or not. He was one of the best in the Inter-City Amateur League last year and he will be a great loss to the game if he decides to quit this season.

GOLF.

At the Essex County Country Club at Orange, the women's metropolitan golf championship will be played on May 26, 27, 28 and 29. The championship of the Women's Eastern Golf Association will be held at the Oakley Country Club, near Boston, on June 9 and 10.

Secretary Calkins is ready to send to press next week the year book of the Metropolitan Golf Association. The following clubs are still in default in regard to sending in the names and addresses of their secretaries: Ardsley, Arsdale, Bedford Golf and Tennis, Briarcliff, Century, Westchester County, Lakewood, Cranford, Crescent Athletic, Deal, Essex County, Fairview, Flushing, Garden City, Hollywood, Knollwood, Larchmont, Midland, Powelton, Princeton, Saegkill, Scarsdale, Seabright, Somerset Hills, Tuxedo, Westbrook, Westfield.

J. B. Tailer won the Palmetto handicap in the medal play Thursday afternoon on the Palmetto links with a card of 82, 7—75.

Golf has again been given a place among the minor sports at Columbia and about thirty devotees of the game have started practising on the links of the Dunwoodie Country Club. The last golf team which represented the Blue and White played on the Englewood lins in 1905, but until the present season no attempt was made to revive the sport. The management has arranged games with the teams of the leading metropolitan and suburban country clubs. Matches will also be played with other college teams later on in the year and it is expected that a Columbia team will be entered in the intercollegiate tournament next autumn. The schedule as arranged to date is as follows: April 16, Dyker Meadows; April 18, Forest Hills at Newark; May 9, Scarsdale at Scarsdale; May 16, Hackensack at Hackensack; May 23, Siwanoy at Siwanoy.

An Oversight.

Two good natured Irishmen on a stormy night occupied the same bed. In the morning one of them inquired:

"Dennie, did you hear the thunder last night?"

"No, Pat. Did it railly thunder?"

"Yis; it thundered as if hiven and airth wold come together."

"Why in thunder, then, didn't you wake me up, for ye know I can't slape whin it thunders?"

Adopted Humor.

Miss Gusch—He's so awfully witty; he makes so many original remarks. Don't you think so?

Mr. Knox—No.

Miss Gusch—You don't. Why?

Mr. Knox—Probably it's because I subscribe to the same comic paper that he reads.—Philadelphia Press.

SCOTT PRESSES FOR ALL PARTS OF WORLD

The firm of Walter Scott & Company, printing machinery manufacturers, has just completed a new four-roll quadruple press for the Houston, Texas, Post. This is the fifth large newspaper press the Scott company has built for Texas during the last few months. The Fort Worth, Texas, Record has just installed two combination color four-roll quadruple presses with complete stereotyping plant, the Port Worth, Texas, Star a three-roll special insetting press with color attachments for printing in four colors, and the Houston, Texas, Chronicle a two-roll four-plate-wide quadruple press of a new design, which is considered far superior to anything now on the market.

Two more newspaper presses are on order for Texas, one a three-roll special insetting press with color attachments for printing in three colors for the San Antonio Gazette, and one a two-roll special insetting press for the Waco Times-Herald.

The Scott company has also just completed the installation of two combination four-roll quadruple presses for color and black printing in the office of the Kansas City, Missouri, Journal, one of the machines printing in four colors, and two four-roll quadruple presses in the office of the Hoboken, New Jersey, Observer. A three-roll newspaper machine has just been set up in the office of the Yorkshire Observer, Bradford, England.

Other foreign newspapers having recently installed Scott presses are the Jornal do Brazil, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, a three-roll special insetting combination color press printing in four colors, and O'Paiz, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, a special sixteen page insetting press; also El Diario, Lima, Peru, a similar sixteen page press.

The Scott company are also installing a 32-page magazine rotary press in the office of A. I. Root, Incorporated, Omaha, Neb., and a special 40-page magazine press with full color printing cylinders is nearing completion. This latter machine is for the Modern Woodmen of America, Rock Island, Ill. A recent sale is one of their famous all-size rotary presses with color printing attachments to The Wynkoop, Hallenbeck, Crawford Company, New York city. A large number of other machines are also under construction.

MRS. CAROLINA DANZ DIES AT HER HOME IN NEW MARKET

Mrs. Carolina Danz, widow of Herman Danz, and for many years the proprietor of the Lakeside Hotel at New Market, died at her home on Prospect avenue, New Market, this morning. She was in her sixtieth year and was widely known throughout this section.

Mrs. Danz became prominent fifteen years ago through the murder of Harry Dunham by William Darling, the tragedy taking place in the hotel while she was the proprietor. She was a witness to the shooting and was one of the crowd in the place held at bay by Darling as he backed out and escaped. She told the hostelry a short time ago but continued to live in the village.

Surviving Mrs. Danz are two daughters and a son, the latter being William Danz. The funeral will be held at the late residence Monday afternoon at 2:30.

Judge Wadsworth's Funeral.

The funeral of Judge Louis F. Wadsworth, who died yesterday morning, will be held at Runyon & Son's undertaking roms tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial will be at Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

FORT IN CONFERENCE ON REFORM MEASURES

Daniel S. Voorhees, State Treasurer, and David Baird, State Assessor, had luncheon with Governor Fort at Trenton yesterday, and afterward engaged in a conference on political affairs that continued until late in the afternoon. The Governor, it is said, was partly displeased by the failure of the Legislature to act upon the reform measures which have been introduced, and sought to impress upon leaders the importance of redeeming the pledges made in the party platforms of last fall.

The result of the conference is said to have been far from satisfactory from an administrative point of view. The regular leaders have become embittered by the trend of political affairs during the last few weeks, and are less than disposed to assist in passing the legislation demanded by the Governor. As a rule, they are opposed to the passage of either a public utilities or a Civil Service bill, and the conference is said to have been devoid of results as regards these measures.

The Governor insisted that his proposed excise legislation be passed, including the appointment of a State board for the revocation of licenses. This question will be further considered next week. Most of the regulars insist upon an early adjournment of the Legislature, which is desired by neither the Governor nor the reform leaders.

There was also a conference yesterday between United States Senator Briggs and Mr. Voorhees and Mr. Baird. This, it was said, had mainly to do with the question of the selection of delegates to the national convention. Mr. Baird has thus far refrained from joining either of the contending factions, and no declaration of his intentions was obtained yesterday.

YOUNG BRIDEGROMM A SUICIDE.

Wife Finds Garret A. Randall, of Hackensack, Dead In Bed.

Garret A. Randall, a member of the firm of Browning & Horsey, manufacturers of stationery, at 38 Park Row, New York, committed suicide early yesterday morning by inhaling gas in his home, at Hackensack.

Mr. Randall was a grandson of the late Judge Garret J. Ackerson, of Hackensack.

Mrs. Randall, who is a daughter of L. A. Olmstead, a retired manufacturer, is prostrated. A few years ago she was to have been married to Fountain Westervelt, of Hackensack, but he disappeared the day before the wedding and has not been seen in Hackensack since. She married Mr. Randall at Rutherford last July, while on an auto ride. Mr. Randall was thirty years old.

"Marta of the Lowlands."

To an audience that tested the capacity of the Garden theatre, Tuesday evening, Bertha Kalich began her engagement in "Marta of the Lowlands," "an appearance," to quote the Evening Journal, "that was one of the most genuinely enthusiastic successes of the season; a success that was one of those breath taking affairs that sends you home in a glow. The applause was not mere handclapping; it ran into shouts." Continuing the Journal said: "Bertha Kalich is a unique artist, she has the absolute preparedness that makes for apparent spontaneity. Every detail of her acting proclaims the artist. Her speech as it soars from mood to mood, from low, passionate throbs to the very altissimo of grief or joy, covers a greater scale than that of any contemporary actor. The cast is good throughout, and the production is in the taste that one has learned to expect of Mr. Fiske." The Herald stated that "the play achieved a decided success. Madame Kalich's portrayal of Marta was a remarkable bit of work. The supporting company gave the star efficient support."

CLOSED PORTALS.

Howell Division, No. 97, Sons of Temperance, will hold an entertainment and social in Pittis' Hall, Monday night.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, received two applications and initiated three members at the meeting last night. Afterward a smoker was enjoyed.

Martin B. Stutsman, of this city, a student at the New York University, was one of the ushers at the closing exercises, eighteenth year, of the Women's Law Class, of the University, at Mendelssohn Hall, New York, last night.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Owing to the fact that the news agency supplying the Epworth League column each week has discontinued the service altogether, The Daily Press will be unable to give its readers that feature of church news in the future.

James Church will teach the lesson at the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union meeting at the Y. M. C. A., Monday night. The devotional exercises will be led by Philip Vroom. A discussion will follow. The topic will be "How to Teach an Intermediate Grade Lesson."

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Rev. E. C. Dutcher, pastor of the Methodist church, has been asked to return to the church for another year, and will be recommended to succeed himself before the conference to meet at Plainfield next week. Mr. Dutcher has announced that Rev. William S. Coeyman, one of the conference delegates, will preach at the morning service Sunday, April 5, and in the evening the pulpit will be occupied by Rev. Charles C. Woodruff, of Flemington, a former pastor of the church.

A delegation from the missionary society of the Presbyterian church were at Plainfield yesterday on the occasion of the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Women's Presbyterial Society for Home Missions of the Presbytery of Elizabeth, held at Warren chapel. Mrs. W. W. Casselberry, wife of the pastor of the local church, was re-elected one of the vice-presidents of the general society.

A special church meeting will be held at the close of the morning service at the New Market Baptist church tomorrow for the purpose of considering the question of adopting the system of weekly offering church support instead of the present method of pew rent.

Mrs. J. M. Lampe and Mrs. Bennett, of Newark, with their daughter, the Misses Edna and May Lampe, and the Misses Edna and Isabelle Bennett, are week-end guests of Mrs. DeWitt C. Fulton, of New Market.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours. There will be morning preaching at 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7:15, followed by the evening sermon at 8 o'clock. The day marks the ending of Rev. T. Moore-Smith's work as pastor of the church. No successor has as yet been selected, although a number of applications have been received by the pulpit committee.

George A. Clark, who has been home for several months on account of an attack of pneumonia, has returned to his position with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in New York.

William Lidgate and family have removed from Midway avenue to the house on North avenue, in the borough, recently occupied by Packson E. Reynolds.

The Brookside and Fanwood Gun Clubs are holding a clay bird shoot this afternoon on the Brooksides grounds.

Mrs. Norman Dunn has removed from the Corey house to the Morel cottage on Park avenue.

Rev. Mr. Dieterick will lead the weekly prayer meeting at the Methodist church tonight.

Anthony Warnock is visiting relatives in Brooklyn for a few days.

Frank Hengler has accepted a position at Asbury Park.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Good Government Club held its March meeting last evening with President W. Hamilton in the chair. P. C. McDonough stated that a mass meeting of the taxpayers had been held to consider the question of a borough bill and that, as the result, it was decided to take no further steps at present. W. Hamilton reported that he had been authorized by the township committee to secure bids for two steel cells in order that the Lehigh Valley's offer might be accepted and the village provided with a lock-up. No further business was done except the passing of bills payable.

The seven-cent sociable at Dover on Friday last caused lots of fun and was so successful that it will probably be repeated. Besides a large number from here, there were several parties from Plainfield, Potters, Oak Tree, Metuchen, Colonia, Bloomfield, Rahway, Brooklyn and Madison, which will give some idea of the large gathering and the interest taken in the Dover church.

There was a surprise party last evening at the home of William Schenck, of Oak Tree, at which the following from this village were present: Mamie Morrison, Ethel Pace, Myrtle Randolph, Ella and Anna Schenck, Grace Norman, Lloyd Harris and Willie Schenck.

The subjects of the Rev. C. W. F. Attlee's sermons tomorrow will be: In the morning, "The Man to Whom God Will Look," and in the evening, "The Man Whom Andrew Found." The Christian Endeavor will be in charge of the missionary committee.

FAMOUS TRAGEDIAN IN A GREAT PLAY TONIGHT

At the Plainfield theatre tonight Thomas E. Shea, whose performance in "A Soldier of the Cross" last night is reviewed elsewhere, will give his well-known characterization of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" from Robert Louis Stevenson's famous story of dual personality.

No actor living has played this piece as often as Mr. Shea and to his handling of the difficult role it is said his reputation as a delineator of tragic parts is in no small degree due.

So long as human nature embodies to a larger or smaller extent the two conflicting parts in man, good and evil, just so long will this remarkable play find a place among the stage classics. The story of the play is too well known to retell, and those who have seen Mr. Shea as the kindly genial scholarly Dr. Jekyll and then as the inhuman misshapen monster Edward Hyde have declared that the transformations in full view of the audience are truly wonderful. A complete scenic production is carried for this play and Mr. Shea's support is said to be most capable.

THE BUCKSKIN SHIRT

By R. L. RAYMOND

(Copyright.)

"Dear pardner.

"This is my furst leter. I kno all about how you saved muther on the desert from the injuns, so she named me after you in grattitude. each time Crismus comes she says you send me something and call me little pardner. so I guess we are. I want to play injun but aint got no buckskin shirt like bufio bill wore. if you see Santy Klaus loafin around out there tell him. muther says he lives somewhere near you. goodbye Willie Smith Parks.

"ps. ain't this a long letter."

The big, gaunt man read it with chucklings and interpolations of "God bless his little heart," or "Ain't he a brick, durn him; ain't he a brick!"

He relighted his pipe; carefully folded and religiously replaced the letter in his safety vault, a baking-powder can on a shelf. In this can, too, was his store of gold dust, his only reward for months of isolation and toil.

He was lank and huge. His skin was wrinkled by desert suns and winter winds. His habitation was a mere shack of a cabin, perched on the edge of a bluff away off up in the tops of the Sierras.

For seven years now the gaunt one had never failed in a Christmas remembrance, the only one he gave, and to a stranger's child. For seven years, luck with him or against him, he had sent this Christmas offering. But this was the hardest year of all.

On the night of its completion as he held it to the light it proved a wonderful creation. True, the sewing was a trifle irregular in stitch, and there were places that looked rather crude, but it was "a mighty strong shirt, and them stitches was all put in thar to stay. You bet it was a strong shirt."

There came the night of the starting. Fresh thongs to the shoes, the homely lunch, and the packing of the precious bundle that was to bring gladness to those two easterners. The buckskin shirt and the meager supply of gold dust were rolled into a tight little wad and carefully bound around with strips of flour sack.

But neither through the hours of night nor in the early dawn, when he mounted by preference the vacant seat by the stage-driver, did "Whistling Sandy" vouchsafe an explanation of the whys and wherefores of his burden.

Away off down the divide, through ever-decreasing snow and over wind-swept, rock-strewn spots, the stage clumsily rattled. Its inside passengers, consisting of a traveling man for an eastern mining-machine house and a large, fat woman, who had been a cook at an upland mining camp, bumped hither and yon as the vehicle found declivities.

Every now and then the driver, as he threw his lash out over the leaders, complained, in the whispering voice of the west, about the responsibilities that had been thrust upon him in this trip.

Great heavens! He had never thought of this before. Suppose they should be held up on this trip? He wouldn't mind the loss of his poke or any other valuable possession of his own, but the shirt! Why, if the highwaymen got that, his "little pardner" 'way back east would wait disappointed on that fast-approaching Christmas day. "But, shucks! they wa'n't goin' to be no hold-up," and he lighted his pipe.

Even in the land of certainty the unusual happens. So it was that as they rounded the turn of dread Dead-Man's Curve, there came crisply out in the morning air the command "Halt and hands up! The brakes for yours!"

Sandy, for the instant bewildered, caught a kaleidoscopic glance of two masked men on the hillside above the mountain road, a menacing figure near the head of the leaders, a pointed rifle, and the driver's frantic efforts to pull up. Like a flash came the thought of his mission and the necessity for escape.

The whip lay before him. Without a thought of consequences and regardless of the recklessness of his action, he seized the whip, sprang to his feet in the box, and sent the long lash curling, quivering, and viciously snapping across the palpitant flanks of the maddened leaders. At the top of his voice he urged the horses into continued speed, swearing with only such oaths as come to the man of the frontier when meeting a crisis.

The driver, astonished, released his foot from the brake and thoughtlessly rose to a half-standing posture. A rifle on the hillside cracked with a spiteful suddenness, and in a huddled heap the driver dropped forward, liberating the reins from his hands. The terrified horses threw themselves into the traces, the coach gave a leap ahead, and, driverless and aimless on the mountain-shelf, the race was on.

Again a rifle sang from the hillside, and one of the wheel-horses dropped, stricken so suddenly by death that its body blocked the way, threw the other wheel-horse out of the road, and brought the stage to an abrupt standstill. Even as the wheels ceased turning, the rifle spoke again, carrying death to the other wheel-horse. The leaders, surging upon the tugs, broke loose from the blocking burden, and went clattering down the road to the echo of pursuing shots.

A gaunt man, rifle in hand, jumped cometlike from the seat beside the dead driver and sought protection and barricade behind the body of a fallen horse. A black barrel was thrust forth from his place of hiding, and instantly carried a messenger of death to the nearest outlaw.

The other two, surprised, balked, and angered, jumped to cover behind convenient boulders, and sent a volley toward the battered old white hat which showed itself above the quivering loins of the dying wheeler. There came no shot in reply. Sandy was biding his time.

From within the coach came asthmatic screams from the erstwhile cook, and shouts of "Ve surrenders! Ve surrenders!" from her traveling companion. These cries finally subsided into snivelings and moans as the unfortunate travelers sought the security of the stage-coach floor.

Out on the snow of the roadside the body of the dying outlaw twitched convulsively. Sandy knew, as did the others, that there would be no compromise here. It was to the death.

A sudden movement on the hillside caught his attention.

There was a swift rush of a black form silhouetted against the whiteness as one of the robbers, adopting new tactics, sought a vantage-point higher on the mountain, from which he might shoot down to the road. Quick as a flash and with deadly certainty, Sandy's rifle recognized the danger, gave answer, and another huddled heap was added to the morning's tragedy.

Sandy chuckled grimly. "There's just one more," he said to himself, "and mebbe I kin get him."

Then he began to try, after carefully withdrawing his rifle, to gain a position of 'vantage from farther up the side of the fallen beast. As he crawled forward upon his side, he inadvertently exposed himself, and the last outlaw lost no time in seizing the opportunity.

A spurt of flame shot like lightning from the hillside battle-ground. Sandy felt a paralyzing shock, and released his hold on his rifle, which fell and clattered out of reach.

"He got me! He got me!" Sandy murmured over and over to himself. His hand sought his breast and came away redly stained. He was helpless, but through his mind flashed a recollection of an old Indian strategy, and at once he simulated death.

A long interval of silence followed. Then a head appeared above the outlaw's refuge. From around the corner of the rock protruded a part of a face. Still no shot from the traveler crouched behind the dead wheeler. Emboldened by this, the outlaw cautiously got on his feet and peered toward his enemy. Satisfied that he had nothing to fear, he advanced into the open.

Over the field of tragedy he strode, the lust of gold still upon him. He reached the box of the stage, shifted his rifle to the hollow of his arm, and stretched out a grasping hand toward the coveted loot.

The prescience which is every man's inheritance caused him to turn toward his fallen adversary.

From behind that barricade of flesh, upon his knees, resting dizzily on one arm and weakly seeking steadiness of aim, was the supposed dead man. The outlaw's rifle and a heavy Colt's rang in unison. The robber spun upon his heel, dropping his weapon. Slowly he settled to his knees, and then, as though tired, fell forward upon his face. He was not alone in relinquishment.

To the ears of the frightened passengers in the coach there came the welcome sound of clattering hoofs and excited voices from down the road.

"Lucky that only one horse went over the cliff and that we met the other leader," said the foremost man, as his spurred heels rang on the ground, and his mount, with steaming flanks, came to a dejected halt. While two of the men listened to the frightened explanations of the passengers, the others grouped themselves around the prone figure of Sandy. They lifted him to an easier position and set to work to revive him.

His eyes opened as though from sleep, and his uninjured arm sought the blood-stained breast.

"Must get this to express," he murmured. "Won't get there in time, unless I do. Christmas most here. Had to fight for it, and can't fall down now."

"Well, I'm damned," said one of the men. "This is all that saved that hole from letting his life out. He'll get well, all right."

To the amazement of the curious group, he held in the air a tiny buckskin shirt, stained with blood and perforated through its wadded thickness with a bullet meant to kill.

Again the wind caressed the hilltops, laid loving hands on the fir-trees, and played dancing tunes for the wild flowers that carpeted the domes back of Sandy's home. Everything seemed good to him in this spring world of his. It was an old world, too, and one whose buffets and scant rewards he had faced uncomplainingly. But tonight, he thought, what more could a man want than this? He reviewed in order the facts that unexpected treasures of gold had been found, that new friends had been made, and, greatest of all, that a letter was lying on his lap. It read:

Deer Pardner

Of course i was glad to get the gold watch those men sent with the shirt. Muther says they seat it to your namesake because you wouldn't take nothing. But all the boys think the shirt is the best part of the present. muther wanted to wash the stains out but i wouldn't let her. and i won't let her mend the holes in it. Gee but you must have licked 'em. It's got another stain on it now where I cut my thum with my new nife trying to open the insides of the watch. Good bye.

WILLIE SMITH PARKS.

ps. Somehow that watch don't run well no more.

EYE-STRAIN

is directly responsible for the majority of cases of blindness today. If instead of trying to overwork the eyes, one would at once get glasses at the first warning of eye-strain there would be fewer cases of blindness at the present time.

Come to us and have your eyes examined free of charge and we will advise you what to do to save them.

Corporation Notice.

Proposals for Furnishing Crushed Stone to the Borough of North Plainfield.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield at a meeting held March 6th, 1908, notice is hereby given that the said Mayor and Council will meet at the Council Chambers in said Borough on Friday, April 3d, 1908, at 8 o'clock p. m., at which time and place said Council will receive sealed proposals for furnishing crushed stone as follows:

For crushed stone for the remainder of the year 1908, the bids to state the price per ton of 2,000 pounds for furnishing each or any of the following sizes, the bid on each size to be independent of bids on any other size, viz.:

Fine screenings; ½ inch, 1½ inch and 2½ inch stone, each or any in such quantity and delivered at such time or times and at such place or places in the Borough as the Chairman of the Committee on Streets may from time to time direct.

The above must be of the very best quality of trap rock, free from weathered stone, dirt, clay and any foreign matter and in every way acceptable to the said Chairman.

All stone furnished must be weighed on such scales as said Chairman may from time to time direct and a voucher or weigh-bill must be delivered with every load to the said Chairman or to his authorized representative.

Every bidder to whom any contract for crushed stone is awarded must enter into written contract to furnish and deliver the same in strict compliance with the aforesaid terms and must furnish bond, satisfactory to said Council, in the sum of $1,000 for strict performance thereof.

Upon receipt of such bills or proposals the Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or their agents choose to be then and there present and also to make proper record of the prices and terms.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved.

By order of the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield.

HAD TO DISTINGUISH HIMSELF.

Jimmie Simply Reversed the Order of His Activities.

The teacher in the kindergarten gave a little talk on "helping mother," explaining that children who were almost six years old could at least dress themselves. A number of children told what they had done in the way of drying dishes, etc. All this seemed to impress little Jimmie very much. The next morning he proudly announced in the circle: "I dessed myself dis mornin'." Of course Jimmie received the highest praise and other children were urged to go and do likewise. The next day Jimmie again announced: "I dessed myself dis mornin'," and so proud was he that at every frequent intervals during the morning he triumphantly repeated this. So it continued on the third day, until the teacher answered that she was very glad to hear it, but thought that a boy who was big enough to dress himself ought to be able to sit quiet without interrupting so often. Jimmie, however, continued to inform the kindergarten at every possible moment that "I dessed myself dis mornin'." Finally the teacher told him that if he interrupted again he would have to leave the circle. Jimmie soon forgot and the teacher sent him behind a screen in the corner. A minute later the principal entered with a visitor and was surpised to see a little head poked out from behind the screen. The teacher explained and the principal, crossing the room, pushed the screen to one side. To her horror there stood Jimmie with not even his shirt on. "I didn't dess myself dis time," he said tearfully, "I undessed myself."

SHE SEIZED THE OPPORTUNITY.

Family Didn't Often Get Chance to Have Photographs Taken.

A philanthropic Cleveland man heard the other day of a family down in the flats who were in extreme need of financial aid. He made a trip down to the poor, miserably furnished home and found that the family was, indeed, having a struggle to get enough to eat. He pulled three five-dollar bills out of his wallet and handed it to the gaunt, half-starved looking mother and told her to take it and spend it as she thought best. A few days later he returned to see how the family were getting along. All the members in sight still looked poorly fed. "Did you buy some groceries with that $15?" he asked. "Well, no," said the woman, with some hesitation, "you see, it was the first time we had had so much money all at once, and it looked like such a good chance that we each went up and had a dozen cabinet photographs taken." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Oregon Apples Sold at $1 Each.

The recent sale of a number of boxes of winter banana apples at Hood river at $8 a box has brought up the question of record prices for apples. The horticultural annals of the state show that in 1856 one box of Spitzenberg apples grown in the Willamette valley and shipped to San Francisco netted the shipper $60. In the same year three boxes of winesaps were sold in Portland for $102, or $34 a box. In 1855, 6,000 boxes of apples grown in Oregon were sold at prices which netted the shipper $20 to $30 a bushel. In 1854, 500 boxes were sold at from $60 to $90 a box. The first lot of apples grown on grafted trees were sold in Portland by the grower, Henderson Luelling, at $1 an apple.—Los Angeles Times.

His Wish Came True.

Prof. Edgar L. Larkin, the noted astronomer, was discussing marriage at a dinner in San Francisco. Prof. Larkin believes that it is criminal to continue for life marriages that are unhappy. "Why condemn," he said, with a grim laugh, "men and women to such misery as afflicts our mutual friends, the Blanks? We have all mutual friends in the Blanks' position. At the height of their nightly quarrel the other day Mrs. Blank choked back a sob and said reproachfully: 'I was reading one of your old love letters to-day, James, and you said in it that you would rather live in endless torment with me than in bliss by yourself.' 'Well, I got my wish,' Blank growled."

Test Satisfactory—to Himself.

A recent number of Simplizissimus tells this "story with a moral": "The Union Bank of St. Petersburg has its own police service. One night the director was sleepless. He wondered whether the bank police were really trustworthy. He concluded to make a trial. He disguised himself and rushed, pistol in hand, into the bank vault. The police were good for nothing. They looked on quietly while the director pocketed 2,000,000 rubles and carried them away. Since then no one has seen the director."

Not a Reformer.

"I should think you could easily show the errors of your political opponents." "Perhaps," answered Senator Sorghum, "but if I should convince them they would simply adopt my suggestions without giving me any credit for them. The opposition's mistakes are a part of my capital."

Classics on the Turf.

"Do you think scholarship assists a man to pecuniary success?" "I should say not," answered the patron of the races. "Half the time the bookmakers can't pronounce correctly the names of the horses on which they win the most money."

CHAPTER XV.

Captain Jeremiah Tuggles Is Insulted.

It was a moment of splendid triumph for the heroine of this mad escapade when she drew under the lee of the great ship tremendously above her. Her eyes were as keen as Carrington's. She had recognized, or divined, that the tall figure standing on the rail of the larger boat staring at her was her husband. She knew that in some way they had concluded that she would try to escape on the merchantman and that they were trying to catch that ship. She was experienced enough also, to know that their efforts would be futile and their trouble in vain. There was only one possible contingency which could prevent the accomplishment of her desires now, and that would be the refusal of the captain of the ship to stop for her when she ran him down.

Ellen had a well-filled purse and she hoped to persuade him with that. At any rate, she kept recklessly on, although the little boat came near to swamping and Deborah, between terror and disappointment, was in a state of collapse. Ellen boldly ran down under the lee of the big ship. By skillful handling she brought her boat within hailing distance of the merchantman.

A man stepped on the rail to leeward and stared hard at her.

"What ship is this?" asked Ellen.

"The Flying Star of Boston."

Ellen's heart sank.

"I thought it was the New Eagle of Philadelphia," she cried.

"She sailed yesterday."

"Where are you bound?" asked Ellen, fighting against the sinking of heart caused by this news.

"What Could It Mean?"

"For Bordeaux and then to Boston."

"Take me aboard of you."

"We're not shorthanded," replied the other.

"I mean as a passenger."

"Can you pay your passage?" came from the ship.

For reply Ellen held up a well-filled purse.

The man nodded to her, disappeared inboard, and presently came back followed by an older sailor.

"Who be ye?" cried the older man, apparently the captain of the ship.

"My name's Carrington," answered Ellen.

"Are ye fugitives from justice?" asked the captain.

"No, no, I swear we're not."

"Be ye a runaway couple?"

"Yes, yes," answered Ellen, grasping at the suggestion presented by the captain's misconception of the situation.

And indeed they were a runaway couple, though not exactly of the kind the captain meant.

"And them boats yonder, are they chasin' you?"

"They are," cried Ellen. "Won't you take us aboard?"

"Well, I don't know," said the captain, slowly. "I guess so. I don't want to heave to, them boats to port is chasin' hard."

"If you'll make a half-board, I'll run the boat alongside of you and we'll manage to get aboard."

"All right," said the captain.

He spoke to the helmsman and a moment after the sails slatted in the wind, the big ship swung up toward the breeze and ranged ahead, her way clearly checked.

Ellen acted promptly. Before the big ship swung up into the wind she had run her little boat alongside. She dropped sail, ran forward and took a turn with a painter across the forechains. She let the boat drift aft until it came abreast the battens on the side, leading up the gangway. Up this she drove Debbie, reluctant, protesting, frightened out of her wits. Indeed it was a hard climb for a girl unused to such performances and encumbered by her skirts. Shoved by Ellen, however, the girl clambered up until hands reached through the gangway dragged her to safety. Ellen followed quickly after her.

"And your boat, what of her?" asked the captain.

"She's no use to us any longer," answered Ellen, enduring the keen scrutiny of the old sailor as best she might. "You may have her, captain."

"Here, Bud," said the captain to an old sailor, "jes' drop down the forechains and make that boat fast. We'll swing her up on deck after awhile, if she's worth it. Now, sir—" he looked harder than ever at Ellen, "what did you say your name was?"

"Carrington," answered the countess thoughtlessly. "Ellen—"

"Ellen!" exclaimed the captain, "Gee Whillkins! I thought so. And this young lady?" he turned to Deborah.

"My name's Slocum, Deborah Slocum of Massachusetts, of Boston. I should like to get ashore."

"Young ladies," said the captain—and at that word Ellen knew that all her hopes of concealment were blasted—"what's the cause of this, I don't know. Why you're masqueradin' in boy's clothes, ma'am, I can't tell. I take it that the other is a female in spite of her woman's riggin'."

"Yes," you may be sure of that," whimpered Deborah with difficulty repressing a strong inclination to cry.

"Captain," began Ellen, resolutely, "you've guessed the truth. I am a woman."

"Lord love you; you didn't expect to disguise it, did you?" said the captain, laughing grimly.

"I never thought anything about it." said Ellen, "I was so anxious to get away."

"To get away from whom? I thought you was a lover and his lass."

"We're not," cried Debbie, indignantly; "she's trying to escape from her husband, and I—"

"An' you, miss?"

"I'm not trying to escape from anybody. I want to go ashore! Won't you put me ashore, captain?"

"Hardly," said the captain, dryly. "You've come aboard and I guess you'll have to stay unless I heave to and wait for one of them other boats."

"What is your name?" asked Ellen.

"Tuggles," said the captain, "Capt. Jeremiah Tuggles, at your service."

"Capt. Tuggles," said Ellen, "did you ever hear of Capt. William Penn Slocum of Philadelphia?"

"That I have, miss."

"He was my father."

"Oho!" said the captain. "Are you the Pennsylvania girl that married the English lord?"

"I am."

"And is the English lord in one of them boats out yonder?"

"He is."

"An' you're tryin' to git away from him?"

"Indeed, I am. He has used me cruelly."

"Well," said the captain, nodding thoughtfully as if he understood it all, "for the honor of America I'll do all I can to help you. An' you, miss?" turning to Debbie.

"I'm not trying to get away from any English lord," answered Debbie, "but there's a gentleman—"

She stopped.

"Well, I'm very sorry for you, miss," said Capt. Tuggles, "but the best I can do is to take you with your friend. You can get off at Bordeaux and go where you please, meanwhile the ship is yours."

"Will those boats catch us, captain?" queried Ellen, stepping slowly across the deck to the landward side.

"Not if I don't want 'em to," said Tuggles, grimly. "Mr. Manthy," he added, turning to a surly-looking mate who was pacing the quarterdeck, "the breeze is fresh'nin', better give her more sail. An' we've had enough of southin', better set our course for the east'ard until we get well up the channel. You're safe, miss. There ain't no small boat in England that can overhaul Jeremiah Tuggles an' the Flying Star, an' there ain't many ships can do it, either."

"Are you sure, captain?"

"Sartin," said the captain.

Ellen did a strange thing. She ran across the deck to the gangway, leaned far over it, lifted her hat and waved it three or four times at the boats vainly pursuing. Then not waiting for a return of her salute, she rejoined the captain.

"If you please, captain," she said, "we'd like to have something to eat and a place to sleep. We've had nothing but hard tack and water since yesterday morning, and what sleep we got we had to take in the cutter."

"You shall have everything the ship affords," said Capt. Tuggles, a worthy seaman, "there's only one thing within reason that I can't supply."

"And what is that?"

"Female toggery," answered the captain.

"I don't need that, I like these clothes," returned the girl, boldly.

The captain himself took the two below. He called his cabin boy and set before them a prodigious quantity of substantial fare. They were both hungry enough to have eaten ruder provision with a hearty zest. When their appetite was stayed, the captain showed them to a cabin with two berths in it. Both women were so tired that recriminations which trembled in the air were deferred until they had taken needed rest. Dressed as they were, each crawled into her respective berth and soon was sound asleep.

It was dark before either awoke. What disturbed her, Ellen could not tell, but she suddenly found herself sitting up in her berth listening to a faint hail that came down the wind and through the open air port into the cabin.

A voice said gruffly:

"This is his majesty's ship-of-the-line Britannia. Heave to and I'll send [illegible]

"The Britannia!" exclaimed Ellen under her breath, "Admiral Kephard's flagship!"

What could it mean? She rose to her feet and stepped to the port hole. It was pitch dark outside. She could see nothing. The moon had not yet risen. Over her head Capt. Tuggles was replying.

"What do you want with me?" he cried, roughly.

"You'll find out," answered a voice from the darkness, "when we send a boat aboard."

A moment after Ellen caught a glimpse of the running light of a large ship slowly closing upon the Flying Star. Other lights gleamed from port holes here and there, bringing the huge liner in fair view.

"This is the high seas," answered Capt. Tuggles, with great spirit. "I'm a peaceful merchantman from the United States, and I'm damned if I'll heave to for anybody."

Brave Capt Tuggles' Ellen thrilled in her soul, but she knew that the game was up. No merchantman could brave a war vessel, and one flying an admiral's flag at that, with impunity.

The next instant a gun flashed from the side of the ship-of-the-line and a deep boom rolled across the black water.

"If you don't heave to," cried the voice from the other ship, "the next shot'll go into you."

To hesitate longer was madness. Ellen could hear Capt Tuggles dash his trumpet to the deck and the next minute his hoarse voice bidding the watch swing the main yard. The ship slowly shot up into the wind and presently lay still. On the ship-of-the-line Ellen could hear the shrill whistling of pipes and hoarse voices calling away the crew of the cutter. Unless she acted immediately she was lost. The ship-of-the-line could have overhauled the merchantman only for her.

She turned from the porthole to find Deborah, who had been awakened by the cannon shot, standing half dazed at her side.

"Debbie," she cried, "I've changed my mind."

"What do you mean?" asked Deborah.

"I'm going back to Portsmouth."

"Well, I'm glad you've come to your senses at last."

"Yes," said Lady Ellen, "there's a ship out there which has just ordered Capt. Tuggles to heave to, to stop his ship, that is. We must escape her."

"Whose ship is it?"

"I don't know. It may be a Frenchman, or a pirate, or— At any rate, our only chance is to get away while they are busy. They'll never notice us."

"How will you do it?" asked Deborah. "Ask Capt. Tuggles to set you ashore?"

"Never," said Ellen.

Seizing Debbie by the hand, she left the room, locking the door behind her and slipping the key in her pocket. Then she stepped into the cabin. Fortunately it was empty. There was a dim light burning from a lantern hanging at the bulkhead. Ellen took it down and opened the door of what she deemed from her experience was the captain's room, and found she had made a correct guess. She took the precaution to take the key out of the door, insert it on the inside of the lock and turn it. The captain's room extended across the after part of the ship. The stern windows were large and she and Deborah could easily pass through them. Her one hope was that her boat had not been abandoned. Sure enough, there it was trailing astern, and fortunately on the side opposite to that on which the line-of-battle ship lay. The Britannia had drifted ahead and had been hove to off the starboard bow of the Flying Star. Ellen's boat was drifting astern off the port quarter.

From the stern of the merchantman a Jacob's ladder depended. Ellen, bidding Deborah wait a moment, scrambled out of the stern window, got her foot on the Jacob's ladder, descended it until she could reach the boat's painter, and then drew the boat toward her with her foot and fastened it to the foot of the Jacob's ladder. She climbed up a few rungs and bade Deborah try the descent. Deborah was very much frightened, but with the repeated promise by Ellen that they were going back to Portsmouth, she summoned her courage and made the attempt. Ellen steadied her and in a moment more Deborah fell a confused heap in the bottom of the boat.

A Catastrophe.

Mother had put the mutton stew on to cook and got ready for church. "Now, Tommy," she said, before she started, "I want you to stay at home and see that this stew boils continuously until I come back." Half an hour later Tommy came rushing breathless into church, exclaiming: "Mother, come home, quick! The sheep is butting all the dumplings out of the kettle."

Eastern league, opens April 22, closes September 22, 140 games.

Grandviews, 5; Summits, 3.

The Grandview Athletic Club's hot-stuff baseball nine inaugurated the season this morning by walloping the Summit A. C. The score was 5 to 3, but only six innings were played, the commencement of rain alone saving the Summits from a fearful trouncing. Giddes and Herbert, the battery for the Grandviews, put up a great game and had the opposing batsmen doing some tall guessing. The playing was fast in every inning and was enjoyed by a big crowd of rooters. The game took place on the grounds at Grandview and De Lacey avenues. Following is the line-up of the teams: Grandviews: Lorene Giddes, p; Jack Herbert, c; Ben Ammerman, 1b; William Peacock, 2b; Warren Townley, 3b; Clarence Patrick, ss; Robert Herbert, rf; Kenneth Giddes, cf; Russell Kenney, lf. Summits: Francis McDonough, p; Herman Pfeiffer, c; Franklin Bartle, 1b; Roy Force, 2b; Harold Woolston, 3b; Ray Scott, ss; Ed Hamilton, rf; Martin McDonough, cf; Nate Boylan, lf. The Grandview A. C. wishes to secure games with teams averaging ten years. Address communications to the captain and manager, Lorene Giddes, 40 Grandview avenue.

P. H. S. Baseball Game Off.

Because of wet grounds at Crescent Oval, the baseball game between the Plainfield High School and Mono A. C. teams, scheduled for this afternoon, was called off. Manager Rafferty, of the High School team, will try to schedule a game with the Monos for some day next week, that the squad may have a try-out for the selection of a team for the DeWitt Clinton High School a week from today.

Miss Anna Seifert, of Newark, has returned home after ten days' visit with Miss Amy Moore, of West Fourth street.

UNION COUNTY W.C.T.U. HOLDS SPRING INSTITUTE

The Union County W. C. T. U. held its spring institute in the Fulton Street M. E. church, Elizabeth, yesterday, and there was a large representation from the Plainfield Union, as well as those throughout the county. Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, county president, was in the chair.

The features of the session were addresses by Mrs. E. R. Fuller, of Westfield, and Miss Emma Starr, of Westfield. Mrs. Fuller spoke on "On to Washington," her key-note being the total abolition of the liquor traffic. Miss Starr addressed the members on the "White Slave Traffic." She said that there were many proofs that such a traffic did exist and that it was most prevalent in New York, Chicago and San Francisco. The shame, she said, was that the police were not blind to the fact that it existed, and besides, profited by it.

The service was opened with a devotional exercise under the leadership of Mrs. M. F. Francis. Rev. Enoch Meachem, pastor of the church, welcomed the delegates. Mrs. E. W. Rogers and Mrs. L. Decker were appointed a courtesy committee and Mrs. William Neilson and Mrs. John Wilson were appointed as a page committee.

During the session Mrs. Emma Bourne, State president, conducted a Bible reading. She touched briefly on the progress of prohibition in the country and said, "If it is true, as some people say, that more liquor is sold in prohibition States than there was when saloons were licensed, why do they fight when a move is made to establish prohibition in their State?"

The afternoon session was taken up with the presentation of reports from the various committees, and all afforded much encouragement to the advocates of prohibition, who believe that great progress is being made today in the wave of temperance that is sweeping over the country.

COST HIM FIVE DOLLARS TO STEAL AN UMBRELLA

The habit of "borrowing" an umbrella when caught without one when it starts to rain, cost John W. Cramer, of Metuchen, a $5 note in the city court this morning. He was also informed by Judge Runyon that he might consider himself exceptionally lucky that he wasn't held for the Grand Jury.

Cramer dropped into Brown & Hill's barber shop on North avenue shortly before noon. He had no umbrella when he entered but as he went out after getting a shave he appropriated one belonging to Hugh Laing, a customer in the place at the time. Laing missed the rain stick a moment after Cramer went out. He set out in pursuit and caught him at the North avenue station. Cramer protested that the umbrella was his but Laing proved to Patrolman Kelley, who had been attracted, that it belonged to him, and the purloiner was hustled over to police headquarters.

The prisoner paid the fine imposed in preference to going to jail for twenty days. He claimed Metuchen as his home and the police took his word for it but told him to bring an umbrella with him the next time he visited Plainfield.

ACTIVE AT NINETY YEARS.

Mrs. Sarah Soper Enters Nonagenarian Class at Rahway With Celebration.

Rahway, March 28.—Mrs. Sarah Soper was ninety years old yesterday, the event being duly celebrated at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Samuel Clark, Milton avenue. Her father was the late Moses G. Dean, an officer in the war of 812, under Captain Morgan, who was stationed at one time on Ellis Island, in the New York Harbor. Her mother died in 1881, aged ninety-three years.

Mrs. Soper remembers New York when a river ran through what is now Canal street. Her husband was a member of the old fire department of Newark, when "Boss" Tweed was a fireman.

On the table yesterday at the birthday dinner was a huge shower bouquet of ninety-one roses. She reads the newspapers every day except Sundays. Mrs. Soper's hearing and eyesight are still good.

Tells of Bayonne School Dangers.

Fire Chief Alfred Davis, of Bayonne, yesterday sent to the Council his report of the investigation of the public schools. He states that in several of the schools the classroom doors open inwardly and that there are no fire escapes. The fire escapes on the high school can only be reached by climbing down a ladder, and those at No. 8 school have no doors leading to them and are useless. There is no fire hose in No. 4 school to connect with the stand-pipes.

Freed; Sentence Suspended.

New Brunswick, March 28.—Paul Molnar, fifteen years old, charged with breaking end entering, was released on suspension of sentence by Judge Booraem yesterday morning. The boy comes from Somerville and admitted his guilt. His mother made a plea for him in court.

AUXILIARY ALARM BOX SHOWN TO COUNCILMEN

The Councilmanic fire committee, together with Chief Doane, held a meeting last night for the purpose of examining an auxiliary fire alarm box that may be installed in the local schools. The contrivance is a new thing just put out by the Gamewell Company and was explained by William Gellatly, of Cranford, general superintendent for the concern.

With these boxes, an auxiliary alarm system can be established in each school by putting one on each floor. They are connected with a gong and the pulling down of the familiar hook not only notifies the teachers and pupils on what floor the fire is located, but also sends in an alarm to city headquarters by means of a connection with the street box nearest the school. If it is desired to have a fire drill, the gong in the building can be sounded without calling the fire department.

The committeemen and Chief Doane were greatly impressed by the demonstration and made arrangements to have Mayor Fisk and the members of the Board of Education also witness the working before any action is taken. It is probable that the boxes will be placed in all the city schools.

LAWYER HELD FOR NOTE DEAL.

Paper Part of Negotiations of James M. Whelpley, Now in Tombs.

William C. Byram, a lawyer and broker, whose office is at No. 56 Spring street, New York city, and who lives at Bradley Beach, N. J., was arraigned in Newark yesterday before Judge Howell and held in $1,000 for the action of the grand jury. He is accused of having disposed of a note for $2,500 of the Blue Ridge Enamel Brick Company after he had been told by the makers of the note that it had been fraudulently obtained. Byram says that he returned the note to a broker who had taken it to him from a Dr. Morton, of the Astor House, New York, who wanted to have it negotiated.

The paper in question was one of $25,000 worth of notes that James M. Whepley is charged with having obtained from the brick company on his representation that he could get them discounted. Whelpley, it is said, sold the notes for whatever he could get, the sums ranging, so far as known, from $100 to $140. Whelpley is now in the Tombs, in New York, awiting the arrival of requisition papers from New Jersey. Byram gave bail and was released.

KILLED ON WAY HOME FROM A CLUB MEETING.

Elizabeth, March 28.—While returning home from a meeting and social session of the Germania Schuetzen Corps, of which he is a member, Frederick Kleiner was struck and instantly killed early yesterday morning at the Schiller street crossing here, by a westbound Philadelphia express on the Jersey Central. The man's body was hurled forty feet through the air and his skull smashed.

The victim at the time of his death was accompanied by Bernard Ludwig, another member of the Schuetzens. Both men had on their uniforms at the time. Ludwig escaped death by only a few feet.

Kleiner was fifty-two years old, born in Germany, and had lived twenty-three years in Elizabeth. He was a member of the German Presbyterian church at Elizabethport and belonged to half a dozen societies. He lived at 414 Schiller street and leaves a wife and family. He had worked since coming to Elizabeth for the Singer Sewing Machine Company.

Horse Stops Where Crapes Hang.

Thomas M. O'Brien, a Bayonne undertaker and school trustee, yesterday retired Dan, his black horse, and sent him to Sugar Leaf Farm, Orange county, N. Y., to spend the rest of his days free from work. The horse was worked by O'Brien for twenty years, and in that time drew at least one thousand persons to the various cemeteries. He knew the route better than most drivers. One bad habit the horse had, and it caused O'Brien much trouble. Whenever he saw crape hanging from a door he would stop in front of the house, whether or not his owner had the case.

Master in Chancery Recommends Decree for Clothier's Wife.

On statutory grounds Oscar Keen, as master in chancery, will recommend the granting of a divorce to Mrs. Lelia C. Day from her husband, William Halsey Day, a Newark clothier, also of Bloomfield. Day and Miss Camp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Camp, were married in Christ Episcopal church April 2, 1902. Trouble arose three years later, and it is alleged he deserted and neglected her.

To Separate After Thirty Years.

Canton, March 28.—After living together thirty years, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pendleton, living near here, have agreed to separate from incompatability. Mr. and Mrs. Pendleton were married in Jersey City in 1878, shortly afterward removing to Philadelphia, where they lived a number of years before coming here. The couple have several children living, all of them are married, and with some of them Mrs. Pendleton will make her home. Neither, it is said, will sue for divorce.

HUNT CLUB MAKES PLANS

Board of Stewards Orders Improvements at Clubhouse and Names Committees.

FORMAL OPENING NEXT MONTH.

Buildings on Grounds to Be Completely Remodelled—Thirty-eight Hounds in the Pack Now.

In preparation for the opening of the season next month when formal possession of the handsome new property and clubhouse will be taken, the Board of Stewards of the Watchung Hunt Club on Saturday appointed H. M. Stockton, Lewis G. Timpson, Simeon A. Cruikshank, Harry L. Hall and Frederick E. Butler a house committee. Extensive improvements and a general cleaning-up process will be commenced this week so that the club can move into its new quarters between April 15 and 20.

The improvements to be made will consist chiefly in enlarging the kitchen in the big house to adapt it to club purposes, while the interior of the small house, which is 160 years old, will be remodelled, making it an attractive grill room. The fireplaces and other features about the old style architecture will be left intact. This house is right at the entrance of the grounds and will overlook the three tennis courts to be laid out there. A spacious veranda will also be built on the old house.

Since the acquisition of the new club property between sixty and seventy applications for membership have been received, bringing the total up to about 120. As the limit is 150 there will be no trouble in filling the list. No action will be taken on the applications until April 9, when a club meeting will be held. E. S. Hooley and Lewis E. Waring have been given entire charge of the grounds and all buildings, outside of the clubhouse, and Mr. Waring as master of the hounds, will also have the care and direction of them.

The club will have one of the finest pack of hounds in this country, a draft of seven couples having been made from the famous pack of Alex. H. Higginson at South Lincoln, Mass. This pack is composed entirely of English hounds and first and second prizes have been taken by them at Madison Square Garden. With the addition of seven couples, the club will have thirty-eight matured hounds of the finest breed ready for hunting purposes. It is quite likely that the club will select eight or ten couples from its pack for exhibition at some of the big shows.

As previously stated the club is to be strictly a man's organization and no one under twenty-one years of age will be admitted to membership. The wives and women friends of the members will be extended the privileges of the club during the day for teas, receptions, tennis, etc., but they will not be admitted to membership. The club rules will be strictly enforced in every particular.

The organization is just the kind of one that many emn in Plainfield have desired and a number who are also members of the Plainfield Country Club say they regret that the policy of the latter club was not more liberal and that certain concessions were not made. Under such conditions it would have been possible to combine the two clubs and make it one of the largest and strongest in this part of the country.

Early in April arrangements will be completed for the weekly hunts throughout Middlesex and Union counties. The fact that the members will be able to stable their horses at the new home will have a tendency to attract them in large numbers to the weekly events.

Poor Aim Smashes Pipes.

Three West End boys, James Deady and James and Frank Day, appeared in the city court this morning on complaint of H. Craig Smith that they had smashed a quantity of city sewer pipe on Union avenue. The boys claimed that they had been throwing stones at a dead cat and the destruction of the city's property was brought about by misdirected missiles. They got off on suspended sentence by promising to confine their throwing operations to baseball games.

In the City Court.

Lawrence Bray and Douglass Neil, white, and Edmund Brown, colored, were arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged with fighting at Third street and Plainfield avenue, early Saturday night. Brown claimed that he could produce witnesses to prove that he was not the aggressor and the case was adjourned until Saturday morning to give him the opportunity.

F. F. CHAMBERS DIES AT SOMERVILLE HOME

Frederick Frelinghuysen Chambers, 63 years old, who has been for forty years connected with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, died at his home at Somerville yesterday. He was a son of the late Rev. T. W. Chambers, pastor of the Marble Collegiate church in New York, and was born at Somerville on April 10, 1845.

Mr. Chambers centered railway work in 1862, as clerk in the office of the president of the Hudson River Railroad. Two years later he went to the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Road, and in 1890 was promoted to be secretary and treasurer of the company. His death was due to a complication of diseases.

He leaves a widow and five children. The two sons are Frederick, who is employed in the office of his father, and William, who is in the brokerage business in New York city. His three daughters are: Mrs. Chas. F. Smith, Mrs. Mack, the widow of Louis C. Mack, and Miss Georgiana Chambers. All of the children reside in Somerville. The Chambers family is one of the oldest families in Somerset county. Mr. Chambers was a cousin of State Senator Joseph F. Frelinghuysen.

7TH-DAY BAPTISTS' S. S. ANNUAL MEETING

Reports of the year's work and the election of officers, together with other important business were the features of the annual meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist Sabbath-school, held last night. Appropriations were voted to the various charities from the balance in the hands of the treasurer. During the year the school has paid in benevolences outside of the church, $297.30, including the Children's Home, Day Nursery, Primary Sunday-school work, Union County Sunday-school Association, Loyal Temperance Legion, Chinese Famine Fund, Organized Aid Association and Muhlenberg Hospital, in addition to denominational objects.

These officers were chosen for the coming year:

Superintendent, Orra S. Rogers; assistants, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, Asa F. Randolph; secretary, Nathan S. Wardner; treasurer, Charles F. Neagle; librarian, Miss Nettie Stillman; pianist, Miss Eva Rogers; choristers, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore G. Davis; auditors, Mrs. O. S. Rogers, Mrs. Asa F. Randolph; superintendent Home department, Miss Nancy Randolph; superintendent Primary department, Miss Ida L. Spicer.

Favorable reports for the year were presented by Superintendent Rogers, Secretary Nathan Wardner and the retiring treasurer, Miss Ernestine C. Smith. Resolutions were passed expressing appreciation of the long and faithful services of Miss Ernestine C. Smith as treasurer and David E. Titsworth as chorister. Mrs. H. M. Maxson was the chairman and David E. Titsworth secretary of the meeting.

At the session of the Sabbath-school on Saturday occurred the pleasant graduation exercises of a class from the primary department to the next grade. The members of the class received diplomas and Bibles.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL MISSIONARY SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS.

The annual meeting of the Missionary Society of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school was held yesterday afternoon, it being the end of the fiscal year. It was voted to divide the money in the treasury, equally between the Boards of Domestic and Foreign Missions, each receiving $66.55.

These officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Miss Lillian A. Force; first vice president, Miss Mabel Wilson; second vice president, Mrs. J. M. Tier; third vice president, Mrs. H. E. Gayle; secretary, Elmer P. Wheeler; treasurer, Alfred J. Willett; committee of arrangements, Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff, chairman; Mrs. Virginia Chickering; Mrs. Miller, Mrs. William Trembath and Mrs. Lafayette Rosenthiel.

Crescent Avenue Church Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held on Wednesday night, April 8, at 8 o'clock to elect elders to succeed Leander N. Lovell, John F. Harman and Dr. E. W. Hedges, and one deacon to succeed Dr. W. H. Murray; also to hear reports of the year's work. Previous to the church meeting will be held the annual meeting of the society.

The Rasores Club to Meet.

The Rasores Club will meet with Mrs. William D. Murray, of West Ninth street, tomorrow morning. There will be quotations from Wordsworth.

FORT MAY NOT ACCEPT

His Remarks Construed as Meaning He Will Not Take Nomination.

TO SERVE OUT HIS FULL TERM.

His Significant Statement Made at Dollar Dinner Followed by Boom for the Presidency.

Governor J. Franklin Fort, at his home in East Orange last night, refused to discuss his statement made at the dollar dinner of the New Idea wing of the Republican party at Krueger Auditorium, Newark, Saturday night, to the effect that if his life is spared the next three years he intends to serve as Governor of the State. It was taken by the more than 700 diners as a declaration that he would not accept the nomination of the Republican national convention for Vice President.

"There were reporters at the dinner," said the Governor, with a smile. "They seemed to get my speech pretty well. I have nothing to say."

Following Mr. Fort's speech there was started in Trenton Saturday night a boomlet for the New Jersey Executive for President. It was held by the correspondents of out of the State papers that he would be a logical choice in event of a deadlock or shortage of enough votes to name Taft for first place.

The Republican politicians who were questioned last night were of the opinion that if the Chicago convention nominated Fort for Vice President he would be in a position where to refuse the honor would be practically impossible.

Senator Edmund W. Wakelee, of Bergen county, who aspires to succeed Governor Ford as the head of the State government, was among the guests of the New Ideaites. He is a regular of regulars, and his presence attracted no little attention. He was enthusiastically cheered.

Among Those Present.

At the speaker's table were Assemblyman William P. Martin, of Essex, who, as president of the New Jersey League for Equal Taxation and Limited Franchises, was toastmaster; Governor Fort, Sheriff Frank H. Sommer, Senator Everett Colby, former Mayor Mark M. Fagan, of Jersey City; George L. Record, Thomas M. Debevoise, ex-Judge James W. McCarthy, Alexander R. Fordyce, Henry Marelli, James G. Blauvelt, Austen Colgate, Borden D. Whiting, Mayor Low, of Passaic; C. V. H. Whitbeck, Robert Carey, George J. Cory, the Rev. Dr. William L. Lawrence, Captain Bryant, Edward S. Perry, Frederick W. Kelsey, R. Henry Depew, Thomas J. Arnold.

Mr. Martin was the first speaker. He reviewed the history of the New Idea and declared that the organization would go on fighting until the reform laws to which it is committed are on New Jersey statute books.

Sommer Lauds Fort.

The Governor, Senator Colby, Mr. Fagan, Mr. Record, Sheriff Sommer and Assemblyman Colgate were introduced in the order named.

The Sheriff said that the Governor had been true to every principle for which he stood in the campaign, and that if he found it necessary to appeal directly to the people to force the Legislature to do something, the New Idea organization would enlist itself in his behalf.

Music was furnished by the Seventh Ward Republican Club Band, of Jersey City, and a vocal quintet led by Senator Colby. Mr. Colby entertained with selections on a violin which he borrowed from a member of the band.

About 200 applications for tickets were refused Saturday by the committee, it was announced, to prevent the auditorium from being overcrowded.

Borough Court Grist.

Thomas Caulfield, of Johnson avenue, entired the residence of A. B. C. Bodine, of Westervelt avenue, by mistake, in trying to find his home while drunk Saturday night. Mr. Bodine found him asleep on the kitchen table early yesterday morning and had him arrested. Sentence was suspended today. Arthur Scott, arrested for raising a rumpus at his home on Whitewood avenue Saturday night while drunk, was released with a ten day sentence pending his next arrest by Recorder Dolliver at the borough court today.

Pupils' Recital.

A pupils' recital of instrumental music was given at the residence of Miss Karr on Putnam avenue, Saturday afternoon. Miss Karr played Koelling's "Hungary Rapsodie Mignonne." Others taking part were: Miss Blanche Stout, Miss Carol Iradell, Theodore Karr, Miss Eleanor Iradell, Miss Elizabeth Bremble, Miss Kate MacDonald, Miss Rosamond Carey, Miss Bertha Touchon, Miss Ada Williams.

EPISCOPAL BISHOP'S VISIT

Rt. Rev. Dr. Scarborough Confirms Classes at Both Holy Cross and Heavenly Rest.

PRELATE MAKES ADDRESSES.

Thirty-two Candidates—At Night the Bishop Preaches at Holy Cross Church.

Administering the rite of confirmation to thirty-two candidates, Right Reverend Dr. John Scarborough, bishop of New Jersey, visited the Church of the Heavenly Rest yesterday afternoon, and Holy Cross Church last night. At both services the Bishop made the customary address to the candidates, charging them with their duties and privileges as full-fledged church members.

Confirmation was a part of the 5 o'clock evensong service at Heavenly Rest. Rev. C. I. Townsend, rector of the church, officiated at the service. There were eighteen candidates for confirmation, six of them young men. The congregation taxed the capacity of the edifice.

A class of fourteen candidates, nine of whom were young men, was brought before the Bishop at Holy Cross church last night, and presented for confirmation by Rev. George A. Warner, the rector. The service was impressive, intoned ritual of the church, and the rite of confirmation followed the order of evening prayer.

The Bishop occupied the pulpit for the evening sermon, preaching from St. Matthew 8:8. The text is "I am not worthy that Thou shouldst come under my roof," the words of the centurion who besought the Lord to heal his servant. Dr. Scarborough spoke of the attitude of modesty in a Christian, urging Lenten contrition, the realization of humbleness and close communion with the church and its principles. The congregation was an exceptionally large one.

NEGRO PREACHER SAYS HE'S 137 YEARS OLD

"I'm sure he's 137 years old, for he says so himself," declared Rev. David W. Cannon, pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist church, this morning in announcing that Rev. Brooks Mason, a colored preacher, would exhort the local negro flock tonight.

In his statement today, Rev. Cannon has written: "Rev. Mr. Mason was born in 1770 in Havana, Cuba. He was brought to this country by his father when 12 years old. He held General George Washington's horse at Yorktown, Va., when Lord Cornwallis surrendered. He fought in four wars and speaks seven languages and has been preaching for sixty-nine years."

Rev. Mr. Cannon was dead sure his brother minister was as old as he represents himself to be. "Why, he's got it all written down in a book; isn't that proof enough?"

BABY BOY BORN IN SPEEDING AMBULANCE

Answering a call to an address on Plainfield avenue near South Second street, yesterday afternoon, the city ambulance started toward Muhlenberg Hospital with a patient intended for an operation—Mrs. George Hansen. While the vehicle was proceeding along West Eighth street at full speed the driver was suddenly apprised of the fact that the big bird known as the stork had caught up with it and that instead of one passenger he was carrying two. The newcomer was a bouncing baby boy and he announced his appearance by emitting several lusty yells that were evidently meant as remonstrances against the way the ambulance was being jolted over the macadam.

Dr. F. J. Hughes, who had been in attendance on Mrs. Hansen and who was riding just ahead, gave the driver instructions to continue on to the hospital and the mother and lusty infant were soon in the operating room. Both were quickly made comfortable and today they were reported as doing splendidly. The little fellow is declared to be a healthy youngster and there is a possibility that he may be named Ambue Lance Hansen before he is sent to his future home.

George Hansen, the father of the boy, is a carpenter and was riding with the vehicle when the extra passenger was taken on.

PASS BRYAN RESOLUTION

Somerset County Democratic Executive Committee Endorses the Nebraskan.

SCULLY AGAIN MADE CHAIRMAN.

Col. Dungan, Surrogate De Mond, Sheriff Ross, A. A. Clark and S. S. Swackhamer Speak at Banquet.

The candidacy of William Jennings Bryan for the Democratic Presidential nomination was endorsed at a meeting of the Somerset County Democratic Executive Committee at Somerville on Saturday, instruction being given its delegates to the Denver convention to vote for the Nebraskan. Michael W. Scully was renamed as county chairman at this meeting which wound up with a dinner at the Somerset Hotel given by the successful county candidates in the last campaign.

Walter C. Linbarger introduced the Bryan resolution and there was but a single vote against it on roll call. Horace Codington was reelected secretary of the committee. At the dinner speeches were made by Col. Nelson Y. Dungan, Surrogate William DeMond, Sheriff Frank T. Ross, former Congressman Alvah A. Clark and former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer. Mr. Scully acted as chairman. The primaries for the election of delegates to the State and district conventions will be held on April 18 except in North Plainfield where the date will be announced later.

The Bryan resolution follows:

"Whereas, In our opinion the welfare of the country and of the Democratic party will be best served by nominating for the Presidency in July next at Denver the Honorable William J. Bryan, a man qualified by character, experience and training to advance and protect the welfare of all the people of this country, and one whose honesty, sincerity of purpose and fidelity to Democratic principles is unquestioned.

"Therefore, be it Resolved, That we, the Somerset County Democratic Executive Committee do hereby call upon the voters of this county to choose as their delegates to the State and district conventions men who will support delegates to the National convention who are favorable to his nomination."

BLAZE AT MIDNIGHT DESTROYS TWO HOUSES

Fire of a mysterious origin that broke out in a vacant house on Ann street shortly after midnight this morning, brought about the complete destruction of the building and another adjoining and would have burned at least two more in a row but for the work of the city department. The property is located just over the city line in the Guinea Egg pond district but the firemen disregarded the boundary and earned the thanks of several families by saving their homes.

The two houses destroyed were owned by Edward Burke, who lived in the one next to where the blaze started. The two adjoining are owned by his brother, William Burke, of New York. The flames had partially consumed the first structure and were spreading to the second when they were discovered by the family. At about the same time the reflection in the sky was noticed by a patrolman on Front street and an alarm was turned in from box 89 at 12:22. When the apparatus reached the scene by way of Rock avenue, the first house was in ruins, the second was about to topple over and the third had just started to burn. The blaze had also crept around to the fourth structure when water was first secured. Chief Doane directed the men to devote all their attention to the remaining buildings and after saving them the streams were turned on the ruins of the others. It was 2:30 before the last embers were distinguished.

The loss to Edward Burke will aggregate about $3,000, partially covered by insurance. In a statement to Chief Doane the owner declared that he had no idea as to how the blaze started as no one had been in the place so far as he knew.

Bids Referred to C. A. Marsh.

The various bids received by the Councilmanic street committee for furnishing crushed stone, crosswalks and culverts during the coming year, have been referred to Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh for examination. The committee does not propose to have a repetition of last year's mixup in the awarding of contracts for this work.

Corporal F. E. Depke, of Fort Wadsworth, has been visiting friends in town.

ITALIAN YOUTH CUT IN A STREET AFFRAY

Three Italians who came over from North Plainfield, stopped at Park avenue and Fourth street at 6:45 last night to finish out an argument commenced on the other side of the brook. According to the established rules of Sicilian and Neapolitan free-for-alls they drew stilettoes and commenced a little anatomical slashing.

Nichola Braza, nineteen years old, of Race street, got in the way of Tony Dantz, twenty-two years old, as the latter's strong right arm was describing circles in the air with a steel blade and Braza received a couple of rips in the back. Dominick Passhut, twenty-one, of Watchung avenue, frisked around the pair cutting great gashes in the atmosphere but failed to accomplish any damage. When Braza dropped to the sidewalk, Dantz and Passhut both remembered they had engagements elsewhere and streaked it for the tall grass.

Patrolman O'Keefe chanced along just as they disappeared and took Braza to police headquarters. He had been nipped pretty severely with the stiletto point and Dr. Lufforrow was called to put him to rights. He was afterward sent home as the wounds were not severe enough to make a hospital call. The cops have a good description of Dantz and Passhut and hope to pick them up during the day if they haven't skipped town.

BOROUGH CHEMICAL OUT FOR SCHOOL FIRE DRILL

Realistic fire drills were held at the North Plainfield schools this morning, when the borough fire apparatus responded to alarms with the chemical engine and ran out a line of chemical hose to the buildings. Despite the appearance of the firemen at the schools, there was no tendency to panic or disorder of any kind on the part of the pupils. At both the Somerset street school and the Watchung school, the drill was entirely unexpected by the pupils and teachers. Chief T. O. Doane, of the Plainfield fire department, was present at the drills on the invitation of Supervising Principal Henry C. Krebs, of the borough schools, and Chief Howard Woolston, of the North Plainfield fire department.

The three officials went to the Somerset street school at about 10:30 this morning and when Mr. Krebs pressed the alarm button, the chemical engine galloped up, ready for business, and the firemen stretched the hose. The building was emptied of its 750 pupils in a minute and thirty seconds. All six exits were used.

From the Somerset street school, the fire chiefs went with Mr. Krebs to the Watchung school, where the alarm was sounded as soon as they entered the building. The pupils filed out in excellent order, clearing the building in a minute and fifteen seconds. The engine came up on the run and again extended the chemical line. There was no disorder, although all of the 220 pupils filed out by the front door, not using either of the two rear exits.

Chief Doane spoke enthusiastically of the discipline at the drills and commended Mr. Krebs on his training of the pupils. He was especially impressed with the work of the boy monitors who run ahead of the pupils to fasten back the exits doors in each school. The little fellows made fast time to the exits and had the doors open in a few seconds.

Chief Woolston also spoke of their quickness, especially at the Watchung school. He was the last of the inspecting party to enter the building and the alarm bell rang before he got in the hall. One of the little door monitors, who rushed to the exit when the second bell was touched, opened the swinging door just as the Chief was coming in and Mr. Woolston had to dodge quickly to avoid being struck, as the boy swung the door out directly in his face.

End Season With Victory.

Defeating the Belleville Y. M. C. A. junior five by a score of 33-27 at Hape chapel, Friday night, the Hope chapel Boys' Club five wound up a successful basketball season with a victory. The teams were evenly matched, the score being 18-18 at the end of the first half, but the local five got a lead in the second period and held it until the whistle. The Hope boys have a record of twelve victories out of fourteen games.

Third Trial Against Freeholders.

The third trial of the case of Joseph Kingston against the Union County Board of Freeholders will take place in the district court on Thursday. Mr. Kingston is seeking to recover $50 for mason work performed on the Leland avenue bridge. At the first trial he got a verdict and at the second one last week the jury disagreed.

YALE'S ALUMNI BANQUET

Sixty Sons of "Old Eli" Make Merry at Annual Dinner at the Casino.

MAYOR AND PROFESSOR SPEAK.

College Songs, Yale Fellowship and a Good Meal Make It the Most Successful Affair of the Local Club.

Yale good fellowship predominated at the annual dinner of the Plainfield Yale Club held at the Casino, Saturday night, when sixty loyal sons of Old Eli met together 'round the banquet board, sang the old college songs and discussed the old days and the new in speeches. The affair was the most successful in the history of the local club and it was midnight before all rose to sing "For God, for Country, and for Yale" and concluded the evening's festivities with a serpentine dance around the banquet board, singing the famous "Chi Rho Omega Lambda Chi" chorus, which customarily concludes all Eli festivities here.

The Casino was handsomely decorated with Yale banners and pennants for the occasion, and the table, of horse-shoe shape, bore great bouquets of carnations. Boutonnieres of violets were the place favors. As toastmaster and chairman of the general banquet committee, Edward A. Stevenson, '88, was at the head of the board and introduced the evening's speakers with quip and jest, when the last of the college men's "feed" had been borne away and the haze of tobacco smoke began to thicken. Professor Edward B. Reed, '94, of the Yale faculty, was the guest of honor, and the first speaker of the evening. He refreshed the memories of all by his talk about the university and spoke especially of the democratic spirit which typifies a Yale man. He said that it is the man who counts at Yale, not the money he spends.

Dr. B. Van D. Hedges, Princeton, '88, was invited to the banquet to talk on "Princeton," regarded by wearers of the Blue as the brother college. He spoke of the keen rivalry in athletics between the two institutions, and the clean character of the sport which marks a Yale-Princeton contest. James R. Joy, '85, was down for "In Church and State," by the verse 'Go thy way, eat thy bread with Joy, and drink thy wine with a merry heart," used on the card in connection with his name better summarizes his remarks. Mayor Fisk, invited as a "Father," was called on for some remarks, and spoke on the importance of the college man in politics, urging every Yale man present to do his duty, whether it be as officer holder or citizen. Rev. John Sheridan Zelie, '89T., delivered an invocation at the beginning of the banquet, which was "in truth, a royal feed."

The committee in charge of the affair was made up of the following officers of the club: E. A. Stevenson, '88, president; Clifford W. McGee, '93S., vice president; L. A. Williams, Jr., '04, secretary-treasurer; and Harry B. Lovell, '96, Henry L. DeForest, '97, and Rufus S. Rowland, '06, as members of the executive committee.

FAREWELL SERMON BY REV. T. MOORE-SMITH.

Never once referring to the severing of his ties with the Scotch Plains Baptist church, Rev. T. Moore-Smith, the retiring pastor, preached his farewell sermon at the morning service yesterday. His text was taken from St. Matthew, 22: 42, "What Think You of Christ?"

Rev. T. Moore-Smith has been serving as pastor of the Scotch Plains church for three years past, and at the conclusion of the service, a parish meeting was held, at which the board of deacons of the church and two members of the congregation were appointed a committee to arrange for pulpit supplies until Dr. Moore-Smith's successor is appointed. Deacon Hand was appointed chairman of the committee, which comprises Edward Johnson, C. H. Vincent, John Z. Hatfield and Dr. F. W. Westcott. Rev. H. S. Atkinson, of New York, will preach at the church for the next two Sundays, but does not come to the church as a candidate for the pastorate.

Agriculturists Meet.

The Somerset County Board of Agriculture met in the court room at Somerville Saturday afternoon, but the stormy weather early in the day deterred many from a distance attending. President Cortelyou presided. State Secretary Franklin Dyer, who was scheduled for an address, was unable to be present, because of illness. F. C. Minkler, from the New Jersey State Agricultural Experiment Stations in New Brunswick, spoke on "Corn Production." He advocated the germnation process in selecting seed corn. There was a general discussion.

WHY not take a little pride in your own city? Your answer no doubt will be: I do. You certainly don't if you go out of town and leave the other man your money, instead of leaving it at home.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A novel entertainment is to be given in the borough shortly after Easter, when women will form the burnt-cork semi-circle for the presentation of a minstrel show by the Euterpean Orcestra at Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall. In connection with the show, the one-act farce, "A Wife Too Many," will be presented by a cast of members of the orchestra. Mrs. Katherine L. Mansell, of New York, will coach the local women minstrels and will take a leading part in the farce.. Mrs. Charles S. Day, leader of the orchestra, is chairman of the committee in charge of the affair. No date has yet been decided upon.

At the evening service of the New Market Baptist church yesterday, Rev. George H. Gardner, the pastor, gave the third of his Lenten sermons. His topic was "The Dead March to the Tree of the Cross" and there was a large attendance. Music was a feature.

"Christ and the Company at Gethsemane" was the topic of last night's Lenten sermon by Rev. W. W. Casselberry at the Presbyterian church.

Miss Helen Swackhamer, daughter of Mayor Harry Swackhamer, is confined to her home with an attack of the mumps.

DETECTIVE IS HELD UP.

Bayonne Robbers Steal Badge, Revolver and Club and Tie Bag Over Victim's Head.

Early yesterday morning, as Michael Kenny, a special detective, employed by the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was walking in Nineteenth street, Bayonne, he was held up by three men. They took away his badge, revolver and club, tied a bag over his head and then ran away.

Kenny's shouts attracted Policemen Griffin, Mulaney and Lazarus, who chased Kenny's assailants. They caught two of them and recovered the revolver. The prisoners gave their names as James Russell and John O'Neill.

$1,000 in Diamonds and Jewelry Taken from M. B. Jones' Paterson Home—Cash Gone.

Burglars last night entered the home of Mervin B. Jones, in Paterson, by forcing a parlor window with a jimmy in the absence of the family. They left with $70 in cash and about $1,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry.

Included in the loot were two diamond rings, a pair of diamond earrings, two diamond stickpins, two gold watches and a lady's golf fob. Mr. and Mrs. Jones discovered the robbery when they returned from a social call.

Mrs. William VanWinkle and daughter, of Martinsville, have been visiting relatives in this city.

William Albert Moon, of this city, has been spending several days at his former home in Martinsville.

TO KEEP PROMISE TO CREMATE.

Young Hackensack Widow to Have Husband's Body Burned.

Garrett A. Randall, of Hackensack, a member of the firm of Browning and Horsey, manufacturers of stationery, New York, who committed suicide on Friday, left a note to his young bride of nine months in which he said he had no regrets for his contemplated suicide and hoped she would keep her promise to have his body cremated.

L. A. Olmstead, a reired manufacturer, father of Mrs. Randall, objected to the cremation, but the young woman said her promises would be kept. The body will be taken to Linden tomorrow morning for cremation. Randall offered no reason for his rash act in the note. He was a young man well known in club circles.

'PHONE SAVES HIS LIFE.

Judge Warned on Way to Door to See Assassin.

Springfield, Ill., March 30.—With a request to see the judge on important business, George N. Johnson called at the residence of Judge George B. Watkins, of the Circuit Court of Petersburg, yesterday.

As the judge started for the door the telephone bell rang and he answered the telephone. He was informed by a friend that Johnson was on his way to his residence to kill him.

Sheriff Rule, who lives near by, was called by telephone and placed Johnson under arrest. A large revolver, loaded, was found on Johnson.

GOVERNOR MAY NAME ROBERT CAREY NEW JUDGE

That Robert Carey, formerly Corporation Attorney of Jersey City, will be named by Governor Fort as the new county judge is the latest bit of political gossip to reach Republicans of the county. The bill providing for an additional county judge in both Hudson and Essex counties having passed the Legislature, it is expected that Governor Fort will send in the nomination of Mr. Carey to the Senate tonight.

Although Mr. Carey is a "New Idea" Republican, his appointment as county judge will not be opposed by County Clerk John Botherham, leader of the "regulars" in Hudson county. This is pleasing to the "New Idea" Republicans, for it was believed that Mr. Rotherham would bitterly oppose the giving of this desirable place to a "New Idea" Republican.

Mr. Rotherham, it is said, has notified Governor Fort that the appointment of Mr. Carey will be satisfactory to him. This, according to reports, was pleasing to Governor Fort, for it is known that he holds Mr. Carey in high regard. He showed this when he appointed him a member of the State Board of Taxation to succeed Charles Black, who was elevated to the Bench.

Although Mr. Rotherham has not opposed Mr. Carey, others have entered the race for the position. Colonel Charles W. Fuller, local representative of the Standard Oil Company, has been mentioned by some for this place, while others have boomed Marshall Van Winkle. Both are organization Republicans, but it is said that Governor Fort has considered only Mr. Carey for the place.

If Mr. Carey is appointed he will probably be the youngest man ever named as county judge, he being thirty-six years old. Mr. Carey has been practising law ever since he was twenty-one years old. He is a partner of Robert S. Hudspeth, formerly county judge.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

That funny little fellow, George Sidney, is registered on the list of attractions, and will arrive at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night. It goes without saying that his numerous admirers and many who have not yet seen him to admire, will be present to give "Busy Izzy's Boodle," Mr. Sidney's new vehicle, a send-off worthy of all merry people. It is also safe to predict that "Busy Izzy" will not hesitate to make the occasion one long to be remembered as an event in amusement circles. For several seasons, "Busy Izzy" has been busy with his store and hotel—last season he took a real recreation in "Busy Izzy's Vacation"—no limit was placed upon his expenditures, and the best costumers and scenic artists were given carte blanche, and instructions to produce the best effects in color and surroundings. This year the same rule has been applied to "Busy Izzy's Boodle," the result of which is better seen than described. "Izzy" will not be alone, for over a half hundred clever and merry companions accompany him to enliven the "affair" with frolic, fun and song. A big beauty chorus will also be present and mingle with others in making "Busy Izzy's Boodle" an incident of importance, with all old notions discarded and replaced only by the latest and up-to-date article in fun, ingenuity and spectacular effects. The performance will be given as the annual benefit for the New Plainfield theatre staff of ushers.

ORANGE IS AROUSED.

Circulars Call Out Citizens to Hear Brady Case Before Board of Education Tonight.

Interest in the dropping of Edwin S. Brady as principal of the Cleveland street public school, Orange, has grown beyond the bounds of the district where the school is located and extends over the entire city.

Thousands of circulars asking the presence of all citizens at tonight's meeting of the Orange Board of Education called to pass finally on the question whether or not the principal is dropped have intensely excited residents. The attitude of citizens on Thursday night at the board meeting will result in police being present.

Factions in the School Board are being visited by the parents and others interested, and tonight's gathering promises to be the most exciting in the history of the schools. The circulars ask all interested to hear the decision "as to the reappointment of one of the best principals Orange ever employed. Shall the decision be rendered on record or rumor?"

Essex County Prosecutor May Die.

Henry Young, Prosecutor of Essex county, who has been suffering from septic poisoning for several days, the result of an attack of erysipelas, was reported today to be in a very critical condition, with but slight chance of recovery. Mr. Young, who is one of the best known members of the New Jersey Bar, is the father of Assemblyman Henry Young, Jr.

—Peter Koehler, of Bound Brook, will begin his duties as agent for the New Jersey Central in Plainfield on Wednesday, succeeding J. A. Haynes, who held the position for more than a quarter of a century.

The Millinery Department

Did you come to our Millinery Opening last week to see the styles Miss Strohuber designed? Every woman of Plainfield who is interested in smart Millinery should have been here. It was an exhibition of styles not to be seen hereabouts, and judging by the crowds that attended, and the Hats purchased during these opening days, Miss Strohuber was well repaid for her untired energy in planning, and creating, and dreaming of nothing but Hats these past 30 days. If you have not been here, come this week. Our salesladies will be pleased to show you through, and you are not urged to buy, for you will scarcely resist these charming Easter Bonnets, priced not much more than half of New York prices.

CHILDREN'S WASH DRESSES FROM 2 TO 6 AND ON UP TO 15 YEARS.

Pretty little Wash Dresses for little girls, and bigger ones; made of linens, percales, madras, and sheer white lawns, trimmed daintily in white and colors; some are made especially for every-day school wear, yet have a "touch" that make them different from those you always see and are tired of; others more elaborate, and of handsomer materials for dressy occasions, 98c to $4.98

SPECIAL—MEN'S SHIRTS 50c.

Not the usual 50c Shirt, or They Wouldn't Be Mentioned Here.

FLOOR COVERINGS, UPHOLSTERIES

No store in all the State of New Jersey presents such a variety of high quality home furnishings as does this one. The exhibit we make when stocks are fresh and full, as they are today, is of such a character as to invite comparison with exhibits such as are seen in many expositions where admission fees are charged.

It is a delight to any home keeper, present or prospective, to walk thru these great departments which occupy our entire third floor.

Interest in the show is heightened when one contemplates the purchase of any of the things we have on view, and the greatest delight comes from choosing from such a splendid, up-to-date assortment of truly artistic furnishings.

It does not matter what one may contemplate possessing--they will find here such a variety as to almost nonplus them, but at the same time making it extremely pleasurable to make selections. One can be sure that there will be seen practically everything that is worth while.

Surely there is no need for Jersey folks to go to New York for Furniture, Floor Coverings, Curtainings or decorative materials.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Paulsboro fishermen are catching as high as ninety shad daily.

General E. Burd Grubb will be the orator of the Memorial Day ceremonies at Tuckerton.

Burlington county has a new weekly newspaper, entitled The Citizen, and issued at Burlington City Friday for the first time.

From injuries received in a runaway the wife of Wellington Kimmel, a former Atlantic City and Philadelphia business man, is in a critical condition at Vineland.

Falling down the hold of a vessel at the New York Shipyards, in Camden, James Monroe, twenty-five years old, of 1643 Fillmore street, sustained severe lacerations of the scalp.

Convicted on a charge of attempting to rob telephone slot machines at the Federal street ferry, in Camden, William Burke, of Pensauken, was Saturday sentenced to one year in State prison by Judge Joline.

Civic bodies, including hotel and business men, will attend a public meeting to be held in Atlantic City on May 6, during which United States officers in charge of waterways will hear arguments for and against the jettying of the inlet for securing of deeper channels.

Stricken with heart failure while reading a newspaper at her home, 209 Linden street, Camden, Saturday, Mrs. Annie Jolly passed away so quietly that several members of her family who were seated in the same room with her did not know of her end.

The Mihchell house, a river-front land-mark at Burlington, and a building which seems to have had a hoodoo for fires, is being razed by the Pier Four Social Club, which will build a clubhouse on the site. Built in 1833, firemen have been called upon nearly a dozen times to subdue blazes there.

Miss Jennie Jones, of Millville, was struck in the face with a basketball while witnessing a game, and her nose glasses were broken and her face cut. She brought suit for damages against "Hilly" Wallace, Millville's big guard, but a jury before Mayor Smith Saturday brought a verdict of "no cause for action."

By unanimous vote of Paterson's Police and Fire Board the ordinance for the government of the fire department, incorporating as the principal new clause the creation of the office of deputy chief, was finally passed at the regular meeting Saturday night. It will now be forwarded to Mayor McBride for his signature and, after being published twice, will take effect.

After being severely scored by Prosecutor Scovel, Frank Gowie was Saturday sentenced to the State prison for nine months by Judge Joline, in Camden, for deserting his wife and three children. "I have shown this defendant every possible chance," said Prosecutor Scovel, "and found him the most persistent wife deserter that it has ever been my misfortune to encounter."

Returning a fortnight ago to his home in Burlington, Edward Reegan, who left home two years ago for a trip arpund the world, decided to settle down and enjoy quiet life. For ten days the simplicity of the new arrangement ran smoothly, then came a strong attack of wanderlust, and Saturday Reegan set off for a trip to Brazil, after hastily bidding farewell to his surprised friends.

After trying in vain for two years to induce the Jersey City Board of Aldermen to adopt a resolution calling upon the Mayor to appoint a shade tree commission, the Board of Trade, Woman's Club and the various improvement associations of Jersey City have decided to have the shade tree act amended so that previous action by the aldermen will not be necessary to obtain the commission.

WALKS TO HOSPITAL WITH FRACTURED KNEE.

Summit, March 30.—Despite the fact that his kneecap was torn loose and that he had sustained a fracture of the knee, Paul Hahn, who resides in this city, but is employed in the Singer Sewing Machine Works in Elizabeth, in which place he met with his accident, made his way unattended from Elizabeth to the Overlook Hospital here Saturday.

Young Hahn did not realize how badly he was injured until he reached the hospital, and when Dr. William H. Lawrence, Jr., informed him of the seriousness of his hurts, he collapsed.

The physicians at the hospital were amazed when the young man informed them that he had made the trip from Elizabeth alone while suffering excruciating pain. An operation was necessary, and it will be several weeks before he will leave the hospital.

Former Sheriff Houston in Florida.

Elizabeth, March 30.—Former Sheriff and Freeholder Robert G. Houston, of this city, is at Indian River, Fla., for his health. He is accompanied by Mrs. Houston and the couple will spend some time in Georgia before returning to Elizabeth. Mr. Houston some time ago sustained a stroke of paralysis, from which he has practically recovered.

John Hickey, of Spooner avenue, who recently suffered a severe paralytic stroke, has shown slight signs of improvement during the past two days.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, who has been making a fine record in golf at Southern Pines, is expected to return home early in April. During his stay in the South he has played a number of matches with well-known professionals and was the winner in each.

George Schoonmaker, chairman of the green committee of the Plainfield Country Club, is a busy man these days getting the course in condition for the opening of the active season.

The committee from the Plainfield Country Club is busy arranging the season's schedule for golf and tennis. It promises to be the best ever and will include many attractive events. The weekly competitions will be a feature as usual, while several special ones will be arranged.

The Park Golf Club is planning for a successful season. There will be the usual competitions, besides several special events to attract the members. The course is now said to be in fine condition and more sporty than ever.

Lord Avebury, the lord rector of St. Andrew's University of London, in the course of an opening address offered the following advice: "Keep your eye on the ball. Keep straight. Keep in the course. Take time. Do not press—never up, never in. Don't lose heart. Be temperate in all things. Keep your temper, or you'll lose the game." From which it may be seen that the rules of golf make a fairly good philosophy to live by.

BASEBALL.

Jimmie Montross has signed to pitch for the Bound Brook team this season. The management of the club has planned to put one of the strongest aggregations in the field that has ever represented the town.

Charles Kenyon, of Somerville, who has always been a strong backer of the West Ends, is out of the game for this year. He is planning to spend a portion of the summer on a pleasure trip.

Manager Ernest Dorflinger, of the Clinton Avenues, may be obliged to make a few changes in his lineup this season. A new man will have to be found to take O'Loughlin's place behind the bat, and two or three positions may have to be filled in the in and outfield.

Jake Gettman and Myron Grimshaw are the latest Toronto players to sign their contracts.

Jack McAleese, the former Rochester player, will play with Youngstown next season.

The Toronto club has transferred Phyle, third baseman; Wottell, outfielder, and Applegate, Toren and Moffatt, pitchers, to the Montreal club. With Phyle on third base Manager Jimmy Casey is slated to cover first base.

The Baltimore club has signed Charley Pittenger, who pitched for the Philadelphia Nationals last season.

Billy Gilbert, second baseman of the St. Louis Nationals, is laid up in Houston, Tex., with an attack of fever.

Elmer Flick, outfielder of the Cleveland Nationals, who has been training with the Naps at Macon, Ga., has been sent to his home in Louisville owing to illness.

President Ban Johnson is at French Lick Springs, Ind., trying to recuperate his health. Fred Knowles, secretary of the New York National League team, is also planning to go to the resort.

THEY GO TO PRISON TO DIE IN COMFORT

Officials of the New Jersey State prison, at Trenton, with twenty cases of consumption in the hospital, are beginning to find out that in many instances the sufferers have become criminals with the deliberate purpose of securing a comfortable place in which to die. Most hospitals and like institutions refuse to admit tuberculosis diseases, and this regulation leaves the victims without place of shelter at a time when they need it the most. It is then that they turn criminals, committing any of the number of offenses which insure long prison terms.

Convicted in the courts for their crimes, nothing can be done with them but to commit them to prison, and here they are assured of good quarters, substantial food, medical treatment and a comfortable bed. Sick men are not required to work, and some of the convicts have been sent direct to the hospital on their admission to the prison, perhaps never to leave the ward until they are carried out in the little pine box which is the convict's casket.

This was notably true in the case of a Camden prisoner admitted a few days ago. He had to get up from a sick bed in jail to come to Trenton, and his condition was such that the guards feared he would die on the train. He collapsed at the prison door and had to be carried immediately to the hospital. His death is now only a matter of a few weeks.

Of the twenty-nine cases now under treatment in the prison hospital twenty are consumptives. All of them are being made as comfortable as possible, and all of them seem happy in that they have so good a place in which to meet the death that daily grows nearer and nearer as the ravages of the disease progresses.

Firemen's Pension Fight On.

One of the important matters to be disposed of by the Legislature this week will be the fight which has been waging for several years between the paid and volunteer fire departments of the State over the diverting of revenue to the firemen's pension fund. The fight has waged bitterly for a long time and bills are now pending looking to an adjustment of the dispute. The trouble is that each side wants the adjustment its own way, and the bills will have to be fought out on the floor of the Senate, hearings having failed to result in any compromise or agreement.

Colonel Roebling to Wed.

Following the recent wedding of his friend, Barker Gummere, to a Southern widow, Colonel Washington A. Roebling, 73 years old, vice president of the John A. Roebling Sons Company, of Trenton, and famous the world over as the builder of the Brooklyn Bridge, has announced his engagement to Mrs. Corinne Farrow, a resident of Charleston, S. C., a woman of about half his age.

BISHOP DUBS' SERMONS

Founder of United Evangelical Church Preaches Twice at First M. E. Church.

AND IN AFTERNOON TO MEN.

"The Passion Conference" and "The Christian Witness" Are the Harrisburg, Pa., Divine's Themes.

Bishop Rudolph Dubs, of Harrisburg, Pa., founder of the United Evangelical church, occupied the pulpit at the First M. E. church, yesterday morning and evening, and delivered two exceptionally strong sermons before large congregations. The venerable divine, past seventy years, yet hale and vigorous, was an impressive figure. His discourses were helpful and inspiring and held the close attention of everyone.

"The Passion Conference" was the theme for the morning sermon, and it was based on the transfiguration of Christ, linked with His journey to Jerusalem. He mentioned the different parties in the conference, first, Christ, then Peter, James and John, the disciples, representing the earthly and Moses and Elias representing the spiritual world, all of whom he described as partners of the conference.

The Bishop then referred to the subject of the meeting, the trial, death and ressurection of Christ and he dwelt at some length on spiritual realities, the materialzation of spiritual things as exemplified by Moses and Elias and the spirit world in its relation to the material, which he said he was pleased to call Biblical spiritualness. He elaborated on the many strong points presented and gave his congregation a clear and concises view of his topic.

An equally large congregation listened to the Bishop in the evening when he preached on the theme "The Christian Witness," taken from the words in the Acts, "Ye are witnesses of these things." He described the court of trial, the place of witnesses there, the character of witnesses, and declared that a witness should not be ignorant, nor prejudiced or have self-interest. Any of these things would tend to weaken his testimony, making it valueless.

Speaking in a positive way, the Bishop dwelt on the creditability of witnesses, the necessity for unanimity of testimony, all of which would strengthen the case. He then referred to the Christian witness as possessing these qualifications, making him one of the best in advancing the interests of the Kingdom of Christ. The Bishop illustrated his discourse with numerous illustrations, which were appropriate.

In the afternoon the Bishop spoke at the Y. M. C. A. on the subject, "Does it Pay to be a Christian?" With some people, the speaker declared, the almighty dollar was something more to be desired than being a Christian. This he disputed and he treated his theme solely from a business proposition. He said that being a Christian was profitable unto all things and increases the value and use of things possessed by the individual, while it also adds to one's usefulness and happiness.

For an Anti-Dog Campaign.

Many persons in Montclair are advocating the organization of a society for the suppression of unnecessary dogs. It is claimed that too many of the animals are maintained as pets. The town has no noise making industries, but the disgruntled ones say the dogs at night are more nerve racking than a boiler plate factory.

Poor to Have $70,000 Church.

Ground was broken yesterday at Avenue E and 23d street, Bayonne, for the erection of a new $70,000 edifice for the congregation of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church. The members are nearly all poor Slavs. The pastor, the Rev. Father Sxikora, was ill and was taken to the ground breaking in a coach.

To Make Bergen Tramps Work.

It is expected that a bill will be introduced in the Legislature at Trenton tonight that will help the authorities to rid Bergen county of the tramps that infest that section. The bill is to give the Board of Freeholders the privilege of having short term prisoners in the Hackensack jail work on the county almshouse.

Will Open "Old Home Week."

Governor Fort has agreed to open the exercises for the "Old Home Week" celebration in Belleville, from May 4 to May 9. A committee to look after the details has been appointed, and consists of the members of the township committee, ministers, physicians and other public officials.

New Cars at Newark.

"Pay-as-you-enter" cars will be put in operation in Newark on Sunday, April 12. The cars will be equipped with a motor box on only one end, as the loop terminal system in use in Newark makes the "double-ender" control on cars needless.

—Dr. C. A. Gesswein removes tomorrow from East Front street to "The Bristol," corner Central avenue and West Front street.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, of Central avenue, will leave this week for the South to visit their sons. They will be away two weeks.

DATE OF DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION CHANGED.

Members of the Democratic State Committee have agreed on Thursday, April 23, for holding the State convention, and Charles H. Gallagher, Mercer county member, has engaged the State Street theatre, Trenton, for that day.

It was learned that it would not be possible for the delegates to get proper accommodations on April 22, the date fixed by the State Committee. Grand Master Austen H. McGregor Thursday communicated with City Counsel James R. Nugent, of Newark, Essex member of the State Committee, telling him that Masons would be at Trenton on the day that had been fixed for the convention, and it might not only interfere with the individual delegates getting accommodations, but possibly would prevent the party from getting the auditorium it wanted.

Mr. Nugent favored April 21 for the convention at first, but after a long distance telephone conversation between Mr. Gallagher and State Chairman Robert Hudspeth, at Jersey City, it was agreed that the best day would be April 23.

FIRE ON TROLLEY CAR.

Blaze in Controller Box Causes Stampede of Passengers.

Just as car No. 1,615 of the Elizabeth-Newark line, reached the corner of Market and Broad streets, Newark, southbound, at 6:20 o'clock last night, a tongue of flame shot from the controller box. Several women in the car became frightened and rushed toward the rear exit and left the car. The crew made an effort to assure them that there was no danger, but they refused to accept their counsel.

When the flames devoured all there was inflammable in the controller box the fire went out, but the car was crippled and was pushed to the Miller street car barns.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Brookside Gun Club defeated the Borough Club in the match shoot, held Saturday afternoon, on the Brookside grounds, the Brooksides winning out by four birds. The shooting was poor on both sides. This was partly accounted for by the high wind which kept the clay birds scaling in a deceptive way. The members of the two teams were: Brookside—James Johnston, Edward Hand, Authony Albert, Phil Jahn and Tom Brantingham. Borough—Long, Harrison, Fancher, Ley and Kirk.

Several days ago a wagon drove into Mrs. C. N. Flanders' yard and left with a refrigerator which had been standing in the basement since the auction two weeks ago. In order to get the refrigerator the party broke the cellar door. Several persons saw the man and Mrs. Flanders says she will begin an action against him unless the property is returned.

The pleasent weather Saturday afternoon brought the candidates for the baseball team out for practise. The way the boys got into the game makes it look as though Manager Alberts would have plenty of good material to select from.

The warm weather of the past week has started the early gardenrs to work. Some of the older residents, however, predict several frosts yet before settled weather.

Captain H. B. Saunders had charge of the evening service at the Baptist church last night. Rev. T. Moore-Smith's pastorate ended with the morning service.

Charles Elliott led the joint meeting of the B. Y. P. U. and Port Watch Society held last night in the parlors of the church.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class room of the Methodist church.

ARTIFICIAL LAKE HOLDS 55,000,000,000 GALLONS.

The most interesting construction ever undertaken in New Jersey will be that of the proposed reservoir, or artificial lake, by the building of a dam across Pompton river at Mountain View, as recommended by the State Water Supply Commission. Two plans were under consideration —one for a dam at Little Falls and the other at Mountain View. The Water Supply Commission employed a number of eminent engineers to make a careful examination of the respective merits of the two plans, and these reported in favor of the Mountain View dam. Their objection to the Little Falls project was that it would involve a large area of shallow water around the margin, which would foster the growth of injurious algae. The Mountain View plan calls for a dam two hundred and twenty feet above sea level, affording a capacity in excess of that needed for flood protection of 55,000,000,000 gallons. This will afford sufficient capacity to provide for a daily draught of 50,000,000 gallons, which can be allowed to pass down the river to maintain the normal flow, in addition to a supply of 200,000,000 gallons per day for potable and power purposes.

It is proposed that the normal level be maintained at about 203 feet, the upper half of the basin, to 220 feet elevation, being necessarily reserved for the temporary storage of flood waters, which will be drawn as soon as practicable each flood, in order to prepare for a subsequent period of high water. The proposed dam will be about 3,500 feet long, creating a lake of 11,200 acres, a considerable part of which will be from forty to fifty feet in depth. In the valley that will be flooded by this dam are situated the villages of Pompton Plains, Pompton, Pequannock, Wayne, etc. It will involve the change of location of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad for a distance of several miles, and the Greenwood Lake branch of the Erie Railroad and the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad for considerably greater distances. It will also necessitate the rebuilding of a part of the Morris Canal, and many changes in highways and other structures affected by the impounded waters. The total estimated cost of the scheme is $5,950,099, or, with twenty-five per cent. added for contingencies, $7,437,624. This includes $1,062,225 for the dam; $458,000 for damage to highways; about $700,000 for relocation of railroads; $1,176,000 for Newark pipe line, and $2,235,220 for the land for the reservoir.

More interesting even than the prely utilitarium purpose that would be served by the creation of this reservoir are what may be called its aesthetic or sentimental attractions. It will create a large and beautiful lake amid charming mountain and rural scenery, within easy reach of New York and other large cities, and will probably become the seat of many summer and suburban homes.

—Tomorrow at 1 p. m., P. H. Latourette, auctioneer, will sell the household furniture at 321 East Fifth street. **

—Arthur Masters and family, of Third place, have gone to New Canaan, Conn., where they will make their home.

MYSTERY IN YOUNG WOMAN'S DEATH.

Detectives Seeking Without Success Midwife Said to Live In New Brunswick.

Detectives working on the death of Miss Mary Vleit, of Blairstown, N. J., in St. Michael's Hospital, in Newark, on Thursday, are looking for a midwife who described herself as Mrs. F. Dodge, of New Brunswick, who, it is said, took Miss Vleit to a boarding house in Newark, from which place she was taken to the hospital. So far their search has been futile. Malpractice is thought to have caused her death.

The young woman came from a well-to-do family in Blairstown. She went to Newark on Thursday, ostensibly to do some shopping, with a young man said to have been Irving Van Horn, also of Blairstown, a friend of her family. He returned home without her and said she had been taken ill and had been operated on. No arrests have been made.

PRISON FOR TWO WHO HAD HIDDEN WEAPONS.

New Brunswick, March 30.—Charles Bitz, who despite his name is an Italian, was sentenced by Judge Booraem, in the Court of Quarter Sessions Friday morning to nine months in State prison on conviction for carrying concealed weapons. Bitz was arrested at Roosevelt with a heavy caliber revolver in his pocket.

In imposing sentence Judge Booraem declared that Bitz had no excuse, there was no evidence to show that he had been threatened or that his life was in danger and ignorance of the law could not be pleaded, since in his native country the laws against carrying weapons are more stringent than in America.

William Lowden, of Plainfield, who denied being a member of the "Dutch Ides" gang, was sent to the reformatory at Rahway on conviction for carrying concealed weapons.

FORT SIGNS TRENTON'S $800,000 CITY HALL ACT.

Governor Fort Friday signed the two bills permitting Trenton to build an $800,000 city hall. The law under which the commission had been operating, passed two years ago, was shown to be defective in the courts, in that it did not give the commissioners the right of land condemnation. The new act gives the power.

The people who were against the bill, whose properties are wanted for the new building, sent a lawyer to the Governor to protest against his signing the measures, but the Governor, after remarking that he did not intend to stand in the way of municipal progress, signed the bills.

Quartermaster General C. Edward Murray, Ferdinand W. Roebling and ex-Senator Jonathan H. Blackwell are the commissioners who will erect the building.

Use Dogs to Track Thieves.

Bridgeton, March 30.—Bloodhounds are now being used by officers of the law in an effort to track down a gang of thieves that have been operating in this city for a month past. Almost every night from one to half a dozen places are entered and robbed, and up to this time the thieves have made good their escape. Last night attempts were made to enter three residences in the western section of the city. A telephone message to the city hall brought the officers and dogs to the scene, but nothing was accomplished. The robberies are very mysterious, and the women folks of the city are terrorized and afraid to remain alone at home, as many of the robberies occur in the early part of the evening. Prosecutor Fithian has been appealed to, and is using all means at his command for the apprehension of the thieves.

Accept $10,000 Library Bequest.

Flemington, March 30.—Much interest was manifested in the special election held here Friday afternoon to vote upon the question of accepting or rejecting the bequest of the late Dr. William H. Bartles, who left the town $10,000 to erect a public library building. Those interested in accepting the gift were at the polls and worked hard to get a heavy vote cast. It was decided to accept the bequest by a majority of 196. There were 321 votes cast in favor of the gift and 25 against it. Hiram E. Deats, after the result of the election was announced, donated to the town a lot in Main street as a site for the building. The lot is valued at $5,000. It is not likely that the building will be erected during the present year. It will be used by the Hunterdon County Historical Society as well as the library association.

To Ordain Episcopal Clergymen.

The Rev. Morgan Ashley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Ashley, of Prospect street, East Orange, will be ordained to the Episcopal priesthood in Grace Episcopal church, Orange, next Thursday morning. It will be a double ordination, the Rev. H. K. Garnier also being scheduled for the same ceremony. The services will be conducted by Bishop Edwin S. Lines. Four windows, a testimonial to the Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, a formed rector of the church, will be unveiled at the time.

Threatened to Kill His Wife.

Elizabeth, March 30.—John Williams, a blacksmith and horseshoer, was arrested Friday at his home, 67 West Jersey street, on complaint of his wife, whom he chased out of the house with an axe and threatening to kill her. The frightened woman was given shelter for the night in the residence of a neighbor. Williams was arraigned in police court before Judge Mahon, who committed him to the county jail in default of $200 bonds to keep the peace.

Bar to Dine Justice Voorhees.

Freehold, March 30.—At a meeting of executive committee of the Monmouth County Bar Association here Friday arrangements were made to tender to Justice Willard P. Voorhees a complimentary dinner on the first day of the May term of court, when he first makes his appearance in this district.

House 136 Years Old Burns.

The home of Eugene Benjamin, in Roseland avenue, Caldwell, and the oldest house in the borough, was wrecked by fire yesterday. The building, which is 136 years old, was originally occupied by Denman Gould, and later by Dr. Daniel Halsey.

—William E. Bartle, of this city, will take possession of the Bartle farm at Martinsville on May 1.

EYE-STRAIN

is directly responsible for the major ity of cases of blindness today. If instead of trying to overwork the eyes, one would at once get glasses at the first warning of eye-strain there would be fewer cases of blindness at the present time.

Come to us and have your eyes examined free of charge and we will advise you what to do to save them.

Special Master's Sale

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

Between MARTHA E. FORCE, Complainant, and JOHN T. DOLBIER, et als., Defendants.

By virtue of and in pursuance of a decree of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, dated the twenty-sixth day of February, nineteen hundred and seven, made in a certain cause pending in said court, on bill for partition, wherein Martha E. Force is complainant, and John T. Dolbier, et als., are defendants, I, Nelson Runyon, the Special Master of said Court of Chancery, in said decree mentioned, will expose to sale, at public vendue, to the highest bidder, on TUESDAY, THE TWENTY-FIRST DAY OF APRIL, A. D., 1908, at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, on the premises hereinafter described, namely, all those certain tracts or parcels of land and premises, situate, lying and being in the Township of Fanwood, in the County of Union, and State of New Jersey, mentioned in the bill of complaint in this cause, and therein described as follows:

The First Tract—Beginning at a stake on the northeast side of the road leading from Scotch Plains to the Two Bridges, and in the line of land late of John Rogers, deceased, which stake is also the north corner of lot number two, hereinafter assigned and set off to Jonathan Dolbier; from said beginning running south, forty-three degrees and forty minutes west, and binding on lot number two, six chains and thirty-two links to a stake; thence binding on said lot north, forty-nine degrees and thirty-five minutes west, one chain and fifty links to a stake; thence still binding on said lot south forty-three degrees and forty minutes west, ten chains and eighty links to a stake; thence binding partly on said lot and partly on lot number six, south forty-three degrees and twenty minutes west, ten chains and twenty-five links to a stone in a corner of William Hand's land; thence binding on his land north, forty-six degrees and forty-five minutes west, seven chains and twenty-two links to a stone in another corner of said Hand's land; thence binding partly on land in the possession of Silas Faitout north, forty-five degrees and five minutes east, sixteen chains and thirty-two links to a stone in a corner of the last mentioned land, and in the line of heirs of John Rogers, deceased; thence binding on the said heirs south forty-seven degrees east, five chains and sixty-two links to the south corner of the said heir's land; thence still binding on the land of said heirs, north, forty-three degrees east, eleven chains to a stake on the northeast side of said road, in the line of the said land late of John Rogers, deceased; thence along the side of said road, and binding on the said land south, fifty degrees and fifty-five minutes east; two chains and sixty-six links to the beginning, containing thirteen acres and forty-eight hundredths of an acre of land.

The Second Tract—[viz Number Six] Begins at a stake in William Hand's line, and in the north corner of lot number seven, hereinafter assigned to Jesse Dolbier; thence binding on said Hand's land, north, forty-three degrees and thirty minutes east twenty-five links to the first mentioned stone in the corner of said Hand's land, which stone is also the south corner of lot number one; thence binding on said lot north, forty-three degrees and twenty minutes east, four chains and seventy-five links to a stake in the line of lot number one, it being the west corner of lot number two; thence binding on the last named lot, south, forty-nine degrees and thirty-five minutes east, five chains and seventy-five links to a stake in the line of lot number five, it being also the south corner of lot number two; thence binding on lot number five, south, forty-three degrees and forty-five minutes west, one chain and forty-six links to a stone in the west corner of said lot which stone is the north corner of Matthew Connet's woodland; thence binding on said Connet's land, south, forty-three degrees west, three chains and fifty-four links to a stake in said Connet's line, it being the east corner of lot number seven; thence binding on said lot north, forty-nine degrees and thirty-five minutes west, five chains and seventy-five links to the place of beginning, containing two acres and eighty-four hundredths of an acre of land.

The tracts above described being the same premises set off to Cutter Dolbier, by the Commissioners appointed by the Essex County Orphan's Court, to partition certain lands devised by Jesse Dolbier, deceased, designated by said Commissioners, as lots numbers one and six of said decedent's lands, as appears by the records of said Court, in book H, pages 242, etc., January, 1834.

The Third Tract—Beginning at a stone corner being Jackson Pound's and running with his line north, forty-nine degrees west, eleven chains and eighty links to a corner of William Hand, then with Hand's line north, forty-four degrees east, eight chains and twenty-eight links to a corner of Johnson Martin; thence south forty-nine degrees east, five chains and seventy-eight links to a stone corner, being Matthew Connet's; thence with his land south, forty-four degrees west, three chains and forty-three links to another of said Connet's corner's; thence south, forty-nine degrees east, five chains and ninety-three links to another of said Connet's corners; thence south, forty-four degrees west, six chains and seventy-seven links, to the place of beginning, containing ten acres of land, be the same more or less. Being the same premises conveyed by Erkuries B. Dunham, et als. to Cutter Dolbier, by deed dated March 7th, 1849, and recorded in Essex County Register's Office, in book R. No. 8, of Deeds, pages 154, etc.

The Fourth Tract—Beginning at a stone planted for a corner, being the south corner of Johnson Martin's land, and west corner of a lot of woodland, formerly owned by Eliphalet DeCamp, deceased, and the north corner of land belonging to the heirs of Henry Tucker, deceased; thence binding in part on the line of said heirs, and partly on the line of Moses Tucker's land south, forty-four degrees and forty-five minutes west, eleven chains and ninety links to a stake on the line of said Moses Tucker, being also the east corner of a tract of land belonging to the heirs of John Dolbier, deceased; thence binding on the line of said Dolbier's heirs, north, forty-nine degrees and forty-five minutes west, five chains and eighty-nine links to a stake in an angle of the land of said Dolbier's heirs; thence binding in part on the line of said Dolbier's heirs, partly on the line of Jesse Dolbier and partly on the line of Cutter Dolbier, north, forty-four degrees and fifteen minutes east, twelve chains and nine links, also the west corner of said Martin's land; thence binding on the said Martin's line, south, forty-eight degrees and five minutes east, six chains to the place of beginning, containing seven acres and twelve-hundredths of an acre of land, more or less. THE ESCAPADE

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

ILLUSTRATIONS BY [illegible]

Waiting by the Companion Hatch Where He Could See and Hear.

Ellen, with her sailor suit, carried a sheath knife. It was a good thing, for she had left her sword and pistols in the berth, where she had taken them off before going to sleep. It was the work of a moment to sever the painter, and a vigorous push drove the little boat clear of the ship. There were oars in the boat, which was not too large for Ellen to row. She broke them out cautiously and by a few slow, steady but powerful strokes, she soon got sufficiently far from the merchant ship to avoid any powerful risk of observation. Then she shipped the oars, stepped forward, hoisted the sail, drew the sheet aft, seized the tiller and bore away recklessly into the night.

She knew exactly what had occurred. Sir Charles Seton, or her husband, or Lord Strathgate—although scarcely the latter—had interested Admiral Kephard and he had brought the Britannia out to take her back. They would be a disappointed and surprised lot when they examined the ship and found her gone. Nobody would be more surprised than worthy Master Jeremiah Tuggles.

Ellen's heart exulted at her freedom. She did not know where she was going, what the course, nor anything else, but she knew that they had not caught her yet, and that her disappearance would be a great mystery to them. She could have laughed aloud in glee as the little boat, feeling the full force of the wind, rippled through the black waters under the black sky.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Unsuccessful Dash of the Britannia.

To say that Captain Jeremiah Tuggles was angry at the difficulties in which he had involved himself by attempting to further the flight of his compatriots is to put it mildly. He was entirely helpless, however. To have attempted to brave a ship-of-the-line like the Britannia would have been madness. The English leviathan could sail three fathoms to his two, and if she could not, a half broadside would have blown the merchantman off the face of the waters. The independence of the United States had been recognized, but the country was yet too new and too weak for England to treat her former colonists with any very great amount of consideration or respect. The ancient habit of authority was too strong and England for years had carried matters with a high hand on the high seas.

Tuggles was a man of sense and therefore he obeyed the imperious mandate from the other ship. He surmised, of course, why he had been bidden to heave to. His unlucky passengers had caused this humiliation to be put upon him and he cursed the kindly impulse which had led him to receive them. He did not send below to awaken them. He would let the people in the approaching boat do that.

One of the Britannia's cutters had been filled with men and dropped overboard. While he watched her, he could not but admire the splendid man-of-war stroke with which the cutter bore away from the brightly lighted sides of the liner and approached his own darker ship. Presently, he heard sharp words of command from the water below.

"Way enough! Oars!"

The next moment the cutter softly slid alongside the Flying Star. A second or two later a figure appeared in the gangway and stepped to the deck. The visitor was followed by two others. Captain Tuggles strode moodily aft on the quarterdeck. These visitors were not guests and he had no desire to extend to them any hospitality whatsoever. In fact, there was no one to receive them and in the darkness, the decks looked to be deserted.

The second man who had reached the deck, stepped forward, took the first by the arm and walked aft with an assurance born of familiarity with ships and decks. They found Captain Tuggles standing just forward of the mizzenbast.

"Are you the captain of this ship?" began the second visitor, who had acted as pilot across the deck.

"I am."

"What ship is it?"

There was nothing to be gained by withholding the information desired and Captain Tuggles swallowed his wrath and choked out the name of his vessel, where from, and whither bound. That done, he proceeded to interrogate his visitors.

"An' I'd like to know by what authority you stop on the high seas a peaceable trader belongin' to a free nation?"

"The authority of a hundred gun ship-of-the-line, my friend," returned the officer, who was Lieutenant Collier.

The argument was unanswerable. Captain Tuggles, taken aback by the lieutenant's reply, growled out:

"Well, what did you do it for? I can't afford to lay around idle in the channel for half the night while you—"

"Now, my friend," interrupted Collier, "you had best keep a civil and quiet tongue in your head. The more polite you are and the quicker you answer, the less trouble you give us, the sooner we'll let you go."

"What do you want?" asked Tuggles. "Some of my men? They're all free born Americans, and—"

"It's not men we're after now, but women."

"I've none in my crew," said the American, steadily.

His heart relented at the last minute and he thought perhaps he could stave off the trans-shipping of his passengers which it was now evident was the purpose of this sea domiciliary visit.

"I have no doubt that you speak correctly," answered Collier, "but these ladies would be on your passenger list."

"This ship don't carry passengers," began Tuggles.

"Now, that'll do, captain," said Collier with a touch of the peremptory in his voice, "two persons were seen to board your ship about noon to-day. One of them was plainly a woman, the other was disguised in men's clothing."

"Who seen them board my ship?" persisted Tuggles.

"I did," said the other figure.

"And who may you be?"

"Sir Charles Seton, captain in the Sussex light infantry, although that's not a matter which need concern you greatly."

"Oh, needn't it?" said Captain Tuggles.

"Allow me, Mr. Collier," continued Seton; "the two persons are aboard here and we must take them off the ship."

"I protest against this outrage," began Captain Tuggles.

"You can protest until you are black in the face, or red, white and blue, if that suits you better," said Sir Charles. "I say the people are here and I mean to have them, and—"

"By what right?"

"Mr. Collier has given you an answer to that question."

"And if I refuse to give them up?"

"Ah! You admit they are here then?" returned Sir Charles, smiling.

"I admit nothin'. But if they were here an' I'd refuse to give 'em up, what then?"

"We'd take them by force."

"And how would you get 'em?"

"I'd search the ship."

"Search my ship!" roared Captain Tuggles. "I have 20 stout able-bodied American seamen aboard here!"

"And I have as many in the boat yonder," said Sir Charles, "and there are seven hundred on the Britannia. Now, be reasonable, one of those persons is the wife of Lord Carrington. She's running away from him—"

"Is it again the law for a woman to run away from her husband?"

"We have nothing to do with that," returned Sir Charles.

"An' how do I know your story's true?" continued the captain. "Americans are not in the habit of runnin' away from Englishmen, not even American women from English lords."

And here the worthy captain spoke truer than he knew. There was even a touch of the prophetic in his voice, but we must not anticipate.

"Whether you believe it or not," said Sir Charles, "is a matter of no consequence. The point is, the women were seen to board this ship and we mean to have them. Neither you nor the crew, nor the women themselves can prevent it and you might as well submit to the inevitable, sir."

"You can do what you please," returned the captain, turning his back upon the Englishmen and stalking aft. "When you're through with my ship perhaps you'll kindly turn her over to me, and when I get back to Boston I'll see that this is reported to General Washington."

"He's a gentleman for whom I have great respect," returned Sir Charles, easily, "and I shall be interested to know what he thinks of you for abducting the wife of a peer of England on the high seas."

"Abductin'!" roared Captain Tuggles turning from aft. "I like that. She boarded of her own free will."

"Mr. Collier," said Seton, interrupting the captain who quickly subsided when he saw he was out of the game, "perhaps you will be good enough to assist me to search the ship. I confess that the nautical side of my education has been neglected. Where do you think they are likely to be?"

"If they haven't concealed themselves," returned Collier, "we'll find them in the cabin."

"And how do you get to the place?"

"This way," said the lieutenant, pointing to the companion hatchway.

The two stumbled down, bidding the midshipman who had accompanied them to watch on the deck and summon the boat's crew at the slightest evidence of trouble.

The cabin was dark, since Ellen had taken the precaution to carry the lantern with her, but that seemed to make no difference to Mr. Collier. Bidding Seton stay at the foot of the ladder, he went from one stateroom to another. He tried the doors, opened most of them without difficulty, satisfied himself by a brief inspection of each that no one was within, until he came to the room in which the women had retired to rest. This door was locked. He felt for a key. There was none there. He shook the door, beat upon it with his fist, called out, but there was no answer.

"They'll be there," he said, "or perhaps in the captain's room which should be aft."

He turned to the door of the thwartship bulkhead and found it too was locked.

"We'll go on deck, if you please, Sir Charles," said the officer, "and interview the captain again."

They found Tuggles waiting by the companion hatch. His curiosity had drawn him to a point whence he could see and hear the expected explosion.

"Captain," began the lieutenant, "all the cabins but two are unlocked. We want the keys for those two."

"I haven't got no keys," answered the captain, curtly. "If they're locked—which two be they?"

"One is the after cabin on the port side; the other is, I take it, your own."

"My own ain't locked."

"I beg your pardon, I've just tried the door. You can go below and see for yourself. Perhaps you'd better bring us a light."

Captain Tuggles would have let them grope in the darkness forever had it not been for the complication of his own locked door.

A light was brought from the galley by the cabin boy and the three went below again. Captain Tuggles plunged to the door of his own cabin, turned the handle confidently. Sure enough it was locked.

"You see?" said Mr. Collier.

"I see, but I don't understand," said the captain. "Those two females went into this cabin. I showed them in there myself."

He pointed to the locked door.

"And that's locked, too. Now, captain, we are determined to get in those two cabins and we don't want to do any unnecessary damage to your ship. Have you a carpenter on board?"

"Yes," growled the captain.

"Then you'd better send for him, for if you don't, I shall be under the painful necessity of blowing open the locks."

The captain ran up the ladder and bade the second mate—both mates had been on deck during the episode—send the carpenter aft with some tools for forcing locks. Presently a grizzled old veteran presented himself in the cabin and by Captain Tuggles' direction soon forced the lock of the stateroom. Taking a lantern Seton went into the room which had been occupied by the young women. It was empty. Both bunks had been slept in, however, and on the floor lay Ellen's sword, belt and pistols where she had left them.

"They were here, that's certain," he said, turning to Mr. Collier.

"They've probably gone into the captain's cabin."

"What for, I wonder," growled the American.

"We'll soon see," returned Collier. "Have the carpenter open that door also."

After fumbling a few moments the carpenter forced open the last door. Again Seton entered, followed by the other two. There was no one there. The captain's eye was attracted by the open stern window. He started, opened his mouth to say something, thought better upon it and stopped. But there were two pairs of eyes in the cabin just as sharp as those of worthy Master Tuggles. One pair belonged to the sailor. Collier, too, noticed the open stern window and he at once pointed it out to Seton.

"I see it all now," he said. "Something must have alarmed them. They left their own cabin, locked it to keep us busy and give themselves time, came in here and went overboard through the stern window."

"Overboard into what?" cried Sir Charles in dismay. "You don't think they've committed suicide?"

Collier laughed.

"Certainly not. Didn't you notice just before dark when we were overhauling the ship that she had a small boat trailing astern. It's pounds to pennies that they've gone in that. Here, wait; I'll find out."

He wriggled out of the window himself, dropped down the Jacob's ladder and peered anxiously aft. There was no sign of a boat. It was dark and he couldn't see very well, but he could see enough to know that from whatever cause, the boat that had been dragging astern was gone.

"You've lost them again, Sir Charles," he said gloomily, as he climbed into the cabin again.

"I'll not believe it," cried Sir Charles bitterly disappointed at this unfortunate ending of so promising a venture.

Captain Tuggles laughed. It must be confessed that he hugely enjoyed the discomfiture of his unwelcome visitors.

"What's to be done now?" cried Sir Charles.

"Nothing but go back to the Britannia."

"What! without searching the ship?"

SECOND TALK ON "CREED"

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring Continues His Instructive Discourses.

HE INTERPRETS ITS MEANING.

Present Text of the Creed Can Be Traced to the Sixth Century, He Says.

The second discourse on "The Apostles Creed," was delivered by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, last night, before a large congregation. The first sermon in the series was on the topic "I Believe," and as Dr. Herring explained these two words formed the basis for the creed. Last night under the subdivisions "God the Father Almighty," "The second affirmation of the Creed," and "The outline of the Creed in the second century," and Westcott's view the doctor treated his subject in an interesting way. He spoke in part as follows:

"In the first sermon on the creed we were concerned with the first two words, "I Believe." These two words form its basis. The Bible is God's word to man. The Creed is man's word to God. It is the definite positive confession of a man's faith and will. God's word is valueless to man until he makes that word his own by a definite act of his will.

"The 'I Believe' of the Creed is not a mere intellectual assent. It is the placing of a man's confidence in God's revelation. It is saying, I will take this God to be my God.

"The Apostles Creed is not an inspired message. Back of it is God's word upon which it rests, but it gathers from that word the great truths of revelation. A man may say the Bible is my creed, but we are not clear in our minds how he interprets the Bible. A Theosophist, a Christian Scientist, a follower of Mr. Crowdy, and a socialist all find their basis in the Bible.

"There is a tendency in men to overemphasize a part of the truth, to see it abnormally and forget its relation to other truths. Men are forever going off at a tangent in religious things and becoming religious cranks. They need some sort of a creed to keep them true to all of God's truth.

"The Creed does present the salient things we are to look for in the Bible, the great God's people have believed in the past and believe today.

"The present text of the Creed can be traced to the sixth century after Christ, but in outline we discover it as far back as the second century as before stated.

"Professor Westcott recently Regius Professor of Divinity in Cambridge University, England, and who with Professor Hort edited the best version of the Greek New Testament, said regarding the age of the Creed, 'The history of the church is indeed sadly chequered but there is no other history which can be compared with it, and from the first, the Apostles Creed was substantially the symbol of its heroes.

"Interpretations, glosses, enlargements were added but the outline was fixed in the second century, at least, fixed unchangeably. As often as we repeat the Creed of our baptism we repeat the words by which martyrs lived and died, the words under which new nations have been enrolled as soldiers in Christ's army, the words which have remained through every vicissitude the standard of Christian belief.

"Again he says, 'There can be little doubt that the Apostles Creed in its main substance represents the Baptismal Confession in the middle of the second century.' (B. F. Westcott, The Historic Faith).

"If Professor Westcott is correct we have a confession which reaches back almost to the Apostolic age, a confession, while not the work of the Apostles, is a great outline of the Apostolic doctrine in its essential features.

"Professor Westcott says further that the Creed is 'not the complete expression of the facts of our faith, but it brings before us the facts in their simple majesty.'

"The Bible is a book that has been greatly sinned against. It has been taken to back up error as well as truth. The value of the Creed is this that it represents the leading truths of God's revelation in their harmonious relation.

"The Creed does not say, I believe in truth, in goodness, but I believe in God and the truth He has revealed. God is the great Reality above my temporal experience, and this God is my Father, not the Father of Israel, as the Old Testament pictures Him but my individual Father as Christ pictures Him. This, my Father, is at the same time 'Almighty,' His love is matched by His almightiness. He is the all-sovereign Father, to whose power there is nothing superior. His Fatherly interest in me is matched by His almightiness. Even the heaven and the earth are the work of His hands through the agency of His Son.

"All created things have a place in His plan and all created things must minister to His glory. There is nothing therefore in God's creation that can really hurt man, for the almighty Father who is interested personally in me is the same being who has created and sustains the heavens and the earth.

"Think then of all that means as man answers God's revelation with these words, 'I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth.' Why should that confession not make a better man?"

OBITUARY.

Albert Baumgartner.

Albert Baumgartner, for fifteen years employed as driver by George Voehl, the West Front street baker, died at Muhlenberg Hospital Saturday afternoon. He had been there ten days, undergoing treatment for dropsy and complications. Baumgartner was forty-five years old and come to Plainfield from New York. He leaves a wife. The funeral was held at Cole's undertaking rooms this afternoon with Rev. J. W. Musson in charge and burial was made in the Plainfield avenue cemetery.

John LePoidevin.

John LePoidevin, aged fifty-six years, died Saturday at his home on West Sixth street. The funeral will be held at the late residence tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Mrs. Catheren Friday.

Mrs. Catheren Friday, a well known resident of the Coontown section, died yesterday at the home of her son, Peter Friday. She was in her ninetieth year, the advanced age being the indirect cause of death. She was the mother of George Friday, of Somerset street. The funeral will be held at the Coontown church tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 and will be in charge of Rev. George Bowers. Burial will be in the Coontown cemetery.

"Judge" Wadsworth's Funeral.

A large gathering of those who had known "Judge" Louis F. Wadsworth, the once wealthy Plainfielder who died Friday at the Industrial Home, attended his funeral held at A. M. Runyon & Sons' offices yesterday afternoon. Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church, officiated. The interment was in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

FORMER PLAINFIELDERS FACE SERIOUS CHARGES

Charles Irving VanHorne, a former well-known resident of this city, now residing at Hope, Warren county, was arrested at his home yesterday, charged with complicity in the death of Miss Mamie Vliet, a pretty girl of Blairstown, who died in St. Michael's Hospital, Newark, last week. It was declared at the time that the young woman had undergone a criminal operation and the Essex county authorities took immediate steps to apprehend those responsible for her condition. In addition to Van Horne, three other persons will probably be arraigned before Judge Ten Eyck in the Court of Quarter Sessions on the same charge and it is understood they will be Mrs. Sadie Dodge, also a former Plainfielder but now living in New Brunswick; Dr. Herman Glatzmayer and Mrs. Cornelia Zahn, of Newark.

The case has caused a sensation, not only in the home towns of the parties connected with it, but also at Newark. Van Horne and Mrs. Dodge have made conflicting statements regarding their relations with Miss Vliet while the physician and Mrs. Zahn have remained silent so far. The young woman was brought to Mrs. Zahn's home by Van Horne and Mrs. Dodge and after remaining there several days was removed to St. Michael's Hospital or orders from the physician. She died there last Friday. When arrested Van Horne claimed that he and Miss Vliet were engaged.

The accused man worked for several years in this city for the New York Painting and Decorating Company when the busines was conducted at Park avenue and Second street by Ralph Chrystie. His father also lived here and was in the retail oil business. Mrs. Dodge first met Van Horne while she was living in Plainfield and he has always been an intimate friend of the family. Mrs. Dodge's husband is an electrician and he removed from this city to take a position in the New Brunswick Opera House.

Corned Beef Hash.

This is, perhaps, the most usual and at the same time one of the most savory kinds of hash. To make it, allow one part of cold boiled potato to cut into small cubes to two parts of cold corned beef chopped fine; mix well and season to taste with salt and pepper. Put a large tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan; when melted turn the meat and potato mixture into it and add enough boiling water to moisten thoroughly. Cover closely and set on a hot part of the range for five minutes, being careful not to let it scorch. When a crust is formed on the bottom, turn and brown the upper side; then transfer to a hot platter and send to the table at once.

Bomb Victim Lived Here.

Ignatz Hildebrand, the victim of the bomb explosion at the labor demonstration in Union Square, New York, was at one time a resident of this city. This is according to a statement made by his wife, who said he was in no way associated with Silverstein, the bomb thrower. The couple moved to Newark from this city and Mrs. Hildebrand is now living there.

Gillette Confesses; Dies.

Albany, N. Y., March 30.—Chester Gillette, murderer of his sweetheart, Grace Brown, whom he killed at Big Moose Lake in the Adirondacks, paid the penalty of death in the electric chair at Auburn Prison at fourteen minutes after 6 o'clock this morning. Before he left his cell in the condemned row Gillette confessed to his spiritual advisers.

Y. M. C. A. Five Celebrates.

In celebration of the conclusion of the basketball season, the members of the Y. M. C. A. basketball five went to New York, Saturday night, with Physical Director George L. Listman. The party went to the Hippodrome and concluded the evening with an informal dinner at the Cafe Francis.

Chancellor Day Ill.

Chancellor J. R. Day, of Syracuse University, sometimes called the "defender of the rich," is ill in New York with an incipient attack of the grip. He is an official visitor to the Newark Conference of the M. E. church, which convenes here Wednesday.

Long Auto Trip.

Paul Gillette, formerly of this city, reached Plainfield this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on his long-distance auto trip from Florida. He left York, Pa., this morning, and expects to arrive in Newark late today.

Deegan to Pitch.

William Deegan, who pitched for the Jersey City Eastern League team last year, but who is now keeping a hotel at Scotch Plains, will pitch for the New Brunswicks this season.

Major Edwards Home.

Major and Mrs. Maze Edwards, who have been sojourning at Atlantic City, returned to Plainfield this afternoon. The Major is feeling much improved in health.

—J. Stanley Emmons, of East Fourth street, has been transferred from the local district of the Public Service Corporation to Somerville, where he will have charge of the electric light equipment.

P.H.S. GIRLS CHAMPIONS

Win State Basketball Title by Defeating East Orange Girls Five.

THE FINAL SCORE WAS 18-16.

Miss Barbara Fleming Scored Eight Out of the Nine Baskets—An Uphill Game.

Brilliant individual playing by Miss Barbara Fleming, who scored eight of the nine baskets for the local team, was directly responsible for the defeat of the East Orange High School five by the Plainfield High School girls' basketball team at the High School gymnasium Saturday afternoon, when the local five were victorious by a score of 18-16. This victory gives the Plainfield girls the State championship in basketball. The three teams in the contest for the title were the Newark High School five, the East Orange team and the local five. Plainfield won from Newark 14-10, but the East Orange High School five defeated the Newark girls by the overwhelming score of 48-6, and put up a hard fight for the State title in Saturday's game in this city.

Miss Fleming, who has just recovered from an attack of grip, was not in the game when the teams lined up in the first half. Plainfield started the scoring after a minute of play, when Miss Harriet Moodey dropped the ball through the iron ring on a pretty angle shot. Soon afterward, Miss Fleming took Miss Madeline Durar's place at right forward, but at the end of the first half, the East Orange five had a lead of 9-6. Play in the second half was marked by particularly close guarding on both sides, and the score see-sawed until near the end of the half, when the Plainfielders established a definite lead for the visitors. Miss Norma Tompkins excelled, scoring five baskets and accepting four chances from the foul line. No points were made from fouls by the Plainfield five, but Miss Fleming broke away from her opponent time after time to score. The Misses Alpaugh and Crampton, guards for the Plainfield five, played an exceptionally strong defensive game.

The Plainfield five, of which Miss Bessie Alpaugh is captain, has been undefeated for the past two years. Last year the championship came to Plainfield after a close game with Newark. The East Orange five have been undefeated until Saturday's game. They have won from many of the large high school fives in the vicinity of their school. The lineups and summaries:

P. H. S.	E. O. H. S.
Harriet Moodey	Norma Tompkins

LOCAL SCHOOL NINES WIN PRACTISE GAMES

The inter-scholastic baseball season opened in this city Saturday afternoon, when both city and borough high school nines won on the local diamonds in practise games which precede the opening of the regular shedule this week. The onnopents of the Plainfield High School boys were the Mono A. C. nine, who were defeated in a well played game by a score of 6-5. The school team had a try-out of the material on the squad and showed themselves to be good stuff, although as yet not playing in high school form. The game was played at Crescent Oval, which was reavy after the rain. In the box Captain Murphey and Harry Van Zandt made good, keeping down the hits. Dodwell was behind the bat for the whole game and looks like a fixture there. The lineups:

FORT WARNS ASSEMBLY

His Measure Intimates the Calling of a Special Session.

HE OPPOSES ADJOURNMENT.

Cites Platform Pledges and Demands That Promises Be Kept—Wants Excise Law Enforced.

In a notable message, intimating that he will call the Legislature into special session if it adjourns without enacting reform laws pledged by the Republican party, Governor J. Franklin Fort last night warned the machine leaders that they must keep the platform promises or lose the public's confidence.

The legislators held several conferences with Governor Fort this morning but no decision was reached. The Governor urges that the lawmakers remain in session at Trenton until their work is completed. A final conference has been arranged to be held between the Governor and the legislators, and a definite decision will probably be reached at that time.

The message was plain and vigorous. It is a notice to the people that he stands on the Republican platform on every reform pledged. The party has a "sacred trust" to fulfill, he says, in passing bills providing for a public utilities commission, civil service reform and strengthening the primary election law.

He referred to the "foolish policy" of the opposition to a public service commission, and said further that the Bishops' law closing saloons on Sundays must be enforced. To this end he urged the passage of the bill establishing a commission for the revoking of licenses.

The message was sent to the Legislature following a conference last night of Speaker Jess, Assemblymen Martin, leader of the majority; Thompson, of Mercer; Prince, of Passaic; Buxton, of Morris; Moxon, of Union; Colgate, of Essex, and Morgan, of Essex. They were summoned by Governor Fort to agree on a date for final adjournment. Mr. Morgan was not among the summoned men, but had a place in the conference by courtesy.

Mr. Martin, who is Fort's ally, would not budge from his position taken last week, that the House must stay in session until the party measures proposed by last fall's program were passed. He said that he was elected on that platform, and proposed to do all in human power to see that the pledges of civil service, public utilities and other measures became law before the Legislature adjourned.

As he could not be moved, the conference adjourned until today, the conferees, except Colgate and Morgan, saying that the caucus on final adjournment would be called, even should Martin object then.

In his message, the Governor says:

"In our last Republican State convention, after a contest over the platform of a kind unheard-of in a previous convention, the party to which the present executive and the majority in both branches of the Legislature belong pledged itself solemnly to the people of the State that it would do, among other things, the following:

"1. Enact a comprehensive civil service law.

"2. Enact a modification and simplification of the present primary law.

"3. Enact a law providing for a commission, with ample jurisdiction and powers to enable it to supervise and regulate public utility corporations.

"4. Consolidate all departments and commissions of a similar character.

"5. Pass constitutional amendments separating nation and State from municipal elections, authorizing the creation of Assembly districts and reorganizing the judiciary.

"The obligation to do all these things is as sacred a trust upon the Legislature and executive branches of government as the methods obtaining in a Republican form of government can make it. The people of the State, if we fail in this duty, may justly hold us responsible, and we must, in that event, stand without excuse.

"It is suggested as an excuse for our failure to enact a public utilities law that no one is appearing before the Legislature urging its passage. Why should they? Have not the people a right to rely upon our doing what we pledged them we would without feeling it necessary to impute to us bad faith by constantly asking us to do it?"

The monthly business meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held in the rooms on Madison avenue, Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

BOROUGH TOWNSHIP WILL PETITION FOR NEW ROAD

With a view to hastening the action of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders in opening up Watchung avenue from the borough limits to Somerset street, it is probable that a petition will be framed by the property owners in that part of the township urging the Freeholders to take the matter up at once. This will be in conjunction with a petition recently framed at a meeting of the North Plainfield Council.

H. A. Luerssen, of Watchung, chairman of the township committee, was at Mayor Townsend's office in North Plainfield today, talking over the advantages to be derived from the extension of Watchung avenue. He said that he felt it would be a great benefit to the property owners along the line of the proposed roadway, and that it is probable that land owners will give a free right of way for the proposed extension. The Mayor suggested that he urge the property owners in the township to take the matter up and send in a petition to the Freeholders, and Mr. Luerssen will be at the head of such a movement.

The committeeman said that he thought the people of that section were far-sighted enough to appreciate the benefits to be derived from the construction. If the extension is favored, it will be necessary to secure the right of way from about half a dozen property owners, through whose land the new road will be cut. Mr. Luerssen said that he thought most of these men were in favor of the project and hinted that several of them would be willing to grant the right of way free, on condition the road was built at once.

About thirty years ago, an official survey was made of the land which will be crossed by the proposed road, and Mayor Townsend is making an effort to locate the survey map. At that time, there was a scheme on foot to have a road along practically the same way as it planned for the thoroughfare in the present agitation. Surveyor Onderdonk made this survey, at the time the road was then projected, and if one of the old maps can be located, it will be a means of saving the expense of another survey.

FRIGHTENED HORSE HAS A LONG AND LUCKY RUN.

While Park avenue was filled with vehicles of all descriptions shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, drivers were thrown into consternation by the sudden appearance of a runaway among them. The animal came down from Fourth street and was galloping a dead heat when first sighted. A scrambling to get out of the way followed and all succeeded with the exception of a delivery wagon belonging to J. Genisman, of Somerset street, which was banged into by a runabout the frightened horse was attached to. After that the runaway continued on through the maze of traffic but when it reached Front street Roundsman Higgins made a heroic spring and brought it to a stop. The officer was dragged some distance but escaped with hardly a scratch. Genisman's wagon and that runabout were slightly damaged.

The rig was taken to Cole's livery and was later claimed by George Dupee, of Rockview avenue. He stated that the horse had taken fright while standing in front of a house near South Plainfield. Although it came down Park avenue all the way into the city the Genisman rig was the only one hit.

MOTION IN SAFE CASE.

Defendants Want Dismissal of Bill Asking For a Receiver For Local Concern.

A motion has been made before Vice Chancellor Howell in the Chancery Court at Newark in the case of Samuel Rodman and others against the Manganese Steel Safe Company to dismiss the bill of complaint recently filed for a receiver on the ground that it was not amended within thirty days after the argument on the demurrer at the last term of court. The case is now on appeal to the Court of Errors and Appeals and the motion was vigorously opposed on the part of the complainants because the decision on the demurrer was carried up, they contending that the appeal acts as a stay of all proceedings.

Pitney, Hardin and Skinner, of Newark, represent the safe company while W. S. Angleman and George Ball, of this city, are associated in looking after the interests of the complainants.

To Have Inter-Class Baseball.

The various classes of the Plainfield High School will be represented on the diamond by class nines, and the sophomores held their first baseball practise on Crescent Oval. Harry Van Zandt is captain of the team. The schedule of inter-class championship games for the school title is now being prepared.

FINAL ENTRIES ARE IN FOR S. S. A. L. MEET

Final entries for the indoor athletic meet of the Sunday School Athletic League to be held at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Thursday night are being received today, and about thirty-five athletes from Hope chapel, First Presbyterian church, First Baptist church and Congregational church will compete for the championship trophy and the place medals. The entries consist of four groups, according to the weights of the contestants: boys, juniors, intermediates and seniors. Aside from this, there will be two special events, the running, hop, step and jump, and the standing broad jumps in which there is to be no weight limit.

The boys events will include the three-legged race, and the 15-yard dash; the juniors will also compete in the short dash and a potato race, twelve potatoes, three feet apart. In the intermediate events will be a 300-yard potato race and the running broad jump, and the seniors will compete in the running high jump, the 440-yard dash and a sack race.

In the meet last year, the First Baptist gym team won the first leg on the silver cup, presented by C. W. McCutchen, president of the league. The church athletes will make a desperate effort to get the highest number of points in the competition this year, for by winning the second time, they secure permanent ownership of the trophy. Silver and bronze place medals will be awarded to winners in the intermediate and senior events and bronze medals to place winners of the boys' and junior events.

FIRST GAME IN NEW BOWLING TOURNEY TONIGHT

The first games in the new bowling tourney at Johnny Campbell's alleys will be rolled tonight when three teams will compete. The start-off will be made at 8 o'clock and the five winning the first series will be given a chance at the odd team. There are forty men in the tourney all told and a great amount of interest has been manifested in the schedule. The games will continue until the middle of May and the prize money aggregates $100.

The teams to roll tonight are the Somersets, Watchungs and Centrals, made up as follows:

Somersets—Chauncey F. Stout, captain; John Conklin, John Wirth, William Pope and George Quinn; Watchungs—Harry Gillmore, captain; T. M. Muir, William J. Kiely, George Vanderbilt and Howard George; Centrals—F. J. Blatz, captain; Charles Ortleb, Chauncey Koons, William Owens and John Smalley. The starting time will be 8 o'clock each night in order to get the first series through in time for the second when three teams line up.

CARROLL AND JOY AS DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE.

The list of delegates to the lay electoral conference to be held at the First Baptist church on Friday in connection with the annual session of the Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, is practically completed. Each church is entitled to one delegate.

Five lay delegates to the general conference will be elected and according to those in a position to know four of these likely will be M. S. Daniels, of Newark; Frank E. Morse, of Boonton, and Dr. H. K. Carroll and James R. Joy, of Plainfield.

New Dates For Elks Show.

Owing to the fact that the Union County Republicans' dollar dinner takes place at Elizabeth on Thursday, April 23, the Elks have deemed it wise to make a new date for their minstrel show. It has now been set for Thursday, April 30. A large part of the chorus members and many of the lodge men had planned to attend the dinner and it was thought best not to have the two conflict. William Doud has been added to the end men now in rehearsal.

Settled Fire Loss on Parsonage.

W. A. Woodruff, the agent, settled the fire loss yesterday on the Baptist parsonage, South Plainfield, amounting to $300. The dwelling only was covered by insurance. Rev. C. W. F. Atlee, pastor of the Baptist church, and who with his family occupied the parsonage, had no insurance on contents and his loss will be between $100 and $200.

THAT 137 YR. OLD DOMINIE

Rev. W. B. Mason, Who Says That He Remembers Washington, Talks on Scriptures.

AN OLD COLORED EVANGELIST.

Preaches At Ebenezer Baptist Church—Here With 28-Year-Old Wife—He Will Be 138 On Friday.

Exhorting his colored "brothers and sisters" at the Ebenezer Baptist church on East Third street, Rev. William Brooks Mason, the 137-year-old Cuban-Indian-African preacher, who is here on an evangelizing trip, spoke for an hour and a half at the church last night. His text, "taken f'm the thirteenth verse of the tenth chapter of Joshway," was "And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, until the people had avenged themselves of their enemies." The old man preaches according to the old school methods of testimony and quoted instance after instance in his ninety minute development of the text. He takes the verse in part as the reason for his old age. "As long as I live a holy life, working for the interests of the Lord Jesus Christ, I believe he will spare me. I cannot do anything: it is the good Lord that does the work. He kept alive Elijah and Moses while they preached and worked in his cause, and I believe he will keep me."

"I don't believe in all this yer talk about creeds and doctrines, y'understand me, but I believe that each man should be a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ, following His teachings, and continually having his own church right yer in his heart. The four gospels are all one, and that one is Our Lord. We can do nothing without God, but if we trust Him, he will fight our battles and win for us, as he did for Joshway. I certainly believe that the sun actually stood still. God ordered it to do so, and He can do anything.

"I've been responsible, through God's help, for the conversion of many a soul. At one time in the South, the Lord threw 139 souls into my net through meetings, and in Jackson, Mississippi, I raked in 201 more for His cause."

The old man came to this city from New York with his wife, a bride of three months, who is twenty-eight years of age. He explained that she was his second wife, as he had married years ago in the South, his bride at that time being fifty-eight years old. He returned about four months ago from Africa, where he spent some time in missionary work among the savages. The Lord "filled his net" with converts at this time, including one savage, who died three days after he had "given his soul to God." Mr. Mason carries in his breast pocket a piece of canvas, several feet square, on which is the picture of this converted African, painted by himself after his conversion.

Hale and hearty, despite his great age, the old man, who says he was born in Havana, Cuba, is straight as a reed and active as a young man. He says he will be 138 years old Friday at 12 o'clock noon, and was one of twins, but his twin sister died at the age of twenty-five. He is a veteran of four wars, he says, having fought in three wars in Cuba and taken part in several campaigns of the Civil War. He was shot in the head at an engagement near Petersburg, Virginia, and lost the sight of his left eye. He says he distinctly remembers Lee's surrender at Appomatix Court House, "under that sour apple tree, y'understand me?" "He done stick his sabre right down in the turf and den grab the point an' hand it right over. I was a-standin' right near 'um an' he give me a picayune, I held Washington's horse at Yorktown, an' was there when Cornwallis surrendered to him."

The old preacher belongs to four fraternal orders, among them the Odd Fellows and the Elks. He says he is a "full-blooded Elk, with every penny of my dues paid up, y'understand me?" He now has his headquarters in New York, going from there to lead evangelistic meetings in the colored churches. Asked about his knowledge of New York, he said:

"I was in New York first when I was fifteen years of age. My father, who was a Cuban, sold tobacco there. But, shoo, New York now ain't anything like it was then. Ain't no more like it 'n chalk is like cheese. Why the land is different, the food is different, and the men have changed, too. The New York man now is wiser in mind, but weaker 'n salvation. You can't rely on their word now-a-days, y'understand me, for they will try to cheat you. It used to be different entirely."

Asked if he thought the world was growing worse, he responded: "No, suh, the world am jes' the same, y'understand me? But the people in the world are growin' more and more wicked every day."

HETFIELD'S FIRST CASE; A NEGRO MURDER TRIAL

At noon today the prosecution had not completed its case in the trial of James A. Hunt, a Cranford negro, for the alleged killing of Joseph Hewlett, another negro, on the night of February 1, 1906, which was begun yesterday in the Union County Court of Oyer and Terminer at Elizabeth, before Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen. Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., opened the case for the State, after which Prosecutor Swift took charge. This is his first case as prosecutor.

The tragedy occurred outside the pool-room of Melvin Johnson, colored, in South avenue, Cranford, and the trouble arose over a game of pool in the place in which Johnson, Hewlett and Hunt were participating. The dispute ended in blows and later the body of Hewlett was found lying on the street with a badly bruised face and his neck broken. Hunt was arrested in Newark, and soon afterward the Grand Jury indicted him for murder. He is being defended by William R. Wilson and William F. Grover, of Elizabeth. The first witness called was Melvin Johnson and he briefly cited the incidents about his place the night of the murder. Frederick Houston, the next witness, corroborated Johnson's testimony. Several witnesses were called this morning to strengthen the prosecution's contention.

Hunt, the prisoner, is twenty-three years old, single, and a native of Marion, Va., where he conducted a restaurant before going to Cranford four months before the homicide occurred. It is expected that the defense will open this afternoon.

VENICE INTERESTS WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION

The informal meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club, held at the Casino yesterday, the fifth Monday of the month, was one of unusual interest. The entertainment committee had arranged a delightful program with Venice, which has been the winter's study, for its motif. Mrs. John M. Whiton read the interpretation of an exquisite piece of music rendered by Miss Corey on the piano, entitled "Scenes from Naples and Italy," by Liszt.

The music, representing the lapping of the tide, the ripple of water, the gondolier's stroke and song, the happiness of lovers, the beauty of moonlight and Italian skies with the clock of St. Mark's striking twelve at the grand finale, was artistically executed by Miss Corey and gave great pleasure.

Mrs. George S. Ring sang four songs translated from the Italian, "Pretty Katharyn," "To Nina," "The Fisherman" and "If I Ever Look On Love." Miss Corey played her accompaniment.

Miss E. E. Kenyon read effectively "In a Gondola," by Robert Browning. Tea and a social hour concluded the entertainment. Mrs. James W. DeGraff and Mrs. G. H. Condict presiding at the tea table. The guests were received by the president of the club, Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, and the vice presidents, Mrs. Orton G. Dale and Mrs. Gates Willard. The comfort of guests was carefully looked after by the entertainment committee, Mrs. Leighton Calkins, Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. Edward V. Cox and Miss Ethel L. Titsworth.

Dance Rehearsals Progressing.

Mrs. Henry L. Hall, who with the assistance of Miss May Faber, is the chaperone for the New Year's dance to be given at the New Plainfield theatre for the benefit of the hospital, is making excellent progress with the rehearsals. There are sixteen young women in the dance and they are rapidly learning the steps. Another rehearsal will be held this afternoon at the Casino. Those who will take part are the following: The Misses Natalie Bradley, Lucie Budlong, Anna May Campbell, Bessie Flanders, Eudora Sullivant, Anna Garrigues, Frances Hyde, Marion Hall, Beresford Letcher, Gabriel McQuade, Helen Moodey, Helen Stevens, Alice Titus, Kathryn Titus, Susan Wharton and Seline Zinkeisen.

Senator Ackerman's Work.

After much effort, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county, succeeded today in getting through the Senate at Trenton, Assemblyman Moxon's bill providing for an increase in salary for the comptroller of Elizabeth. The measure is now awaiting Governor Fort's signature.

Funeral of Young Girl.

Rev. M. A. Alexander, pastor of the Mount Olive Baptist church, officiated at the funeral of Miss Bessie Louise Kingslow, held at the church Sunday afternoon. The interment was in Hillside cemetery.

"JOYFUL JIM" DOES A "BOMB" THROWING STUNT

An abundance of playful spirits induced by imbibing some of the wet kind after his release from jail, resulted in another downfall for "Jim" McCauley, this morning. He completed a twenty days' sentence in the Somerville jail yesterday and spent all of last night with his cronies getting liquored up.

Early today he got hold of an electric light globe somewhere and he just simply couldn't resist the temptation to have some fun with it. He picked out a group of men standing at Front street and Park avenue and hurled the bulb directly at them. In view of the fact that they were discussing the Union Square bomb tragedy of Saturday it is hardly to be wondered at that they gave frantic leaps when a report rang out and glass spattered all about them. One of the men almost knocked over the corner column of the bank building in his anxiety to get out of the danger zone.

McCauley was enjoying the fun to the limit and chuckled like a fat man at a burlesque show until Patrolman John Kelley clutched him by the collar. He escorted "Joyful Jim" to the Sycamore street jug to laugh himself out and await Judge Runyon's disposition of glass bomb throwing.

MURPHEY P. H. S. CAPTAIN; CUT IN SQUAD MADE.

Chauncey Murphey, 1908, was elected captain of the Plainfield High School baseball team at a meeting of the school athletic association held this morning. He has been acting captain since the call for baseball candidates was issued several weeks ago.

In connection with the meeting, Captain Murphey announced that the squad of candidates will be cut at once, and stated that the following players will be retained at the various positions: Van Zandt, Murphey and Foster, pitchers; Dodwell and Lidgate, catchers; Dey, first base; Snyder and Brick, second base; Murphey and Van Zandt, third base; Gildes and Rubenstein, short; Dutcher, left field; Riffert, centre field; Doane, right field.

PLAINFIELDERS TO HEAR ROGERS, FAMOUS BARITONE.

Francis Rogers, the famous baritone, will appear at a musicale to be given Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. George A. Beaton, on West Seventh street, under the direction of Joseph McIntyre, of this city.

This will be the first opportunity Plainfielders have had of hearing Mr. Rogers and it will be a noteworthy musical event. Mr. McIntyre will preside at the piano.

Seventh Days In First Place.

By defeating the First Baptist five, former leaders in the church basketball league at the Y. M. C. A. last night, the Seventh-Day Baptist five now hold first place. They won by a score of 21-17, keeping a safe lead during the entire contest. The First Presbyterian five shoved the Hope Chapel team further back in the race by trimming them 54-47, although they had but a one point lead at the end of the first half. Byron McClintock and Caldwell did the best work for the Presbyterians, the former scoring eleven baskets and the latter eight. Mortimer, of the Hope five, made twenty points for his team from the floor. The regular schedule will close with the games next Monday night, but there is a postponed game between the Seventh Days and the Presbyterians to be played after that date.

Will Sing "The Crucifixon."

Clifford A. Braider, organist and choirmaster of the First Presbyterian church, is planning to give "The Crucifixon" at the church on Sunday night, April 12. The quartet choir, comprising Miss Anna L. Case, soprano; Miss Jessamine Burd, contralto; Herbert R. Byard, bass, and E. D. Cutting, tenor, will be assisted by Mrs. Willard M. Martin, soprano; Miss Jessie Haynes, contralto; E. Maxwell Honeyman, tenor, and Chas. Titsworth, bass. Miss Alice Miller will be at the piano. During the service Miss Case will sing as a solo "Come Unto Me," and Miss Burd will sing "There Is a Green Hill."

In the City Court.

Sentence was suspended on Mrs. Margaret Henderson, arraigned in the city court this morning on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. She promised to take the pledge and keep away from the police for the rest of her natural life. Mrs. Henderson was arrested on Park avenue by Patrolman Flynn, yesterday afternoon, and a few more than thirteen million kids followed the cop and his prisoner down the street, it being necessary to walk her as the patrol wagon is temporarily out of commission.

CONFERENCE WORK BEGINS

Examination of Candidates for Ministry Conducted Today at First M. E. Church.

BISHOP'S RECEPTION TONIGHT.

Rev. Dr. Wm. H. Crawford Delivers Lecture This Evening—Some Admitted to Conference Today.

The preliminary session of the Newark Conference which begins tomorrow morning in the First M. E. church, is being held today in Vincent chapel, when the examinations of candidates for admission to the conference is engaging the attention of those interested. The examinations began this morning at 10 o'clock.

Among those who presented themselves for admission were R. W. Lake, Lafayette; Alfred Yeoman, Vienna; George Oakeson, Junction, and W. S. MacRorie, Finesville. Those for ordination were D. M. Ausmus, Staten Island; T. J. Crawford, Chester. The following supplies were also present: J. S. Burton, Highwood Park, Weehawken; L. J. Gordon, Frenchtown; D. D. Smalley, Hibernia; G. W. Southard, Centerville; W. U. Sloat, High Bridge; G. O. Price, Norton.

The examining board is composed of the following:

The examination is being continued this afternoon and a report will be presented to the Conference on the result.

This evening at 8 o'clock a lecture on "Savonarola, the Florentine Reformer," will be given in the church by Rev. Dr. William H. Crawford, to be followed by an informal reception to Bishop Henry Spellmeyer by members and friends of the Plainfield churches. A cordial invitation is extended to all, especially those who will entertain delegates during the week of the Conference.

The first regular session of the Conference will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, with the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. This will be followed at 11 o'clock with roll call and organization and at 11:30 the Memorial service will be held. Adjournment will then be taken until 2:30 o'clock, when the anniversary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society will be held. Mrs. J. H. Knowles, conference secretary, will preside, and the speaker will be Rev. Dr. Joseph Beach, president of Chentu College, Chentu, China.

At the same hour there will be a meeting of the Conference Life Insurance Association in Vincent chapel. These two meetings will occupy the whole afternoon. In the evening at 7:45 o'clock will occur the anniversary of the Centenary Fund and Preachers' Aid Society, Rev. Daniel Halleron presiding, followed by the report of the corresponding secretary, Rev. Dr. John A. Gutteridge, and that of the treasurer, Milton E. Blanchard.

The speaker of the evening will be Governor J. Franklin Fort. While in the city he will be entertained by Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who will also make a short address of welcome to the delegates and introduce the Governor to the Conference.

The afternoon session tomorrow will be devoted to the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. Mrs. J. H. Knowles will preside. Scripture will be read by the Rev. C. L. Mead, prayer offered by the Rev. H. F. Randolph, followed by reports from Miss Edith L. White, treasurer, and Mrs. J. H. Knowles, conference secretary. The missionary literature will be in charge of Mrs. A. W. Hayes. Rev. Dr. Joseph Beach, president of Chentu College, will make the address, taking for his topic, "Chentu, China." Dr. Beach is supported by the Methodist Episcopal church of Montclair. After the offering the Rev. Stanley F. Davis will sing "Hosanna," by Grainer.

WESTFIELD.

The Strang Electric Company will take possession of the C. & C. shops at Garwood today, and what has been known for the past ten years as the C. & C. Electric Co. will go out of business. The C. & C. Co. sold out to the Westinghouse company about a year ago. Since the sale the company has only completed the work on hand and gradually let the employes go. The Strang company will not employ many men at present.

Fire wardens are active at present looking out for forest fires. Several have been started on the mountain back of Westfield, but have been checked before they gained headway. The wardens are also on the watch for those who recklessly or intentionally start the fires.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

Concerning the Retirement of Wm. T. Rae & Co., and of the Continuance of the Business under the Proprietorship of

C. M. SANFORD

(Formerly with Messrs. J. Wiss & Sons.)

After Fifty years of active business life, the firm of Wm. T. Rae & Co. has retired.

With its passing into history goes a reputation for sterling integrity, reliability and honesty such as few concerns can boast of, and which it will be my earnest endeavor to maintain.

In announcing my advent into this business and continuing that of Messrs. Rae & Co., there are several facts which I wish to make public, namely:

(1) That it will ever be my purpose to live up to and not "on" the reputation which the house of Rae & Co. has established.

(2) That my stock of Diamonds and other Precious Stones, Gold Jewelry and Clocks will not only be as varied and comprehensive as that of any other Newark store of this character, but absolutely dependable and moderately priced as well.

(3) That I shall offer an Optical Service second to none in the city. This department, while under my personal supervision and direction, will be in charge of a skilled Eye Sight Specialist —W. E. Small, Ref. D.

(4) That Watch and Jewelry Repairing shall constitute an important part of my business, and that all such work entrusted to me will be executed satisfactorily and promptly by experts whose qualifications are the best.

To serve you faithfully and well and merit your good-will and patronage is my desire.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

George Sidney and his big company of comedians, dancers and singers is announced for an appearance at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night. Something bright and snappy in the musical comedy line, possessing the titular handle of "Busy Izzy's Boodle" will serve as the vehicle for this merry little comedian's tour this season. While it is, in a way, along the line of all Sidney's exhibits of solid fun, yet the advantages gained in past successful experience, and the ardent study of the public demands for genuine humor, devoid of all impurities, has encouraged an extraordinary effort in the construction of the new musical production. It is readily admitted that Mr. Sidney has no equal on the stage as a delineator of the Hebrew type. His jovial humor is natural, without being offensive or obnoxious to those who question the advisability of racial characterization. While it is usually the policy to surround a star with ordinary support in order to enhance the capabilities of the stellar attraction, there is no necessity of such consideration with Mr. Sidney, his work being so meritorious and superior in his line, that the better the cast and the more ability engaged, the better he is pleased, and the greater advantages the production offers as a whole. This year the cast embraces some of the leading artists of musical comedy. The chorus is a marvel of beauty and training, the costumes expensive, new and novel in design, and the scenery appropriate and artistic. In fact, "Busy Izzy's Boodle" can readily be classed as a musical production equal to any of recent date.

REALLY A HOME-MADE HOUSE.

Material in Recently Destroyed Home of Late General Cooper Came from Owner's Land.

Mendham, March 31.—The house on the estate of the late General Nathan A. Cooper, destroyed by fire last Friday, was an interesting building, as it was constructed entirely of material produced upon the general's farm. The limestone was quarried and burned on the place for all the mortar and plaster, the hair in the plaster being from beef cattle raised and slaughtered on the place. The bricks for the chimneys, etc., were made in the general's private brick kiln, and all the timbers, siding, trimmings, doors, shingles, etc., were made in his sawmill from timber grown on the place. The frame of the great building, for it was in proportions a country mansion, was pinned together in the old-fashioned way with wooden pins and wrought-iron nails forged and made in the owner's blacksmith shop from iron mined on the place, were used. The general, who was one of the most striking characters of his time in this section of New Jersey, asserted that he could also have made his window glass and hardware for the doors and windows, but it required too much, although he proved to the satisfaction of every one that he had the proper grade of sand and the alkalies for making the glass.

F. A. Pope, of Park avenue, is sojourning at Daytona, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Pierce, of Myrtle avenue, are entertaining company from New York.

Mr. and Mrs. George D. Hallock and son, Ralph, who have been spending the past winter in New York, will return to their home in the borough this week.

The Millinery Department

Did you come to our Millinery Opening last week to see the styles Miss Strohuber designed? Every woman of Plainfield who is interested in smart Millinery should have been here. It was an exhibition of styles not to be seen hereabouts, and judging by the crowds that attended, and the Hats purchased during these opening days, Miss Strohuber was well repaid for her untired energy in planning, and creating, and dreaming of nothing but Hats these past 30 days. If you have not been here, come this week. Our salesladies will be pleased to show you through, and you are not urged to buy, for you will scarcely resist these charming Easter Bonnets, priced not much more than half of New York prices.

CHILDREN'S WASH DRESSES FROM 2 TO 6 AND ON UP TO 15 YEARS.

Pretty little Wash Dresses for little girls, and bigger ones; made of linens, percales, madras, and sheer white lawns, trimmed daintily in white and colors; some are made especially for every-day school wear, yet have a "touch" that make them different from those you always see and are tired of; others more elaborate, and of handsomer materials for dressy occasions, 98c to $4.98

SPECIAL—MEN'S SHIRTS 50c.

Not the usual 50c Shirt, or They Wouldn't Be Mentioned Here.

It's a purchase we made of splendid woven madras shirts, made to retail at 75c and $1.00; the styles are good, too, but scarcely any two sizes of a pattern; that is the reason they are 50c. Samples of these in our "special" window at the Front street entrance.

SILK SALE.

Extraordinary Cut in Prices of Most Wanted Weaves.

This should be one of the biggest of silk sales we have ever held, for it is not based on a sale of doubtful silks bought at auction or anything of that sort—not made up of passe patterns or colors nor old goods of any sort, but involving the very best selling silks – the most popular colors and designs, which are the making of our regular stocks, and the prices are cut so generously that results should be tremendous. You may figure your actual savings in the difference between the regular and special price.

Four days of this sale—four days only, and we ought to be very busy if you appreciate the savings we make possible.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The students of Peddie Institute, Hightstown, are having their annual ten days' vacation. School will be resumed April 6.

Adon W. Muller, of Almonesson, is mentioned as a Republican candidate for sheriff of Gloucester county. This makes a half-dozen candidates now, with several townships to hear from.

Mrs. Henry Jacoby died Saturday night at Atlantic City as a result of a fall downstairs in her home several nights ago. The woman's skull was fractured, and she never regained consciousness.

The home of Merwin B. Jones, 668 East Twenty-fifth street, Paterson, was robbed of jewelry and cash on Saturday night while members of the family were visiting at the home of a next-door neighbor.

The Bayonne Retail Druggists' Association has elected these officers for the ensuing year: Sidney W. Lockwood, president; Frank L'Estrange, vice-president; J. A. Balinsky, secretary, and Alexander Watman, treasurer.

Cries for help attracted the attention of Mounted Policeman Beasley to the Cramer Hill shore, in Camden, yesterday afternoon, and he rescued from drowning a twelve-year-old boy, who declined to give his name. After thanking the officer the little fellow disappeared.

Seven farmers had a desperate fight with a forest fire on Orchard road, two miles west of Vineland, Saturday. By united effort they checked the flames, after a run of two miles, and accomplished a feat that the fire warden deems worthy to report to the State Forestry Commission.

When the four-month-old son of Harry Saunders, of 2421 Sherman avenue, Camden, showed no signs of life in its coach yesterday afternoon Dr. Kensinger was summoned and discovered the child was dead. Death was due to coal gas escaping from a stove. Coroner Fithian is investigating the case.

Attacked by a negro, who seized her by the throat and attempted to smother her cries for help as she was hurrying from the end of the Trenton car line to her home at White House, just below Trenton, Miss Elizabeth Brower, a frail little waitress, twenty years of age, put the brute to rout by stabbing him in the face with her hat pin.

Paterson Lodge, No. 119, Knights of Pythias, will meet in the Inglis building, 206 Main street, Paterson, tonight, and will proceed by trolley cars to Passaic, where Max Suskind, the chancellor commander of Paterson Lodge, No. 119, will present the Pythian charity altar to Benevolent Lodge, No. 48, through their chancellor commander, Richard R. Dechert.

For the first time in the history of Vineland the firemen of that place were invited to divine service Sunday. Every member of the Pioneer Company responded and marched in a body to the First Presbyterian church. They said they wanted to hear Rev. D. H. King's explanation of the fire the Good Book tells about. Dr. King took for his subject, "Fire," and pointed out the glorious result that would follow if the Church of God responded to the call of "fire" as promptly and earnestly as did the Vineland Pioneer Fire Department.

—The Councilmanic street committee will meet Thursday night to consider some plans to be presented at the April meeting of the Common Council for further improvement of streets.

—Hugh Gormley, who has been the superintendent of the horse show grounds of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, succeeding James Gethins, will soon open a sale and exchange stables in North Plainfield.

—Leslie Hallock, graduate of Lehigh University, '08, civil engineering department, has taken a position with the New Jersey Central and is now one of the assistants engaged in the bridge construction work in this city.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

William O'Loughlin, of the Clinton Avenues, who expected to give up the game and engage in railroad work, may still be able to play with his team. During the winter he took a course of study at the Plainfield Business College to prepare for taking a position, but his work may be such that he can engage in contests this season.

It was recently reported that Walter Nelson, of New Market, had signed to play with Bridgeport this season. Now, it is said, he will catch for the New Brunswick team, as he has a good position in New York, which league ball would compell him to give up.

It is expected that there will be a meeting this week of representatives of the teams in Plainfield, Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington to discuss the four-club league proposition as suggested by The Daily Press. Ernest Dorflinger, of the Clinton Avenues, will represent that team, while Bogart Conklin will attend in the interest of Somerville. Elmer Ramsay will represent High Bridge and Al. Miller will be Flemington's representative.

While it is not definitely known, it is said that Joe Weaner will be Flemington's slab artist this season. He certainly made good last year, and in nearly every game played against Somerville, Joe had the Indian sign on his opponents.

High Bridge is planning to have one of the best teams in the history of the town. The fans are on edge over the prospects of joining a league and will support their club to the limit.

No one here questions the ability of Clinton Avenue to cope with any of the teams mentioned for the league. It is made up of the right material that wins games and can put up fast ball.

The management of the Clinton Avenues is strongly considering the suggestion made to change the name of the club to Plainfield. Such a change would be advisable as the aggregation would be more representative of the city.

Jack Martin, who will play an infield position for Clinton Avenue, is in the best of condition and promises to deliver the goods.

Moffett will do the catching for Clifford Randolph this summer. The speedy little pitcher is much pleased with the arrangement.

GOLF.

With the return of mild weather the professional golfers are displaying renewed activity. Those who went abroad are coming back on almost every steamer, while the stay-at-homes are hard at work rolling and seeding greens and putting in additional hazards. George Low, of the Baltusrol Golf Club, who went away on his annual visit to Bonnie Scotland last December, has been wintering at Trayside.

With Low were a number of other "pros," and all played a good deal of golf. On one occasion several experts competed for a prize presented by Low. The latter is expected to reach these shores on April 9, and he will at once resume his duties at Baltusrol, where the Metropolitan Golf Association championship tournament is to be held the latter part of May.

Alec Smith, the former national open champion, who neither went abroad nor invaded the South during the past winter, has been content to spend his leisure hours in the vicinity of the Nassau Country Club, his home green. A brief trip to Edinburgh on the part of Tom Anderson, of Montclair, enabled the veteran professional to spend a few weeks with his family. Anderson, who returned to Montclair several weeks ago, is busy superintending work on the course, which is closed for the present.

Isaac Mackie will shortly be back to resume charge of the Fox Hills links, and his brother Jack will continue to add many needed improvements to the Dunwoodie Country Club's course. Jack Hobens has remained at the Englewood Golf Club throughout the winter, while Willie Norton has been doing well at Lakewood. Herbert Strong continues for another season at the Apawamis Club and Willie Tucker will again have charge of St. Andrews.

In accepting the Morris County Golf Club offer Dave Ogilvie seems to have done well. Ogilvie is ranked among the good players, and the chances are he will be seen in the open tournaments in the metropolitan district this season. Willie Weir, the former Morris county "pro," had the position for nearly twelve years.

Dave Hunter, who enjoys an all-year arrangement with the Essex County Country Club, is busy again. He recently closed the regular greens, so for the present the members are compelled to play over a temporary course. Hunter keeps in physical condition during the winter by playing squash. Dave Honeyman has been engaged for another season by the Arsdale Golf Club, while Tom Gourley continues on for another year at the Forest Hill Golf Club. George Pearson has wintered at the Younntakah Country Club, where he will continue another season.

Martin O'Loughlin, the popular homebred, is shortly to resume his duties at the Plainfield Country Club, after a remarkably successful engagement at one of the Southern Pines courses in North Carolina. An incident is told in connection with the memorable match between O'Loughlin and Gilbert Nicholls. It seems that O'Loughlin, who is scarcely more than a boy, became a great favorite with the Piney Woods colony, and during the match interest in O'Loughlin's success caused some of the enthusiasts to forget the etiquette of the game.

The women, it appears, were the worse offenders. When Nicholls was about to make a short put for the hole on one of the greens the customary silence was suddenly broken by a couple of excited women jumping up and down a few yards away exclaiming at the same time: "Hope you don't hole it! Hope you don't hole it!" Nicholls promptly told the women to keep quiet, and also reminded them that they were not in a dancing hall.

STRICTLY FIRE PROOF HOME AN INNOVATION

A new residence now in course of construction on Madison avenue for DeWitt C. Hubbell, is marking a new era in home building in Plainfield and is said to be the first of its kind ever put up in the city. The architectural work was done by Squires & Wynkoop, of New York, of which Frederick Squires, son of the late Henry C. Squires, is senior member, and the paramount idea in their designs was to make the house strictly fire-proof.

A glance at the residence as it is to be seen at present will show by the work already done that there is not a thing in it that could burn. All the walls and floors are made of cement and hollow tile from the National Fire Proofing Company, the concern that furnishes most of the fire-proofing material for the New York skyscrapers. There are other houses in Plainfield whose outside walls are practically fire-proof but in this building the floors themselves are masonry and so are all the interior walls, even to the closets.

The floor beams, which in the ordinary house are wood, are here of concrete with a re-inforcement of steel. The concrete beam is only six inches square and the steel road but half an inch, either by itself a very weak support but when combined the floor will carry more than twice as much as the ordinary floor. The hollow walls are not only fire-proof but the air spaces form an insulator against the outside heat or cold.

The building when completed will be covered on the outside with cement stucco, arranged in such a manner as to make it one of the most attractive homes in the district where there are so many handsome structures to compete with.

Vets on Southern Pilgrimage.

The Veteran Association of the Fifteenth Regiment, N. J. Vols., which was recruited in Sussex, Warren, Hunterdon, Morris and Somerset counties, has arranged for an excursion to Richmond, Va., by special vestibuled train leaving Newark on Tuesday, May 19, and arriving in Richmond the same evening. All of Wednesday and Thursday, and until Friday noon, will be spent in that city, giving ample opportunity for visiting Seven Pines, Fair Oaks, Malvern Hill, Petersburg and other battlefields in that locality. The round trip tickets, including special cars, hotels, etc., will be $25 each. Circulars with full particulars may be had by addressing S. W. Gordon, secretary, 798 Broad street, Newark.

Funeral of John Wilson.

The funeral of John Wilson, the veteran employe of the National Bank of North America who died Friday, was held at his late home on Watchung avenue yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. A. C. McCrea and was attended by a gathering that included many of his business associates from New York and friends from Bayonne, where he formerly lived. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery.

Senatorial Armistice.

There'll be no Plainfield-North Plainfield consolidation bill introduced at Trenton after all. As a consequence there is no danger that Senators Ackerman and Frelinghuysen will be so actively opposed to each other that they cannot stand together against a rate-making public utilities commission bill.—Newark News.

Y. M. C. A. LEAGUE GAMES

Local Association, With Six Other Nines, will Compete on the Diamond.

SEASON OPENS ON MAY 23.

Summit, Elizabeth, Madison, Newark, Orange and Trenton Entered In Amateur Y. M. C. A. League.

With the abandonment of the scheme for an inter-city baseball league, the Y. M. C. A. ball players have entered the race for the pennant of the State association, and Physical Director George L. Listman, manager of the team and local member of the Y. M. C. A. State baseball league committee, announced the schedule of State league games today. The associations to be represented on the diamond in this league are Summit, Elizabeth, Trenton, Newark, Madison, Orange and Plainfield, and the players are to be entirely amateurs, bona fide members of the associations which they represent. Paterson, the eigth association to be represented in the league, has dropped out of the race.

The opening games of the league will be played Saturday afternoon, May 23, when the Summit association players are to meet the local nine on Crescent Oval. On the same day, Newark will play at Madison and Trenton at Elizabeth. The games will all be played Saturday afternoons at 3:45 o'clock, and the local association will have Crescent Oval for its home grounds. The complete schedule follows:

May 23, Summit at Plainfield, Trenton at Elizabeth, Newark at Madison.

June 6, Plainfield at Newark, Elizabeth at Summit, Madison at Orange.

June 13, Trenton at Plainfield, Orange at Elizabeth, Summit at Madison.

June 20, Plainfield at Orange, Elizabeth at Newark, Madison at Trenton.

June 27, Elizabeth at Plainfield, Trenton at Orange, Newark at Summit.

July 11, Orange at Newark, Summit at Trenton, Madison at Elizabeth

July 18, Madison at Plainfield, Orange at Summit, Trenton at Newark.

August 1, Orange at Trenton, Newark at Elizabeth, Madison at Summit.

August 8, Plainfield at Trenton, Elizabeth at Orange, Madison at Newark.

August 15, Newark at Plainfield, Trenton at Summit, Orange at Madison.

August 22, Plainfield at Elizabeth, Summit at Orange, Trenton at Madison.

August 29, Orange at Plainfield, Elizabeth at Trenton, Summit at Newark.

September 5, Plainfield at Summit, Elizabeth at Madison, Newark at Orange.

September 12, Plainfield at Madison, Newark at Trenton, Summit at Elizabeth.

Open dates are May 16 and 30; July 4 and 25; September 7, 19 and 26.

According to the rules framed by the league committee, which is to be the arbiter in all disputes, no member of a team shall be paid, either directly or indirectly for playing; each association shall be responsible for the traveling expenses of its team, and the managers are especially cautioned to observe the amateur rule.

Candidates for Local Nine.

The local association will have an independent schedule of games, and a big squad of material is turning out to the regular practises being held on Crescent Oval. Among the candidates are James Scott, George Conover, "Lev" Minford, Ralph and Will Schoonmaker, James Conway, David Pond, H. Conover, Harry Gilmore, John Jacot, H. V. Hubbard, "Jack" Payne and W. P. Banks. Howard Craig, captain of last year's nine, will be in a suit again this season, and has been in charge of the squad at the practises held so far. The local schedule has not yet been announced, but will include a series with the Clinton Avenue nine.

Dentist's New Quarters.

Increasing practise necessitating larger quarters, Dr. R. Waldo Emerson has removed his dental offices from the Stirling building to the new Boice, Runyon building, a few doors away and opposite the head of North avenue. He occupies a large suite on the second floor, including reception and operating rooms, the appointments being second to none in this section. ••

Juniors Defeat Brooksides.

The Brooksides were defeated by the Juniors on Hope Common Saturday afternoon in the first game of the season between these teams. The contest went ten innings, the score being 2 to 1 in favor of the Juniors. The batteries were Montross and Lorton for the winning team, and Conshay and Mullin for the Brooksides. The same teams will play again Saturday afternoon at Hope Common.

"In the Sweet Bye and Bye."

If the Governor succeeds in bringing about the prolongation of the legislative session until the platform pledges have been passed upon, the people will join in singing, "Blessed be the tie that binds."—Newark News.

TRADING STAMPS FOR WIDOWS.

Chicago, March 31. — "Trading stamps with every funeral" is the placard that may soon be seen in the windows of the up-to-date Chicago undertakers.—News item.

The weeping widow sat beside
What once to her was dear.
"I care no more to live," she cried,
"Since John has gone from here.

"Of all the men I ever knew,"
Her 'kerchief here she damps;
"He was the best, so good, so true—
And he ne-er forgot the stamps.

"To market for me he would go
Each morning of his life,
And meats, potatoes, jam, H. O.
Could buy like any wife.

"He made the bed, and lovely pies,
And also trimmed the lamps.
At other girls he ne'er made eyes—
And he always brought the stamps.

"And now he's gone, what shall I do?
My heart is broke in twain."
"Oh, rats!" her friend, who'd buried two,
Broke in; "you'll try again.

"There's plenty men on sea and land,
In office or in camps.
So, cheer up, dear, and take a hand
Yourself at gathering stamps.

"We'll bury John, and do it right,
Then put away your fears;
Another man's always in sight,
There, dry up all those tears.

"We'll see a funeral man who's fly,
Nor deal with cheap-skate scramps,
And start a new trousseau to buy
With poor John's trading stamps."
—Newark Star.

PREACHER OFFERS TO BURY NEGROES.

A Philadelphia preacher, in whose breast the milk of human kindness is still fresh, has come forward and offered to bury dead negroes—free of charge. Here is the story, as told by Ray Stannard Baker in the American Magazine:

The worst negro slum in Philadelphia is completely surrounded by business houses and the homes of wealthy white people. Within a few blocks of it stand several of the most aristocratic churches in Philadelphia. Miss Bartholomew conducts a neighborhood settlement in the very centre of this social bog. Twice during the many years she has been there white ministers have ventured down from their churches. One of them said he has been troubled by the growing masses of ignorant colored people.

"'Can't I do something to help?'

"Miss Bartholomew was greatly pleased and cheered.

"'Of course you can,' she said heartily.

"'We're trying to keep some of the negro children off the streets. There is plenty of opportunity for helping with our boys' and girls' club and classes.'

"'Oh, I don't mean that,' said the minister, 'I thought, in cases of death in their families, we might offer to read the burial service.'

"And he went away and did not see the humor of it.

"Another minister made a similar proposition; he wanted to hold a Sunday-school for colored people. He asked Miss Bartholomew anxiously where he could hold it.

"'Why not in your church in the afternoon?'

"'Why we couldn't do that;' he exclaimed; 'we should have to air all the cushions afterward!'"

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS DEFER A CONTRACT AWARD.

An adjourned meeting of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders was held in the court room in Somerville on Saturday. Messrs. Vreeland, Pawelson and Everett were absent. The session was for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee appointed to examine the quarries of Travell & Hare, of North Plainfield, in reference to their bid on the Watchung-Warrenville road.

County Engineer Doughty stated that, in his judgment, the stone is of a good quality and the committee was of the same opinion. James L. Griggs, attorney for Traveli & Hare, presented a written statement in regard to the quality of the stone that the firm proposes to use in the Watchung-Warrenville road.

Joel Codington, of Warren Township, asserted that it was his belief that the bids were too high and that it would be to the interests of the taxpayers to readvertise.

Member Demler moved that all bids be rejected. His motion was later withdrawn and the matter of awarding the road contract was laid over until the next regular meeting of the board, which will be held on April 14.

WORTH KNOWING.

A salt ham should be soaked in cold water for twelve hours before being cooked.

Oil of sassafras will drive insects from shelves and its odor is very distasteful to flies.

Cattails in seed make a very soft filling for cushions and it is claimed that no insect will infest it.

The best housekeeper is the one who passes less time in making things clean and more thought in keeping them clean as she goes.

To remove a stain in a marble basin caused by dripping water, apply with an old tooth brush a little pulverized chalk moistened with ammonia.

The Social Hour at Home and the Beautiful EUTERPE PLAYER-PIANO.

What a rare delight it is that anyone can play on this marvelous instrument anything that thought or wish may suggest—some classic, a bit of opera, some favorite waltz, perhaps a lively ragtime or soul stirring march.

The Euterpe may be used either as a Piano or Player-Piano, in fact it is two instruments in one. Terms of payment may be arranged. Should you have an instrument to exchange a fair allowance will be given.

We are always pleased to show this beautiful Player-Piano to visitors and prospective buyers.

A DOG AND A MAN.

He was a dog,
But he stayed at home
And guarded the family night and day.
He was a dog
That didn't roam.
He lay on the porch or chased the stray,
The tramps, the burglar, the hen, away;
For a dog's true heart for that household beat
At morning and evening, in cold and heat.
He was a dog.

He was a man,
And din't stay
To cherish his wife and his children fair.
He was a man,
And every day
His heart grew callous, its love beats rare,
He thought of himself at the close of day,
And, cigar in his fingers, hurried away
To the club, the lodge, the shore, the show,
But! he had a right to go, you know,
He was a man.
—London Times.

DON'T SEEK TROUBLE.

When you find your passions bubble,
When your fists you tightly double,
When you feel inclined for trouble,
At some petty slight or sting,
Pause a moment for reflection,
Use a little circumspection,
Always there is this objection:
Trouble's an expensive thing.

Though the man may be a bluffer,
Though you think that you may suffer
From the mud he likes to fling,
Keep your temper double bitted,
Say the fellow's to be pitied,
Anyhow it is admitted,
Trouble's an expensive thing.

Wait a while before you say it,
Think it over, closely weigh it,
If it is the right card, play it—
But an ace will beat a king,
What you think that you can stand'll
All depend what cards you handle
If the game is worth the candle,
Trouble's an expensive thing.
—Chicago News.

TEACH YOUR BOY.

To be thoughtful of your comfort.
To be chivalrous to his sisters.
To pick up and put away his own playthings.
To put his clothing in its proper place.
To air his bed and leave his room tidy in the mornings.
To sew on a button and make himself independent in such little matters.
To find his own things and look after himself.
To hate to lie or meanness of any kind; to abhor debt; to scorn trickery or cowardice.
To look upon work not as a bugbear, but as the highest privilege of a man and the best means of happiness.

JUST ABOUT GIRLS.

Marriage is an eye-opener; at least it enables a man to see his wife as others see her.

Some girls cultivate the art of pouting because they imagine it makes them look cute.

Fortunate is the woman who is able to mend both her husband's clothes and his ways.

The happiest period in a girl's life is when she gets her first skirt that swishes when she walks.

A girl thinks it wrong for a man to attempt to kiss her and a young widow thinks it wrong if he doesn't succeed.

The average girl baby is so fond of her father that she sleeps during the day while he is busy so she can stay awake all night and enjoy his society.

Cut His Visit Short.

The Duke of Wellington once wrote to Dr. Hutton for information as to the scientific acquirements of a young officer who had been under his instruction. The doctor thought he could not do less than answer the question verbally and made an appointment accordingly.

Directly Wellington saw him he said: "I am obliged to you, doctor, for the trouble you are taking. Is ——fit for the post?"

Clearing his throat, Dr. Hutton began: "No man more so, my lord. I can"—

"That's quite sufficient," said Wellington. "I know how valuable your time is. Mine just now is equally so, I will not detain you any longer. Good morning."

Yankee Pudding.

Remove all lean and rind from a piece of sweet salt pork; chop fine. Take a half cupful of chopped pork, roll in flour and sift. Add to it a cupful of molasses, two-thirds of a cupful of sweet milk, a cupful of chopped and seeded raisins, a cupful of currants, one egg, one-half teaspoonful each of cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg, a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in warm water and flour enough to make very stiff. Steam three hours and serve with hard sauce. You cannot get the best results from this or any other recipe unless you have fresh currants and raisins.

A POST MARITAL ROMANCE

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

ILLUSTRATIONS BY [illegible]

"Well, we can do that," returned Collier, "but I'm morally certain that it'll be of little use."

"Nevertheless," answered Sir Charles, "I should like it, for they may have been concealed elsewhere and this all may be a trick to throw us off the scent."

"All right," returned the naval officer, "I'll have a dozen of the Britannias out of the boat and we'll overhaul the Flying Star from stem to stern and from truck to keelson."

"Gentlemen," said the captain, "I'm terrible anxious to get ahead. I'll be honest with you this time. I did take in them two parties about noon to-day. I knowed that the one in men's clothes was a woman soon as I laid eyes on her, but she said she was the daughter of Captain William Penn Slocum of Philadelphia, a man I'd knowed for many years, an' I agreed to take her to Bordeaux whither I'm bound. She said she was runnin' away from her husband. And the other girl was runnin' away from a lover. No, not exac'ly," continued the captain, correcting himself, "the other girl was runnin' away 'cause she had to. I took it that she was no wise willin' to come with us but she couldn't help it."

Sir Charles' heart leaped at this confirmation of his hopes and dreams.

"An' I give you my word," continued the captain, "that they ain't nowhere else in the ship. I was down here just before dark, thought I'd fetch them some supper, and they was both asleep, an' I didn't have the heart to wake 'em up. I think it's just as this gentleman says, somethin' must have alarmed them, maybe they heard your hail; their boat was draggin' astern, and they made off in her."

"I have no doubt that you are speaking the truth," answered Seton.

Captain Tuggles startled violently.

"Nay," said the soldier, "I mean no offense at all, but you don't know Lady Ellen Carrington, and it's quite possible that without your knowledge she's concealed herself in some other part of the ship."

"If I produce her will you take off your men and your ship and lemme go on?"

"Instantly," returned Seton.

"I wish I could do it," said the captain. "All I can do is to send my men to assist yours. Mr. Rayker," he called out to the mate, "have the ship searched. Put no hindrance in the way of these Britishers, and if them two females can be found, fetch 'em aft, for God's sake!"

It did not take the sailors long to search the ship. They found no trace of Ellen and Deborah whatsoever and so reported to Collier.

"I am sorry for you, Sir Charles," said Collier, "but they have evidently escaped you. They're cruising around somewhere in these waters in that boat. Perhaps we can overhaul them at daybreak if we have good luck," he said. "At any rate, they are not here, and we'll have to return to the Britannia."

"My friend," said Sir Charles, gloomily, "we owe you some reparation for stopping you in this way. If this will compensate, I shall be glad."

He extended his hand with a rouleau of gold pieces in it. Captain Tuggles took the money, examined it critically, walked to the side of the vessel and dropped it overboard.

"What do you mean by that?" cried Sir Charles, angrily.

"It's right that you should pay me for the trouble you've caused and the insult you've put upon me, but that doesn't make it necessary for me to take your money."

"Why didn't you give it back, then?" asked Collier, who was as much astonished as Seton.

"There wouldn't have been any pay if I'd give it back. It goes into the ocean, that'll clean it off. Now, if you're through with me, although I've enjoyed immensely this evenin's conversation, p'raps you'll be kind enough to call off your men, take your ship out of my way and lemme go on."

Collier laughed.

"It was that sort of spirit," he said to Seton, "that prevented us from conquering them in the last seven years. Come on, we have naught to gain here. We'll let the American eagle scream undisturbed."

"Yes," said Captain Tuggles, "and it's this sort of spirit that's goin' to make it hot for you if you ever try to fight with us again. The American eagle's never goin' to be any younger and weaker than it is now, and look out next time."

Seton laughed at the captain's gasconading in which there was more truth than either of them dreamed, turned on his heel, followed Collier to the gangway, descended to the boat, which was shoved off and rowed to the Britannia.

A few moments later there was a shrilling of pipes, a hoarse growling, a hurrying of feet along the decks of the liner. Her helm was shifted, her sails filled, her main yard swung, and [illegible] an example that Captain Tuggles was quick to follow.

"Captain," said the second mate, whose watch it was, "I suppose them females is lying off here in the dark somewhere, p'raps if we stand on easy we can pick 'em up again."

"I wouldn't have 'em in my ship again," said Tuggles, viciously, "for a thousand pounds. Women are all right ashore, especially when men are at sea, but when the two gits together on a ship, God help us. An' so I says to Mrs. Tuggles, she can keep house in Boston, and I'll keep house on my quarter-deck. I ain't there, and I don't feel that way when I'm in her presence."

With which bit of sea philosophy the worthy captain fades into the darkness and out of the pages of this history.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Preliminaries to Danger.

Admiral Kephard was waiting the return of the boat at the gangway of the Britannia. Great was his disappointment when he discovered that Seton and Collier were alone.

"Hey! What?" he exclaimed. "Where are the—?"

"I'll explain it in your cabin, if you'll permit, sir," answered Sir Charles, gravely, unable to hide his disappointment.

"Come aft, then," returned the admiral. "Collier, you, too. Gentlemen," he continued as he waved them to seats in his spacious cabin, "what's the story? Did not the ladies board that ship?"

"They did, sir," answered Sir Charles.

"Well, why didn't you bring them off? Wouldn't they come with you? Couldn't you persuade them?"

"We couldn't persuade them because we didn't have a chance, sir," answered Collier.

"What do you mean?" exclaimed the admiral in bewilderment.

"They had gone!"

"Gone? Where?"

"I wish we knew," answered Sir Charles with a very melancholy air.

"But my dear Sir Charles, where could they have gone? Did you search the ship?"

"Every nook and corner in her, sir," answered Collier.

"But I don't understand," began the admiral.

"They must have seen us ranging alongside, sir," returned the lieutenant, "for when we broke into the cabin which they had occupied we found the berths had been used, but the ladies had fled."

"Fled where?"

"Into the captain's cabin."

"Did you not enter that?"

"We did, sir. They had left that."

"Left it for what?"

"For the small boat in which they had boarded the Flying Star, which, you remember, we noticed dragging astern of the merchantman while we chased her this afternoon."

"I see," returned the admiral. "Lord, what a woman that is! She has spirit and resource and readiness enough to command not a frigate, as I said before, but, by gad, sirs, a fleet! A lucky dog, Carrington!"

"The unluckiest on earth, I think, admiral," returned the baronet, warmly, "and as for me, I prefer the gentler, more womanly kind of women."

"Like Mistress Deborah, eh?" laughed the old sailor. "Well, everyone to his taste. And she went along, too, I have no doubt, under coercion."

"Admiral," returned Sir Charles, haughtily, "from the evidences I have had—"

"Over Baxter's 'Saints' Rest?" said the admiral.

"Quite so."

"Well, what do you propose now?"

"I have no proposition to make. I suppose we can't hope to find them now."

"Might as well try to hunt for a needle in a haystack as to try to find them in this darkness," said the admiral. "It'll be ten hours at least before it's light enough to see anything, and by that time they may have gone anywhere. I'm expecting orders any day for sea, and I shall have to get back to the anchorage. There's no help for it, Sir Charles. I'm sorry for you, but you'll have to take a new departure and follow the course in another way. Mr. Collier, bid Captain Beatty make the best of the way to the anchorage without further delay. I can offer you a berth yonder, Sir Charles. I have no doubt you'll want to turn in after all you've gone through and the disappointment you've met with."

"Thank you," said Sir Charles, "I do feel rather done up."

"Oh, these women," mused the old admiral as Sir Charles disappeared [illegible]

in an adjoining stateroom. "It's lucky that I have no greater attachment than his majesty's ships. God bless him! And then an admiral has all he can do to rule his fleet without having to take orders from a pair of petticoats—" which was the sailor's quaint euphemism for the other sex, and he did not even know that the useful article of dress he cited did not come in pairs!

A couple of hours after the arrival of the two hot-headed lords at the Blue Boar, an officer from the squadron inquired for Lieutenant Carrington. A servant carried his message up to the room where Carrington was lying down waiting for the next turn of events, and he was instantly admitted. He proved to be Lieutenant Miller, a shipmate and intimate friend of Carrington's, who had come from the Niobe to the inn for two reasons. One was in response to Carrington's urgent appeal that he act as his second in the approaching affair with Strathgate, and the other was because he bore orders from the captain of the Niobe directing Carrington to report on board at once, as the Niobe was under orders for the Mediterranean without delay. It was already quite late in the afternoon when Mr. Miller laid his orders before Carrington.

"I can't go," said the earl, resolutely, "I have to meet Strathgate in the morning and beside that I can't leave the country now."

"Captain Careysbrook is in a good deal of temper about the matter now. The orders were sent on to your house and followed you here. He should have gone two days ago and he's fuming like a caged lion."

"I can't help it. You'll have to go back and explain the circumstances to him and tell him if he can't wait until to-morrow morning, he'll have to sail without me."

"But that's disobedience of orders," returned Miller.

"Man," said Carrington hotly, "don't you see this infernal scoundrel Strathgate ran away with my wife—"

"With your wife!" exclaimed Miller.

"Well, not exactly," replied Carrington, "that is, they went away together. Oh, hang it! I've got to kill him and I have to find my wife if it costs me my commission. I can't go. No, you needn't remonstrate with me," ran on my lord, hotly, "just simply tell him that that's the end of it and if he wants to order me under arrest, he can do it. I'll face a court-martial rather than—"

"Well, I'm awfully sorry, Carrington," returned Miller, "but I can't stay with you. I am ordered to return to the ship without delay."

"All right, but I must have some friend here. Let me have Parkman. He's on the Renown. She's not under orders, is she?"

"No, I believe not, although since the Britannia sailed—"

"Where did the Britannia go?"

"We don't know anything about it. A small boat came alongside, looked like a soldier in her, and then the ship got under way, signaled to us to disregard the motions of the commander-in-chief and left Lascelles in command."

"A small boat with a soldier in her," mused Carrington. "Which way did the Britannia go?"

"At nightfall she was going up the channel in the wake of a big merchantman."

"By heavens!" roared the earl, "that'll be Seton."

"I don't understand what you mean," said Miller.

"Never mind," returned Carrington, visibly perturbed, "send me Parkman. Ask Captain Lascelles to let him off for the night. Explain to him—"

"And what shall I say to Captain Careysbrook?"

"Say anything you like, except that I can't come off, and I'll explain when I can."

"That won't do much good," said Miller, "but I'll do the best I can."

He shook the other's hand and left the room.

"Seton on the Britannia! I see it all now," mused Carrington. "What a fool I was not to think of it myself. They'll overhaul her without fail. The Britannia will be back to her anchorage at daybreak and I'll be there." He stopped. "No, I have this cursed duel on hand. I wonder if it couldn't be postponed!"

For the moment his intense love for Ellen overbore every other possibility. The thought that at last she would be restored to him made him for the moment forget the pressing demands of the early morning hour, but further reflection plunged him into a black fit of jealousy of Seton. It was he who had the wit and address to capture Lady Carrington. It was he who would reap the reward that might come to him from his skill and daring and devotion. And Carrington swore to settle with him as soon as he had arranged matters with Strathgate.

His reveries were interrupted toward evening by the arrival of Parkman, to whom Lascelles had readily granted permission to go ashore for the night. Parkman had brought with him a case of dueling pistols, having been informed by Miller of what was on. The two at once settled down to business, but not until Carrington had catechized Parkman as to what was known about the movements of the admiral and the Britannia. Nothing further was elicited than what he had obtained from Miller. A challenge was duly drawn up and Parkman carried it to Lord Strathgate.

The baron of Blythedale had a seat a few miles east of Portsmouth. He was a bachelor, a congenial spirit and an old friend of Lord Strathgate's. He had agreed to act as Strathgate's second. He and Lieutenant Parkman soon came to an agreement. The encounter would take place in the park at Blythedale, where the combatants would be free from any possible interruption or from prying eyes of any sort. Strathgate, as the challenged, had the choice of weapons, and selected swords, to Carrington's great satisfaction. The other preliminaries were soon settled. A surgeon was also designated, and Parkman came back to report the progress of events, most agreeable, from his point of view, to his principal.

Carrington was as expert with the sword as with the pistol, and he made no demur to any of the conclusions of the seconds. All he wanted was to have his deadly enemy opposite him, with no one to intervene. He had duties to perform before he went to rest. One of them was the writing of a letter to Ellen, which, after he had signed and sealed it, he gave to Parkman, with instructions to turn it over to my Lady Carrington in case the approaching encounter should terminate fatally for my lord. When Parkman asked where Lady Carrington was to be found, Carrington replied bitterly that in all probability she could be seen on the Britannia in the morning with Sir Charles Seton.

"And hark ye, Jack," said Carrington, clapping his hand on his friend's shoulder, "say to Sir Charles Seton that as regards the unsettled difference between us, I'm ready to meet him here and now, if he'll come ashore in the proper mood for an encounter. I might as well finish up all my enemies in one day and leave myself free for dealing with my wife, or get a clearance for Davy Jones' locker myself from one or the other of them."

PROPERTY—TITLES.

The Harcuvar Copper Company owns outright in fee simple with no debt, nine full Mining Claims comprising 185.5 acres, together with one unpatented claim held for its water rights as well as mineral. The names of the claims are as follows:

"Sunny Side," "Triumph," "Ada," "Mystic, "Treasure Trove," "Mountain Queen," "Harcuvar," "Midget," "Arroyo," and "Agua Frio."

The Company has erected a first class boarding house with all necessary equipment; has provided sleeping accommodations for the men; has erected a substantial portal house to the tunnel including blacksmith shop, store room, etc., ore cars, track (16 lb. rails) and tools to run the work with three shifts of miners.

The title of these claims has been declared perfect by Judge Hawkins and they are now in process of patenting, our patent survey has already been accepted by the United States Surveyor General.

DEVELOPMENT PLANS.

We have complete surveys by the well known Mining Engineering firm, Haggott, Girand Company, and our development plans have been laid with the utmost care and skill. Passing through the group east and west are two prominent diorite dykes. They are from 20 to 40 feet wide each and are from 30 to 60 feet apart, carrying ore on both the north and south contacts and with the country rock between them highly mineralized. On the north contact vein on the north dyke on the Sunny Side Claim we have exposed through prospecting shafts from 5 to 9 feet of ore that runs from 2 TO 24 PER CENT. IN COPPER AND FROM 0.22 TO 1.52 OZ. IN GOLD WITH SMALL SILVER VALUES.

To develop this excellent surface showing a cross-cut tunnel 5 foot by 7 foot 6 inches is being driven a distance of 418 feet where it will cross-cut the ore zone at 275 feet vertical depth. This tunnel is being driven by hand and is now in 200 feet, but the installation of an air compressor and air drills is contemplated at an early date so that our work can be conducted with more dispatch. For further development we offer today in lots of not less than 100 shares either for cash with a 5 per cent. discount or on the installment plan of five equal monthly payments of 5 cents for each share. "ONE GOOD INVESTMENT IN WORTH A LIFE-TIME OF LABOR." If you don't buy a block of Harcuvar Copper Company stock now, and reap the cream of the investment you will be the loser.

A Copper Mine is a Commercial Proposition, Not a Speculation.

No single industry in the world is now paying as large a profit on money invested as the Copper industry. Several Copper Mines in Arizona and Mexico are paying from 100 per cent. to 3,000 per cent. on an investment made only a few years ago. The richest copper section in the world is the Arizona Copper belt. The average cost of producing copper in Arizona is less than 7½ cents per pound. No other copper region in the world is able to duplicate the quantity at anything near that cost. This low cost of production justly entitles Arizona Copper Stocks to the highest place in the confidence of the investor for the lower the cost of production, the greater the net earnings and dividends. These are facts which leave no room for argument and therefore we do not hesitate to advise our friends to put their idle money into Arizona Copper Mines.

THE MAN WHO INVESTED $1,000.00 IN CALUMET AND ARIZONA SIX YEARS AGO NOW HAS A SNUG FORTUNE OF $36,630.00 AND LAST YEAR RECEIVED IN DIVIDENDS $16.50 PER SHARE, AMOUNTING TO $4,994.50. THIS STOCK WAS PUT ON THE MARKET IN 1901 AND WAS FIRST SOLD AT FROM 40 CENTS TO $3.00 PER SHARE, NOW $110.00. TEN YEARS AGO UNITED VERDE SOLD AT FROM 15 TO 50 CENTS AND IS NOW PAYING 75 CENTS PER SHARE REGULAR MONTHLY DIVIDENDS.

TODAY WE OFFER YOU AN INTEREST IN THE HARCUVAR COPPER COMPANY WHICH IS LOCATED IN THE RICHEST PART OF THE ARIZONA COPPER BELT, AND WE FIRMLY BELIEVE THAT EACH $1,000.00 INVESTED IN HARCUVAR NOW SHOULD BE INTRINSICALLY WORTH SEVERAL THOUSAND DOLLARS BY THE TIME WE GET OUR PROPERTY DEVELOPED. INVESTIGATE THIS PROPOSITION AT ONCE AND SEND US YOUR ORDER AS THE ALLOTMENT IS LIMITED.
